2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:8–9a I robbed other churches is an example of hyperbole. Paul received financial help from Macedonia to preach the gospel in Corinth.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:9b–14 Paul refused to accept money from the Corinthians because he had to distinguish his ministry from that of the false apostles. They labored in Corinth out of greed (compare 2:17).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:9–10 Macedonia. Northern Greece, where Philippi, Thessalonica, and Berea were located. Achaia. Southern Greece, where Corinth was located.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:13 false apostles. See 2 Pet. 2:1–3 and notes.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:15 On judgment that will correspond to one's deeds, see 5:10; Rom. 2:6; Gal. 6:7–9; 2 Tim. 4:14.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:16–18 In his arrogance the fool boasts in himself, not in the Lord (see 10:17–18). He is condemned for this (see, e.g., Ps. 14:1; Prov. 9:13–18). Almost like a fool, Paul is about to boast a little in his own identity in order to make his point (see 2 Cor. 11:21b–23). Paul recognizes that he does so not as the Lord would (that is, not following a direct command from the Lord). He does so only because in Corinth many boast according to the flesh.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:20–21a strikes you in the face. A reference to the Jewish opponents insulting the Gentile Corinthians, probably by literally striking them (see John 18:22; Acts 23:2). All five actions listed in 2 Cor. 11:20 are signs of an arrogant attitude on the part of these false leaders.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:21b–23a Hebrews refers to Jewish ethnicity; Israelites refers to being God's chosen people under the old covenant. Offspring of Abraham means being part of the new covenant people of God and a true descendant of Abraham (see Rom. 9:6–9; 11:1–6; Gal. 3:29). Because he is reluctant to speak of himself in this way, Paul downplays his qualifications. He says that he is speaking as a fool (2 Cor. 11:21b) and talking like a madman (v. 23a).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:24 forty lashes less one. The Jewish punishment of 39 lashes was given by the synagogue for false teaching, blasphemy, and serious lawbreaking. All of these charges could have been applied to Paul's preaching of the gospel, especially to Gentiles (Acts 9:20; 13:5, 14–43; etc.; see note on Acts 5:40). It was the most severe beating allowed by Scripture (Deut. 25:1–3).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:25–26 beaten with rods. This was the Gentile punishment for disturbing the peace (Acts 16:22–23, 35–38; 22:25–29; 1 Thess. 2:2). Once, in Lystra, Paul was stoned (Acts 14:5–19). Three times I was shipwrecked. This would not include the shipwreck described in Acts 27, which occurred after Paul wrote this.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:28 anxiety for all the churches. See 2:12–13.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:30 God triumphs through human weakness, as he did through Christ's crucifixion (1 Cor. 1:27; 2 Cor. 12:9; 13:4).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 11:32–33 Having to flee in a basket was a striking example of Paul's "weakness" (v. 30).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:1–13 Because his opponents boast in their spiritual experiences as well as in their ethnic identity, Paul is also forced to boast, however foolishly, in his own visions and revelations (see 11:1, 16; 12:11). But then in vv. 7–10 he returns one last time to boasting in his weakness, revealing the presence of a "thorn in the flesh" as the appropriate means for glorifying God's grace and power in his life and ministry. In vv. 9–10 he clearly states the principle behind this aspect of his self-commendation (1:3–11; 2:14–17; 4:7–12; 6:3–10; 11:23–33): Paul's earthly weaknesses, not his revelations, are to be the platform for demonstrating the Lord’s power and grace.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:2–3 I know a man . . . this man. Paul’s hesitancy to boast of his visions is reflected in his use of the third person (as if it had happened to someone else). the third heaven (that is, the highest; see 1 Kings 8:27). This phrase reflects a distinction between (1) the atmosphere where birds can be seen to fly, (2) the higher area where the sun, moon, and stars can be seen, and (3) the unseen realm where God dwells (paradise). fourteen years ago. Sometime between A.D. 42–44, before his first missionary journey (Acts 9:29–30; 11:25–26). There is no other known record of this vision.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:7 a thorn was given me (by God, who is sovereign over all things) in the flesh, a messenger of Satan. The nature of this “thorn” or “messenger” is uncertain. The most frequently proposed possibilities include: (1) Paul’s inner psychological struggles (such as grief over his earlier persecution of the church, sorrow over Israel’s unbelief, or continuing temptations); (2) Paul’s opponents, who continued to persecute him (compare Num. 33:55 and Ezek. 28:24, where thorns refer to Israel’s enemies); (3) some kind of physical affliction (possibly poor eyesight, malaria, or severe migraine headaches); or (4) some kind of demonic harassment (“a messenger of Satan”). Most commentators prefer the third view, since “thorn in the flesh” would seem to suggest a physical condition.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:9–10 My grace is sufficient. Paul says that God’s grace “is sufficient” (in the present tense). This emphasizes the constant availability of God’s grace, for Paul and for every believer (see Rom. 8:31–39). my power is made perfect in weakness. Paul’s earthly weaknesses (not his revelations) were God’s way of demonstrating his power. This is the basis of Paul’s self-defense throughout 2 Corinthians.

Weakness and Power (or Strength) in 1–2 Corinthians

Verse	Weakness	Power (or Strength)
1 Cor. 1:25	the weakness of God	is stronger than men
1 Cor. 1:27	God chose what is weak	to shame the strong
1 Cor. 2:3, 5	in weakness and in fear	but in the power of God
1 Cor. 15:43	sown in weakness	raised in power

2 Cor. 12:9	I will boast . . . of my weaknesses	so that the power of Christ may rest upon me
2 Cor. 13:3	not weak in dealing with you	but . . . powerful among you
2 Cor. 13:4	he was crucified in weakness	but lives by the power of God
2 Cor. 13:4	we also are weak in him	but . . . live with him by the power of God
2 Cor. 13:9	we are glad when we are weak	and you are strong

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:11 super-apostles. See note on 11:5–6. even though I am nothing. Paul was the “least of the apostles,” having persecuted the church (1 Cor. 15:8–9). He owes everything to the grace and call of God in his life (1 Cor. 15:10; 2 Cor. 3:4–6).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:12 the signs of a true apostle . . . among you with utmost patience. Refers to the work of the Spirit through Paul’s ministry. This work is seen in the conversion and gifting of the Corinthians (3:1–3). It is also seen in Paul’s Christlike behavior (6:4; 10:1–12:10). with signs and wonders and mighty works. A threefold description of miraculous acts that accompanied and proved an apostle’s ministry (see Rom. 15:18–19; Gal. 3:1–5). These terms tie God’s saving work under the new covenant to the signs and wonders at the exodus. This shows the unity within redemptive history (e.g., Ex. 3:20; 7:3; 10:1–2; Deut. 4:34; Ps. 105:27–36; see the Overview of the Bible).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:13 With playful irony, Paul says that the only wrong he did the Corinthians was not asking them for money (see 11:9b–14 for the reason).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:14–13:10 In final preparation for his third visit (12:14; 13:1), Paul commends his apostleship one last time (12:14–21) and challenges the rebellious to test the genuineness of their professed faith (13:1–10).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:14–15 for the third time I am ready to come to you. On his first visit Paul planted the church at Corinth (Acts 18:1–18). His second visit was the “painful visit” (see 2 Cor. 2:1 and note on 2:1–2).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:16–18 crafty . . . deceit . . . take advantage. Paul rejects the idea that he used the collection to take money from the Corinthians. There is no evidence for such a charge.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:20 find you not as I wish. That is, still unrepentant, rebellious, and continuing in their sinful lifestyles. All of these would indicate that they are not genuine believers (see 13:5). find me not as you wish. If the Corinthians do not repent, Paul will have to exercise God's judgment. He cannot wait patiently for their repentance as in the past (see 1:23–2:4).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 12:21 God may humble Paul before the Corinthians by using Paul as an instrument of their judgment. This will mean Paul may have to mourn over the rebellious.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 13:1 the third time. See note on 12:14–15. evidence of two or three witnesses. The legal requirement for accepting evidence at a trial (Deut. 19:15).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 13:2 not spare. Paul did not specify what form the discipline would take. Perhaps he did not know exactly, but it certainly would not be pleasant (see Acts 5:1–11; 13:8–11; 1 Cor. 5:4–5).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 13:3–4 Following the pattern of Christ's own weakness (1:5; 8:9; Phil. 2:7–8), Paul too has been weak for the sake of God's people. This showed them God's Spirit and glory through his own sufferings (2 Cor. 1:3–11; 2:14–16a; 4:7–15; 6:3–10; 11:23–33; 12:7–10). But also like Christ, Paul will exercise the power of God in judging the Corinthians' behavior and beliefs (see 1 Cor. 5:12–13; 6:1–3).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 13:5 The test to see if Christ is in the Corinthians will be their response to Paul and his call to repent. God's message and the messenger are one (5:18–6:2).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 13:7–9 Paul desires the Corinthians' restoration even at this late hour.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 13:11–14 Closing Greetings. Paul highlights the important themes he has covered. As in 1 Corinthians (see 1 Cor. 16:13–14), he also summarizes the central conclusions of this letter with five commands.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 13:11 Brothers here is a generic reference to both men and women (see ESV Preface: Translation Principles and Style). Paul also speaks of the Corinthians as “brothers” in the first two sections of the letter. There he primarily addressed those who were repentant (see 1:8 and 8:1). In chs. 10–13, Paul does not address those who are rebellious as “brothers.” Now, in closing the letter, Paul again uses this loving expression to address the entire church. This indicates his hope that they truly will be “brothers and sisters” in Christ as a result of their right response to his letter (13:6–10).

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 13:12–13 Greet. . . . All the saints greet. These two greetings stress the unity of the church, local and universal. with a holy kiss. Usually reserved for special reunions among family members or formal greetings. An entire group practicing this public kiss was unique to the early church. It signified their mutual acceptance as a family. See note on 1 Cor. 16:20.

2 CORINTHIANS—NOTE ON 13:14 This is the only Trinitarian benediction in Paul’s letters. It stresses that grace, love, and fellowship with one another come from God in Christ through the Spirit. you all. A final emphasis on the unity of the reconciled church, brought about by God himself, one of the main goals of Paul’s letter (1:7; 5:18–6:2; 7:2–4; 12:19).

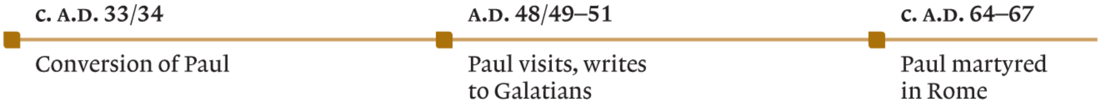
Introduction to Galatians

Introduction to Galatians

Timeline



Author, Date, and Recipients

The apostle Paul wrote this letter about A.D. 48. The Galatians are probably believers in the churches of the southern region of the Roman province of Galatia. Paul is more critical of his audience here than in any of his other letters.

Theme

Christ's death has brought in the age of the new covenant (3:23–26; 4:4–5, 24). People do not have to become Jews or follow the outward ceremonies of the Mosaic law in order to be Christians (2:3, 11–12, 14; 4:10). To require these things denies the heart of the gospel, which is justification by faith alone and not by keeping the "works of the law" (2:16). In this new age, Christians are to live in the guidance and power of the Spirit (chs. 5–6).

Purpose

False teachers have convinced the Galatians that they are required to be circumcised. The result is division within their church (5:15). Paul gives numerous reasons why they should return to the simple truth of the gospel.

Key Themes

1. In his sin-bearing death, Christ is a substitute for all Christians. He brings them into a new realm of freedom and life (1:4; 2:20; 3:13).

2. The gospel of Christ comes from God alone—not from any human source. Paul himself is a living example of this. His conversion to Christ and his apostleship were not through human means. They came through direct revelation from Christ (1:1, 11–12, 15–20).
3. Salvation comes not by works of law but by faith, which leads to justification (2:16).
4. To require circumcision and other Mosaic laws as a supplement to faith is to fall back from the realm of grace and freedom and to come under the whole law and its curse, since perfect observance of the law is impossible (2:12–14, 16; 3:10; 4:10; 5:3).
5. Old Testament Scripture itself testifies to the truth of justification by faith (Gen. 15:6; Hab. 2:4).
6. Believers have died with Christ to sin and therefore have renounced the flesh (Gal. 5:24; 6:14).
7. The Spirit is the source of power and guidance in the Christian life. He produces love and faith in the believer (5:6, 16, 18, 25).
8. The Christian life is one of pleasing Christ. This requires willingness to suffer persecution for the sake of his cross (1:10; 6:12, 14).

Outline

II. Indirect Appeal: Paul's Ministry and the Gospel (1:10–2:21)

The Setting of Galatians

c. A.D. 48

Paul's letter to the Galatians was likely written to the churches he had established during his first missionary journey (Acts 13:1–14:28). He probably wrote the letter from his home church in Antioch in Syria, sometime before the Jerusalem council (Acts 15:1–31).

The Global Message of Galatians

The global message of Paul’s letter to the Galatians is that in Christ the ancient promises to Abraham have been fulfilled. The blessing and favor of God is now pouring out to the Gentiles (anyone not a Jew), because all that is needed to be right with God is faith in Christ.

The Problem Galatians Addresses

Adam and Eve were put on the earth to be fruitful and multiply and fill the earth with God’s glory, but they rebelled and thus failed to do this. God then called Abraham, intending to do through Abraham’s descendants what Adam and Eve had failed to do. “And I will make of you a great nation,” said the Lord to Abraham, “and I will bless you and make your name great, so that you will be a blessing. . . . in you all the families of the earth shall be blessed” (Gen. 12:2–3).

Yet Abraham’s own family proved to be plagued with the same problems as the rest of humanity: family conflict, cowardice, failure to trust in God, violence, and more. What was needed was a deep, massive cleansing not only of the world “out there” but also of God’s own people, the offspring of Abraham, Israel.

The Solution Galatians Gives

In Christ, God accomplished this cleansing. For Christ was the true and final offspring of Abraham (Gal. 3:16). He was the true Son of God (1:16). He fulfilled the whole law in himself, yet he also suffered its condemnation when he went to the cross (3:13). And he did all this so that “the blessing of Abraham might come to the Gentiles, so that we might receive the promised Spirit through faith” (3:14). All this took place at the climax of human history: “But when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son, born of woman, born under the law, to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as sons” (4:4–5).

The result of Christ’s work is that the favor of God is flooding out to all nations, as was God’s original purpose through Abraham (Gal. 3:28–29).

Universal Themes in Galatians

Justification by faith. Anyone can exercise faith, and it is faith alone that justifies (Gal. 2:15–16). Therefore anyone can be part of God’s family. It is not only for insiders. When a sinner exercises faith, trusting in Christ rather than in his or her personal goodness, that sinner is justified—put right with God, declared righteous in the divine courtroom. He or she can no longer be justly condemned. Martin Luther said that this doctrine of justification by faith is the article on which the church stands or falls. Here the gospel is clearest: we are justified only by faith, not by morality and not by ethnicity. This gospel is for the whole world.

Freedom. Freedom is highly sought around the world today: in politics, in society, in voting, in education. These are all important and worth working to secure. Yet Galatians presents the universal church with a freedom that goes deeper than all of these other important freedoms: freedom in Christ, who has both fulfilled the law in our place and also suffered its curse in our place (Gal. 4:21–5:1). Galatians is a declaration of liberation for all who have been weighed down with their sin and failure and suffering. “For freedom Christ has set us free” (5:1).

Equality. “There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is no male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus” (Gal. 3:28). Galatians declares not only a radical new freedom but also a radical new equality. Paul is not saying in this text that distinctions of ethnicity, class, and gender are obliterated in an absolute way. Indeed, part of the glory of the new earth will be the beautiful ethnic diversity it displays (Rev. 21:25–26). Rather, Paul is saying that valid human distinctions do not affect a person’s qualification for salvation. God does not judge significance as the world does. Gentiles are just as welcome as Jews to come to Christ; slaves are just as welcome as the free; women are just as welcome as men.

The Global Message of Galatians for Today

The Bible tells us what is wrong with the world today: sin. Yet the Bible also tells us God’s radical, wondrous solution: Christ. And while the problem of sin extends to every corner of the globe and every corner of the human heart, the work of Christ is freely available in just as extensive a scope. Paul sums up the gospel by saying that Christ “gave himself for our sins to deliver us from the present evil age” (Gal. 1:4). As a result, “in Christ Jesus the blessing of Abraham [can] come to the Gentiles" (3:14)—and has come, to enrich all the world.

Galatians is one of the clearest presentations of the gospel in all of the Bible. God justifies sinners, irrespective of just how sinful they are, if they will simply trust Christ. No self-generated contribution is necessary. This is the glory of God's grace. It is grace: undeserved, matchless favor for the penitent. It is received, not earned. It comes through God's promise, not God's law. It is accessed by human faith, not human works. It is a gift.

And this gift changes us. The last two chapters of Galatians make this clear. For one who has been united to Christ, the fruit of this union will necessarily begin to blossom (Gal. 5:16–25). Those who have been saved are now indwelt by the Spirit and thus are finally able to love God and love their neighbor.

Galatians urges global Christians to radical acts of self-giving love, all fueled by the gospel of grace. Freely we have received; freely we give. Mercy we have been shown; mercy we will show.

Where can we express love? To whom can we show compassion, whether across the street or around the globe? The heart that has been touched by the gospel and indwelt by the Spirit is propelled outward in acts of love (Gal. 5:14). For those who are no longer orphans but sons (4:7), it is our delight to love as we have been loved. "So then, as we have opportunity, let us do good to everyone, and especially to those who are of the household of faith" (6:10).

Greeting

GALATIANS 1 [†]Paul, an [a]apostle—[b]not from men nor through man, but [c]through Jesus Christ and God the Father, [d]who raised him from the dead —[2][†]and all [e]the brothers [1] who are with me,

To [f]the churches of Galatia:

[3][†][g]Grace to you and peace [h]from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ, [4][†][i]who gave himself for our sins to deliver us from the present [j]evil age, according to the will of [k]our God and Father, [5]to whom be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

No Other Gospel

[6][†]I am astonished that you are [l]so quickly deserting [m]him who called you in the grace of Christ and are turning to [n]a different gospel— [7][o]not that there is another one, but [p]there are some who trouble you and want to distort the gospel of Christ. [8]But even if we or [q]an angel from heaven should preach to you a gospel contrary to the one we preached to you, [r]let him be accursed. [9]As we have said before, so now I say again: If anyone is preaching to you a gospel contrary to the one you received, [r]let him be accursed.

[10][†]For am I now seeking the approval of man, or of God? Or am I trying [s]to please man? If I were still trying to please man, I would not be a [t]servant [2] of Christ.

Paul Called by God

[11]For [u]I would have you know, brothers, that [v]the gospel that was preached by me is not man's gospel. [3] [12][w]For I did not receive it from any man, nor was I taught it, but I received it [x]through a revelation of Jesus Christ. [13][†]For you have heard of [y]my former life in Judaism, how [z]I persecuted the church of God violently and tried to destroy it. [14]And I was advancing in Judaism beyond many of my own age among my people, so extremely [a]zealous was I for [b]the traditions of my fathers. [15]But when he

[c]who had set me apart [d]before I was born, [4] and who [e]called me by his grace, [16][†]was pleased to reveal his Son to [5] me, in order [f]that I might preach him among the Gentiles, I did not immediately consult with anyone; [6] [17][†]nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those who were apostles before me, but I went away into Arabia, and returned again to Damascus.

[18][†]Then [g]after three years I went up to Jerusalem to visit Cephas and remained with him fifteen days. [19][†]But I saw none of the other apostles except James [h]the Lord's brother. [20](In what I am writing to you, [i]before God, I do not lie!) [21][j]Then I went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia. [22]And I was still unknown in person to [k]the churches of Judea that are in Christ. [23]They only were hearing it said, "He who used to persecute us is now preaching the faith he once tried to destroy." [24]And they glorified God because of me.

Paul Accepted by the Apostles

GALATIANS 2 [†]Then after fourteen years I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, taking Titus along with me. [2][†]I went up because of a revelation and set before them (though privately before those [l]who seemed influential) the gospel that [m]I proclaim among the Gentiles, [n]in order to make sure I was not running or had not [o]run in vain. [3][†]But even Titus, who was with me, [p]was not forced to be circumcised, though he was a Greek. [4][q]Yet because of false brothers secretly brought in—who [r]slipped in to spy out [s]our freedom that we have in Christ Jesus, [t]so that they might bring us into slavery— [5]to them we did not yield in submission even for a moment, so that [u]the truth of the gospel might be preserved for you. [6]And from those [v]who seemed to be influential (what they were makes no difference to me; [w]God shows no partiality)—those, I say, who seemed influential [x]added nothing to me. [7][†]On the contrary, when they saw that I had been [y]entrusted with [z]the gospel to the uncircumcised, just as Peter had been entrusted with the gospel to the circumcised [8](for he who worked through Peter for his apostolic ministry to the circumcised worked also through me for mine to the Gentiles), [9][†]and when James and Cephas and John, [v]who seemed to be [a]pillars, perceived the [b]grace that was given to me, they [c] gave the right hand of fellowship to Barnabas and me, that we should go to the Gentiles and they to the circumcised. [10][†]Only, they asked us to remember the poor, [d] the very thing I was eager to do.

Paul Opposes Peter

[11][†]But [e] when Cephas came to Antioch, I opposed him [f] to his face, because he stood condemned. [12][†]For before certain men came from James, [g] he was eating with the Gentiles; but when they came he drew back and separated himself, fearing [h] the circumcision party. [1] [13]And the rest of the Jews acted hypocritically along with him, so that even Barnabas was led astray by their hypocrisy. [14][†]But when I saw that their [i] conduct was not in step with [j] the truth of the gospel, I said to Cephas [k] before them all, “If you, though a Jew, [l] live like a Gentile and not like a Jew, how can you force the Gentiles to live like Jews?”

Justified by Faith

[15]We ourselves are Jews by birth and not [m] Gentile sinners; [16][†]yet we know that [n] a person is not justified [2] by works of the law [o] but through faith in Jesus Christ, so we also have believed in Christ Jesus, in order to be justified by faith in Christ and not by works of the law, [p] because by works of the law no one will be justified.

[17]But if, in our endeavor to be justified in Christ, we too were found [q] to be sinners, is Christ then a servant of sin? Certainly not! [18][†]For if I rebuild what I tore down, I prove myself to be a transgressor. [19][†]For through the law I [r] died to the law, so that I might [s] live to God. [20][†]I have been [t] crucified with Christ. It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives [u] in me. And the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God, [v] who loved me and [w] gave himself for me. [21][†]I do not nullify the grace of God, for [x] if righteousness [3] were through the law, [y] then Christ died for no purpose.

By Faith, or by Works of the Law?

GALATIANS 3 [†]O foolish Galatians! Who has bewitched you? [z] It was before your eyes that Jesus Christ was publicly [a] portrayed as crucified. [2][†]Let me ask you only this: [b] Did you receive the Spirit by works of the law or by [c] hearing with faith? [3]Are you so foolish? [d] Having begun by the Spirit, are you now being perfected by [1] the flesh? [4] [e] Did you suffer [2] so many things in vain—if indeed it was in vain? [5]Does he who supplies the Spirit to you and [f] works miracles among you do so [g] by works of the law, or by hearing with faith— [6][†]just as [h] Abraham “believed God, and it was counted to him as righteousness”?

[7]Know then that it is [i] those of faith who are [j] the sons of Abraham. [8]And the Scripture, foreseeing that [k] God would justify [3] the Gentiles by faith, preached the gospel beforehand to Abraham, saying, [l] “In you shall all the nations be blessed.” [9]So then, those who are of faith are blessed along with Abraham, the man of faith.

The Righteous Shall Live by Faith

[10][†]For all who rely on works of the law are [m] under a curse; for it is written, [n] “Cursed be everyone who does not [o] abide by all things written in the Book of the Law, and do them.” [11][†]Now it is evident that [p] no one is justified before God by the law, for [q] “The righteous shall live by faith.” [4] [12][†]But the law is not of faith, rather [r] “The one who does them shall live by them.” [13][†]Christ [s] redeemed us from the curse of the law by becoming a curse for us—for it is written, [t] “Cursed is everyone who is hanged [u] on a tree”— [14][†]so that in Christ Jesus the blessing of Abraham might [v] come to the Gentiles, so that [w] we might receive [x] the promised Spirit [5] through faith.

The Law and the Promise

[15][†] [y] To give a human example, brothers: [6] [z] even with a man-made covenant, no one annuls it or adds to it once it has been ratified. [16][†]Now [a] the promises were made [b] to Abraham and to his offspring. It does not say, “And to offsprings,” referring to many, but referring to one, [c] “And to your offspring," who is Christ. [17][†]This is what I mean: the law, which came [d]430 years afterward, does not annul a covenant previously ratified by God, so as [e]to make the promise void. [18]For if the inheritance comes by the law, it no longer comes by promise; but [f]God gave it to Abraham by a promise.

[19][†]Why then the law? [g]It was added because of transgressions, [h]until the offspring should come to whom the promise had been made, and it was [i]put in place through angels [j]by an intermediary. [20][†]Now [k]an intermediary implies more than one, but [l]God is one.

[21]Is the law then contrary to the promises of God? Certainly not! For [m]if a law had been given that could give life, then righteousness would indeed be by the law. [22][†]But the Scripture [n]imprisoned everything under sin, so that [o]the promise by faith in Jesus Christ might be given [p]to those who believe.

[23][†]Now before faith came, we were held captive under the law, [q]imprisoned until the coming faith would be revealed. [24][†]So then, [r]the law was our [s]guardian until Christ came, [t]in order that we might be justified by faith. [25]But now that faith has come, we are no longer under a guardian, [26][†]for in Christ Jesus [u]you are all sons of God, through faith. [27][†]For as many of you as [v]were baptized [w]into Christ have [x]put on Christ. [28][†][y]There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave [7] nor free, [z]there is no male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29]And [a]if you are Christ's, then you are Abraham's offspring, [b]heirs according to promise.

Sons and Heirs

GALATIANS 4 [†]I mean that the heir, as long as he is a child, is no different from a slave, [1] though he is the owner of everything, [2]but he is under guardians and managers until the date set by his father. [3][†]In the same way we also, when we were children, [c]were enslaved to the elementary principles [2] of the world. [4][†]But [d]when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son, [e]born [f]of woman, born [g]under the law, [5][†][h]to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive [i]adoption as sons. [6][†]And because you are sons, God has sent [j]the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying, “Abba! Father!” [7]So you are no longer a slave, but a son, and if a son, then [k]an heir through God.

Paul’s Concern for the Galatians

[8][†]Formerly, when you [l]did not know God, you [m]were enslaved to those that by nature [n]are not gods. [9][†]But now that you have come to know God, or rather [o]to be known by God, [p]how can you turn back again to [q]the weak and worthless elementary principles of the world, whose slaves you want to be once more? [10][†] [r]You observe days and months and seasons and years! [11]I am afraid [s]I may have labored over you in vain.

[12][†]Brothers, [3] [t]I entreat you, become as I am, for I also have become as you are. [u]You did me no wrong. [13][†]You know it was [v]because of a bodily ailment that I preached the gospel to you [w]at first, [14]and though my condition was a trial to you, you did not scorn or despise me, but received me [x]as an angel of God, [y]as Christ Jesus. [15]What then has become of your blessedness? For I testify to you that, if possible, you would have gouged out your eyes and given them to me. [16]Have I then become your enemy by [z]telling you the truth? [4] [17][†]They make much of you, but for no good purpose. They want to shut you out, that you may make much of them. [18]It is always good to be made much of for a good purpose, and [a]not only when I am present with you, [19][†] [b]my little children, [c]for whom I am again in the anguish of childbirth until Christ [d]is formed in you! [20]I wish I could be present with you now and change my tone, for I am perplexed about you.

[21][†]Tell me, you who desire to be under the law, do you not listen to the law? [22]For it is written that Abraham had two sons, [e]one by a slave woman and [f]one by a free woman. [23][†]But [g]the son of the slave was born according to the flesh, while [h]the son of the free woman was born through promise. [24]Now this may be interpreted allegorically: these women are two [i]covenants. [j]One is from Mount Sinai, bearing children for slavery; she is Hagar. [25][†]Now Hagar is Mount Sinai in Arabia; [5] she corresponds to the present Jerusalem, for she is in slavery with her children. [26][†]But [k] the Jerusalem above is free, and she is our mother. [27]For it is written, break forth and cry aloud, you who are not in labor!

For the children of the desolate one will be more than those of the one who has a husband.”

[28]Now you, [6] brothers, [m] like Isaac, [n] are children of promise. [29][†]But just as at that time he who was born according to the flesh [o] persecuted him who was born according to the Spirit, [p] so also it is now. [30][†]But what does the Scripture say? [q] “Cast out the slave woman and her son, for the son of the slave woman shall not inherit with the son of the free woman.” [31]So, brothers, we are not children of the slave but [r] of the free woman.

Christ Has Set Us Free

GALATIANS 5 [†]For [s] freedom Christ has [t] set us free; [u] stand firm therefore, and do not submit again to [v] a yoke of [w] slavery.

[2]Look: I, Paul, say to you that [x] if you accept circumcision, [y] Christ will be of no advantage to you. [3]I testify again to every man who accepts circumcision that [z] he is obligated to keep the whole law. [4]You are [a] severed from Christ, [b] you who would be justified [1] by the law; [c] you have fallen away from grace. [5][†]For through the Spirit, by faith, we ourselves eagerly [d] wait for the hope of righteousness. [6]For in Christ Jesus [e] neither circumcision nor uncircumcision counts for anything, but [f] only faith working through love.

[7][g] You were running well. Who hindered you from obeying [h] the truth? [8]This persuasion is not from [i] him who calls you. [9][j] A little leaven leavens the whole lump. [10][k] I have confidence in the Lord that you will [l] take no other view, and [m] the one who is troubling you will bear the penalty, whoever he is. [11][†]But if I, brothers, [2] still preach [3] circumcision, [n] why am I still being persecuted? In that case [o] the offense of the cross has been removed. [12]I wish [p] those who unsettle you would emasculate themselves!

[13][†]For you were called to freedom, brothers. [q]Only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for the flesh, but through love [r]serve one another. [14]For [s]the whole law is fulfilled in one word: [t]“You shall love your neighbor as yourself.” [15]But if you [u]bite and devour one another, watch out that you are not consumed by one another.

Keep in Step with the Spirit

[16][†]But I say, [v]walk by the Spirit, and you will not gratify [w]the desires of the flesh. [17]For [x]the desires of the flesh are against the Spirit, and the desires of the Spirit are against the flesh, for these are opposed to each other, [y]to keep you from doing the things you want to do. [18][†]But if you are [z]led by the Spirit, [a]you are not under the law. [19][†]Now [b]the works of the flesh are evident: sexual immorality, impurity, sensuality, [20][†]idolatry, sorcery, enmity, strife, jealousy, fits of anger, rivalries, dissensions, [c]divisions, [21][†]envy, [4] drunkenness, orgies, and things like these. I warn you, as I warned you before, that [d]those who do such things will not inherit the kingdom of God. [22][†]But [e]the fruit of the Spirit is [f]love, joy, peace, patience, [g]kindness, goodness, faithfulness, [23][h]gentleness, [i]self-control;
[j]against such things there is no law. [24][†]And those who belong to Christ
Jesus [k]have crucified the flesh with its [l]passions and desires.

[25][†]If we live by the Spirit, [m]let us also keep in step with the Spirit.
[26][†][n]Let us not become conceited, provoking one another, envying one another.

Bear One Another’s Burdens

GALATIANS 6 [†]Brothers, [1] [o]if anyone is caught in any transgression, [p]you who are spiritual should restore him in [q]a spirit of gentleness. Keep watch on yourself, lest you too be tempted. [2][†][r]Bear one another’s burdens, and [s]so fulfill [t]the law of Christ. [3]For [u]if anyone thinks he is something, [v]when he is nothing, he deceives himself. [4]But let each one [w]test his own work, and then his reason to boast will be in himself alone and not in his neighbor. [5]For [x]each will have to bear his own load.

[6][y] Let the one who is taught the word share all good things with the one who teaches. [7][†][z] Do not be deceived: God is not mocked, for [a] whatever one sows, that will he also reap. [8]For [b] the one who sows to his own flesh [c] will from the flesh reap corruption, but [d] the one who sows to the Spirit will from the Spirit reap eternal life. [9]And [e] let us not grow weary of doing good, for in due season we will reap, [f] if we do not give up. [10][†]So then, [g] as we have opportunity, let us [h] do good to everyone, and especially to those who are [i] of the household of faith.

Final Warning and Benediction

[11][†]See with what large letters I am writing to you [j] with my own hand.
[12][k] It is those who want to make a good showing in the flesh [l] who would force you to be circumcised, and only [m] in order that they may not be persecuted for the cross of Christ. [13]For even those who are circumcised do not themselves keep the law, but they desire to have you circumcised that they may boast in your flesh. [14][†]But far be it from me to boast [n] except in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by which [2] the world [o] has been crucified to me, and I to the world. [15][†]For [p] neither circumcision counts for anything, nor uncircumcision, but [q] a new creation. [16][†]And as for all who walk by this rule, [r] peace and mercy be upon them, and upon [s] the Israel of God.

[17][†]From now on let no one cause me trouble, for I bear on my body the marks of Jesus.

[18][†][t] The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be [u] with your spirit, brothers.
Amen.

Study Notes for Galatians

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:1–9 Opening. Paul offers a greeting (vv. 1–5). He then addresses the crisis in the Galatian church (vv. 6–9).

FACT

Paul's letter to the Galatians was likely written to the churches he established in the southern part of Galatia during his first missionary journey (Acts 13:1–14:28). He probably sent the letter from his home church in Antioch, sometime before the Jerusalem council (see Acts 15:1–31).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:1–5 Many of the typical elements of Paul's greetings appear here (e.g., "grace and peace"), but there is no thanksgiving for or reference to the Galatians' faith, hope, or love.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:1 apostle. Paul was sent by God to proclaim the gospel. On apostleship, see notes on Matt. 10:2; Acts 1:20; Rom. 1:1. False teachers have evidently raised questions about whether Paul should really be called an apostle (Gal. 2:7–9). not from men nor through man. Paul stresses both here and in 1:11–12, 16–17, 19 that he received the gospel directly from the Lord, not from others.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:2 all the brothers . . . with me. Those with Paul agree with the gospel he proclaims. The Galatians are wrong to accept a gospel that demands circumcision for salvation.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:3 Grace means God's unmerited favor. Peace is not just the absence of conflict. It echoes the OT concept of blessing, in which the person and community are well and whole in all aspects of life. Such blessing comes especially in a right relationship with God (e.g., Num. 6:24–26).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:4 gave himself for our sins. Christ's saving work on the cross is central in this letter. Jesus saves Christians from their sins and sets them free from slavery to this present evil age (3:22–26; 4:1–11).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:6–9 The Galatians are abandoning the true gospel because of the false teachers. so quickly. It was a short time between Paul's first preaching to the Galatians and their present confusion. there are some who trouble you. Visiting preachers have taught them that circumcision and obedience to the whole law are essential to justification (see also 4:17; 6:12–13).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:10–2:21 Indirect Appeal: Paul's Ministry and the Gospel. Paul received the gospel directly from Jesus Christ (see Acts 9:1–19a; 22:3–21; 26:12–23). James, Peter, and John approved his ministry (Gal. 2:9). Paul had enough authority as an apostle to correct Peter (2:11–21).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:10–24 Paul's critics say he teaches a gospel received from man, not from God. They also say he wants to please man rather than God. Paul does not simply defend himself but shows a pastoral concern. He wants to reassure the Galatians that the gospel they received was authentic. It was not a false message delivered by an untrustworthy messenger (e.g., 2:5).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:13–14 Paul distances himself from his former life in Judaism, but he does not reject his identity as an Israelite (see Rom. 11:1). Rather, he has broken with the life of seeking righteousness through the Law of Moses. the traditions of my fathers. In the first century A.D., rabbinic teaching was the foundation of Jewish life, particularly for the Pharisees (see Mark 7:3–5).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:16 that I might preach him among the Gentiles. This was Paul's specific mission.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:17 The journey to Arabia and back to Damascus occurs between Acts 9:25 and 9:26. On the city of Damascus, see note on Acts 9:3. Roman Arabia included much of modern Saudi Arabia, Jordan, and southern Syria.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:18 after three years. If Paul was converted in A.D. 33 (an approximate date), then this visit occurred around A.D. 36. It is probably the visit to Jerusalem described in Acts 9:26–29. Cephas. Peter.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 1:19–20 none of the other apostles except James. This implies that James was among “the apostles,” though he was not one of the original 12 (see note on 1 Cor. 9:4–5).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:1 after fourteen years. Could refer to an additional 14 years after the three years mentioned in 1:18. The 14 years could also start from Paul’s conversion and include those three. The latter seems slightly more probable, placing this visit around A.D. 47. It probably corresponds to Acts 11:29–30 (see note on Acts 11:27–30).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:2 Those who seemed influential probably includes James, Peter, and John (see v. 9).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:3–4 The Jerusalem apostles agreed that Titus, a Gentile, did not need to be circumcised. Thus, says Paul, they agreed no Gentile needed to be circumcised. But some false brothers continued to disagree. (On circumcision, see Acts 15:1–35; Rom. 2:25–29; 4:9–16; Gal. 5:2–12; 6:12–15.)

Spectrum of Early Beliefs about How Christians Should Relate to the Law of Moses

Identity	Beliefs	Examples
Gentile (professing) Christians	The law has absolutely no claim on their lives. (Presupposed in Rom. 6:1, 16.)
Jewish and Gentile Christians	Christians are not under the law covenant even though they are certainly not free from God’s demands. Kosher food laws could be observed and circumcision practiced as pastoral wisdom dictated. (Compare 1 Cor. 9:19–23.)	Paul
Jewish Christians	They understood and accepted Paul’s position, but their personal “comfort zone” was to be observant Jews, at least most of the time. Circumcision and kosher food laws are not necessary for salvation or maturity, and they shouldn’t be imposed on Gentile believers.
Jewish Christians	Jewish Christians should observe the traditions of the Mosaic code, even if it was acceptable for Gentile believers not to see themselves as under its stipulations.	Certain men from James? (Gal. 2:12a)
Jewish Christians	Jewish Christians should observe the Mosaic code, and Gentile believers can come to Christ through faith alone. However, the really spiritual should want to obey the Mosaic law code (even if it wasn’t strictly necessary for salvation).
Jewish (professing) Christians	The new covenant was a renewal of the old covenant; Jesus is the Messiah, but his life, death, and resurrection restored God’s people to faithfulness to the Mosaic covenant. Therefore, if	“Judaizers”

	Gentiles want to come to the Messiah, they must first become Jews (and be circumcised, observe kosher and Sabbath laws, etc.). (Compare Acts 15:1–35; Titus 1:10.)
Devout, non-Christian Jews	Christians are mistaken about the identity of Jesus, and the Jewish boundaries should not be opened to the Gentiles. (Compare Acts 21:27–23:11.)	The circumcised (Rom. 4:12a)

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:7–8 As an apostle, Paul was not inferior to Peter: Paul was assigned to evangelize the uncircumcised (Gentiles), while Peter was sent to the circumcised (Jews). Therefore the Galatians should not consider themselves inferior to any other believers.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:9 pillars. Peter, James, and John were clearly leaders in the early church. Significantly, they gave the right hand of fellowship to Barnabas and Paul. This showed that they approved of the gospel Paul preached and of his ministry to the Gentiles.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:10 the poor. This probably refers mainly to poor Jewish Christians in Jerusalem. Paul led an effort to help them financially (see Rom. 15:25–26; 1 Cor. 16:1–3; 2 Corinthians 8–9).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:11–21 Paul was not a people-pleaser (1:10). His confrontation with Peter proves this.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:11–12 The situation behind this passage is likely that the men who came from James (from the Jerusalem church) encouraged Jewish Christians to eat separately and follow kosher dietary laws. Peter decided to go along with this, perhaps not realizing that his example would make the Gentile Christians feel like second-class Christians.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:12 Although it was allowed by Scripture, eating with the Gentiles would have broken Jewish dietary traditions. The circumcision party required keeping the Mosaic covenant law regarding circumcision, food, and special days.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:14 force the Gentiles to live like Jews. Peter was guilty of hypocrisy (v. 13). He had not been observing food laws previously. Now he was requiring Gentile Christians to observe Jewish food laws in order to eat with him.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:16 "Justified" means "counted righteous" or "declared righteous" by God (see ESV footnote). If people obeyed all of God's perfect moral standards, they could be justified by their own merits. But Paul says that this is impossible for anyone to do (see Romans 1–2). Works of the law means any human effort to be justified by God by obeying a moral law. We also have believed in Christ Jesus, in order to be justified by faith in Christ implies that justification is the result of saving faith. and not by works of the law. No human effort or merit can be added to faith as a basis for justification (see Acts 13:39; Gal. 3:10–14; Heb. 10:1–14). On justification, see also notes on Rom. 4:25; Phil. 3:9; James 2:21.

FACT

Justification by faith alone. False teachers were trying to persuade the Galatians that they needed to practice circumcision and other outward ceremonies of the Mosaic law in order to be right with God. But Paul explains that only through faith in Christ can one be right with God (2:16).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:18 I would prove myself to be a transgressor. Ironically, the one who is most clearly seen to be a sinner is not the one outside of the law (the Gentile), but the one who is under the law.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:19 through the law. The law taught Paul that he could not be saved by works. Paul has died to the law. He no longer tries to gain justification by obeying the law. so that I might live to God. Paul has gained God's acceptance through justification in Christ. He has an amazing new freedom to live a life devoted to God.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:20 It is no longer I who live does not mean that Paul has no personality of his own. It means that he no longer controls his own life. Rather, Christ who lives in me now directs and empowers all that he does. the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God. As Paul trusts Christ moment by moment, Christ works in and through him in all he does. who loved me and gave himself for me. The crucifixion is a personal expression of Christ's love for people as individuals.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 2:21 Christ's death would have been pointless if righteousness were through the law. Then people could earn justification by their obedience. But they can never do this. Sin is so serious that only the substitutionary, atoning death of God's Son can deal with the problem.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:1–5:12 Direct Appeals to the Galatians. Paul gives several reasons why the Galatians should resist false teachers.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:1–5 Paul asks the Galatians five questions. He is disappointed that they have listened to the false teachers. So he returns to their experience of how they first came to know Christ.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:1 Who has bewitched you? Paul uses the language of pagan magic to describe the false teachers' activities. publicly portrayed. Paul's presentation of the gospel to the Galatians was so vivid that it was as if they had been eyewitnesses of the crucifixion.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:2 Let me ask. Using rhetorical questions, Paul shows that it is illogical for the Galatians to seek a fuller Christian life by keeping the law. Receive the Spirit refers to the new covenant activity of the Holy Spirit that comes after saving faith. From the beginning of the Christian life, the Spirit sanctifies and empowers believers.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:6–9 Paul issues a second direct appeal to the Galatians: it is not just their own experience of receiving the gospel by faith that should teach them that salvation is not by the law but by grace. Rather, the OT example of Abraham also teaches that it is through genuine faith, not the law, that one is counted righteous (see Gen. 15:6).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:10 Those who rely on works of the law are under a curse. They are "cursed" ("condemned") because they break the law (2:18).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:11 Habakkuk 2:4 shows that righteousness cannot be achieved through the law.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:12 Paul uses Lev. 18:5 to show that the law is not of faith. Paul probably means the same thing here as in Rom. 10:5 (where Lev. 18:5 is equated with "the righteousness that is based on the law"; compare Phil. 3:9). The one who does them shall live by them. See note on Lev. 18:5.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:13 The divine curse is the result of disobedience (v. 10). But the burden of the curse has been lifted by Christ's work on the cross.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:14 The coming of the powerful Spirit—the living presence of God— is a key benefit of the new covenant (see Isa. 44:3; Galatians 5–6).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:15–18 A covenant or a will cannot be changed. The promises made to Abraham and to his offspring were not changed when God gave Moses the law.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:16 God spoke promises to Abraham on several occasions. Paul probably refers to Gen. 13:15 and 17:8. And to your offspring. Here Paul sees that the truest fulfillment of these OT promises comes to one "offspring," Christ.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:17 came 430 years afterward. Paul is apparently referring to the Septuagint translation of Ex. 12:40, "The dwelling of the children of Israel . . . in Egypt and in Canaan was 430 years." This would mean 430 years from Abraham to the exodus (the Hebrew text does not include "and in Canaan"). Another explanation is that Paul is not counting the time from the first promise to Abraham; instead he is counting from the last confirmation of that promise to Jacob before he went to Egypt in Gen. 46:3–4. This would then count the time in Egypt as the entire time from the "promise" to the "law."

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:19–4:7 The law was never intended to last forever. Now that the promised Messiah has come, those who believe in him are sons of God.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:19 the law . . . was added because of transgressions. This probably means the law was put in place to reveal people's sinfulness and need for a savior. put in place through angels by an intermediary. Deuteronomy 33:2 states that God gave the law "from the ten thousands of holy ones” (compare Acts 7:53). Moses was God’s “intermediary” (Lev. 26:46).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:20 Because God is one, his ultimate revelation comes not through an intermediary but from him alone. This assumes that whatever comes from Christ comes from the one true God, for Christ is fully God.

FACT

God’s promises to Abraham. When Abraham believed God’s promises to him, God counted his faith as righteousness (Gen. 15:6). Paul uses this precedent to show that God’s promises to Abraham are for all who “hear with faith,” not just the people of Israel (Gal. 3:1–29).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:22 The law (the Scripture), instead of giving “life” (v. 21) with God, imprisoned everything under sin (compare Rom. 3:9–20). Rather than enabling all Israelites to receive the promise, the law was given so that the single “offspring,” Christ, would receive the blessing. Therefore the blessing is obtained by faith in Christ, not by obedience to the law. God was certainly not surprised that the Israelites were unable to obey the law. In fact, at the end of the giving of the law, Moses foretold that the Israelites would not obey it (Deut. 31:24–29). Thus the law confirmed the promise to Abraham, that justification would come only by faith (Gal. 3:6–9, 14, 18).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:23 before faith came. By “faith” Paul means new covenant faith in Christ (see v. 22). Since Paul uses Abraham as an example of justification by faith (vv. 6–9, 14, 18), he cannot mean that there was no saving faith before Christ came. He means that OT believers did not have knowledge of Christ’s finished work.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:24 The law, as guardian, had positive functions. It restrained and exposed sin and promised Christ’s coming.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:26 you are all sons of God. Life under the law was slavery. Life in Christ is marked by the freedom that comes from being God’s “sons.” The Greek word used for “sons” is a legal term used in the adoption and inheritance laws of first-century Rome. Here and elsewhere in Paul's letters (compare 4:5–7; Rom. 8:14–16, 23), this term refers to the status of all Christians, both male and female. Having been adopted into God's family, they now enjoy all the privileges, responsibilities, and inheritance rights of God's children.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:27 Having been baptized, believers have gone down into death. They have died to the old era of law, sin, and death (Rom. 6:3–4; Gal. 2:19; 6:14). They have come up out of the water as participants in the new creation (2 Cor. 5:17). put on Christ. As one puts on clothing. This suggests taking on a new life and purpose through being spiritually united to Christ.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 3:28 neither Jew nor Greek. In the new creation, the distinction between Jew and Gentile is removed (see Eph. 2:11–22). Certainly these Galatians do not have to become Jews to be Christians (see Gal. 3:14). There is neither slave nor free, there is no male and female does not imply that there are no differences in how these groups should relate to each other, for Paul elsewhere teaches slaves ("bondservants"; ESV footnote) and masters differently (Eph. 6:5–9), and husbands and wives differently (Eph. 5:22–33). Rather, he teaches that old divisions and wrongful attitudes of superiority and inferiority are abolished, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. The verse teaches unity within diversity, but not sameness.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:1–3 When a son is too young to receive his inheritance, he has no more status than a slave. (On Roman slaves, or bondservants, see note on 1 Cor. 7:21.) This was the situation of Paul and his fellow Israelites under the old covenant.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:3 elementary principles. Both here and in v. 9, these principles for Jews would be the Mosaic law. For Gentiles it would be the basic concepts of their pagan religions. They were, in terms of their mind-set and life situation, enslaved.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:4 when the fullness of time had come. God sent his Son at the right moment in human history. God directed world events and prepared peoples and nations for Christ, and for the proclamation of the gospel.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:5 Paul's adoption imagery probably picks up the OT concept of God calling Israel his "son." He combines this with the Roman notion of adopting a son (who was usually already a grown man) in order to make him the heir to the family wealth (see also note on 3:26).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:6–7 because you are sons. Because Christians are now sons, they may receive the inheritance. This begins with the promised Spirit of his Son. Abba is the Aramaic word for "father" (compare Rom. 8:14–17).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:8–11 The Galatians are in danger of forfeiting sonship and abandoning the true God. They risk returning to false gods (v. 8) and to worldly ways of life (vv. 9–10).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:8 those that by nature are not gods. Demonic spirits that controlled the Galatians' former religion (compare 1 Cor. 10:20).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:9 To know God . . . to be known by God implies a personal relationship with God. elementary principles. See note on v. 3.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:10 Days and months and seasons and years were all part of the ceremonial laws of the Mosaic covenant (see Lev. 23:5, 16, 28; 25:4). To require Christians to follow such OT laws is to forfeit the gospel of justification by faith alone, in Christ alone.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:12–20 As in 3:1–5, Paul reminds the Galatians of what happened when they heard the gospel. He also contrasts his own ministry with that of the false teachers.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:12 as I am. Paul is free from following Mosaic ceremonial regulations. He lives by faith in Christ. as you are. Paul had become like the Gentiles by not living under Jewish law when ministering to them.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:13 because of a bodily ailment . . . I preached the gospel to you. The exact nature of this illness is not known. “Because” apparently means that Paul had to stay in Galatia because of this illness. He took that opportunity to preach to them.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:17 The false teachers flatter the Galatians, but only to receive flattery from them in return. to shut you out. They want to form an exclusive club of people who observe Jewish ceremonial laws.

FACT

“They” in 4:17 refers to the false teachers who were trying to persuade the Galatian believers that Paul was wrong about certain important issues. They avoided persecution and gained favor from the Jews by requiring circumcision (6:12–13).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:19–20 The Galatians, like little children, have not been growing. Paul’s deep concern for them is like the pain of childbirth.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:21–31 Paul again emphasizes the difference between being a free child of God and being a slave to the law, sin, and false gods. Abraham’s son Ishmael—technically the firstborn—represents the slave sons of Abraham and thus the enslaving Sinai covenant. Isaac represents the free sons of Abraham (see Genesis 16–17; 21; Gal. 3:7, 29).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:21 law . . . law. Paul plays on the different meanings of “law”: it can mean the commandments given by Moses (all of which the Galatians mistakenly want to obey), but it can also mean the first five books of the Bible as a whole.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:23 Ishmael was the son born when Abraham and Sarah tried to have a child through Hagar. The promise is the absolute opposite of the flesh. A promise is a word from God that will be fulfilled by God (see Rom. 4:18–21), just as Isaac was born by God’s miraculous work.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:25 Arabia. See note on 1:17. in slavery. The majority of the people in Jerusalem are Jews who have not turned to Jesus. As a result, the city is enslaved.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:26–27 All those who believe in Christ belong to the heavenly Jerusalem. They are the true Israel. As Isaiah prophesied (Isa. 54:1), God will bring about the birth of children where there are none, even among the Gentiles.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:29 so also it is now. Ishmael persecuted Isaac (suggested by Gen. 21:9). Now the Jews who seek justification by human effort persecute Christians, who trust God's promise of justification by faith.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 4:30 Cast out the slave woman and her son implies also the casting out of all who seek justification through their own efforts instead of through faith.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:1–12 Those who turn to the law for salvation cut themselves off from salvation.

FACT

To walk by the Spirit means making decisions and choices based on the Holy Spirit's guidance (5:16, 25). It also involves relying on the Spirit's power to conquer sinful desires (5:17–18). The Spirit will produce "fruits" of godliness in the believer's life (5:22–23).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:5 we . . . wait for the hope of righteousness. Christians do not try to produce perfect righteousness in their lives by their own efforts. Instead, they wait for God to complete righteousness in them when they die (Heb. 12:23) or at Christ's return (1 Cor. 15:49).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:11 If Paul still preached that people had to be circumcised, then the offense of the cross would be removed. Jesus' work on the cross reminds people that their efforts to be right with God outside of Christ are useless.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:13–6:10 Life in the Spirit and Love. Freedom from the law does not lead to lawless behavior. By the power of the Spirit, believers live a new life characterized by love.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:13 freedom. From Mosaic laws, as represented by circumcision. Opportunity for the flesh means "opportunity to follow your fallen, sinful desires and act contrary to God's moral laws."

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:16–26 Life under the law expresses itself in the works of the flesh, but those who live by the Spirit bear fruit pleasing to God.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:16 Having contrasted the flesh with love (vv. 13–14), Paul now contrasts the flesh with the Spirit. The only way to conquer the flesh is to yield to the Spirit. walk by the Spirit. Making decisions and choices according to the Holy Spirit's guidance, and acting with the spiritual power that the Spirit supplies. the desires of the flesh. Bodily cravings and the desires of fallen human nature (see examples in vv. 19–21).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:18 led by the Spirit. The Greek verb implies an active, personal involvement by the Holy Spirit in guiding Christians. The present tense ("if you are being led . . . ") indicates the Spirit's ongoing activity. you are not under the law. The Spirit's active presence in believers' lives shows that they are no longer under the pre-Christian system (see 3:2, 5, 14; 4:6).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:19 works of the flesh. Without the transforming work of the Holy Spirit, sinful humans follow wicked desires and actions.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:20 idolatry, sorcery. These are ways to access evil spiritual beings. They reject the way in which God says he should be worshiped (see John 14:6). enmity, strife. Rejecting God destroys human relationships, too.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:21 Drunkenness and orgies are examples of how people use God's good gifts in destructive and sinful ways. In the OT, wine was associated with joy and celebration (e.g., Neh. 8:10; Ps. 104:15; see note on John 2:3). When abused, however, wine was seen as highly destructive (Prov. 20:1; 21:17; 23:29–35). Drunkenness is consistently condemned throughout Scripture (e.g., Eph. 5:18). Sex is a precious gift for husband and wife. When it is abused it also has highly destructive consequences (1 Cor. 6:18). those who do such things. Those who act in this way as a pattern of life. Their outward conduct indicates they are not born of God. They do not have the Holy Spirit within. They are not God's true children.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:22–23 The Spirit defends against sin. He also produces in Christians the positive traits of godly character.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:24 Again, Christ and the Spirit (v. 25) come together in the believer's life. Christians have crucified the flesh. They have died with Christ to sin (see 6:14; Rom. 6:4–6).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:25 keep in step with the Spirit. A different verb than in v. 16. It means "walk in line behind a leader."

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 5:26 Paul probably refers to attitudes that are causing problems in the Galatian churches (see v. 15). These also describe all who live according to the flesh (vv. 19–21).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:1–10 Paul illustrates a life of love in the Spirit.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:1 you who are spiritual. This does not refer to an elite class of Christians. It describes mature and experienced Christians. They are able to help their troubled brother or sister.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:2 and so fulfill the law of Christ. In a broad sense this means the entire body of ethical teaching that Jesus gave and endorsed (see note on 1 Cor. 9:21). In a specific sense it probably refers to the command to love one's neighbor as oneself (Matt. 22:39; John 13:34).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:7–8 whatever one sows, that will he also reap. Paul's reference to "reaping" has in view the blessings of eternal life that belong to the believer as the result of "sowing" his life to the Spirit.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:10 While believers await their rewards (vv. 7–9) they should do good. The primary focus should be on serving other believers, but not to the exclusion of people outside the church.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:11–18 Final Warning. Paul summarizes the main themes of the letter and challenges the reader to stay true to the gospel. To require circumcision is to deny the cross and the new creation. Those who belong to the new creation are the true Israel.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:11 Paul probably has been dictating the letter to a scribe (compare Rom. 16:22). Now, however, he adds his "signature" (see 2 Thess. 3:17).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:14 the world has been crucified to me. The world no longer attracts and influences Paul.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:15 On Christians as a new creation, see 2 Cor. 5:17.

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:16 Israel of God. In contrast to the children of the "present Jerusalem" (4:25), the true people of God are the believing children of Abraham (3:7, 29). They belong to "Jerusalem above" (4:26–27).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:17 The false teachers, and perhaps some of the Galatian Christians, have been misrepresenting Paul. Paul insists on the respect that is due his ministry. He is a genuine minister of Christ and has the scars to prove it—what he calls the marks of Jesus that resulted from his being persecuted (see 2 Cor. 11:23–27).

GALATIANS—NOTE ON 6:18 Paul's final prayerful blessing shows that he has not given up on the Galatians. He still refers to them as brothers and calls on Christ and the Spirit to give them grace.

Author, Date, and Recipients

The apostle Paul wrote this letter to the churches in Ephesus and the surrounding region c. A.D. 62 while imprisoned in Rome (Acts 28). During this time he also wrote Colossians and Philemon. All three letters were sent with Tychicus and Onesimus.

Theme

There are three main themes of Ephesians: (1) Christ has reconciled all creation to himself and to God; (2) Christ has united people from all nations to himself and to one another in his church; and (3) Christians must live as new people.

Purpose

Ephesians offers general instruction in the truths of God's redemptive work in Christ; the unity of the church among diverse peoples; and proper conduct in the church, the home, and the world.

Key Themes

1. All people are by nature spiritually dead. They disobey God's law and are ruled by Satan (1:7; 2:1–3, 5, 11–12).
2. God predestined his people to redemption and holiness in Christ (1:3–14; 2:4, 8–9).

3. God’s rich mercy in Christ has saved sinners. This free gift is by grace through faith alone (1:7–8; 2:4–14).
4. Jesus’ saving work was part of redeeming a fallen creation for God. For this he deserves glory, honor, and authority in this age and the next (1:15–23; 3:1–13).
5. Jesus unites Jews and Gentiles into his one body, the church, as a new creation (1:23; 2:10–22; 3:1–21; 4:1–6).
6. Christ’s people are saved to new lives of holiness in thought, word, and deed. They must reject their old, sinful lifestyles (4:1–3, 17–32; 5:1–20).
7. Holiness in life includes submission to proper authorities, in home and family life, and those in authority must care for those in submission to them (5:21–6:9).
8. Jesus has given powerful gifts to his church. These bring unity, maturity, and defense against the devil and his allies (4:7–16; 6:10–19).

The Setting of Ephesians

c. A.D. 62

Ephesus was a wealthy port city in the Roman province of Asia. It was a center of learning and was near several key land routes. Paul probably wrote his letter to the Ephesians while under house arrest in Rome (Acts 28).

The Global Message of Ephesians

The message of Ephesians for the global church is that in Christ God has reconciled to himself all things by his free grace, and in so doing he has enabled humans all over the world to be reconciled with one another. In light of these two great reconciliations, Christians worldwide are empowered to live a new life of light and love.

Ephesians and Redemptive History

The vision of redemptive history presented in Ephesians stretches all the way back to the beginning of time and before, and all the way forward to the end of all things. In Ephesians 1 Paul says that God "chose us in [Christ] before the foundation of the world" (Eph. 1:4). And at the end of this passage Paul strains his eyes to look forward to the end, when "we acquire possession of" our inheritance (1:14). In it all, Jesus is the one through whom this eternal plan is enacted (1:10; 3:11).

Yet Paul says something startling to his hearers in chapter 3. He says that there has been a "mystery" kept hidden for countless generations, but which has now been revealed (Eph. 3:4–5, 9). This mystery is that God's favor is not only for the Jews. It is for all people (3:6, 8–9). At the height of human history, Christ came and made salvation freely available to all those who have faith in him (2:8–9). The result is that this salvation is now spilling over the banks of ethnic Israel and flooding out to the nations. There is "one God and Father of all" (4:6). Because the "dividing wall of hostility" between us and God has been torn down, the hostility can also be torn down between us and other people (2:14–16).

Universal Themes in Ephesians

God's great love and grace. The grace of God reaches back into eternity (Eph. 1:3–5). Before the world's foundation, God himself foreknew and predestined for salvation a people from every tribe and tongue and people group. And the grace of God overcomes every possible obstacle: God saved us not when we were merely sick or wounded, but when we were spiritually dead (2:1–3). He has demonstrated "the immeasurable riches of his grace in kindness toward us in Christ Jesus" (2:7), who suffered in our place and is making all things new. This love stretches the bounds of our comprehension with a "love of Christ that surpasses knowledge" (3:19). To a world awash in cynicism, hypocrisy, apathy, and selfishness, Ephesians sends us out with a message of the boundless love of God in Christ for all kinds of people.

God's new people, the church. Ephesians presents a sweeping portrayal of the way the gospel is uniting diverse people into Christ's one body, the church. The radical inclusiveness of Christ's work is seen throughout the epistle (Eph. 1:12–13; 2:11–22; 3:1–15; 4:1–7). In Christ, God is gathering up a people for himself from both Jews and Gentiles. The mystery that has been kept secret from previous generations, but has now been revealed, is that the gospel is offered to Gentiles as freely as to Jews (3:6). In Christ, those who were far off (Gentiles) and those who were near (Jews) have been brought together through the cross (2:13).

God's cosmic scope of redemption. God revealed his saving purposes down through human history supremely in Christ. He came at "the fullness of time" (Eph. 1:10) as the climax of all that God has been doing in the world since the fall of humanity recorded in Genesis 3. The breathtaking scope of Christ's redemptive work, Paul says, is "to unite all things in him, things in heaven and things on earth" (1:10; compare vv. 22–23; 3:11; 4:10). The word "unite" here means to "sum up" or "draw together." What happened on a little hill outside Jerusalem two thousand years ago is the high point for which all of history was preparing and from which all subsequent history is flowing. God is restoring the entire created order, starting with humanity (from diverse people groups) but reaching also to the entire cosmos (3:10; 6:10–18).

Spiritual warfare. Ephesians 6 is the Bible's clearest teaching that the fundamental struggle of believers is not against other people but against the spiritual forces of hell (Eph. 6:10–18). Around the world today, the church experiences various kinds of spiritual warfare. Sometimes it is more sensational, in the form of witchcraft or demon-possession. Other times it is less obvious and manifests itself in difficulties such as depression, hopelessness, or circumstantial adversity. While we must be careful not to think that every difficulty in this fallen world is the direct activity of Satan, global Christians recognize that their real conflict is with the forces of hell.

Mercy received. The mercy of God in Jesus Christ is the high point of all history, and for the past two thousand years God's mercy has been running throughout the world to bring together all kinds of people to form one new family of God. This astonishing love of God in Christ reconciles us to God as we receive his love with nothing but the empty hands of faith. God is "rich in mercy" (Eph. 2:4), but he does not extend this mercy to those who think they are worthy of it. Rather, this mercy is for all those who, by grace, know that they are *un*worthy of it.

Mercy transforming. Yet while God's grace is utterly undeserved and in no way dependent on our good works (Eph. 2:8–9), it does change us. Those united to Christ are those who are now indwelt by the Spirit (1:13–14; 3:16; 4:30; 6:17–18). They are transformed. They are now empowered to "be imitators of God, as beloved children" (5:1). We are his beloved sons and daughters; it is our joy to imitate the Father.

Mercy extended. When, as global Christians, we look around our own neighborhoods and around the world, we realize that we are called to live out the new life that has been granted to us. This includes ridding ourselves of what does not fit the new life of light and purity into which we have been swept up (Eph. 5:8–9). Sexual immorality, degrading speech, falsehood, bitterness, and anger have no place in our lives anymore (4:17–32). It is not who we are. Not only do we seek purity for ourselves, we also seek God's blessing in our relationships. In our marriages, jobs, and families, we are called to be mindful of the Lord and to love as we have been loved (5:22–6:9).

In all of this we are seeking to celebrate and to spread the peace, the shalom, the flourishing, that has dawned in Christ (Eph. 1:2; 2:14–15, 17; 4:3; 6:15, 23). By his Spirit God is restoring the entire cosmos back to the way it was meant to be. As those who have been granted the Spirit (1:13–14; 4:30), it is our great joy and privilege to be instruments of God's mercy and peace. Most of us will not change the world, or our own nation, by serving in political office or writing new legislation. Our call is, in fact, far greater: to love those across whose paths God brings us each day. This is a calling whose significance will be revealed and celebrated on the last great day, when Christ comes again. This is a love that springs from our love for Christ, which is, as the last word of Ephesians puts it, "incorruptible" (6:24).

Greeting

EPHESIANS 1 [†]Paul, [a] an apostle of Christ Jesus [b] by the will of God,
To the saints who are in Ephesus, and [c] are faithful [1] in Christ Jesus:
2 [d] Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Spiritual Blessings in Christ

3[†] [e] Blessed be [f] the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us in Christ with every spiritual blessing [g] in the heavenly places, 4[†] [h] even as he [i] chose us in him [j] before the foundation of the world, that we should be [k] holy and blameless before him. In love 5[†] [l] he predestined us [2] for [m] adoption as sons through Jesus Christ, [n] according to the purpose of his will, 6[†] [o] to the praise of his glorious grace, with which he has blessed us in [p] the Beloved. 7[†] [q] In him we have [r] redemption [s] through his blood, [t] the forgiveness of our trespasses, [u] according to the riches of his grace, 8which he lavished upon us, in all wisdom and insight 9[†] [v] making known [3] to us the mystery of his will, [n] according to his purpose, which he [w] set forth in Christ 10[†]as a plan for [x] the fullness of time, [y] to unite all things in him, things in heaven and things on earth.
11[†]In him we have obtained [z] an inheritance, [a] having been predestined [b] according to the purpose of him who works all things according to [c] the counsel of his will, 12[†]so that we who were the first to hope in Christ might be [d] to the praise of his glory. 13[†]In him you also, when you heard [e] the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation, and believed in him, [f] were sealed with the [g] promised Holy Spirit, 14who is [h] the guarantee [4] of our [i] inheritance until [j] we acquire [k] possession of it, [5] [l] to the praise of his glory.

Thanksgiving and Prayer

15[†]For this reason, [m] because I have heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love [6] toward all the saints, 16[†]I [n] do not cease to give thanks for you, [o] remembering you in my prayers, [17][†]that [p] the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, [q] may give you the Spirit of wisdom and of revelation in the knowledge of him, [18][†] [r] having the eyes of your hearts enlightened, that you may know what is [s] the hope to which he has called you, what are [t] the riches of his glorious inheritance in the saints, [19]and what is the immeasurable greatness of his power toward us who believe, [u] according to the working of [v] his great might [20]that he worked in Christ [w] when he raised him from the dead and [x] seated him at his right hand [y] in the heavenly places, [21] [z] far above [a] all rule and authority and power and dominion, and above [b] every name that is named, not only in [c] this age but also in the one to come. [22][†]And [d] he put all things under his feet and gave him as [e] head over all things to the church, [23][†] [f] which is his body, [g] the fullness of him [h] who fills [i] all in all.

By Grace Through Faith

EPHESIANS 2 [†] [j] And you were [k] dead in the trespasses and sins [2][†] [l] in which you once walked, following the course of this world, following [m] the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that is now at work in [n] the sons of disobedience— [3][†]among whom we all once lived in [o] the passions of our flesh, carrying out the desires of the body [1] and the mind, and [p] were by nature [q] children of wrath, like the rest of mankind. [2] [4]But [3] God, being [r] rich in mercy, [s] because of the great love with which he loved us, [5][†]even [t] when we were dead in our trespasses, [u] made us alive together with Christ — [v] by grace you have been saved— [6][†]and raised us up with him and [w] seated us with him in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus, [7]so that in the coming ages he might show the immeasurable [x] riches of his grace in [y] kindness toward us in Christ Jesus. [8][†]For [z] by grace you have been saved [a] through faith. And this is [b] not your own doing; [c] it is the gift of God, [9][†] [d] not a result of works, [e] so that no one may boast. [10]For [f] we are his workmanship, [g] created in Christ Jesus [h] for good works, [i] which God prepared beforehand, [j] that we should walk in them.

One in Christ

[11][†]Therefore remember that at one time you Gentiles in the flesh, called “the uncircumcision” by what is called [k]the circumcision, which is made in the flesh by hands— [12][†]remember [l]that you were at that time separated from Christ, [m]alienated from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers to [n]the covenants of promise, [o]having no hope and without God in the world. [13][†]But now in Christ Jesus you who once were [p]far off have been brought near [q]by the blood of Christ. [14][†]For [r]he himself is our peace, [s]who has made us both one and has broken down [t]in his flesh the dividing wall of hostility [15][†]by abolishing the law of commandments expressed in [u]ordinances, that he might create in himself one [v]new man in place of the two, so making peace, [16][†]and might [w]reconcile us both to God in one body through the cross, thereby killing the hostility. [17]And he came and [x]preached peace to you who were [y]far off and peace to those who were [z]near. [18]For [a]through him we both have [b]access in [c]one Spirit to the Father. [19][†]So then you are no longer [d]strangers and aliens, [4] but you are [e]fellow citizens with the saints and [f]members of the household of God, [20][†][g]built on the foundation of the [h]apostles and prophets, [i]Christ Jesus himself being [j]the cornerstone, [21][†][k]in whom the whole structure, being joined together, grows into [l]a holy temple in the Lord. [22]In him [m]you also are being built together [n]into a dwelling place for God by [5] the Spirit.

The Mystery of the Gospel Revealed

EPHESIANS 3 [†]For this reason I, Paul, [o]a prisoner for Christ Jesus [p]on behalf of you Gentiles— [2]assuming that you have heard of [q]the stewardship of [r]God’s grace that was given to me for you, [3][†][s]how the mystery was made known to me [t]by revelation, [u]as I have written briefly. [4][v]When you read this, you can perceive my insight into [w]the mystery of Christ, [5][†]which was not made known to the sons of men in other generations as it has now been revealed to his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit. [6][†]This mystery is [1] that the Gentiles are [x]fellow heirs, [y]members of the same body, and [z]partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel.

[7][†] [a]Of this gospel I was made [b]a minister according to the gift of [c]God’s grace, which was given me [d]by the working of his power. [8][†]To me, [e]though I am the very least of all the saints, this grace was given, [f]to preach to the Gentiles the [g]unsearchable [h]riches of Christ, [9]and [i]to bring to light for everyone what is the plan of the mystery [j]hidden for ages in [2] God [k]who created all things, [10][†]so that through the church the manifold [l]wisdom of God [m]might now be made known to [n]the rulers and authorities [o]in the heavenly places. [11][†]This was [p]according to the eternal purpose that he has realized in Christ Jesus our Lord, [12]in whom we have [q]boldness and [r]access with [s]confidence through our [t]faith in him. [13]So I ask you not to lose heart over what I am suffering [u]for you, [v]which is your glory.

Prayer for Spiritual Strength

[14][†]For this reason I bow my knees before the Father, [15]from whom [w]every family [3] in heaven and on earth is named, [16]that according to [x]the riches of his glory [y]he may grant you to be strengthened with power through his Spirit [z]in your inner being, [17][†] [a]so that Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith—that you, being [b]rooted and [c]grounded in love, [18]may have strength to [d]comprehend with all the saints what is the breadth and length and [e]height and depth, [19]and to know the love of Christ [f]that surpasses knowledge, that [g]you may be filled with all [h]the fullness of God.

[20] [i]Now to [j]him who is able to do far more abundantly than all that we ask or think, [k]according to the power at work within us, [21][†] [l]to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus throughout all generations, forever and ever. Amen.

Unity in the Body of Christ

EPHESIANS 4 [†]I therefore, [m]a prisoner for the Lord, urge you to [n]walk in a manner worthy of [o]the calling to which you have been called, [2][†]with all [p]humility and [q]gentleness, with [r]patience, [s]bearing with one another in love, [3][†]eager to maintain the unity of the Spirit in [t]the bond of peace. [4][†]There is [u]one body and [v]one Spirit—just as you were called to the one

[w]hope that belongs to your call— 5[†] [x]one Lord, [y]one faith, [z]one baptism, 6[†] [a]one God and Father of all, [b]who is over all and through all and in all. 7[†]But [c]grace was given [d]to each one of us [e]according to the measure of Christ's gift. 8[†]Therefore it says,

> [f]"When he ascended on high [g]he led a host of captives, > and he gave gifts to men." [1]

9[†]([h]In saying, "He ascended," what does it mean but that he had also descended into [i]the lower regions, the earth? [2] 10He who descended is the one who also [j]ascended [k]far above all the heavens, that he might [l]fill all things.) 11[†]And [m]he gave the [n]apostles, the prophets, the [o]evangelists, the [p]shepherds [3] and teachers, [4] 12[†] [q]to equip the saints for the work of ministry, for [r]building up [s]the body of Christ, 13[†]until we all attain to [t]the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, [u]to mature manhood, [5] to the measure of the stature of [v]the fullness of Christ, 14[†]so that we may no longer be children, [w]tossed to and fro by the waves and carried about by every wind of doctrine, by human cunning, by craftiness in [x]deceitful schemes. 15[†]Rather, [y]speaking the truth in love, we are to [z]grow up in every way into him who is [a]the head, into Christ, 16[†] [b]from whom the whole body, joined and held together by every joint with which it is equipped, [c]when each part is working properly, makes the body grow so that it builds itself up in love.

The New Life

17[†]Now this I say and [d]testify in the Lord, [e]that you must no longer walk as the Gentiles do, [f]in the futility of their minds. 18They [g]are darkened in their understanding, [h]alienated from the life of God because of the ignorance that is in them, due to [i]their hardness of heart. 19They [j]have become callous and [k]have given themselves up to sensuality, greedy to practice every kind of impurity. 20But that is not the way you [l]learned Christ!— 21assuming that [m]you have heard about him and [n]were taught in him, as the truth is in Jesus, 22[†]to [o]put off [p]your old self, [6] which belongs to your former manner of life and is corrupt through [q]deceitful desires, [23][†]and [r]to be renewed in the spirit of your minds, [24][†]and to put on [s]the new self, [t]created after the likeness of God in true righteousness and holiness.

[25][†]Therefore, having put away falsehood, let each one of you [u]speak the truth with his neighbor, for [v]we are members one of another. [26][†] [w]Be angry and do not sin; do not let the sun go down on your anger, [27]and [x]give no opportunity to the devil. [28]Let the thief no longer steal, but rather [y]let him labor, [z]doing honest work with his own hands, so [a]that he may have something to share with anyone in need. [29][†] [b]Let no corrupting talk come out of your mouths, but only such as is good for building up, as fits the occasion, that it may give [c]grace to those who hear. [30][†]And [d]do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, [e]by whom you were sealed for the day of [f]redemption. [31][†] [g]Let all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamor and slander be put away from you, along with all malice. [32] [h]Be kind to one another, tenderhearted, [i]forgiving one another, as God in Christ forgave you.

Walk in Love

EPHESIANS 5 [†] [j]Therefore be imitators of God, as beloved children. [2]And [k]walk in love, [l]as Christ loved us and [m]gave himself up for us, a [n]fragrant [o]offering and sacrifice to God.

[3][†]But [p]sexual immorality and all impurity or covetousness [q]must not even be named among you, as is proper among saints. [4][†]Let there be [r]no filthiness nor foolish talk nor crude joking, [s]which are out of place, but instead [t]let there be thanksgiving. [5][†]For you may be sure of this, that [u]everyone who is sexually immoral or impure, or who is covetous ([v]that is, an idolater), has no inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and God. [6][†] [w]Let no one [x]deceive you with empty words, for because of these things [y]the wrath of God comes upon [z]the sons of disobedience. [7][†]Therefore [a]do not become partners with them; [8][†]for [b]at one time you were [c]darkness, but now you are light in the Lord. [d]Walk as children of light [9][†](for [e]the fruit of light is found in all that is good and right and true), [10][†]and [f]try to discern what is pleasing to the Lord. [11][†] [g]Take no part in the [h]unfruitful

[i]works of darkness, but instead [j]expose them. [12]For [k]it is shameful even to speak of the things that they do in secret. [13]But when [l]anything is exposed by the light, it becomes visible, [14][†]for anything that becomes visible is light. Therefore it says,

[m]“Awake, O sleeper, and [n]arise from the dead,
and [o]Christ will shine on you.”

[15][p]Look carefully then how you walk, not as unwise but as wise, [16][p]making the best use of the time, because [q]the days are evil. [17][†]Therefore do not be foolish, but understand what [r]the will of the Lord is. [18][†]And [s]do not get drunk with wine, for that is [t]debauchery, but [u]be filled with the Spirit, [19][†]addressing one another in [v]psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody to the Lord with your heart, [20][†][w]giving thanks always and for everything to God the Father [x]in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, [21][†][y]submitting to one another out of reverence for Christ.

Wives and Husbands

[22][†][z]Wives, [a]submit to your own husbands, [b]as to the Lord. [23][†]For [c]the husband is the head of the wife even as [d]Christ is the head of the church, his body, and is [e]himself its Savior. [24]Now as the church submits to Christ, so also wives should submit [f]in everything to their husbands.

[25][†][g]Husbands, love your wives, as Christ loved the church and [h]gave himself up for her, [26][†]that he might sanctify her, having cleansed her by [i]the washing of water [j]with the word, [27]so [k]that he might present the church to himself in splendor, [l]without spot or wrinkle or any such thing, that she might be holy and without blemish. [1] [28][†]In the same way [m]husbands should love their wives as their own bodies. He who loves his wife loves himself. [29]For no one ever hated his own flesh, but nourishes and cherishes it, just as Christ does the church, [30]because [n]we are members of his body. [31][†][o]“Therefore a man shall leave his father and mother and hold fast to his wife, and [p]the two shall become one flesh.” [32][†]This mystery is profound, and I am saying that it refers to Christ and the church.

[33]However, [q] let each one of you love his wife as himself, and let the wife see that she [r] respects her husband.

Children and Parents

EPHESIANS 6 [†] [s] Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right.
[2][†] [t] “Honor your father and mother” (this is the first commandment with a promise), [3]“that it may go well with you and that you may live long in the land.” [4][†]Fathers, do not provoke your children to anger, [u] but bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord.

Bondservants and Masters

[5][†] [v] Bondservants, [1] obey your earthly masters [2] with fear and trembling, [w] with a sincere heart, [x] as you would Christ, [6]not by the way of eye-service, as [y] people-pleasers, but as bondservants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart, [7]rendering service with a good will as to the Lord and not to man, [8] [z] knowing that whatever good anyone does, this he will receive back from the Lord, [a] whether he is a bondservant [3] or is free.
[9][†]Masters, do the same to them, [b] and stop your threatening, knowing that [c] he who is both their Master [4] and yours is in heaven, and that [d] there is no partiality with him.

The Whole Armor of God

[10][†]Finally, [e] be strong in the Lord and in [f] the strength of his might.
[11][†] [g] Put on [h] the whole armor of God, that you may be able to stand against [i] the schemes of the devil. [12]For [j] we do not wrestle against flesh and blood, but against [k] the rulers, against the authorities, against [l] the cosmic powers over [m] this present darkness, against [n] the spiritual forces of evil [o] in the heavenly places. [13][†]Therefore [p] take up the whole armor of God, that you may be able to withstand in [q] the evil day, and having done all, to stand firm. [14][†]Stand therefore, [r] having fastened on the belt of truth, and [s] having put on the breastplate of righteousness, [15]and, [t] as shoes for your feet, having put on the readiness given by the gospel of peace. [16][†]In all circumstances take up [u]the shield of faith, with which you can extinguish all [v]the flaming darts of [w]the evil one; [17]and take [s]the helmet of salvation, and [x]the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God, [18][†]praying [y]at all times [z]in the Spirit, [a]with all prayer and supplication. To that end [b]keep alert with all perseverance, making [c]supplication for all the saints, [19]and [d]also for me, that words may be given to me in opening my mouth [e]boldly to proclaim [f]the mystery of the gospel, [20]for which I [g]am an ambassador [h]in chains, that I may declare it boldly, as I ought to speak.

Final Greetings

[21][†][i]So that you also may know how I am and what I am doing, [j]Tychicus the beloved brother and faithful minister in the Lord will tell you everything. [22]I have sent him to you for this very purpose, that you may know how we are, and that he may [k]encourage your hearts.

[23][†][l]Peace be to the brothers, [5] and [m]love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. [24]Grace be with all who [n]love our Lord Jesus Christ with love incorruptible.

Study Notes for Ephesians

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:1–14 Introduction. Paul greets the believers in Ephesus (vv. 1–2) and offers praise to God (vv. 3–14). He expresses the letter's two main themes: Christ has reconciled all of creation and has united the church in himself.

FACT

Ephesus was one of the largest cities in the Roman Empire and the primary port for Asia Minor. It boasted an advanced system of aqueducts, a 25,000-seat amphitheater, a major library with more than 12,000 scrolls, and the Temple of Artemis (one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:1 apostle. See note on Rom. 1:1. Paul expresses his authority simply but powerfully: he is an apostle of Christ Jesus. In Ephesians, Paul uses the term saints ("holy ones"; "consecrated people") for all members of the church (Eph. 1:15, 18; 2:19; 3:8; 4:12; 6:18). They are called to be holy (1:4; 5:3). in Ephesus. These words are missing in several early manuscripts, but they are probably original to the letter. Some scholars believe Ephesians was intended to be shared with churches in the area; they suggest that the words "in Ephesus" were deleted in the copies that were sent outside of Ephesus. Ephesus was an important port city and was the capital of the Roman province of Asia. It was home to the temple of Artemis, one of the Seven Wonders of the ancient world.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:3–14 In the original Greek, this section is one long, elegant sentence. Paul shows that the triune God began and completed reconciliation and redemption of the world for the praise of his glory.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:3 in Christ. All God's blessings are ours "in Christ" (vv. 3, 9), "in the Beloved" (v. 6), and "in him" (vv. 4, 7, 11, 13). every spiritual blessing. The saving gifts of God are given by the Holy Spirit. heavenly places. The Christian's future home (1 Cor. 15:40, 44–50).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:4 he chose us in him before the foundation of the world. God's decision to redeem believers from sin and death was planned all along “in Christ.” holy and blameless before him. Holiness here describes moral purity while blamelessness expresses the idea of freedom from guilt (v. 7; 2:1, 5).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:5 predestined. Previously ordained or appointed. adoption as sons. See v. 11; Rom. 8:29–30. All Christians, male and female, are “sons” of God. They are all adopted heirs who will inherit blessings from their Father in heaven. according to the purpose of his will. God’s will is to pour out his grace and goodness on believers in Christ Jesus (see also Eph. 1:9, 11).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:6 God’s ultimate purpose is the praise of his glorious name through redemption (see vv. 12, 14).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:7 Redemption means ransoming from captivity or slavery. The supreme OT example was the exodus, where God redeemed Israel from slavery in Egypt (see Deut. 7:8; 2 Sam. 7:23). forgiveness of our trespasses. Christians are freed from slavery to sin and guilt by Christ’s blood. His death was an atoning sacrifice (see also Eph. 2:13; Heb. 9:15).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:9 In Scripture, mystery refers to the revealing of something previously hidden (see note on Col. 1:26–27). The mystery of God’s will, now revealed in Christ, is “to unite all things in him” (Eph. 1:10; see also 3:3–11).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:10 fullness of time. The time for the fulfillment of God’s plan. unite. God has reconciled all creation in Christ.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:11 Have obtained an inheritance means being assured of eternal life. predestined. God is firmly in control of history. This is in sharp contrast with the pagan gods of the time, who were often viewed as inconsistent or unable to act. who works all things according to the counsel of his will. Everything that occurs is in some sense predestined by God. As for tragedies and evil, the writers of Scripture never blame God for them (see Rom. 5:12; 2 Tim. 4:14; also Job 1:21–22). They are confident that evil will eventually be defeated. They believe God’s good plans will be fulfilled. How God’s sovereignty and human responsibility work together is, nonetheless, a mystery no one fully understands.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:12 praise. See note on v. 6.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:13 Sealed may mean that the Holy Spirit protects and preserves Christians until they receive their inheritance (see 4:30; 2 Cor. 1:22; Rev. 7:2–3). It could also mean the Spirit "certifies" them as genuine believers; they bear the "royal seal" (see John 3:33; Acts 10:44, 47).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:15–23 Paul's Prayer of Thanksgiving. This section, like vv. 3–14, is a single sentence in the original Greek. Paul prays that the church will gain deep insight into the Lord's powerful working and rich gifts in Christ.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:15 because I have heard. Paul had spent some time in Ephesus a few years before the writing of this letter, but he would not have known the newer believers in the area.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:16 do not cease . . . in my prayers. See note on 6:18.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:17 To name the Father of glory as the God of our Lord Jesus Christ is not to deny Christ's deity. Rather, it affirms Christ's true humanity. Spirit of wisdom refers to the Holy Spirit giving Christians insights into God's Word and saving knowledge of him (see 1 Cor. 2:6–12).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:18–19 Paul prays that believers will understand the blessings that are theirs in Christ: (1) their future hope; (2) God’s inheritance in the saints; and (3) their “power” in Christ. The “inheritance” here is not the Christian’s inheritance; it is his (God’s). God looks forward to enjoying forever the people he has saved. immeasurable greatness of his power. Power over supernatural forces through magic and the occult was a great concern in ancient times (Acts 19:19). The power of the living God in Christ defeats all competing authorities (Acts 19:20).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:22 put all things. Paul quotes Ps. 8:6 as being fulfilled by Christ’s authority over all creation and as head over the church. head. See note on 1 Cor. 11:3.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 1:23 Christ has so identified himself with his church that it is called his body—in much the same way that husband and wife are “one flesh” (Gen. 2:24; see note on Eph. 5:28–30).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:1–10 Salvation by Grace through Faith. This section, like 1:3–14 and 1:15–23, is a single sentence in the original Greek. The main theme is that God gives his saving grace to Christians. There are two subsections: 2:1–3 and 2:4–10.

FACT

Salvation by grace. In 2:1–10, Paul eloquently describes how God initiated salvation for undeserving sinners just because he loves them. Through no merit of their own, he rescued them from slavery to sin and graciously gave them new life in Christ (1:5).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:1 you were dead. Human beings as sons and daughters of Adam enter the world spiritually dead. They have no inclination toward God. (Paul begins with this phrase then turns to other thoughts; he will return to this theme in v. 5.) trespasses. Violations of divine commandments. sins. Offenses against God in thought, word, or deed.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:2 prince . . . spirit. Satan dominates his human subjects. sons of disobedience. Compare "sons of this world" (Luke 16:8). They belong to the family of those who rebel against God.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:3 The sons and daughters of Adam have been born into a fallen state (by nature). They have earned God's condemnation as children of wrath. Compare Ps. 51:5.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:5 when we were dead. Paul resumes his original thought from v. 1. made us alive. Since unsaved people are dead, they have to be made alive before they can believe. This is why salvation can only be by grace alone.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:6–7 raised us up with him. Because of Christ's resurrection, those who believe in him are given new spiritual life. seated us with him in the heavenly places. God has allowed his people even now to share in a measure of Christ's authority. He is seated at the right hand of God (see 1:20–22; 6:10–18).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:8 grace. God's favor on those who have broken his law and sinned against him. God's grace offers and secures salvation. saved. Delivered from God's wrath at the final judgment (Rom. 5:9). The perfect tense of "have been saved" means that the Christian's salvation is fully secured. through faith. Faith is confident trust and reliance upon Christ Jesus. this . . . is the gift of God. The pronoun "this" refers to the entire process of salvation by grace through faith; it is all a gift of God.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:9–10 Salvation is not by works. If it were, then those who are saved would get the glory. created . . . for good works. Salvation is not based on works, but the good works Christians do are the result of God's new creation work in them.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:11–22 Unity and the Peace of Christ. Paul continues the new creation theme he introduced in v. 10. The focus shifts from God to Christ Jesus and his redemption. There are three subsections: vv. 11–15, 16–18, and 19–22.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:11 the circumcision. That is, the Jews. To be called "uncircumcised" signified that one was a Gentile, outside the covenant people of God.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:12 To be separated from OT Israel was to be separated from Christ, because "salvation is from the Jews" (John 4:22; Rom. 9:4–5). strangers. See note on Eph. 2:19. In the OT, God redeemed people through his covenants of promise (compare Luke 1:72–73). The new covenant fulfills all God's promises (2 Cor. 1:20; Heb. 8:6; 9:15). Note that Paul believed that all Gentiles apart from Christ were unsaved and without God.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:13 in Christ Jesus. The old division of all people into Jews or Gentiles/Greeks (Acts 14:1–5; 18:4; Rom. 3:9, 29; 9:24; 1 Cor. 1:22–24) has been changed. Now there is a new race in Christ: "the church of God" (1 Cor. 10:32). near. To have access to God (see Eph. 2:18). blood. Christ's substitutionary death.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:14 peace. The state of friendship with God and with one another in the church. made us both one. That is, Jews and Gentiles. In his flesh refers to Christ's death on the cross (see v. 16).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:15 law. The additional mention of commandments and ordinances identifies this as the Mosaic law, which included many commandments that served to separate Israel from the other nations. Thus the law was a "dividing wall" (v. 14) which Christ has abolished or rendered powerless both by fulfilling it and by removing believers from the law's condemnation (see Matt. 5:17; Rom. 8:1; Heb. 9:11–14; 10:1–10). The result is a new man, denoting a new human race under the second Adam (Christ), in whose image the Christian is re-created (1 Cor. 15:45, 49; see also Eph. 4:24).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:16–18 On the cross, Christ put to death the hostility between Israel and the other nations. These verses describe the new, unified group being brought near to God. Paul describes Christ's reconciliation very vividly as killing the hostility that stood in the way of peace with God. preached peace. Paul refers to Christ's messianic ministry to the whole world both far and near, recalling Isa. 57:19. access. To draw near to God and to enjoy him forever in a new creation is both mankind’s greatest good and the ultimate accomplishment of Christ’s earthly work of redemption. one Spirit. See note on Eph. 4:4.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:19 Strangers (also v. 12) were foreigners with no rights or privileges (see Acts 16:20–23). Aliens were non-citizens who lived in the city and were given privileges as neighbors. Only citizens had full rights (see Acts 21:39).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:20 the foundation of the apostles and prophets. Some think “prophets” refers here to those in the early church who had the gift of prophecy (compare 3:5; 4:11); the apostles along with these prophets were “foundational” because they proclaimed God’s words, but their function has been replaced by the Bible. Others think the “prophets” here could be the OT prophets.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 2:21 All Christians everywhere are joined together as God’s holy temple. Belonging to the visible church is not optional for followers of Christ.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:1–13 Revelation of the Gospel Mystery. Paul explains his calling and ministry as an apostle to the Gentiles. This assured his Gentile readers that their inheritance in Christ is authentic because of its divine origin.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:1 For this reason. Paul breaks off his thought here and resumes it in v. 14 (compare the similar break in 2:1, 5). prisoner for Christ. Paul suffered imprisonment or confinement several times while serving Christ (4:1; Acts 16:23; 24:23; Col. 4:10). on behalf of you Gentiles. Paul was the apostle, teacher, and preacher to the Gentiles (1 Tim. 2:7). The sufferings he experienced during his ministry were for them (2 Cor. 6:5; 11:23).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:3 mystery. See note on Col. 1:26–27. This mystery is now revealed: Christ has come to unify Jews and Gentiles in one body through the gospel (see Eph. 1:9, 17). Christ revealed this mystery to Paul by revelation on the road to Damascus (Acts 9:1–7) and more fully at other times (see Acts 22:17–21; 2 Cor. 12:1–7; Gal. 1:12; 2:2).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:5 not made known. The full realization of who Christ was and the extent of the salvation that would come to the Gentiles was not clear until after the giving of the Spirit (1 Cor. 2:8–10).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:6 the Gentiles are fellow heirs. See Rom. 8:17; Gal. 3:28–29.

FACT

The apostle Paul received special visions from God (see Acts 22:17–21; 2 Cor. 12:1–7; Gal. 2:2). In his first vision, he saw the Lord Jesus (Acts 9:1–7). One of the mysteries God later revealed in a vision was that the gospel was for both Jews and Gentiles (Eph. 3:6).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:7 minister. A servant or official given a particular area of responsibility.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:8 very least of all the saints. Paul never forgets that he once had been a persecutor of Christ and his church (Acts 9:4; 1 Tim. 1:13).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:10 now. In this age, in contrast to the time before Christ's first coming. rulers and authorities in the heavenly places. Angelic beings.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:11 eternal purpose. God's redemption in Christ originated in eternity with God's "manifold wisdom" (v. 10; compare 1:3–14). realized in Christ Jesus. God's plan of salvation had to be put into effect within human history, and this was accomplished through the work of his incarnate Son.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:14–21 Paul's Prayer for Strength and Insight. Paul prays that his readers would be strong in their faith (vv. 14–19). He concludes with words of praise to God (vv. 20–21).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:14–15 For this reason. Paul returns to his thought from v. 1. named. See note on John 1:12–13.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:17–18 In v. 16 Paul speaks of the indwelling "Spirit" and here of the indwelling Christ. This suggests that the Spirit and the Son are both God. breadth . . . length . . . height . . . depth. The immeasurable dimensions of God's riches in Christ. On saints, see note on 1:1.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 3:21 church. Paul considers the church a unified whole (see 4:4–6).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:1–16 Unity of the Body of Christ. Paul shows how to apply the truths he has been teaching. There are three subsections: vv. 1–6, 7–10, and 11–16.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:1 prisoner. Paul has been jailed because of his commitment to Christ.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:2 The pagan culture of Paul’s day did not consider humility an admirable quality.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:3 Peace is a bond that unites believers in Christ. They do not create this unity, however; they merely preserve the unity already established by the Lord.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:4 Spirit. Just as a human body has one spirit that gives it life, so Christ’s body, the church, is given life by one Holy Spirit. one hope. Christians will live with God forever. This hope unites them. On the church as a body, see Rom. 12:4–8; 1 Cor. 12:12–31.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:5 one Lord. Jesus Christ. one faith. The spiritual truths Christians believe. One baptism may refer to the baptism of all believers into one body (see 1 Cor. 12:13) or it may refer to water baptism as such. Verses 4–6 of Ephesians 4 seem to make a special point of mentioning the three members of the Trinity: “One Spirit” (v. 4), “one Lord [Christ]” (v. 5), and “one God and Father” (v. 6).

Christ and the Church

Paul describes the relationship between Christ and the church as a profound mystery (5:32)—a hidden plan of God now revealed and fulfilled in Christ Jesus.

Christ is the head of the church	1:22–23; 4:15; 5:23
Christ is the cornerstone of the church	2:20
Christ is the Savior and sanctifier of the church	5:23, 26–27
Christ gives the church ministry workers	4:11–16
Christ loved and sacrificed himself for the church	5:25
Christ nourishes and cherishes the church	5:29
the church and her members dwell and grow in Christ	2:21–22; 4:15
the church is a means through which God manifests his manifold wisdom	3:10
the church submits to Christ	5:24
the church is Christ’s body, and individual believers are members of his body	1:22–23; 3:6; 4:4, 16; 5:23, 30

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:6 over all . . . through all . . . in all. God is present everywhere (see Ps. 139:7–12; Isa. 66:1).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:7 grace . . . according to the measure of Christ's gift. Gifts given by God's choosing to serve the church.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:8 it says. Paul cites Ps. 68:18 to show that Christ gave gifts to his people from what he had taken from his enemies. The "gifts" are the church leaders described in Eph. 4:11. The captives over whom Christ triumphed are most likely demons (compare 1:19–22).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:9 lower regions, the earth. In the incarnation, Christ descended from the highest heavens to the lowest regions (that is, to the earth). He then ascended (Acts 1:9) 40 days after his resurrection to the highest heavens at the right hand of the Father (Acts 2:33).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:11 For apostles, see note on 1:1. prophets. A reference to the gift of prophecy in the NT church. evangelists. People who proclaim the gospel to unbelievers (see Acts 21:8; 2 Tim. 4:5). shepherds (or "pastors" [ESV footnote]) and teachers. People who teach and guide those who become believers. There is some uncertainty whether these terms refer to two different ministry roles or functions (see 1 Tim. 5:17) or a single "shepherd-teacher" ministry role (see ESV footnote).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:12 Church leaders are to equip the saints (all Christians) to do the work of ministry (1 Cor. 12:7, 11; 1 Pet. 4:10).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:13 The variety of gifts serves to bring about the unity of Christ's people. Mature manhood contrasts with "children" in the next verse (see Heb. 5:11–14). knowledge of the Son of God. Knowing Christ personally and understanding all that he did and taught brings about "mature manhood." measure. Christ Jesus is the standard of maturity. Christ's fullness is the expression of his divine and human perfection (see Eph. 1:23; 3:19; Col. 1:19).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:14 deceitful schemes. Compare 1 John 4:1–3; Jude 4; Rev. 2:2.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:15 The truth must always be presented in love. As head, Christ leads, directs, and guides the body (see 5:23; 1 Cor. 11:3).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:16 As part of Christ’s body, every believer has an important role in the church’s growth. in love. See 1 Corinthians 13.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:17–24 Paul’s Testimony. Paul explains the new life in Christ that the Ephesians have experienced.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:17–18 ignorance. Not having saving knowledge of Christ. hardness of heart. Unwillingness to turn from sin and accept Christ (see Matt. 13:14–15).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:22 put off your old self. See Col. 3:9–10. As the ESV footnote indicates, “self” translates the generic Greek term for “man” or “human.” The “old self” refused to trust and serve Christ. corrupt. Human hearts are “deceitful above all things, and desperately sick” (Jer. 17:9).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:23 renewed. The “renewal” or “transformation” of the mind (Rom. 12:2) occurs as believers study and apply God’s Word and begin to think in new and right ways.

FACT

Renewed minds. Christians sometimes distinguish between “head knowledge” and “heart knowledge.” But the Bible clearly teaches that we are to love and serve the Lord with all that we are, including both our hearts and our minds (4:23; see Deut. 6:5; Matt. 22:37).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:24 put on the new self (literally, “man”; see note on v. 22). Believers are created anew after the likeness of God. Compare Gen. 1:27; 1 Cor. 15:49.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:25–32 Encouragement for a Holy Lifestyle. Paul gives practical examples of how church members strengthen Christ’s body (compare vv. 13–16).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:26–27 Be angry. Not all anger is sin, but believers should not remain angry. This will only give an opportunity to the devil to do evil.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:29 Christians are to avoid corrupting talk. They must speak in ways that are good for building up and giving grace, that is, what they say should benefit others rather than corrupting them.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:30 To grieve the Holy Spirit means to cause him sorrow by one's sin. sealed. See note on 1:13. The day of redemption is the day of Christ's return (see Luke 21:28; Rom. 8:23).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 4:31 All modifies every item in the list. Bitterness may be listed first because it often leads to the other sins Paul names.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:1–20 New Life in Love. Paul gives general instructions for holy living. Purity of life comes from avoiding evil deeds and relationships and adopting holy practices.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:1–2 Paul's discussion of love introduces further instructions on holy living (vv. 3–20). When Christ gave himself up for us, it was the supreme act of his love (see John 15:13).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:3 The term sexual immorality covers all sexual sins, including adultery, sex outside of marriage, and homosexuality. Covetousness is a jealous desire for what others possess (Ex. 20:17). It amounts to idolatry (Eph. 5:5; Col. 3:5). saints. See note on Eph. 1:1.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:4 Thanksgiving, in contrast to crude joking and foolish talk, is the positive way to speak. Thanksgiving can also be a cure for covetousness (see v. 3).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:5 idolater. See Col. 3:5. inheritance. See Eph. 1:13–14; 4:30. kingdom. Paul speaks of Christ ruling now from the right hand of God (see 1:20–22; compare Rom. 8:34; 1 Cor. 15:24–27; Col. 3:1; etc.). Believers have already been brought into his redemptive kingdom (see Eph. 2:6; Col. 1:13–14), although his rule will be complete only at his second coming (1 Cor. 15:20–24; 2 Tim. 4:1).

FACT

Paul makes it clear that Christians must live holy lives (5:1–21; see 4:17–24). This means rejecting sexual immorality, impurity, idolatry, coveting, and drunkenness. Instead, they should strive to imitate God, because he loves them (5:1–2).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:6 deceive you . . . because of these things. Only a false teacher would claim that Christians can lead unrepentant, sinful lives (see 2 Tim. 3:1–9; 2 Pet. 2:1–3; Rev. 2:14, 20) and not suffer any consequences. These practices lead to the wrath of God in judgment (Rev. 2:21–23). sons of disobedience. See note on Eph. 2:2; compare John 8:44; 17:12; 1 John 3:10.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:7 become partners. Christians must not join unbelievers in their sin.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:8 Walk as children of light. See 1 John 1:5–7. See also Isa. 9:2; 42:6; John 9:5.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:9 Fruit of light is similar to fruit of the Spirit (compare Gal. 5:22–23).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:10 The Bible gives general principles for life. Christians must also seek the wisdom to discern how to apply those principles to their daily lives.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:11 Expose means either to correct or to convince through argument and discussion (also v. 13). Those who expose sin must not gossip or slander others in the process.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:14 it says. The quotation combines the thought of several verses, including Isa. 60:1 (see also Isa. 9:2; 26:19).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:17 The will of the Lord means God’s general guidelines for life as found in the Bible (his “revealed will”; see Deut. 29:29).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:18 be filled with the Spirit. Compare Gal. 5:22–23. The command describes a regular pattern of life, rather than a onetime event.

Principles of Marriage

Principles of Marriage	Scripture Reference
Marriage is part of the “mystery” of God’s will	Eph. 1:9; 3:3; 5:32
Paul’s instructions are directed to Spirit-filled believers	Eph. 5:18
Wives are called to submit, men are called to love	Eph. 5:21–33
Headship entails authority	Eph. 5:23–24 (compare Eph. 1:22; 4:15)
Submission is still required of Christian wives	Eph. 5:22; Col. 3:18 (compare Gen. 2:18; 1 Cor. 11:3)
Marriage involves spiritual warfare, which requires husbands and wives to put on the full armor of God	Eph. 6:10–18

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:19 Being filled with the Spirit results in joyful praise through singing and making melody. psalms and hymns and spiritual songs. Paul probably has in mind the OT Psalms along with other songs of praise (compare Col. 3:16). "Spiritual" points to the influence of the Holy Spirit (Eph. 5:18) in the believer's acts of praise.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:20 To pray in the name of Jesus means to pray in faith, trusting in him as the one who represents his people before God the Father (John 14:6; Heb. 4:16; see also note on John 14:13).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:21–6:9 Submission to One Another. Ephesians 5:21 connects the previous section to what follows. Submission is illustrated in various family relationships in 5:22–33 (wives/husbands), 6:1–4 (children/parents), and 6:5–9 (bondservants/masters). See also Col. 3:18–25.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:21 Although this verse begins a new section (5:21–6:9), submitting is actually the last item in the list of ways in which believers are to "Look carefully . . . how you walk" (5:15). The previous items in this list are "making" (v. 16), "addressing" (v. 19), and "giving" (v. 20). Submitting to one another means "submitting to others according to the authority and order established by God." This can be seen in the examples Paul gives in the following verses.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:22 submit. Paul begins with the right ordering of the marriage relationship (see also Col. 3:18; 1 Pet. 3:1–7). The submission of wives is not like the obedience of children, nor does this text command all women to submit to all men (to your own husbands). Both genders are equally created in God's image (Gen. 1:26–28) and heirs together of eternal life (Gal. 3:28–29). The submission described here is to the husband's leadership for the health of the marriage relationship.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:23–24 the husband is the head of the wife. The wife's submission to her husband is modeled on Christ's position as head of the church and its Savior. "Head" here clearly refers to a husband's authority over his wife. See note on 1 Cor. 11:3.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:25 love. Paul now turns to the duty of husbands. Paul tells the husband to give himself up for her. Husbands are to love their wives in a self-sacrificial manner, following the example of Christ with the church.

This model is directly opposed to any kind of male tyranny or oppression. Notably, Paul gives three times more space to the subject of the husband’s duty (nine verses) than to the wife’s (three verses).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:26–27 The focus in these verses is on Christ, for husbands do not “sanctify” their wives or “wash” them of their sins. sanctify. Set aside for the Lord’s service through cleansing. washing of water. Perhaps baptism (see Rom. 6:3–4). There may also be a link here to Ezek. 16:1–13, where the Lord washes the infant Israel, raises her, and eventually makes her royalty and marries her. This would correspond to presenting the church to himself in splendor at his marriage supper (see also Ezek. 36:25; Rev. 19:7–9; 21:2, 9–11).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:28–30 The body for which Christ sacrificed himself was the church.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:31 God joins husbands and wives together to become one flesh (Gen. 2:24; see also Matt. 19:5; 1 Cor. 6:16).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 5:32 By mystery Paul means the hidden plan of God that has come to fulfillment in Christ Jesus (see 1:9; 3:3–4, 9; and 6:19). Paul interprets the original creation of the husband-and-wife union as being modeled on Christ’s forthcoming union with the church (see 5:23).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:1 Children. The second family relationship illustrating submission to proper authority (5:21) is that of children and parents. obey your parents. Obedience is due to both parents.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:2–3 Honor. Children obeying their parents (v. 1) is in part how they honor them. promise. This is the only one of the Ten Commandments that contains a promise (Ex. 20:12).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:4 Fathers. As earlier, Paul describes a negative action to avoid, then gives a positive action to develop (see note on 4:29). Paul addresses fathers in particular, though this does not lessen the mother’s contribution in these areas (see Proverbs 31). provoke . . . to anger. A domineering and thoughtless father discourages obedient children (Col. 3:21). bring them up. Parents play a crucial, God-ordained role in the discipleship of their children “in the Lord” (Eph. 6:1); see Deut. 6:1–9.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:5 Bondservants. See note on 1 Cor. 7:21. It is estimated that slaves (or bondservants) composed about one-third of the population of a city like Ephesus. They were considered part of a family, so Paul's instructions for bondservants were a natural part of his dealing with family relationships. Paul does not endorse the existing system of servitude (see ESV Preface). Instead, he provides instructions to believing masters and bondservants regarding their relationship to each other in the Lord, and how this should be lived out within the bounds of their social and legal culture. The principles in this passage apply today in terms of submission to any lawful authority, unless it requires a believer to disobey God's Word or to fundamentally compromise one's commitment to Christ (see, e.g., Acts 4:19, 20). with a sincere heart. Fulfilling one's obligations is service to the Lord (see Eph. 6:6–7).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:9 Masters were not to take advantage of their authority by threatening their bondservants. There is no partiality with the Lord (see 2 Chron. 19:7; Rom. 2:11). He will fairly judge both masters and servants.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:10–20 The Whole Armor of God. Paul concludes with instructions for all Christians. He portrays the Christian life as a spiritual warfare. There are three subsections: vv. 10–13, 14–17, and 18–20.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:10 be strong. Christians cannot stand on their own against superhuman evil powers. They must rely upon the strength of the Lord's might (see 1:19). He supplies this power primarily through prayer (6:18).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:11 whole armor. The complete equipment of a fully armed soldier, consisting of shields and weapons like those described in vv. 14, 16–17. Paul draws primarily on OT passages, yet the terms also overlap with Roman weapons. schemes. The "deceitful schemes" of those teaching false doctrine come from Satan (4:14; see also 1 John 4:3).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:13 Therefore. Because their enemies are superhuman spiritual forces, Christians cannot rely on human resources. They must take up the whole armor of God (see note on v. 11). withstand. Along with "stand" in v. 11 and stand firm later in v. 13, Paul portrays Christians as soldiers not retreating from the enemy's charge. evil day. In 5:16 Paul identifies this whole age as "evil days." Satan's attacks against Christ's people will continue until Christ comes again (Luke 21:27) to rescue his people forever.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:14–17 Christians have God's armor from head to foot. These items are metaphors for the spiritual resources given to them in Christ: the truth, righteousness, the gospel, faith, salvation, and the Word of God.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:16–17 flaming darts. Burning arrows designed to destroy wooden shields and other defenses. The shield of faith is able to extinguish the devil's attacks. the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God. God's Word is the only offensive weapon in this list (see Heb. 4:12).

FACT

Flaming darts (6:16) were arrows tipped with cloth, then dipped in pitch and set on fire before shooting. They were used to ignite structures and the shields of opposing infantrymen. In defense against such darts, soldiers often covered their shields with leather and soaked them in water.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:18 praying. The weapons for warfare are spiritual because they are rooted in prayer, the Christian's most powerful resource. Prayer in the Spirit is a form of worship (John 4:23–24) enabled by the Spirit of God, who intercedes on behalf of the person who prays (Rom. 8:26–27).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:21–24 Conclusion. Paul concludes his letter (vv. 21–22) and gives a final blessing (vv. 23–24).

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:21–22 Tychicus the beloved brother had served Paul faithfully (see Acts 20:4; Col. 4:7; 2 Tim. 4:12; Titus 3:12). He probably carried this letter to Ephesus.

EPHESIANS—NOTE ON 6:23–24 Paul closes his letter the way he began it (1:2): with a benediction of peace, love, faith, and grace upon the church. He mentions "love" three times. This is fitting for a letter where the love of God, the love of Christ, and Christian love have been prominent themes.

Author, Date, and Recipients

The apostle Paul wrote this letter to the Christians in Philippi, probably from Rome c. A.D. 62.

Theme

Paul encourages the Philippians to live as citizens of a heavenly city, growing in their commitment to serve God and one another. Jesus is the supreme example of this way of life. Paul, Timothy, and Epaphroditus try to be good examples as well.

Purpose

Paul wrote to the Philippians from prison. He had several purposes in mind: (1) to tell them that Epaphroditus had recovered from a serious illness; (2) to encourage them in their faith; (3) to assure them that he was still in good spirits; and (4) to thank them for their continued support.

Key Themes

1. Christians need to keep making spiritual progress (1:12, 25; 3:12–16).
2. Such progress requires a proper spiritual outlook (1:5–11; 2:1–11; 3:7, 15; 4:7–9).
3. Christ is the supreme example for the Christian. Mature Christians can also serve as role models (1:12–26; 2:5–11, 19–30; 3:3–17; 4:9).

4. Suffering will come, but Christians can still be joyful (1:12–26; 2:14–15; 4:4, 11–13, 19).
5. Prayer is crucial for maintaining a joyful Christian life (1:3–11; 4:5–7).
6. Christians can enjoy rich relationships with one another; they can be united in service to promote the gospel (1:4, 7, 24–27; 2:1–4, 19–30; 4:2–4, 14).
7. Keeping the law cannot provide a right standing with God; believers are saved only through their faith in Jesus Christ (3:2–10).
8. Jesus is fully God and fully man. Because of his suffering on the cross, he is now glorified as Lord and Christ (2:5–11).

The Setting of Philippians

c. A.D. 62

Paul wrote his letter to the Philippians while in prison, probably in Rome. Philippi was the site of a key military victory by Augustus Caesar, and as a result it was made a Roman colony. Philippi was the first city in present-day Europe where Paul established a church.

The Global Message of Philippians

Because of what Christ has done, believers worldwide are invited into the practice of joyful self-giving that marked Christ's own life. This is the message of Philippians for the global church. As believers face various kinds of adversity around the world, there is a stable source of joy in the good news of a righteousness before God that is given to us rather than generated by our own feeble efforts (Phil. 3:8–9). Responding gladly to this unspeakably precious gift, we are set free for a life of humble service to those around us.

Philippians and Redemptive History

While the letter to the Philippians does not actually quote a single Old Testament passage, the book is clearly built on the Old Testament (see Phil. 2:17; 3:3–6; 4:18). In two ways, in particular, Philippians gives us glimpses into the whole scope of redemptive history. Both come from the beautiful description in Philippians 2:6–11 of what Christ, the pinnacle of the story of redemption, has done.

Perfect man. First, Jesus Christ is the second Adam, the perfect human. In Genesis 1–2 God formed Adam out of the dust of the ground and created him in his own image and likeness (Gen. 1:26–28). Adam was to represent God on earth, spreading God's dominion everywhere on the planet. As the Old Testament unfolds, however, we see that Adam failed to do this, as did all those who followed him. Yet at the climax of history God sent forth another head for mankind, his own Son. This Son was to undo the ruin that Adam, his first son (so called in Luke 3:38), had brought into the world. And Philippians 2 tells us that this Son "was in the form of God"—that is, he was the perfect image of God (see also Rom. 5:19; 8:29; 1 Cor. 15:41; 2 Cor. 3:18; 4:4; Col. 1:15; 3:10). After looking back to Genesis in Philippians 2, Paul looks ahead in Philippians 3 to the end of history, when Jesus will return (Phil. 3:20). At that time Christ "will transform our lowly body to be like his glorious body" (3:21). The image that Adam had and which was marred when he sinned was perfected in Christ; and through Christ, we who believe in him will one day be perfectly restored into the same image and likeness that he bears.

Perfect God. Second, Jesus Christ is himself divine, perfect God. In Isaiah 45, in one of the most exalted Old Testament affirmations of God's utter uniqueness and sovereignty, God himself declares that "to me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear allegiance" (Isa. 45:23). Yet this is precisely what Paul says in Philippians 2 will be true of Jesus: at Jesus' name every knee will bow and every tongue will confess that he is Lord (Phil. 2:10–11). In a startling connection, Paul here identifies Jesus as destined to receive the worship only God himself deserves. In this way Paul underscores Jesus' own divinity.

Universal Themes in Philippians

Selflessness rooted in the gospel. Throughout Philippians Paul exhorts his readers to give of themselves gladly for the sake of Christ and others. Paul himself says that he is content even with imprisonment as long as Christ is lifted up (Phil. 1:12–18). He tells the Philippians that he will be glad to be "poured out as a drink offering" if it will strengthen their faith (2:17). He reminds them of the self-giving love of Timothy (2:20) and Epaphroditus (2:30). And he exhorts the Philippians themselves to count others more significant than themselves and to look to others' concerns (2:3–4). In all of this it is the gospel that fuels such self-giving. For Christ gave of himself for our sake (2:6–11; 3:10). In this self-giving love the global church has its fundamental motivation to love and serve our neighbors, recognizing how God in Christ has loved and served us.

Hard work for God's sake. Paul says he is straining forward and pressing on in the upward call of God in Christ (Phil. 3:12–14), calling on the Philippians to join him in this strenuous effort (3:17) and to "work out" their salvation (2:12). The apostle reminds them of the hard work of Timothy and Epaphroditus (2:22, 25, 30). While the central message of the Bible for God's people is his great love for them in Christ—love that has eliminated the need for anyone to work his way into God's favor—this does not mean Christians around the world are encouraged to be passive or apathetic. God's love and grace in the gospel is the very thing that fuels heartfelt Christian activity and service (see 2:13; 3:8–9).

The crucial place of joy in the Christian life. Throughout Philippians Paul describes the Christian life as one of joy (Phil. 1:4, 25; 2:2, 29; 4:1) and encourages his readers to rejoice (3:1; 4:4). This is the great call and the great need of the Christian church today. Whatever our circumstances, whether we are rich or poor, comfortable or afflicted, we are called to rejoice in God (4:10–13). The gospel will multiply not as Christians around the world display superior intellect, or material blessing, or social influence. The gospel will grow as we display joy, a joy that is unconquerable whatever the circumstances.

The Global Message of Philippians for Today

As we look around the world today, it is not hard to find reasons for discouragement. Joblessness, homelessness, illness, hunger, marital strife, economic hardship, persecution of believers both publicly and privately—the challenges of life in a sin-ravaged world quickly feel overwhelming.

The battering that our hope takes comes not only from outside the church but also from inside it. Gossip, slander, envy, disunity, laziness, grumbling, and simply the ongoing temptations and failings of believers all take their toll on the church and the church's witness around the world. The sickness of sin impartially infects all people—unbelievers and believers, Western and Eastern, rural and urban, rich and poor.

The letter to the Philippians addresses head-on the human tendency toward discouragement and hopelessness. In Christ, who was in the form of God yet emptied himself and went to a cross for our sake (Phil. 2:5–11), an invincible hope is given to all Christians everywhere, whatever we are facing. Without in any way downplaying the real adversity that afflicts us, the gospel gives us a comfort and solace that no human circumstance can take away (4:10–13). Whatever happens—personally, politically, economically—God has freely granted to those who trust in Christ a righteousness that is not dependent on their obedience but on Christ (3:9). For this reason we have "ample cause to glory in Christ Jesus" (1:26) despite the storms raging around us.

"Rejoice in the Lord always" (Phil. 4:4). If we have Christ, we have everything.

Greeting

PHILIPPIANS 1 [†]Paul and Timothy, servants [1] of Christ Jesus,

To all the [a] saints in Christ Jesus who are at Philippi, with the [b] overseers [2] and [c] deacons: [3]

2 [d] Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Thanksgiving and Prayer

3[†] [e] I thank my God [f] in all my remembrance of you, 4always in every prayer of mine for you all making my prayer with joy, 5 [g] because of your partnership in the gospel from the first day until now. 6[†]And I am sure of this, that he who began [h] a good work in you [i] will bring it to completion at [j] the day of Jesus Christ. 7[†]It is right for me to feel this way about you all, because I hold you [k] in my heart, for you are all [l] partakers with me of grace, [4] both [m] in my imprisonment and in [n] the defense and confirmation of the gospel. 8For [o] God is my witness, [p] how I yearn for you all with the affection of Christ Jesus. 9[†]And it is my prayer that [q] your love may abound more and more, [r] with knowledge and all discernment, 10so that you may approve what is excellent, [s] and so be pure and blameless [t] for the day of Christ, 11filled [u] with the fruit of righteousness that comes [v] through Jesus Christ, [w] to the glory and praise of God.

The Advance of the Gospel

12[†]I want you to know, brothers, [5] that what has happened to me has really [x] served to advance the gospel, 13so that it has become known throughout the whole imperial guard [6] and [y] to all the rest that [z] my imprisonment is for Christ. 14And most of the brothers, having become confident in the Lord by my imprisonment, are much more bold [a] to speak the word [7] without fear.

15[†] [b] Some indeed preach Christ from envy and rivalry, but others from good will. 16The latter do it out of love, [c] knowing that I am put here for [d] the defense of the gospel. [17]The former proclaim Christ [e] out of selfish ambition, not sincerely but thinking to afflict me in my imprisonment. [18]What then? Only that in every way, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is proclaimed, and in that I rejoice.

To Live Is Christ

Yes, and I will rejoice, [19][†]for I know that [f] through your prayers and [g] the help of [h] the Spirit of Jesus Christ this will turn out for my deliverance, [20][†]as it is my eager expectation and hope [i] that I will not be at all ashamed, but that with full [j] courage now as always Christ [k] will be honored in my body, [l] whether by life or by death. [21][†]For to me [m] to live is Christ, and to die is gain. [22][†]If I am to live in the flesh, that means fruitful labor for me. Yet which I shall choose I cannot tell. [23][†] [n] I am hard pressed between the two. My desire is [o] to depart and [p] be with Christ, for that is far better. [24]But to remain in the flesh is more necessary on your account. [25] [q] Convinced of this, [r] I know that I will remain and continue with you all, for your [s] progress and [t] joy in the faith, [26]so that in me [u] you may have ample cause to glory in Christ Jesus, because of my coming to you again.

[27][†]Only [v] let your manner of life be [w] worthy [8] of the gospel of Christ, so that whether I come and see you or am absent, I may hear of you [x] that you are standing firm in one spirit, with [y] one mind [z] striving side by side for the faith of the gospel, [28][†]and not frightened in anything by your opponents. This is [a] a clear sign to them of their destruction, but [b] of your salvation, and that from God. [29][†]For [c] it has been granted to you that for the sake of Christ you should not only believe in him but also [b] suffer for his sake, [30]engaged in the same [d] conflict that [e] you saw I had and now hear that I still have.

Christ’s Example of Humility

PHILIPPIANS 2 [†]So if there is any encouragement in Christ, any comfort from [f] love, any [g] participation in the Spirit, any [h] affection and sympathy, [2] [i] complete my joy by being [j] of the same mind, having the same love, being in full accord and of one mind. [3][†]Do nothing from [k] selfish ambition or [l] conceit, but in [m] humility count others more significant than yourselves. [4]Let each of you [n] look not only to his own interests, but also to the interests of others. [5][†] [o] Have this mind among yourselves, which is yours in Christ Jesus, [1] [6][†] [p] who, though he was in [q] the form of God, did not count equality with God [r] a thing to be grasped, [7][†]but [s] emptied himself, by taking the form of a [t] servant, [2] [u] being born in the likeness of men. [8][†]And being found in human form, he humbled himself by [v] becoming obedient to the point of death, [w] even death on a cross. [9][†] [x] Therefore [y] God has [z] highly exalted him and bestowed on him [a] the name that is above every name, [10][†]so that at the name of Jesus [b] every knee should bow, [c] in heaven and on earth and under the earth, [11]and [d] every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is [e] Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

Lights in the World

[12][†]Therefore, my beloved, [f] as you have always [g] obeyed, so now, not only as in my presence but much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling, [13]for [h] it is God who works in you, both to will and to work for [i] his good pleasure.

[14][†]Do all things [j] without grumbling or [k] disputing, [15]that you may be blameless and innocent, [l] children of God [m] without blemish [n] in the midst of [o] a crooked and twisted generation, among whom you shine [p] as lights in the world, [16][†]holding fast to [q] the word of life, so that in [r] the day of Christ [s] I may be proud that [t] I did not run in vain or labor in vain. [17][†]Even if I am to be [u] poured out as a drink offering upon [v] the sacrificial offering of your faith, I am glad and rejoice with you all. [18]Likewise you also should be glad and rejoice with me.

Timothy and Epaphroditus

[19][†]I hope in the Lord Jesus [w] to send Timothy to you soon, so that I too may be cheered by news of you. [20]For I have no one [x] like him, who will be genuinely concerned for your welfare. [21]For they all [y] seek their own interests, not those of Jesus Christ. [22]But you know Timothy's [3] [z]proven worth, how [a]as a son [4] with a father [b]he has served with me in the gospel. [23]I hope therefore to send him just as soon as I see how it will go with me, [24]and [c]I trust in the Lord that shortly I myself will come also.

[25][†]I have thought it necessary to send to you [d]Epaphroditus my brother and fellow worker and [e]fellow soldier, and your messenger and [f]minister to my need, [26]for he has been longing for you all and has been distressed because you heard that he was ill. [27]Indeed he was ill, near to death. But God had mercy on him, and not only on him but on me also, lest I should have sorrow upon sorrow. [28]I am the more eager to send him, therefore, that you may rejoice at seeing him again, and that I may be less anxious. [29]So [g]receive him in the Lord with all joy, and [h]honor such men, [30][†]for he nearly died [i]for the work of Christ, risking his life [j]to complete what was lacking in your service to me.

Righteousness Through Faith in Christ

PHILIPPIANS 3 [†]Finally, my brothers, [1] [k]rejoice in the Lord. [l]To write the same things to you is no trouble to me and is safe for you.

[2][†]Look out for [m]the dogs, look out for [n]the evildoers, look out for those who mutilate the flesh. [3][†]For [o]we are the circumcision, [p]who worship [q]by the Spirit of God [2] and [r]glory in Christ Jesus and put no confidence in the flesh— [4][†] [s]though I myself have reason for confidence in the flesh also. If anyone else thinks he has reason for confidence in the flesh, I have more: [5] [t]circumcised on the eighth day, [u]of the people of Israel, [v]of the tribe of Benjamin, [u]a Hebrew of Hebrews; as to the law, [w]a Pharisee; [6] [x]as to zeal, [y]a persecutor of the church; [z]as to righteousness under the law, [3] blameless. [7][†]But [a]whatever gain I had, [b]I counted as loss for the sake of Christ. [8]Indeed, I count everything as loss because of [c]the surpassing worth of [d]knowing Christ Jesus my Lord. For his sake I [e]have suffered the loss of all things and count them as rubbish, in order that I may gain Christ [9][†]and be found in him, not having [f]a righteousness of my own that comes from the law, but [g]that which comes through faith in Christ, the righteousness from God that depends on faith— [10][†] [h]that I may know him and [i] the power of his resurrection, and [j] may share his sufferings, becoming like him in his death, [11]that by any means possible I may [k] attain the resurrection from the dead.

Straining Toward the Goal

[12][†]Not that I have already [l] obtained this or [m] am already perfect, but I press on to make it my own, because Christ Jesus has made me his own. [13]Brothers, I do not consider that I have made it my own. But one thing I do: [n] forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, [14][†]I press on toward the goal for [o] the prize of the upward [p] call of God in Christ Jesus. [15][†]Let those of us who are [q] mature think this way, and if in anything [r] you think otherwise, [s] God will reveal that also to you. [16]Only [t] let us hold true to what we have attained.

[17][†]Brothers, [u] join in imitating me, and keep your eyes on those who walk [v] according to the example you have in us. [18][†]For [w] many, of whom I have often told you and now tell you [x] even with tears, walk as enemies of the cross of Christ. [19] [y] Their end is destruction, [z] their god is their belly, and [a] they glory in their shame, with [b] minds set on earthly things. [20][†]But [c] our citizenship is in heaven, and [d] from it we [e] await a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, [21][†]who will transform [f] our lowly body [g] to be like his glorious body, [h] by the power that enables him even [i] to subject all things to himself.

PHILIPPIANS 4 [†]Therefore, my brothers, [1] whom I love and [j] long for, [k] my joy and [l] crown, [m] stand firm thus in the Lord, my beloved.

Exhortation, Encouragement, and Prayer

[2][†]I entreat Euodia and I entreat Syntyche to [n] agree in the Lord. [3][†]Yes, I ask you also, true companion, [2] help these women, who have labored side by side with me in the gospel together with Clement and the rest of my fellow workers, [o] whose names are in the book of life.

[4] [p] Rejoice in the Lord always; again I will say, rejoice. [5][†]Let your reasonableness be known to everyone. [q] The Lord is at hand; [6][†] [r] do not be anxious about anything, [s] but in everything by prayer and supplication

[t]with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. [7]And [u]the peace of God, [v]which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.

[8][†]Finally, brothers, whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is commendable, if there is any excellence, if there is anything worthy of praise, think about these things. [9]What you have learned and [w]received and heard and seen [x]in me—practice these things, and [y]the God of peace will be with you.

God’s Provision

[10]I rejoiced in the Lord greatly that now at length [z]you have revived your concern for me. You were indeed concerned for me, but you had no opportunity. [11]Not that I am speaking of being in need, for I have learned in whatever situation I am to be [a]content. [12][†]I know how to be brought low, and I know how to abound. In any and every circumstance, I have learned the secret of facing plenty and [b]hunger, abundance and [c]need. [13]I can do all things [d]through him who strengthens me.

[14][†]Yet it was kind of you [e]to share [3] my trouble. [15]And you Philippians yourselves know that [f]in the beginning of the gospel, when I left Macedonia, [g]no church entered into partnership with me in giving and receiving, except you only. [16]Even in Thessalonica you sent me help for my needs once and again. [17][†][h]Not that I seek the gift, but I seek [i]the fruit that increases to your credit. [4] [18][†]I have received full payment, and more. I am well supplied, [j]having received from Epaphroditus the gifts you sent, [k]a fragrant offering, [l]a sacrifice acceptable and pleasing to God. [19]And my God [m]will supply every need of yours [n]according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus. [20]To [o]our God and Father be [p]glory forever and ever. Amen.

Final Greetings

[21][†]Greet every saint in Christ Jesus. [q]The brothers who are with me greet you. [22][r]All the saints greet you, especially those of Caesar’s household.

[23][s]The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.

Study Notes for Philippians

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:1–11 Greeting and Prayer. Paul greets his readers and expresses his gratitude (vv. 3–6) and affection (vv. 7–8) for them. He then prays that their love and holiness will increase (vv. 9–11).

FACT

The imperial guard that Paul mentions in 1:13 was probably the Roman emperor's group of elite personal bodyguards. Through his imprisonment, Paul was able to tell them about Christ. Because of this, Paul rejoiced even in the midst of his difficult circumstances (1:18).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:1–2 Paul, along with Timothy, gives the standard early Christian greeting of grace and peace. Paul calls Timothy and himself servants. The emphasis on service prepares for the rest of the letter, especially 2:5–11. It is uncertain what level of formal church government is implied by overseers and deacons. Overseers were probably elders, charged with spiritual oversight of the congregation (see Acts 14:23 and note; 20:17, 28; 1 Tim. 3:1–7; Titus 1:5–9; James 5:14; 1 Pet. 5:1–4). Deacons were probably in charge of practical service (see Acts 6:1–7; 1 Tim. 3:8–13).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:3–11 Paul's letters frequently begin with thanksgiving and prayer. The prayer here helps establish the letter's major themes.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:3–5 The Philippians' partnership in the gospel includes their financial support of Paul (4:15–16) and their concern for his well-being.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:6 will bring it to completion. Genuine spiritual progress is built upon what God has done, is doing, and will continue to do. God's faithfulness means he will be with believers until Jesus returns (the day of Jesus Christ; compare 2:16; 1 Thess. 5:2–11; 2 Pet. 3:10–13).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:7–8 Paul's imprisonment would have been a source of great shame in that culture, but the Philippians still supported him.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:9–11 Pure and blameless does not imply instant spiritual perfection. It means an increasing likeness to Christ. fruit of righteousness. Because that fruit comes through Jesus Christ, it will result in the glory and praise of God.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:12–30 Paul's Reflections on His Imprisonment. Paul assures the Philippians that the gospel is still advancing even though he is in prison (vv. 12–18). He is joyfully confident. No matter what happens, he will be delivered and Christ will be honored. For him, to live is Christ and to die is gain (vv. 19–26). Paul encourages his readers to live for Christ, even while suffering (vv. 27–30).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:12–18 Paul encourages the Philippians by pointing out that his being in prison has provided many opportunities to proclaim the gospel. Considering that there was some disunity among the Christians in Philippi (vv. 15–18; compare 4:2–3), Paul's joy amid his difficult circumstances should be an example for them.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:12 The word Paul uses for the advance of the gospel is the same word he uses in v. 25 for the Philippians' "progress" in faith. Christians should seek to advance God's kingdom rather than dwelling on past or present problems.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:15–18 Those who preach Christ from envy and rivalry are likely Christians who preached the gospel but were at odds with Paul for some reason.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:19 deliverance. Either deliverance from prison or the deliverance of eternal salvation. Paul may intend both meanings, since he mentions his imprisonment in vv. 12–14 and focuses on the eternal in v. 23.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:20 The crucial thing for Paul is not life or death. It is maintaining his faithful witness to Christ.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:21 Paul's life is all about the advancement of Christ's kingdom. Thus, to live means serving Christ. To die is gain, because then Paul would be in Christ's presence.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:22–26 Paul knows that the way of Jesus is the way of service (see 2:5–11). He is convinced that he will remain and continue with the Philippians for their progress and joy in the faith. Paul is not thinking about his own crisis. He is giving the Philippians a model of the service-driven life.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:23 My desire is to depart and be with Christ. When Christians die, they are immediately with Christ—long before their bodies are raised from the dead (see note on 1 Cor. 15:23).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:27–30 Paul’s sacrifice will be useless, however, if the Philippians do not continue to live in a way that is “worthy of the gospel of Christ.”

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:27 be worthy of the gospel. As the ESV footnote indicates, the Greek can also be translated "behave as citizens worthy [of the gospel]." Philippi prided itself on being a Roman colony, offering the honor and privilege of Roman citizenship. Paul reminds the congregation that they should look to Christ, not Caesar, for their model of behavior. They need to stand with one another and with Paul in striving for the gospel. Paul's emphasis on unity may suggest some division within the Philippian congregation (see 4:2–3).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:28 destruction. Eternal destruction, so these are different opponents from those in vv. 15–18, who were Christians. A different city is in view as well. Here Paul speaks about what is happening in Philippi, while in vv. 15–18 his opponents are probably in Rome. Paul follows Jesus' teaching here (Matt. 5:10–12), reminding them that persecution shows they belong to Christ.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 1:29–30 Both suffering and faith have been granted to you as gifts of God. Suffering for the sake of Jesus is a great privilege (see Matt. 5:10–12; Acts 5:41). Paul again presents himself as an example of one who has maintained his joy while experiencing the same conflict (that is, opposition from hostile unbelievers).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:1–30 Encouragement to Humble Service. Paul calls the Philippians to unite in love and humility (vv. 1–4), following Christ's example (vv. 5–11). They are to live as lights in the world (vv. 12–18), as do Christ's faithful servants Timothy (vv. 19–24) and Epaphroditus (vv. 25–30).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:1–2 Paul knows that encouragement, participation in the Spirit, affection, and sympathy are realities in Christ and are present in the congregation at Philippi. He uses a conditional sentence (if) to lead the Philippians to reflect on whether these qualities are evident in their lives. of the same mind. They are to use their different gifts (see 1 Corinthians 12) in a cooperative way, focusing on God's glory.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:3–4 Paul realizes that everyone naturally looks out for his or her own interests. The key is to take that same level of concern and apply it also to the interests of others. Such radical love is rare, so Paul shows its supreme example in Jesus' life (vv. 5–11).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:5–11 This passage is often referred to as the "hymn of Christ." Paul describes Christ's example of service in a poem that traces his preexistence, incarnation, death, resurrection, and ascension to the right hand of God. Paul wrote this magnificent hymn to encourage the Philippians to consider other people's interests first (see v. 4). Verses 6–11 have some clear indications of poetic structure, leading some to believe that this is a hymn adapted by Paul. It is just as likely, however, that Paul wrote the hymn specifically for this setting. In view of the many theological questions that arise in these verses, it is important to keep two things in mind: (1) these verses were written not to create theological debate but to encourage greater humility and love; and (2) the summary of Christ's life and ministry here is not unique. The same themes are evident throughout the NT.

FACT

The heart of Philippians is the magnificent "hymn of Christ" in 2:5–11. Paul poetically describes Jesus' preexistence and equality with God, his incarnation as a man, his death and resurrection. He is the supreme example of humility and personal sacrifice for the sake of others (2:3–5).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:5 The believer's mind needs to think about the proper example, if life is to be lived for God. Scholars debate whether this mind-set is received by virtue of being united to Christ (which is yours in Christ Jesus), or by following the model of Christ (ESV footnote: "which was also in Christ Jesus"). The latter idea is more popular, but both ideas are true. In either case, the central theme of vv. 1–5 is the same: the Philippian church should be of one mind (v. 2), united by love (v. 2) and humility (v. 3), and looking out for the interests of others (v. 4).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:6 Prior to his incarnation as a human being, Jesus was in the form of God. This phrase refers to the "preexistence" of Christ. The eternal Son was with the Father (John 1:1; 17:5, 24) before he was born in Bethlehem. "Form" here means the true and exact nature of something, possessing all the characteristics and qualities of that thing. Therefore having the "form of God" is essentially the same as having equality with God. It is directly contrasted with having the "form of a servant" (Phil. 2:7). The Son of God is and always has been God. See also Heb. 1:3 and Col. 1:15. Remarkably, Christ did not imagine that having "equality with God" (which he already possessed) should lead him to hold onto his privileges at all costs. It was not something to be grasped, to be used for his own benefit or advantage. Instead, he had a mind-set of service.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:7 emptied himself. The Greek can also mean "give up status and privilege." Paul is not saying that Christ became less than God or gave up any of his divine attributes. Nor is he discussing whether Jesus was all-powerful or all-knowing during his time on earth. Nor is he saying that Christ ever gave up being "in the form of God" (v. 6). Rather, Paul is saying that, even though Christ had all the privileges of being King of the universe, he gave them up to become a Jewish baby bound for the cross. He "emptied himself" by taking the form of a servant, being born in the likeness of men. He had every right to stay in a position of power, but his love for sinful mankind drove him to accept a lowly position (compare 2 Cor. 8:9). The "emptying" consisted of his becoming human, not of giving up any part of his true deity.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:8 It is remarkable enough that God the Son would take on human form for a broken world. But Jesus went much farther, becoming obedient (compare Rom. 5:19) to the point of death, even death on a cross. Crucifixion was the ultimate humiliation, and the physical pain was terrible (see note on Matt. 27:35). It was the total opposite of the divine majesty of the preexistent Christ. Thus it was the ultimate expression of Christ's obedience to the Father.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:9 By humbling himself on the cross out of love, Jesus demonstrated that he truly shared the divine nature of God, who is love (1 John 4:8). For this very reason (Therefore), God raised him to life and highly exalted him, entrusting him with the rule of the cosmos and giving him the name that is above every name. Following his death and resurrection, Jesus received a status and authority that had not been his before the incarnation (compare Matt. 28:18; Acts 2:33).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:10–11 every knee should bow . . . and every tongue confess. Paul quotes Isa. 45:23. In Isaiah these words apply to Yahweh, the personal name for God. Thus, when Paul claims Jesus Christ is Lord, he is saying that Jesus is God. But Jesus' exaltation also results in the glory of God the Father. The same pattern occurs in 1 Cor. 15:23–28. Even though he is equal with God the Father, Jesus remains the model of loving service to him.

Joy and Rejoicing in Philippians

Reference	Paul . . .
1:4	prays with joy
1:18	rejoices that Christ is proclaimed
1:25	will remain living on earth, for the Philippians' joy in the faith
2:2	asks the Philippians to complete his joy
2:17–18	is glad and rejoices with the Philippians
2:28	sends Epaphroditus, that the Philippians might rejoice
2:29	tells the Philippians to receive Epaphroditus with joy
3:1	tells the Philippians to rejoice in the Lord
4:1	tells the Philippians they are his joy
4:4	tells the Philippians twice to rejoice in the Lord
4:10	rejoiced in the Lord at the Philippians' concern for him

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:12–18 With the breathtaking portrayal of Christ before them (vv. 5–11), Paul exhorts the Philippians to demonstrate the same faith and obedience in their everyday lives.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:12–13 The Philippians have obeyed in the past and should continue to do so as they work out their salvation with fear and trembling. But while God's justice is a cause for sober living ("fear and trembling"), Paul does not want the Philippians to think that they can never merit God's favor. Rather, it is God's love and enabling grace that will see them through: it is God who works in you. They can rejoice in God's empowering presence even as they work hard at living responsible Christian lives. While v. 12 may seem to suggest salvation by works, Paul clearly rejects any such teaching (see 3:2–11). both to will and to work for his good pleasure. Even the desire to do what is good comes from God.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:14–15 The Philippians should shine as lights amid a crooked and twisted generation. Paul's choice of words recalls the wilderness generation of Israel, who in Deut. 32:5 are described by these very words ("crooked and twisted generation"). Shining "as lights" recalls Dan. 12:2–3.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:16 holding fast. Believing God's Word and following it.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:17 A drink offering involved pouring out wine, either onto the ground or, as here, on an altar along with an animal or grain sacrifice (see Num. 28:7). It illustrates a life "poured out" for God's service (compare 2 Tim. 4:6). The Philippians, too, are a sacrificial offering.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:19–24 Timothy follows Christ in that he is concerned for the Philippians' welfare.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:25–30 Epaphroditus, who is from Philippi, is another example of genuine Christian love.

TIMOTHY

Timothy was from Lystra in South Galatia and was the son of a Jewish mother and a Greek father. Timothy, along with his mother and grandmother, may have been led to Christ during Paul's first visit to Lystra. Timothy joined Paul as a coworker when Paul passed through his hometown early on his second missionary journey. Paul trusted Timothy immensely, and sent him on a number of important missions to strengthen and encourage churches as well as to deal with doctrinal and theological problems. Although he was young, Timothy proved himself to be a godly and effective leader. In Philippians 2:19–24, Paul describes Timothy as an example of a Christ-centered life. Paul also referred to Timothy by the lofty title "God's coworker," emphasizing his credentials (1 Thess. 3:2). Two of the NT epistles are letters written from Paul to Timothy. (Philippians 2:19–22)

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 2:30 Having said that Jesus was obedient "to the point of death" (v. 8), Paul now says that Epaphroditus was "near to death" (v. 27) and that he nearly died. Epaphroditus had faced death on behalf of the Philippians. They had desired to send gifts to Paul but were unable to do so (what was lacking in your service to me) until Epaphroditus made it possible (see 4:10, 18).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:1–21 Opponents of the Gospel: Where Does Righteousness Come From? Paul calls on the Philippians to rejoice in the Lord (v. 1). He then warns them about the Judaizers who oppose the gospel (vv. 2–3). Paul's conflicts with the Judaizers can be seen in greater detail in Acts and Galatians (e.g., Acts 15:1–19; Gal. 2:15–21; 3:6–4:31), as well as in the rest of his letters. Paul rejected their teaching that Gentiles must first become Jews and obey all the OT laws in order to be saved. In contrast, Paul has given up his spiritual and ethnic privileges for the sake of knowing Christ (Phil. 3:4–11). His righteousness comes through Christ, not the law (vv. 12–16). He then calls the Philippians to follow his example of commitment to Jesus as Lord (vv. 17–21).

FACT

Encouragement is an important theme in Paul's letter to the Philippians. The words for "joy" or "rejoice" occur more than a dozen times in this brief letter.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:2 dogs. A term of insult in the ancient world, sometimes used by Jews to describe Gentiles. With biting irony, Paul says that the Judaizers, not the Gentiles, deserve that label. He describes those who believe in salvation by works as evildoers and those who mutilate the flesh.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:3 we are the circumcision. The true people of God are those who worship by the Spirit of God (see John 4:23–24). They glory in Christ Jesus (compare Phil. 1:26) and put no confidence in the flesh. This verse mentions all three members of the Trinity: "God," "Christ Jesus," and "the Spirit of God."

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:4–6 Paul had a strong Jewish background. He was circumcised on the eighth day (see Lev. 12:3). He was an ethnic Israelite and knew the tribe from which he came. Hebrew of Hebrews probably indicates his descent from Jewish ancestors. He was from the strictest religious sect—the Pharisees (Acts 26:5). His zeal was such that he had even been a persecutor of the church. If anyone could be said to be blameless in following the law, it was Paul.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:7–8 gain . . . loss. What formerly went into Paul's gain column—his power, position, and performance—now goes into the loss column. Compare Matt. 16:25–26.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:9 Christians are found in Christ and therefore not found guilty before God. through faith in Christ. God credits Christ's lifelong record of perfect obedience to the person who trusts in Christ for salvation. See note on Gal. 2:16.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:10–11 the power of his resurrection. The power Christ exercises now from his position at the right hand of God.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:12 Paul stresses that he is not already perfect. He still struggles with sin. Jesus' return and the end of sin remains in the future.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:14 The Greek word for goal can mean either the finish line in a race or an archery target. The prize for Christians is the blessings and rewards in the age to come.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:15 Mature is the same adjective translated "perfect" in v. 12. Paul is essentially saying, "If you are really perfect/mature, you will realize that you are not yet perfect/mature!”

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:17 Paul asks the Philippians to join in imitating me and other mature Christians (compare 4:9; 1 Cor. 11:1; 2 Thess. 3:8–9; Heb. 13:7).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:18–19 The enemies of the cross could be the Judaizers of v. 2 or “worldly” people in general.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:20 citizenship. See note on 1:27 and the ESV footnote.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 3:21 Transform our lowly body to be like his glorious body echoes 2:5–11. To subject all things to himself is language about the Messiah drawn from the OT (e.g., Ps. 8:6; 110:1).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:1–23 Concluding Encouragement and Thanksgiving. Paul calls for reconciliation, joyful faith, and disciplined thinking.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:1 Therefore. This transitional verse can be read as either the conclusion to the previous section or the introduction to ch. 4. my joy and crown. The Philippians’ spiritual success would be Paul’s “crowning achievement” (compare 1 Thess. 2:19–20).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:2 Paul does not reveal the source of tension between Euodia and Syntyche. Agree and “being of the same mind” (2:2) translate the same Greek phrase.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:3 true companion. See ESV footnote. labored side by side. Compare 1:27, where Paul also encourages unity among those who are “striving side by side” (the same verb used here) for the gospel. In view of first-century culture, Euodia and Syntyche probably ministered mainly among women. The book of life refers to God’s record of those who belong to him (Ex. 32:33; Ps. 69:28; see Rev. 3:5; 20:12, 15; 21:27).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:5 reasonableness. Seeking what is best for everyone and not just for oneself. The Lord is at hand. Jesus will return as judge and will hold people responsible for their deeds (see James 5:9).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:6–7 do not be anxious. See Matt. 6:25–34.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:8 think about these things. The Philippians must fill their minds with things that inspire worship of God and service to others.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:12–13 I can do all things through him who strengthens me. This does not mean God will bless whatever a person does. It means God gives believers the strength to do whatever he asks them to do.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:14–16 The Philippians share in Paul's ministry by offering financial support (see note on 1:3–5). They contributed to his work after he had left Macedonia (4:15) and when he was nearby in Thessalonica (v. 16; see Acts 17:1).

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:17 Paul reminds the Philippians that even his acceptance of their financial gifts is ultimately for their benefit. Likely using a business image, he seeks the fruit that increases to your credit (see ESV footnote: "the profit that accrues to your account"). God sees their sacrifice and is pleased.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:18 The Philippians' gift is a fragrant offering (see Ex. 29:18; Lev. 4:31) and a sacrifice acceptable to God. While Christ has replaced the offerings of the OT system, the principle of costly devotion to God remains.

PHILIPPIANS—NOTE ON 4:21–22 The call to greet every saint shows the personal nature of Paul's letter. Caesar's household could refer to the "royal family" and to anyone connected with the emperor's service, such as soldiers, slaves, or freedmen. It is likely that some of the latter group had responded positively to Paul's message. There is no evidence that the emperor's actual family were believers at this point.

FACT

Caesar's household (4:22) could refer either to the "royal family" or to anyone connected with the emperor's service. This could include soldiers, slaves, and freedmen, who were most likely the crowd Paul was speaking of. Apparently even people within the imperial household were trusting in Christ.

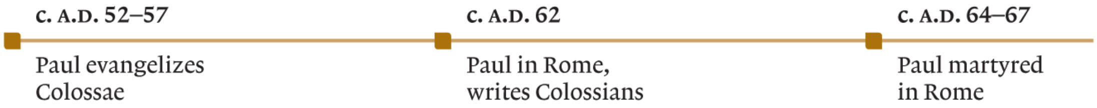
Introduction to Colossians

Introduction to Colossians

Timeline



Author, Date, and Recipients

The apostle Paul wrote this letter to Christians living in the small city of Colossae. It was probably written c. A.D. 62, while Paul was in prison in Rome (Acts 27–28). This was about the same time he wrote Ephesians and Philemon. All three letters were sent with Tychicus and Onesimus.

Theme

Christ is Lord over all of creation, including the invisible realm. He has redeemed his people, enabling them to participate in his death, resurrection, and fullness.

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

A dangerous teaching was threatening the church at Colossae, one that lessened Christ's role and undermined the new identity of believers "in Christ" (1:2, 28). Paul wrote to warn against this false teaching and to encourage the believers in their growth toward Christian maturity. He emphasizes Christ's authority over all evil powers. Christians are united with the risen Christ, and therefore they share in his power and authority. Paul also encourages these believers to fight against sin, pursue holiness, and live as distinctively Christian households.

Key Themes

1. Jesus Christ is preeminent over all creation, Lord over all human rulers and cosmic powers (1:15–20; 2:9–10; 3:1).
2. God has acted through Christ to secure redemption and reconciliation for all who put their faith in him (1:13–14, 20–22).
3. Believers are in Christ, and so they share in Christ's death, resurrection, new life, and his fullness (2:9–14; 3:1–4).
4. Christ has defeated the powers of darkness on the cross. Christians share in his power and authority over that realm (2:10, 15; see also 2:8, 20).
5. Jesus is the fulfillment of Jewish expectation. Christians share in the heritage of the old covenant people of God through their union with him (1:12, 21–22, 27).
6. Believers are called to grow in spiritual maturity by getting rid of sinful practices and developing Christian virtues (1:10–12, 28; 3:1–4:6).

The Setting of Colossians

c. A.D. 62

Paul wrote his letter to the Colossians while in prison, probably in Rome. The church at Colossae was likely established during Paul's third missionary journey as he ministered for three years in Ephesus. It appears that Paul did not personally plant the church there, but instead a Colossian named Epaphras traveled to Ephesus, responded to Paul's gospel message, and returned to share the good news in Colossae.

The Global Message of Colossians

The utter supremacy of Christ: this is the message of Colossians for the global church. Above all human wisdom and tradition, Christ stands forth as preeminent over all and sufficient for all. In him “are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge” (Col. 2:3).

Colossians and Redemptive History

Like Philippians, Colossians has no explicit quotations of the Old Testament to tie this letter to the sweep of God’s redemptive program down through history. Yet there is much in Colossians that enables believers around the world to see how this letter connects the dots between their own lives, what Christ has done, and human history.

What Colossians mainly contributes is a clear and magnificent vision of who Christ is. At the beginning of time God created mankind in God’s own image, yet sin scarred this image. Christ, too, the divine Son, “is the image of the invisible God,” but he is unscarred (Col. 1:15). At the high point of all history Jesus Christ came to reconcile mankind back to God by going to a cross (1:20; 2:14). As sinners united to Christ by faith, Christians are likewise being restored into the image of God that was tragically marred at the fall in Eden (3:10).

When Christ came, in other words, it was the beginning of the global restoration of all things (1:20). Adam and Eve were called to be fruitful and to spread the knowledge of God all across the globe (Gen. 1:28). When they rebelled, this mission faltered. Christ, however, has done what Adam should have done, and by his obedience, even to death, has become the Savior of sinners who have faith in him (Rom. 5:12–19; 1 Cor. 15:22, 45). And the mantle of what Adam was called to do has now fallen on believers. Paul uses the very language of Genesis 1 when he exhorts the Colossians to live “bearing fruit in every good work and increasing in the knowledge of God” (Col. 1:10).

Universal Themes in Colossians

The supremacy and cosmic triumph of Christ. In Colossians 1:15–20 Paul soars in a majestic proclamation of Christ’s supremacy over creation in general (1:15–17) and the church in particular (1:18–20). Yet Christ is not only high and exalted; he also endured extreme suffering as he won a cosmic triumph over all the hostile forces arrayed against God. Christ canceled the record of sins that stood against his people by going to the cross. Paul not only describes the effect of the cross for believers but also its effect on the forces of hell: “He disarmed the rulers and authorities and put them to open shame, by triumphing over them” (2:15). In this way Christ “has delivered us from the domain of darkness”—the domain of the forces of hell—“and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son” (1:13).

The emptiness of human ways of thinking. Throughout Colossians Paul shows himself eager to shield his readers from falling into worldly patterns of thinking and living. He wants no one to “delude” the Colossians “with plausible arguments” (Col. 2:4). He speaks of the “empty deceit” of “human tradition” (2:8). Especially toward the end of chapter 2, Paul seems to refer to false teachers who are tempting the Colossians to be distracted from Christ’s supremacy and sufficiency (2:16–23). There is always the temptation to supplement allegiance to Christ with lesser allegiances. But Jesus Christ himself embodies “all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge” (2:3).

The new life in Christ. The letter to the Colossians tells us not only of Christ but also of what it means for believers to live in Christ. The Christian life is one of resilient gospel-centrality. Believers bear fruit through the gospel (Col. 1:6), never move on from the hope of the gospel (1:23), and grow in maturity in the same way that they received the gospel (2:6–7). At the same time, while never moving past the gospel of grace, believers are fundamentally new people and are therefore able to grow. We have been buried with Christ (2:12), resurrected with Christ (2:13; 3:1), and given a whole new self (3:10). We have been remade. As Christians around the world today seek to walk with Christ, we do so ever mindful of his forgiving grace which pardons as well as his restoring grace which empowers.

The Global Message of Colossians for Today

The world today is brimming with enticing distractions that tempt us to neglect Christ’s utter sufficiency to save, change, and satisfy us.

Where resources are plentiful, we are easily distracted by loving the possessions we have. Where resources are lacking, we are easily distracted by longing for the possessions others have. Education and social prestige can distract us from Christ. The media constantly barrages us with the message that only the rich or famous or healthy or attractive can be truly happy. Christians in various parts of the world today understandably desire greater political stability or social freedom, yet such goals cannot ultimately add to all that is ours already through our inheritance in Christ (Col. 1:12; 3:24).

Perhaps more distracting than any of these things is the temptation to add to Christ's work through our own work. Fallen people know that they come short of God's standard, and this knowledge produces a multitude of personal and relational dysfunctions. We are all naturally inclined to build our identities on how we perform in various ways, not only morally but also through our jobs, reputation, family, or ethnicity.

Yet Christ is enough. In him we are forgiven (Col. 1:13–14, 22; 2:13–14). In him we now live (3:1–4, 9–10). Above all that beckons to us and tempts us to shift our focus from the fully sufficient Christ, Colossians invites believers worldwide to funnel all their desires and affections onto him. All that is worth having is found in Christ.

Greeting

COLOSSIANS 1 [†]Paul, [a] an apostle of Christ Jesus [b] by the will of God, and Timothy [c] our brother,

[2][†]To the [d] saints and faithful brothers [1] in Christ at Colossae:

[e] Grace to you and peace from God our Father.

Thanksgiving and Prayer

[3][†][f] We always thank God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, when we pray for you, [4][†]since we heard of [g] your faith in Christ Jesus and of [g] the love that you have for all the saints, [5]because of [h] the hope [i] laid up for you in heaven. Of this you have heard before in [j] the word of the truth, the gospel, [6][†]which has come to you, as indeed [k] in the whole world it is [l] bearing fruit and increasing—as it also does among you, since the day you [m] heard it and understood [n] the grace of God in truth, [7][†]just as you learned it from [o] Epaphras our beloved [p] fellow servant. [2] He is [p] a faithful minister of Christ on your [3] behalf [8]and has made known to us your [q] love in the Spirit.

[9][†]And so, [r] from the day we heard, [s] we have not ceased to pray for you, asking that [t] you may be filled with the knowledge of his will in all [u] spiritual wisdom and understanding, [10][†]so as [v] to walk in a manner worthy of the Lord, [w] fully pleasing to him, [x] bearing fruit in every good work and increasing in the knowledge of God. [11][†][y] May you be strengthened with all power, according to his glorious might, for [z] all endurance and patience [a] with joy, [12][†][b] giving thanks [4] to the Father, who has qualified you [5] to share in [c] the inheritance of the saints in light. [13][†]He [d] has delivered us from [e] the domain of darkness and transferred us to [f] the kingdom of [g] his beloved Son, [14][†][h] in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins.

The Preeminence of Christ

[15][†][i]He is the image of [j]the invisible God, [k]the firstborn of all creation. [16][†]For by [6] him all things were created, [l]in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether [m]thrones or [n]dominions or rulers or authorities—all things were created [o]through him and for him. [17][†]And [p]he is before all things, and in him all things [q]hold together. [18][†]And [r]he is the head of the body, the church. He is [s]the beginning, [t]the firstborn from the dead, that in everything he might be preeminent. [19][†]For [u]in him all the [v]fullness of God was pleased to dwell, [20][†]and [w]through him to reconcile to himself all things, whether on earth or in heaven, [x]making peace [y]by the blood of his cross.

[21][†][z]And you, who once were alienated and hostile in mind, [a]doing evil deeds, [22]he has now reconciled [b]in his body of flesh by his death, [c]in order to present you holy and blameless and [d]above reproach before him, [23][†][e]if indeed you continue in the faith, [f]stable and steadfast, not shifting from [g]the hope of the gospel that you heard, which has been proclaimed [h]in all creation [7] under heaven, [i]and of which I, Paul, became a minister.

Paul's Ministry to the Church

[24][†]Now [j]I rejoice in my sufferings for your sake, and in my flesh [k]I am filling up [l]what is lacking in Christ's afflictions [m]for the sake of his body, that is, the church, [25][†][n]of which I became a minister according to [o]the stewardship from God that was given to me for you, to make the word of God fully known, [26][†][p]the mystery hidden for ages and generations but now revealed to his saints. [27][q]To them God chose to make known how great among the Gentiles are [r]the riches of the glory of [p]this mystery, which is Christ in you, [s]the hope of glory. [28]Him we proclaim, warning everyone and teaching everyone with all wisdom, that [t]we may present everyone [u]mature in Christ. [29][†]For this [v]I toil, [w]struggling [x]with all his energy that he powerfully works within me.

COLOSSIANS 2 [†]For I want you to know [y]how great a [w]struggle I have for you and for those at Laodicea and for all who have not seen me face to face, [2][†]that [z]their hearts may be encouraged, being [a]knit together in love, to reach all the riches of full assurance of understanding and the knowledge of [b] God's mystery, which is Christ, 3[†] [c] in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. 4[†]I say this in order [d] that no one may delude you with plausible arguments. 5[†]For [e] though I am absent in body, yet I am with you in spirit, rejoicing to see your [f] good order and [g] the firmness of your faith in Christ.

Alive in Christ

6[†] [h] Therefore, as you received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk in him, 7 [i] rooted and [j] built up in him and [k] established in the faith, just [l] as you were taught, abounding [m] in thanksgiving.

8[†]See to it that no one takes you captive by [n] philosophy and [o] empty deceit, according to [p] human tradition, according to the [q] elemental spirits [1] of the world, and not according to Christ. 9[†]For [r] in him the whole fullness of deity dwells [s] bodily, 10[†]and [t] you have been filled in him, who is [u] the head of all rule and authority. 11[†]In him also [v] you were circumcised with a circumcision made without hands, by [w] putting off the body of the flesh, by the circumcision of Christ, 12[†] [x] having been buried with him in baptism, in which [y] you were also raised with him through faith in [z] the powerful working of God, [z] who raised him from the dead. 13 [a] And you, who were dead in your trespasses and the uncircumcision of your flesh, God [b] made alive together with him, having forgiven us all our trespasses, 14[†]by [c] canceling [d] the record of debt that stood against us with its legal demands. This he set aside, nailing it to the cross. 15[†] [w] He disarmed the rulers and authorities [2] and [e] put them to open shame, by [f] triumphing over them in him. [3]

Let No One Disqualify You

16[†]Therefore let no one [g] pass judgment on you [h] in questions of food and drink, or with regard to [i] a festival or [j] a new moon or a Sabbath. 17[†] [k] These are a shadow of the things to come, but [l] the substance belongs to Christ. 18[†]Let no one [m] disqualify you, [n] insisting on asceticism and worship of angels, [o] going on in detail about visions, [4] [p] puffed up without reason by [q]his sensuous mind, 19[†]and [r]not [s]holding fast to the Head, from whom the whole body, nourished and knit together through its joints and ligaments, grows with a growth that is from God.

20[†]If with Christ [t]you died to the [u]elemental spirits of the world, [v]why, as if you were still alive in the world, do you submit to regulations— 21[†] [w]“Do not handle, Do not taste, Do not touch” 22([x]referring to things that all perish as they are used)—according to [y]human precepts and teachings? 23[†]These have indeed an appearance of wisdom in [z]promoting self-made religion and asceticism and severity to the body, but they are [a]of no value in stopping the indulgence of the flesh.

Put On the New Self

COLOSSIANS 3 [†] [b]If then you have been raised with Christ, seek [c]the things that are above, where Christ is, [d]seated at the right hand of God. 2 [e]Set your minds on things that are above, not on things that are on earth. 3[†]For [f]you have died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God. 4When Christ [g]who is your [1] life [h]appears, then you also will appear with him [i]in glory.

5[†][j]Put to death therefore [k]what is earthly in you: [2] [l]sexual immorality, impurity, [m]passion, evil desire, and covetousness, [n]which is idolatry. 6[†] [o]On account of these the wrath of God is coming. [3] 7[p]In these you too once walked, when you were living in them. 8[†]But now [q]you must put them all away: [r]anger, wrath, malice, [s]slander, and obscene talk from your mouth. 9[†] [t]Do not lie to one another, seeing that [u]you have put off [v]the old self [4] with its practices 10and [w]have put on [x]the new self, [y]which is being renewed in knowledge [z]after the image of [a]its creator. 11[†] [b]Here there is not Greek and Jew, circumcised and uncircumcised, barbarian, Scythian, slave, [5] free; but Christ is [c]all, and in all.

12[†] [d]Put on then, as [e]God’s chosen ones, holy and beloved, [f]compassionate hearts, [g]kindness, [h]humility, meekness, and patience, 13[†] [h]bearing with one another and, [i]if one has a complaint against another, [g]forgiving each other; [g]as the Lord has forgiven you, so you also must forgive. 14[†]And above all these put on [j]love, which [k]binds everything together in [l] perfect harmony. 15 And let [m] the peace of Christ rule in your hearts, to which indeed you were called [n] in one body. And [o] be thankful. 16 [†]Let [p] the word of Christ dwell in you richly, teaching and admonishing one another in all wisdom, [q] singing psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, [r] with thankfulness in your hearts to God. 17 And [s] whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, [t] giving thanks to God the Father through him.

Rules for Christian Households

18 [†] [u] Wives, submit to your husbands, as [v] is fitting in the Lord.
19 [†]Husbands, love your wives, and [w] do not be harsh with them.
20 [†]Children, obey your parents [x] in everything, for this pleases the Lord.
21 [†]Fathers, do not provoke your children, lest they become discouraged.
22 [†]Bondservants, [6] obey [x] in everything those who are your earthly masters, [7] not by way of eye-service, as people-pleasers, but with sincerity of heart, fearing the Lord. 23 [y] Whatever you do, work heartily, [z] as for the Lord and not for men, 24 knowing that from the Lord [a] you will receive the inheritance as your reward. [b] You are serving the Lord Christ. 25 For the wrongdoer will be paid back for the wrong he has done, and there is no partiality.

COLOSSIANS 4 [†]Masters, treat your bondservants justly and fairly, knowing that you also have a Master in heaven.

Further Instructions

2 [c] Continue steadfastly in prayer, being watchful in it [d] with thanksgiving.
3 [†]At the same time, pray also for us, that God may [e] open to us a door for the word, [f] to declare the mystery of Christ, [g] on account of which I am in prison— 4 that I may make it clear, which is how I ought to speak.

5 [†] [h] Walk in wisdom toward [i] outsiders, making the best use of the time. 6 Let your speech always [j] be gracious, [k] seasoned with salt, [l] so that you may know how you ought to answer each person.

Final Greetings

7[†]Tychicus will tell you [m]all about my activities. He is a beloved brother and faithful minister and fellow servant [1] in the Lord. 8I have sent him to you for this very purpose, that you may know how we are and that he may encourage your hearts, 9[†]and with him [n]Onesimus, our faithful and [o]beloved brother, who is one of you. They will tell you of everything that has taken place here.

10[†][p]Aristarchus my fellow prisoner greets you, and Mark [q]the cousin of Barnabas (concerning whom you have received instructions—[r]if he comes to you, welcome him), 11and Jesus who is called [s]Justus. [t]These are the only men of the circumcision among my fellow workers for the kingdom of God, and [u]they have been a comfort to me. 12 [v]Epaphras, who is one of you, a servant of Christ Jesus, greets you, always [w]struggling on your behalf in his prayers, that you may stand [x]mature and fully assured in all the will of God. 13[†]For I bear him witness that he has worked hard for you and for those in Laodicea and in Hierapolis. 14[†][y]Luke the beloved physician greets you, as does [z]Demas. 15[†]Give my greetings to the brothers [2] at Laodicea, and to Nympha and [a]the church in her house. 16[†]And when [b]this letter has been read among you, have it also read in the church of the Laodiceans; and see that you also read the letter from Laodicea. 17[†]And say to [c]Archippus, “See that you fulfill [d]the ministry that you have received in the Lord.”

18[†]I, Paul, [e]write this greeting with my own hand. [f]Remember [g]my chains. [h]Grace be with you.

Study Notes for Colossians

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:1–2 Greeting. As he often does, Paul begins by asking God to pour out his grace and peace upon the Colossians.

FACT

Colossae was most likely the smallest city to receive a letter from Paul. Located along the Lycus River about a hundred miles (161 km) east of Ephesus, it was known for its wool production.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:1 Paul, an apostle. Paul has likely never been to Colossae, but he feels a pastoral responsibility for this church. (See note on v. 7.) He wants to help them deal with the dangerous teaching threatening their health.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:2 Colossae. A city in Phrygia, in the Roman province of Asia. It was on the Lycus River just over 100 miles (161 km) east of Ephesus.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:3–8 Thanksgiving. Paul thanks God for the Colossians and their expressions of faith, hope, and love.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:3 God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. Paul emphasizes the lordship of Jesus Christ in this letter. He states that Jesus is not a separate God, yet he has a uniquely close relationship with the Father. He is the Son and works on behalf of God.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:4–5 faith . . . love . . . hope. Paul wrote often about these three Christian virtues (see Rom. 5:1–5; 1 Cor. 13:13; Gal. 5:5–6; 1 Thess. 1:3).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:6 in the whole world. The gospel has spread from Jerusalem into Syria, Asia Minor, Greece, Italy, and probably into Egypt, North Africa, and Persia as well.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:7 Paul did not start the church at Colossae. The people heard the gospel from Epaphras (a shortened form of "Epaphroditus"), a fellow Colossian (4:12). on your behalf. The ESV footnote indicates that some manuscripts read "on our behalf." If this is the original meaning, then Epaphras had been a faithful ambassador, representing Paul among the Colossians.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:9–14 Prayer. Paul reports how he regularly prays for the Colossians.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:9 Spiritual means given by the Holy Spirit.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:10 so as. The "wisdom and understanding" (v. 9) would then lead to changed lives, for it would enable these Christians to walk in a manner worthy of the Lord. "To walk" is a metaphor for conducting or behaving oneself (compare Ps. 1:1). Paul calls believers "to walk" in a way fully pleasing to the Lord Jesus Christ. Christians are completely justified from the moment of initial saving faith, but they can do things that either please or displease God every day. bearing fruit . . . and increasing. See Mark 4:1–9, 13–20.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:11 be strengthened with all power. God, not idols and demons, has "all power." for all endurance and patience with joy. God gives this power to help believers continue in the faith, resist temptation and deceitful teachers, and know the joy of the Lord.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:12 share in the inheritance. God's promise to Israel under the old covenant (see Gen. 13:14–17; Num. 26:52–56); Paul applies it to Gentiles under the new covenant. saints. "Holy ones" or "consecrated people."

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:13 He has delivered us. Just as God rescued his people from slavery in Egypt under the old covenant (Ex. 6:6; 14:30), he has now delivered them from the domain of darkness, that is, from Satan and the powers of evil (see Acts 26:18). the kingdom of his beloved Son. This is the same as the "kingdom of God" (or "kingdom of heaven") that Jesus spoke of (Matt. 3:2; Mark 1:15).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:14 redemption. Deliverance or release from captivity. Believers have been rescued from condemnation and have received forgiveness of their sins.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:15–20 Praise to Christ. In moving poetic language, Paul praises the lordship of Christ over creation and redemption. These verses may be part of an early Christian hymn.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:15 the image of the invisible God. Paul describes Christ in terms similar to the presentation of "wisdom" in Proverbs 8. firstborn of all creation. Paul does not claim that the Son was somehow created rather than existing eternally with the Father and the Holy Spirit. Paul has in mind the rights and privileges of a firstborn son, especially a king's son who would inherit a kingdom (compare Ps. 89:27).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:16 by him all things were created. Jesus cannot be the first thing created, since he himself created "all things." thrones or dominions or rulers or authorities. Paul uses Jewish terms for various rankings of angels. He probably refers to evil angels, since they play a significant part in this letter (2:8, 10, 15, 20).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:17 in him all things hold together. Christ continuously sustains his creation, preventing it from disintegrating (compare Heb. 1:3).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:18 he is the head of the body. This metaphor conveys Christ's leadership over the church (see 1 Cor. 12:27; Eph. 1:22–23; 5:25).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:19 For in him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell. The term "fullness" here and throughout the letter recalls its use in the OT, where God "filled" the temple with his presence. Jesus not only bears God's glory, but all that God is also dwells in him. He is fully God (see also 2:9).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:20 to reconcile to himself all things. As "Prince of Peace" (Isa. 9:6), Jesus will ultimately defeat all rebellion against God. For believers, this means reconciliation to God as his friends. For nonbelievers and the demonic powers, this means defeat by Christ, the conquering king (see 1 Cor. 15:24–28; Rev. 19:11–21; 20:7–10). The basis for Christ's reign of peace is the blood of his cross. The cross truly is the turning point in human and cosmic history.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:21–23 Reconciliation to God. Paul explains the meaning of reconciliation for the church.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:21–22 once . . . now. Paul presents a strong contrast between the Colossians' pre-Christian status and their favorable situation now as Christians. to present you holy and blameless. This is the same language the OT uses to describe the unblemished animals that priests brought for a sacrifice.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:23 if indeed you continue in the faith. The specific Greek phrase Paul uses here indicates that he fully expects the Colossian believers will continue in the faith. in all creation. To both Jews and Gentiles throughout the Greco-Roman world (compare v. 6).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:24–2:3 Paul's Labor for the Gospel. Paul describes his own work for the gospel generally, and then more specifically for the Colossians.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:24 Filling up what is lacking in Christ's afflictions does not mean there is any deficiency in Christ's atoning death and suffering on the cross (see Heb. 9:12, 24–26; 10:14). What was "lacking" in Christ's afflictions was the future suffering that Paul and others will experience for the sake of the gospel. (Compare Phil. 2:30, where Paul tells the Philippians that Epaphroditus risked his life "to complete what was lacking in your service to me.")

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:25 the stewardship from God. Paul views himself as a divinely chosen "steward" or "administrator." This word was used widely in the Roman world for the administrator of a large household or estate. Paul's responsibility was to make the word of God fully known.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:26–27 The mystery refers to God's unfolding plan for the world and for redemption through the Messiah (see 2:2; 4:3; Eph. 1:9; 3:9; 6:19). Key aspects of God's plan were hidden for ages and generations. They were a mystery that had to be revealed by God. Similar language occurs often in the book of Daniel. At the heart of the mystery is the amazing result of the new covenant, Christ in you, the hope of glory. God himself, in the person of Christ, will be directly and personally present in the lives of his people. His presence assures them of a future life with him when he returns.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 1:29 Paul is struggling with all his [Christ's] energy to help the Colossians grow and mature in Christ.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:1 for those at Laodicea. Laodicea was the nearest city to Colossae, only 9 miles (14.5 km) away (see note on Rev. 3:14–22). There was a close relationship between these churches.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:2 The false teachers probably claimed special knowledge of the mysteries of God's truth. Paul insists that Christ is God's mystery. All understanding is found in him.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:3 in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. Jesus is the ultimate keeper of divine wisdom and spiritual knowledge. Compare Prov. 2:3–6.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:4–23 The Dangerous Teaching at Colossae. Paul delivers a series of warnings about the teaching that threatens the Colossian church. In doing so, he also provides important teaching on the Christians' new identity in Christ. This will help them resist the false teachers' arguments and live in a way that pleases the Lord.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:4 that no one may delude you with plausible arguments. What the teacher(s) are saying sounds right, but it is still false.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:5 good order . . . firmness. The Colossians should be like troops ready for battle.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:6–7 you received Christ Jesus the Lord. Paul reminds the Colossians of the foundational teaching of Epaphras when they first became Christians. At the heart of this is the confession that Jesus Christ is Lord (1 Cor. 12:3).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:8 See to it that no one takes you captive. “Takes you captive” translates a Greek word commonly used of stealing a ship’s cargo. philosophy. The Greek for this word suggests the faction’s leaders called their teaching “the philosophy.” Paul is not condemning all traditional Greek philosophical schools (for example, Platonism, Stoicism, Aristotelianism). His remarks are focused on the particular teaching at Colossae. the elemental spirits of the world. Paul likely is referring to demonic spirits.

“In Christ”: A Central Theme in Colossians

1:14	in whom we have redemption
1:16	in him all things were created
1:19	in him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell
1:22	reconciled in his body of flesh
2:3	in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge
2:6	walk in him
2:7	rooted and built up in him
2:9	in him all the fullness of deity dwells bodily
2:10	you have been filled in him
2:11	you were circumcised in him
2:12	in him you were raised up
2:15	triumphing over them in him
3:20	pleasing in the Lord
4:7	fellow servant in the Lord
4:17	the ministry that you have received in the Lord

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:9 in him the whole fullness of deity dwells bodily. Jesus is God in the flesh (see 1:15–20).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:10 you have been filled in him. Believers share in Christ’s power and authority over every rule and authority through their union with him. Here is the letter’s main theme. The divine “fullness” is in Christ (v. 9), and believers are “filled in him.” They have everything they need in Christ. The term head is clearly used here with the sense of “authority over” (see note on 1 Cor. 11:3).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:11 In him also you were circumcised. Paul here uses circumcision to picture a spiritual (made without hands) action. He describes it as putting off the body of the flesh. Believers no longer live in the power and under the influence of the flesh (Gal. 5:24). They have been transferred to Christ’s kingdom and live through and in him, under his lordship (Col. 1:13).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:12–13 buried with him in baptism . . . also raised with him. . . . made alive together with him. Baptism represents an identification with Christ in his death (compare Rom. 6:4–6). It also symbolizes his resurrection (compare Eph. 2:6). Dying and rising with Christ symbolizes death to the power of sin and Satan as well as strength to live a new life (see Rom. 6:3–11).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:14 record of debt. Paul uses this legal term to describe each person’s debt to God because of sin. God himself has mercifully resolved this debt by nailing it to the cross, where Jesus paid the penalty. The image comes from the notices posted on a cross by the Roman authorities. These declared the crime for which the criminal was being executed (see John 19:19–22).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:15 He disarmed the rulers and authorities. On the cross, demonic powers were stripped of their power to accuse Christians before God. put them to open shame. This is the same term used in Matt. 1:19 to refer to Joseph’s unwillingness to expose Mary to public shame. The cross publicly reveals the failure of the demonic powers to defeat God’s plan of salvation through Christ (see 1 Cor. 2:6–8).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:16 food and drink . . . a festival or a new moon or a Sabbath. The false teacher(s) claimed that some Jewish ceremonies were essential for spiritual advancement. On “new moon,” see note on Num. 28:11–15.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:17 a shadow of the things to come. The old covenant ceremonies pointed to a future reality that was fulfilled in the Lord Jesus Christ (compare Heb. 10:1). Thus Christians are no longer under the Mosaic covenant (see Rom. 6:14–15; 2 Cor. 3:4–18; Gal. 3:15–4:7).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:18 Paul lists a variety of ways the false teachers had tried to disqualify the genuine believers in Colossae. asceticism. Paul probably had in mind fasting and perhaps the rules mentioned in v. 21. worship of angels. Asking angels for help and protection from evil spirits.

FACT

Worship of angels. Many Colossians greatly feared evil spirits. In order to control the spirits and to avoid affliction, they called on angels for help and protection (2:18). Paul reminds them of Christ's supremacy in dealing with demonic powers (1:13–14; 2:15)

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:19 not holding fast to the Head. The false teacher at Colossae has not maintained contact with Christ. Thus the teacher has become influenced by evil spirits (see v. 8). On the church as a body, see Rom. 12:5–8; 1 Corinthians 12; Eph. 4:4, 12–16.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:20 the elemental spirits. See note on v. 8.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:21 "Do not handle, Do not taste, Do not touch." Specific rules the teacher of the false philosophy insists the Colossians must obey. God does not give these rules; under the new covenant, the food a person eats is not important in his or her spiritual life (see Mark 7:18–19).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 2:23 severity to the body. The fasting and rules that were part of the behavior encouraged by "the philosophy." It may also have included forms of self-mutilation similar to what was practiced in some of the local cults.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:1–4 The Proper Focus: Christ and the Life Above. This section is a bridge to Paul's appeals to live in a way that pleases the Lord.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:1–2 raised with Christ. See 2:13–14. Christ is now seated at the right hand of God (Ps. 110:1; Eph. 1:20). He has a position of authority. He makes requests to the Father for believers.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:3 your life is hidden with Christ in God. Paul uses Isaiah and the Psalms to express the security of believers as they trust in Christ (Isa. 49:2; Ps. 27:5–6; 31:19–20).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:5–4:6 Instructions on Living the Christian Life. Christians have died and risen with Christ. They have the hope of a future life with him. Paul encourages the Colossians to continue eliminating sinful behaviors from their lives and continue increasing in Christian virtues.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:5 Put to death. Because believers have died with Christ (2:20; 3:3), they can overcome sinful practices (Rom. 6:11; 8:13). sexual immorality. Every kind of sexual activity outside of marriage. which is idolatry. Greed, sexual sin, and other vices can take God's place as a focus of devotion.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:6 the wrath of God is coming. The OT prophets spoke of the approaching day of the Lord as a time of wrath (e.g., Zeph. 1:14–15). God will hold everyone accountable for his or her actions.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:8 put them all away. Paul lists five more vices (see v. 5) that Christians need to renounce. These are all related to relationships among believers.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:9–10 seeing that you have put off the old self . . . and have put on the new self. The Greek grammar indicates that this is an event that has already taken place. A change of identity has already occurred in believers' lives. Now they must bring their behavior into line with their new identity (see also Rom. 6:6; Eph. 4:24). Being renewed indicates that the transformation of Christians is an ongoing process.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:11 Here there is not Greek and Jew. There are no distinctions of status or race among the new covenant people (see Gal. 3:28). Scythian. A people group living along the northern coast of the Black Sea. To the Greeks, the Scythians were violent, uneducated, uncivilized, and inferior. Jesus, who is all, and in all, binds all Christians together in equality.

FACT

The Scythians (3:11) lived about 500 miles (805 km) north of Colossae along the Black Sea coast. The Greeks thought of them as violent, uneducated, uncivilized people. In contrast, Paul states that Christ binds all people from all nations together in unity through his love. Racial and cultural prejudice has no place among Christians.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:12–17 Paul calls the Colossians to a holy lifestyle, consistent with their new identity.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:13 forgiving each other . . . as the Lord has forgiven you. See Matt. 6:14–15.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:14 Above all else, Christians are called on to love one another (see 1 Corinthians 13). Binds . . . together seems to suggest that love unites all the virtues.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:16 The word of Christ probably refers to the teaching about Christ as well as his own words. Both were part of the oral traditions passed on to early believers. Psalms and hymns and spiritual songs (see note on Eph. 5:19) is one way of teaching and admonishing. These were particularly important in the oral culture of Paul’s day.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:18–4:1 Paul gives special instructions for the members of a Christian household. He addresses wives and husbands, children and fathers, and slaves (or bondservants) and masters. It is important to note that he treats women, children, and bondservants as equal with the male members of the Christian household. See Eph. 5:22–6:9. On bondservants, see ESV Preface.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:18 Wives, submit to your husbands. It was typical in Roman households to tell wives to “obey.” Paul appeals to them to “submit,” based on his conviction that men have a God-given leadership role in the family (see Eph. 5:22–33). However, Paul is not simply telling wives to follow the cultural patterns of the day; he tells them to live as is fitting in the Lord. Seven times in Col. 3:18–4:1, Paul bases his instructions on “in the Lord” or an equivalent term. Everything must be evaluated in light of Christ and his teaching.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:19 do not be harsh with them. Violence, threats, and unkind words are not acceptable in a Christian home. Husbands are called to love their wives as Christ loved the church (Eph. 5:25).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:20 Paul’s words to children reflect the fifth commandment (Ex. 20:12).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:21 do not provoke your children. A father's negative emotions and actions can cause a child to be discouraged (see Eph. 6:4).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 3:22–25 Bondservants, obey in everything those who are your earthly masters. God has ordered family relationships from creation, and Paul's instructions on marriage represent the perfect will of God. On the other hand, the kind of servitude practiced in the first century was seldom in keeping with God's will. The Scriptures address the situation without supporting it (see notes on 1 Cor. 7:21; Eph. 6:5; 1 Tim. 1:10). Both Testaments condemn the evil of human trafficking. There were many bondservants at Colossae. Paul treats them with dignity and appeals to them to honor Christ in their hearts, work, and behavior. Philemon (see the book of Philemon) was a wealthy Colossian who benefited from the labors of his bondservant Onesimus. The principles of Col. 3:22–4:1 apply to employers and employees today.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:1 treat your bondservants justly and fairly. Paul does not approve of the Roman system of servitude. Instead, he provides instructions to believing masters and servants regarding their relationship to each other in the Lord (see note on Eph. 6:5). On bondservants, see ESV Preface.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:3–4 that God may open to us a door for the word. Paul asks the Colossians to pray that he will have opportunities to share the good news of Jesus Christ (Eph. 6:18–20; 2 Thess. 3:1). to declare the mystery. See note on Col. 1:26–27.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:5–6 seasoned with salt. Compare Matt. 5:13. The metaphor suggests giving a powerful and attractive testimony to non-Christians.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:7–17 Personal Greetings and Instructions. After praising the "letter carriers," Paul sends greetings from the ministry associates who are with him during his imprisonment.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:7–8 Tychicus was a native of Asia Minor. He was a member of Paul's ministry team (Acts 20:4). He will carry this letter, as well as Ephesians and Philemon (see Eph. 6:21–22), and bring them news about Paul.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:9 Onesimus. This was Philemon's converted bondservant (see notes on Philemon).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:10–11 Mark the cousin of Barnabas. This is the same person as "John Mark." He went with Paul on his first missionary journey, but suddenly left (Acts 13:13). Paul and Barnabas had a disagreement about taking him again (Acts 15:39). Paul's view of Mark has changed, probably because Mark has changed. Now Mark ministers with Paul again. Jesus who is called Justus is otherwise unknown. men of the circumcision. Jewish Christians.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:13 in Laodicea and in Hierapolis. Towns near Colossae in the Lycus Valley (on Laodicea, see 2:1). Both churches had close relationships with the church at Colossae.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:14 Luke the beloved physician is the same Luke who wrote Luke and Acts (see 2 Tim. 4:11; Philem. 24). He went with Paul on some of his journeys. He was apparently with Paul during his imprisonments in Caesarea and Rome. Since Luke is not identified among "the only men of the circumcision" (Col. 4:9–11), he was probably a Gentile. Demas later deserted Paul (2 Tim. 4:10).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:15 Nympha and the church in her house. On house churches, see note on 1 Cor. 16:19.

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:16 when this letter has been read among you. Public reading in the churches points to the authority of Paul's letters. It also assumes they were written to be understood by ordinary believers. The letter from Laodicea probably refers to a letter Paul wrote to Laodicea that is now lost.

FACT

Paul’s letter to Laodicea was probably lost, though some think it could be the same letter as Ephesians. Regardless, Paul expected that his letter to the Colossians would also be read aloud to the Laodiceans (4:15–16). Laodicea and Colossae were about 9 miles (14.5 km) apart (see also Rev. 1:11; 3:14).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:17 Archippus may have been the son of Philemon and Apphia (see Philem. 2).

COLOSSIANS—NOTE ON 4:18 Closing. Paul ends his letter by asking the Colossian Christians to pray for him. I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand. Timothy has probably been Paul’s secretary to this point (see 1:1). Paul now signs the letter personally (compare 1 Cor. 16:21; 2 Thess. 3:17).

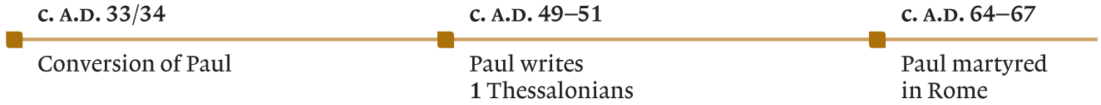
Introduction to 1 Thessalonians

Introduction to 1 Thessalonians

Timeline



Author, Date, and Recipients

Paul wrote this letter to the church in Thessalonica. He probably wrote in A.D. 49–51 from Corinth during his second missionary journey (Acts 18:1–18).

Theme

The main theme is Jesus' second coming. When he returns, the dead who have believed in Christ will rise and will join the living to meet the Lord in the air (4:15–17). Unbelievers will experience God's wrath, while believers will inherit salvation (1:10; 5:2–4, 9–10). In preparation for that great day, Christians are called to be holy and blameless (3:11–4:8; 5:23). God, who is faithful, will produce in them the holiness he requires (5:24).

Purpose

Paul has received a report from Timothy about the Thessalonian church. Paul writes to them to restore their hope, which has been tested by unexpected deaths in the church. He reassures them that both the dead and the living believers will be safe at the second coming (4:13–5:11). In addition, Paul wants (1) to stress the authenticity of himself, Silas, and Timothy as preachers of the gospel (1:5; 2:1–12; 2:17–3:10); (2) to teach them that persecution is normal for Christians (3:3–4); and (3) to challenge them to take responsibility for earning their own living (4:9–12).

Key Themes

1. God’s wrath comes on those who reject the gospel (2:16; 5:3).
2. Jesus’ death and resurrection are the basis for the Christian’s hope (4:14; 5:10).
3. Christians are destined not for wrath but for salvation when Christ returns (1:10; 5:4, 9).
4. Christians who die will participate fully in the second coming (4:14–17; 5:10).
5. Those who respond to the gospel have been elected and called by God. They continue to be called by God throughout their lives (1:4; 2:12; 4:7; 5:9, 24).
6. Christians should live lives of complete holiness (3:13; 4:3–8; 5:23).
7. Christians must never ignore their responsibility to work (4:9–12; 5:14).
8. The truth of the gospel is confirmed by the integrity of its preachers (1:5; 2:1–12).
9. Joy, especially in suffering, is a mark of the Christian (1:6; 5:16).
10. Christians experience the realities of the new covenant (4:8–9).
11. Faith, hope, and love are essential traits of the Christian (1:2–3; 5:8).

The Setting of 1 Thessalonians

c. A.D. 49–51

Paul wrote 1 Thessalonians from Corinth near the end of his second missionary journey. Paul and his companions had established the church in Thessalonica but were forced to leave by opponents of the gospel. Later, Paul sent Timothy back to Thessalonica to check on the church there, and Timothy’s report led Paul to write this letter. Thessalonica enjoyed privileged status as the capital of Macedonia and was located on a natural harbor along the busy east-west Egnatian Way.

The Global Message of 1 Thessalonians

Jesus’ work delivers believers from the coming day of the Lord, when God’s wrath will be revealed. Abiding in such hope strengthens God’s people to endure whatever adversity they face. Looking back at Christ’s work on the cross and looking forward to his second coming, believers around the world live patiently in the present, in love and holiness. This is the global message of 1 Thessalonians.

First Thessalonians and Redemptive History

Throughout Paul’s first letter to the Thessalonian church he speaks of the redemptive work of Christ. Jesus “delivers us from the wrath to come” (1 Thess. 1:10). He “died for us” to bring us back to God (5:10). In 1 Thessalonians as elsewhere, Paul views Christ’s death and resurrection as the climax of all human history.

Jesus’ coming two thousand years ago will not be his only coming, however. His life, death, and resurrection launched the new age longed for by the Old Testament prophets (see Jer. 31:31–34). And someday, his second coming will complete his redemptive and restorative work. It is this second coming that is especially emphasized in 1 Thessalonians. It is mentioned in every chapter of the letter (1 Thess. 1:10; 2:19–20; 3:13; 4:13–18; 5:1–11, 23–24).

The letter of 1 Thessalonians gives us a grand view of redemptive history, stretching from the Old Testament, through the first coming of Christ, to his second coming and the end of world history as we know it—a time when sin, sickness, and death will be no more.

Universal Themes in 1 Thessalonians

Love for others. Paul mentions the Thessalonians’ faith, hope, and love at both the beginning and the end of his letter to them (1 Thess. 1:3; 5:13), but throughout the letter his main focus is on love (3:6, 12; 4:9). Paul stresses that love is the fundamental mark of Christian living. He reminds the Thessalonian believers that he has always related to them with the affection of a mother and the tender exhortation of a father (2:6–12). What he says in the letter about Christ's second coming ought not to overshadow this crucial call to love. It would indeed be tragic and ironic for believers to debate the precise details of Christ's second coming in a loveless way. The church around the world today can never outgrow the exhortation to love as we have been loved (Eph. 5:2). This is the key mark of Christ's disciples (1 John 4:7–8).

Christ's second coming. At numerous points throughout 1 Thessalonians Paul returns to the theme of the second coming of Christ, or "the day of the Lord" (1 Thess. 5:2; see also 1:10; 2:19–20; 3:13; 4:13–18; 5:2–7, 23–24). The phrase "the day of the Lord" is common in the Old Testament prophets. It refers to the day when God will punish his enemies and vindicate his people (e.g., Isa. 13:3–16; 27:2–13; Joel 1:13–15; 2:31–32; Mal. 4:5). Hope in this coming day is a source of encouragement to Christians around the world facing various forms of adversity and opposition. When we encounter problems such as self-serving landlords, fraudulent business practices, corrupt political systems, and inter-ethnic strife, we can still have hope and we can forgive those who oppress us, knowing that one day all will be put right. Justice will prevail.

Holiness. Paul not only describes the hope of the coming day of the Lord. He also exhorts the Thessalonians to conduct themselves in godly ways in light of this hope. Christians are "children of light, children of the day" (1 Thess. 5:5)—they have been redeemed from their sin and have been given new life in God's dawning kingdom. If this is true, Paul reasons, then they must live lives of holiness (5:1–11), including sexual holiness (4:1–8). Their lives should exhibit the faith, love, and hope they have because of Christ (1:3; 5:8).

The Global Message of 1 Thessalonians for Today

Paul shows deep affection and concern in 1 Thessalonians. He was not an aloof or detached theologian. As a missionary and church planter engaged at a deep heart-level with the people he had led to Christ, he wanted to see the message of salvation brought into those corners of the world where Jesus was not yet known (Rom. 15:20; 1 Cor. 3:10). As the global church receives and reflects on Paul's first letter to the Thessalonians, seeking to carry forward the gospel to the world today, two great themes rise to the surface: our central calling in the present and our glorious hope for the future.

Our present calling: love. Our main calling as Christians in this present life is love. Paul loved the men and women who came to know and trust Christ. Paul then called these believers to love one another. It is by this kind of love, the Bible tells us, that the unbelieving nations of the world will sit up and take notice of the church. “By this all people will know that you are my disciples,” said Jesus—“if you have love for one another” (John 13:35). Not eloquent preaching, not superior intellect, not clever arguments, not human applause: love. As the church today follows Paul’s call to “increase and abound in love for one another” (1 Thess. 3:12), in light of the gospel and through the power of the Spirit, the Christian church will be noticed by a watching world. Love for one another, beyond anything else, is our great and joyous call.

Our glorious hope: Christ’s return. The great hope for the future is Christ’s second coming. Even when we are afflicted with all kinds of difficulties, we know we will see Jesus return to earth in power and glory (Rev. 19:11–16). This is a comfort that overcomes any adversity of this fallen world. This is true, not because the adversity we face is trivial. On the contrary, the world today faces some of the greatest challenges of its history: shortage of clean water, malnourishment, terrorism and racism, ethnic strife, economic hardship, poor health care. And because of their loyalty to Christ, believers in many nations face even greater difficulties. More believers worldwide face persecution of various kinds today than at any other time in history. Yet while such challenges are not trivial but severe, the sure hope of Christ’s return goes deeper still.

The benediction in 1 Thessalonians 3 brings together both the present call to love and the glorious hope of the future:

> Now may our God and Father himself, and our Lord Jesus, direct our way to you, and may the Lord make you increase and abound in love for one another and for all, as we do for you, so that he may establish your hearts blameless in holiness before our God and Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all his saints. (1 Thess. 3:11–13)

Greeting

1 THESSALONIANS 1 [†]Paul, [a]Silvanus, and Timothy,

To the church of the [b]Thessalonians in God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:

[c]Grace to you and peace.

The Thessalonians' Faith and Example

[2][†][d]We give thanks to God always for all of you, constantly [1] [e]mentioning you in our prayers, [3][†]remembering before [f]our God and Father [g]your work of faith and labor of [h]love and [i]steadfastness of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ. [4][†]For we know, [j]brothers [2] loved by God, [k]that he has chosen you, [5][†]because [l]our gospel came to you not only in word, but also in power and [m]in the Holy Spirit and with full [n]conviction. You know [o]what kind of men we proved to be among you for your sake. [6][†]And [p]you became imitators of us [q]and of the Lord, for [r]you received the word in much affliction, [s]with the [t]joy of the Holy Spirit, [7]so that you became an example to all the believers in Macedonia and in Achaia. [8]For not only has the word of the Lord [u]sounded forth from you in Macedonia and Achaia, but your faith in God has gone forth [v]everywhere, so that we need not say anything. [9][†]For they themselves report concerning us the kind of [w]reception we had among you, and how [x]you turned to God [y]from idols to serve the living and [z]true God, [10]and [a]to wait for his Son [b]from heaven, [c]whom he raised from the dead, Jesus [d]who delivers us from [e]the wrath to come.

Paul's Ministry to the Thessalonians

1 THESSALONIANS 2 [†]For you yourselves know, brothers, [1] that our [f]coming to you [g]was not in vain. [2][†]But though we had already suffered and been shamefully treated [h]at Philippi, as you know, [i]we had boldness in our God [j]to declare to you the gospel of God in the midst of much [k]conflict. [3][†]For [l]our appeal does not spring from [m]error or [n]impurity or [o] any attempt to deceive, 4but just as we have been approved by God [p] to be entrusted with the gospel, so we speak, not [q] to please man, but to please God [r] who tests our hearts. 5[†] [s] For we never came with words of flattery, [2] as you know, nor with a pretext for greed— [t] God is witness. 6[†] [u] Nor did we seek glory from people, whether from you or from others, [v] though we could have made [w] demands as [x] apostles of Christ. 7[†]But we were [y] gentle [3] among you, [z] like a nursing mother taking care of her own children. 8So, being affectionately desirous of you, we were ready to share with you not only the gospel of God [a] but also our own selves, because you had become very dear to us.

9[†]For you remember, brothers, [b] our labor and toil: we [c] worked night and day, that we might not be a burden to any of you, while we proclaimed to you the gospel of God. 10[†]You are witnesses, and [d] God also, [e] how holy and righteous and blameless was our conduct toward you believers. 11For you know how, [f] like a father with his children, 12we exhorted each one of you and encouraged you and [g] charged [h] you to walk in a manner worthy of God, [i] who calls you into his own kingdom and glory.

13[†]And [j] we also thank God constantly [4] for this, that when you received [k] the word of God, which you heard from us, you accepted it [l] not as the word of men [5] but as what it really is, the word of God, [m] which is at work in you believers. 14[†]For you, brothers, [n] became imitators of [o] the churches of God in Christ Jesus that are in Judea. For [p] you suffered the same things from your own countrymen [q] as they did from the Jews, [6] 15[†] [r] who killed both the Lord Jesus and [s] the prophets, and drove us out, and displease God and [t] oppose all mankind 16[†] [u] by hindering us from speaking to the Gentiles that they might be saved—so as always [v] to fill up the measure of their sins. But [w] wrath has come upon them at last! [7]

Paul’s Longing to See Them Again

17[†]But since we were torn away from you, brothers, for a short time, [x] in person not in heart, we endeavored the more eagerly and with great desire [y] to see you face to face, 18[†]because we wanted to come to you—I, Paul, again and again—but Satan [z] hindered us. 19[†]For what is our hope or [a] joy or crown of boasting [b] before our Lord Jesus at his [c] coming? Is it not you? [20]For you are our glory and joy.

1 THESSALONIANS 3 [†]Therefore when we could bear it no longer, we were willing [d] to be left behind at Athens alone, [2][†]and we [e] sent Timothy, [f] our brother and God’s coworker [1] in the gospel of Christ, to establish and exhort you in your faith, [3][†]that no one be moved by these afflictions. For you yourselves know that [g] we are destined for this. [4]For when we were with you, we kept telling you beforehand that we were to suffer affliction, [h] just as it has come to pass, and just as you know. [5][†]For this reason, [i] when I could bear it no longer, [i] I sent to learn about your faith, [j] for fear that somehow [k] the tempter had tempted you and [l] our labor would be in vain.

Timothy’s Encouraging Report

[6][†]But [m] now that Timothy has come to us from you, and has brought us the good news of [n] your faith and love and reported [o] that you always remember us kindly and [p] long to see us, as we long to see you— [7]for this reason, brothers, [2] in all our distress and affliction [q] we have been comforted about you through your faith. [8]For now we live, if you [r] are standing fast in the Lord. [9][†]For [s] what thanksgiving can we return to God for you, for all the joy that we feel for your sake before our God, [10]as we pray most earnestly [t] night and day [u] that we may see you face to face and [v] supply what is lacking in your faith?

[11]Now may [w] our God and Father himself, and our Lord Jesus, [x] direct our way to you, [12]and may the Lord [y] make you increase and abound in love [z] for one another and for all, as we do for you, [13][†]so that he may [a] establish your hearts blameless in holiness before [w] our God and Father, at [b] the coming of our Lord Jesus [c] with all his saints.

A Life Pleasing to God

1 THESSALONIANS 4 [†]Finally, then, brothers, [1] we ask and urge you in the Lord Jesus, that as you [d] received from us [e] how you ought to walk and [f] to please God, just as you are doing, that you [g] do so more and more. [2][†]For [h] you know what instructions we gave you through the Lord Jesus. 3[†]For this is the will of God, [i] your sanctification: [2] [j] that you abstain from sexual immorality; 4[†]that each one of you know how to control his own [k] body [3] in holiness and [l] honor, 5[†]not in [m] the passion of lust [n] like the Gentiles [o] who do not know God; 6[†]that no one transgress and [p] wrong his brother in this matter, because the Lord is [q] an avenger in all these things, as we told you beforehand and solemnly warned you. 7For [r] God has not called us for [s] impurity, but in holiness. 8[†]Therefore [t] whoever disregards this, disregards not man but God, [u] who gives his Holy Spirit to you.

9[†]Now concerning [v] brotherly love [w] you have no need for anyone to write to you, for you yourselves have been [x] taught by God [y] to love one another, 10for that indeed is what [z] you are doing to all the brothers throughout Macedonia. But we urge you, brothers, to [a] do this more and more, 11[†]and to aspire [b] to live quietly, and [c] to mind your own affairs, and [d] to work with your hands, as we instructed you, 12[†]so that you may [e] walk properly before [f] outsiders and be dependent on no one.

The Coming of the Lord

13[†]But we do not want you to be uninformed, brothers, about those who are asleep, [g] that you may not grieve as others do [h] who have no hope. 14[†]For [i] since we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so, through Jesus, God will bring with him [j] those who have fallen asleep. 15[†]For this we declare to you [k] by a word from the Lord, [4] that [l] we who are alive, who are left until [m] the coming of the Lord, will not precede those who have fallen asleep. 16[†]For [n] the Lord himself will descend [o] from heaven [p] with a cry of command, with the voice of [q] an archangel, and [r] with the sound of the trumpet of God. And [s] the dead in Christ will rise first. 17Then we who are alive, who are left, will be [t] caught up together with them [u] in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so [v] we will always be with the Lord. 18[†]Therefore encourage one another with these words.

The Day of the Lord

1 THESSALONIANS 5 [†]Now concerning [w]the times and the seasons, brothers, [1] [x]you have no need to have anything written to you. [2][†]For you yourselves are fully aware that [y]the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night. [3]While people are saying, “There is peace and security,” then [z]sudden destruction will come upon them [a]as labor pains come upon a pregnant woman, and they will not escape. [4][†]But you [b]are not in darkness, brothers, for that day to surprise you like a thief. [5][†]For you are all [c]children [2] of light, children of the day. We are not of the night or of the darkness. [6][†]So then [d]let us not sleep, as others do, but let us [e]keep awake and [f]be sober. [7]For those who sleep, sleep at night, and those who get drunk, [g]are drunk at night. [8][†]But since we belong to the day, let us be sober, [h]having put on the breastplate of [i]faith and love, and for a helmet the hope of salvation. [9][†]For God has not destined us for [j]wrath, but [k]to obtain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, [10][†] [l]who died for us so that whether we are awake or asleep we might live with him. [11]Therefore encourage one another and build one another up, just as you are doing.

Final Instructions and Benediction

[12][†]We ask you, brothers, [m]to respect those who labor among you and [n]are over you in the Lord and admonish you, [13]and to esteem them very highly in love because of their work. [o]Be at peace among yourselves. [14][†]And we urge you, brothers, admonish [p]the idle, [3] [q]encourage the fainthearted, [r]help the weak, [s]be patient with them all. [15]See that [t]no one repays anyone evil for evil, but always [u]seek to do good to one another and to everyone. [16][†] [v]Rejoice always, [17][†] [w]pray without ceasing, [18][†] [x]give thanks in all circumstances; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you. [19][†] [y]Do not quench the Spirit. [20][†]Do not despise [z]prophecies, [21]but [a]test everything; hold fast what is good. [22]Abstain from every form of evil.

[23][†]Now may [b]the God of peace himself [c]sanctify you completely, and may your [d]whole [e]spirit and soul and body be kept blameless at [f]the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. [24] [g]He who calls you is faithful; [h]he will surely do it.

25 [i] Brothers, pray for us.
26[†] [j] Greet all the brothers with a holy kiss.
27[†]I put you under oath before the Lord to have [k] this letter read to all the brothers.
28 [l] The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

Study Notes for 1 Thessalonians

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:1 Opening. Silvanus and Timothy worked with Paul during his second missionary journey. Silvanus, or Silas, was a Judean Christian (Acts 15:22) who joined Paul after he separated from Barnabas (Acts 15:39–40). Timothy, from Lystra in south Galatia, was a son of a Jewish mother and Greek father. He became partners with Paul when Paul passed through his hometown early on his second missionary journey (see Acts 16:1–4). Timothy has returned from a visit to the Thessalonian church (1 Thess. 3:6). His report is Paul's major source of information as he writes. While Silas and Timothy are included as co-senders, Paul was clearly the main author (see 2:18; 3:5; 5:27). Grace . . . and peace. See note on Rom. 1:7.

FACT

Paul began each of his letters with some variation of the phrase Grace and peace (see 1:1). Peter began his letters in the same way, and John began his second letter that way as well.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:2–3:13 Thanksgiving and Encouragement. It is typical for Paul to include a word of thanksgiving near the beginning of his letters (1:2–3). He goes on to offer encouragement (1:4–2:16) and to seek to clear up any possible misunderstanding resulting from his non-arrival at Thessalonica (2:17–3:13).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:3 faith . . . love . . . hope. A common Pauline pattern (see 5:8; Rom. 5:2–5; 1 Cor. 13:13; Gal. 5:5–6; Eph. 4:2–5). The prominent final position here belongs to hope. This seems fitting in a letter so concerned with the end times (1 Thess. 1:10; 2:12, 19–20; 3:13; 4:13–18; 5:1–11, 23–24).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:4 brothers loved by God. God's love is the ultimate reason for their election (Eph. 1:4–5; compare Rom. 1:7). Chosen (literally, "elected") refers to God's sovereign act of appointing people for eternal life (see notes on Eph. 1:4; 1:5; 1:11). Because of his experience of fellowship with them, Paul is confident the Thessalonians are among the chosen (see 1 Thess. 1:5–10 and note). Therefore he can reassure them that they are forever secure.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:5–10 because. Paul bases his confidence that the Thessalonians are elect on two things: the authenticity and authority of those preaching the gospel to them (v. 5) and the nature of their response to the gospel (vv. 6–10).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:6 for you received the word in much affliction. See Acts 17:5–9; 1 Thess. 2:14. When people take a stand of faith in God, they should expect to encounter difficulties as a result (see Rom. 8:17–18; 1 Pet. 4:12–14).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:9–10 wait for his Son. The first of many references to the second coming in this letter (see 2:12, 19–20; 3:13; 4:13–18; 5:1–11, 23–24). whom he raised from the dead. See 4:13–18. delivers us from the wrath to come. See 5:1–11.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:1–12 Paul expands on what he said in summary form in 1:5: while they were in Thessalonica, he and his fellow missionaries displayed all the traits of authentic ministers of the gospel. In 2:17–3:10, he will explain why he then had to be absent from them.

FACT

Thessalonica was the proud capital of the Roman province of Macedonia, with a population of more than 100,000. It was a center of education as well as commerce.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:2 shamefully treated at Philippi. See Acts 16:19–39. boldness. Despite experiencing fierce persecution in Philippi, Paul did not shrink from proclaiming the gospel in Thessalonica, even when it led to further suffering.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:3–4 The missionaries did not have a faulty message, impure motives, or questionable methods. They preached the gospel as those approved by God and as those committed to speaking to please God.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:5 pretext for greed. Paul did not minister for financial gain. See v. 9; 2 Thess. 3:8.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:6 made demands as apostles of Christ. As apostles, they had unique authority to request support (see Rom. 15:24; 1 Cor. 9:3–14).

The Second Coming in 1 Thessalonians

1:3	“hope in our Lord Jesus Christ”
1:10	“to wait for his Son from heaven”
2:19	“before our Lord Jesus at his coming”
3:13	“at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all his saints”
4:15	“the coming of the Lord”
4:16	“the Lord himself will descend from heaven”
5:2	“the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night”
5:3	“as labor pains come upon a pregnant woman”
5:23	“at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ”

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:7–8 gentle. Acting in a humble way toward the converts. like a nursing mother. Loving and selfless in their devotion to the converts.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:9 Paul’s love was shown by his long hours of manual labor. He worked hard to pay his own expenses rather than depend on the Thessalonian believers for support.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:10–12 kingdom and glory. At Jesus’ second coming, Christians will enjoy the full benefits of God’s kingdom.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:13 not as the word of men but as . . . the word of God. Paul claims divine authority for his words as an apostle.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:14 The Judean churches were the mother churches of all those established by Paul. They established a standard by which all other churches might measure themselves. Like them, the Thessalonian Christians suffered persecution for their faith. your own countrymen. Jewish opponents of the gospel had instigated the difficulties that the Thessalonians had with their Gentile neighbors (Acts 17:5–10).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:15 drove us out. See Acts 17:5–10. oppose all mankind. Everyone needs to hear the gospel of salvation. To oppose the gospel is therefore to "oppose all mankind."

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:16 wrath has come upon them at last. Paul may mean (1) the Judean famine in A.D. 44–47, (2) the riot and massacre in Jerusalem in 48–49, (3) the expulsion of Jews from Rome in 49; or, most likely, (4) an unspecified future event that is certain or has already begun.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:17–3:10 Just as 2:1–12 is a defense of Paul and his fellow missionaries during their work in Thessalonica, these verses are a defense of their later absence.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:17 The missionaries left Thessalonica because of persecution. for a short time. Timothy's recent visit ended the brief absence. in person not in heart. Physical absence did not reflect a lack of concern for the Thessalonians. we endeavored . . . to see you. The missionaries had tried to get back to Thessalonica.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:18 I, Paul. Paul feels he must explain the absence. Satan hindered us. How Satan did this is unknown.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:19–20 Presenting his converts to Jesus at the second coming is part of Paul's Christian hope. crown. Crowns or wreaths were given to winning athletes.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:1 Paul sent Timothy because he could no longer endure not knowing how the Thessalonians were doing. Sending Timothy was a sacrifice for Paul. It shows deep pastoral love, since Paul was left behind at Athens alone (see note on Acts 17:15).

FACT

Paul mentions Jesus’ return in every chapter of this short letter. In 4:13–18, he tells the Thessalonians what will happen to Christians who already have died. When Christ returns, they will see their loved ones again, and they will all be with the Lord forever (see 4:15–17).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:2 God’s coworker. Paul may be highlighting Timothy’s credentials to show that he was a worthy substitute, since Paul could not come himself.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:3–4 Paul sent Timothy to strengthen the persecuted Thessalonians (see 2 Thess. 1:5–7). we are destined for this. Christians should expect to suffer for their faith (see Rom. 8:17–18; 2 Tim. 3:12; also Mark 10:30; 1 Pet. 4:12–13).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:5 tempter. Satan tempted Jesus (Matt. 4:1–11) and he tempts Christians (1 Cor. 7:5). our labor would be in vain. If Satan had succeeded in getting the Thessalonians to abandon their faith, Paul’s mission work would have been a failure.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:6 When Timothy returned from Thessalonica, Paul wrote to the Thessalonians.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:9–10 what is lacking in your faith. The missionaries had been unable to complete their usual instruction in the fundamentals of the faith.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:13 Jesus will someday return with all his saints (or “holy ones”—angels, Christians, or, most likely, both; compare Zech. 14:5). On the second coming of Christ, see 1 Thess. 5:1–11; 1 Pet. 4:7; 2 Pet. 3:2–18.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:1–5:28 Instruction and Exhortation. Paul gives instructions on pleasing God (4:1–12), the second coming (4:13–5:11), community conduct (5:12–22), and prayer and assurance (5:23–28).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:2 instructions. Originally a military word, it usually conveys authoritative commands.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:3 that you abstain from sexual immorality. For former pagans, the lure of sexual sins was strong (see 1 Corinthians 5–6). Paul forbids any sexual activity outside of heterosexual marriage (see Eph. 5:3; 1 Pet. 1:15–22).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:4 control his own body. The Greek could be translated "take a wife for himself" (see ESV footnote). However, in view of vv. 4–5 and 1 Corinthians 7, sexual self-control is more likely the intended meaning.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:5 in the passion of lust like the Gentiles. See Rom. 1:24–27.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:6 wrong. Taking advantage of a fellow Christian through sexual sin. the Lord is an avenger. Those who ignore the Christian sexual ethic will face Jesus' wrath.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:8 Therefore. In view of v. 7, to reject Paul's teaching on sex is to reject God, the source of Paul's instruction. who gives his Holy Spirit to you. In the OT (e.g., Ezek. 36:26–27), God promised a new covenant in which the Holy Spirit would write the law on people's hearts and empower them to obey.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:9 taught by God to love one another. See Jer. 31:33–34. By love, Christians fulfill the law (Rom. 13:8–10; compare Lev. 19:18; John 13:34).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:11 live quietly. Live peacefully with others (see 2 Thess. 3:11–12) instead of interfering in others' affairs. work with your hands. Earn their own living instead of being supported by wealthier Christians.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:12 walk properly before outsiders. For some Christians to be shamelessly exploiting the charity of wealthier Christians would have brought disgrace on the gospel they claimed to believe.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:13–18 Paul answers the Thessalonians' questions about Christians who die before Jesus returns.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:13 we do not want you to be uninformed. The Thessalonians are unaware of the things Paul will explain in vv. 14–17 (see note on 3:9–10). those who are asleep. Those who have died. grieve as others do who have no hope. Grieving is not wrong (see Acts 8:2), but it is wrong for Christians to exhibit hopelessness in their grief.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:14 rose again. Christ's resurrection is the center of God's plan for history. It is the believer's basis for hope in the future resurrection of the body (1 Cor. 15:42–57). through Jesus, God will bring. Jesus will "bring" deceased Christians with him at his return. those who have fallen asleep. The souls of those who have been in heaven with Christ up to that point.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:15b–17 We who are alive does not mean Paul believed that he would be alive at the second coming. It means all Christians should be prepared for Christ to return during their lifetime. who are left. Still alive. will not precede those who have fallen asleep. It is unclear whether the Thessalonians thought the dead would rise only after the second coming or whether they thought the dead had no hope for salvation at all.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:15 word from the Lord. Probably something the Lord revealed personally to Paul.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:16–17 cry of command . . . voice of an archangel . . . trumpet of God. The three noises summon the dead. The only "archangel" identified in the Bible is Michael (Jude 9). Trumpets in the OT proclaimed the Lord's presence (Ex. 19:16; Ps. 47:5). In Jewish tradition, the "trumpet" was associated with battle, the day of the Lord, and the resurrection (see 1 Cor. 15:52). first. Then. Dead Christians will rise from their graves, then the living and the dead together are caught up ("to grab or seize suddenly, to take away") from the earth into the air to meet Christ. together with. The dead Christians and those still alive join Christ at the same time. clouds. Probably the clouds of glory that surround the presence of God (see Ex. 33:9–10; 1 Kings 8:10–11; Ps. 97:2; Matt. 17:5; Mark 13:26). to meet. The Greek term often describes the reception given by the inhabitants of a city for an important visitor. They celebrated their honored guest's arrival, then led him into the city (see Matt. 25:6; Acts 28:15).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 4:18 Understanding about the Lord's return should bring comfort and encouragement, not fear and division. These words refers to vv. 13–17.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:1 Now concerning. Paul may be responding to a question the Thessalonians sent by Timothy. the times and the seasons. That is, when the day of the Lord will occur (compare Acts 1:7).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:2–3 The phrase day of the Lord is common in the OT Prophets (see note on Amos 5:18–20). It refers to the great and terrible day when Yahweh will punish the disobedient and save the faithful. In Paul's letters it is connected with the second coming. like a thief in the night. Unexpected and unwelcome by those not ready for it (see Matt. 24:43–44). people. That is, unbelievers. peace and security. False promises of avoiding God's wrath. labor pains. A metaphor for judgment and destruction on the day of the Lord. Compare Isa. 13:8; Jer. 6:24.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:4 But you. Christians will not face destruction on judgment day.

FACT

The Romans promised peace and security to the citizens of their empire. They promoted this message on coins and statues. But Paul warns that, regardless of how secure people may feel, God's day of judgment will come for those who have rejected him (5:3; see Jer. 8:11).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:5 children of light. Those who belong to God and receive his salvation (Luke 16:8; John 12:36; Col. 1:13).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:6 So then. Paul gives general instructions based on the reassurances in v. 5. sleep. Living without considering the coming day of judgment.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:8 breastplate . . . helmet. Paul echoes Isa. 59:17, where the Lord is a warrior wearing armor (see Eph. 6:10–20). faith and love . . . hope. Essential Christian traits (see 1 Cor. 13:13; 1 Thess. 1:3).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:9 For connects this verse with either vv. 6–8 in general or with the specific instruction in v. 8 to put on the helmet of hope.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:10 awake or asleep. Alive or dead (4:13–18).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:12–13 respect those who labor . . . admonish you. The young Thessalonian church was not appreciating and respecting its leaders enough. are over you. The elders in the church (see notes on Acts 14:23; Titus 1:5). Be at peace among yourselves may suggest there were tensions in the community.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:14 idle. Some Thessalonians were ignoring their responsibility to work. See 4:9–12; also 2 Thess. 3:6–15. fainthearted. Due to persecution (1 Thess. 3:3–4) or the unexpected deaths (4:13–5:11). weak. Those with weak consciences (see 1 Corinthians 8–9), those upset by the ongoing persecution, or those anxious about the day of the Lord (1 Thess. 5:1–11).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:16 Rejoice always. Joy is a basic mark of the Christian (Rom. 14:17) and a fruit of the Spirit (Gal. 5:22).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:17 Pray without ceasing suggests continual personal fellowship with God.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:18 give thanks. Christians are to be marked by thanksgiving (Eph. 5:4, 20; Col. 2:7; 3:15, 17; 4:2). This probably refers to all of 1 Thess. 5:16–18.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:19 Do not quench the Spirit. The next verse clarifies how the Thessalonians were putting out the Holy Spirit's fire.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:20–21 Do not despise prophecies. Believers are to be open to learning God's will through fellow Christians exercising the gift of prophecy (see note on 1 Cor. 14:22–25). test everything. To distinguish the true from the false. True prophecy agrees with Scripture and helps the church. See 1 Cor. 14:29–33 and the note on 1 Cor. 12:10. what is good. Most likely prophecies that pass the test.

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:23–28 God of peace. God initiated the reconciliation of Christians with himself. He is now at peace with them. Spirit, soul, and body represent the entirety of human nature (see Matt. 10:28; Mark 12:30; 1 Cor. 7:34).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:26 holy kiss. A symbol of Christian fellowship and holiness (see note on 1 Cor. 16:20).

1 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 5:27 I. As usual, having dictated his letter to a secretary, Paul wrote the final greeting in his own handwriting (compare 2 Thess. 3:17). This showed readers that the letter really came from Paul. have this letter read to all. See note on Col. 4:16.

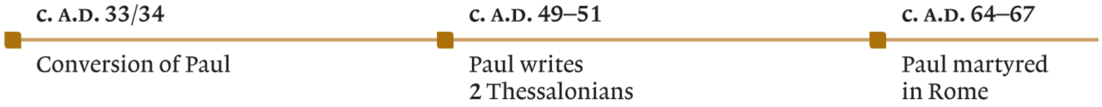
Introduction to 2 Thessalonians

Introduction to 2 Thessalonians

Timeline



Author, Date, and Recipients

Shortly after writing 1 Thessalonians, the apostle Paul received a report (2 Thess. 3:11) that the Thessalonian church had accepted the strange claim that “the day of the Lord has come” (2:1–2). Paul sent them a second letter in A.D. 49–51. He was probably in Corinth at the time.

Theme

The letter’s main theme is Jesus’ second coming. Jesus’ return will be preceded by an “apostasy” (or rebellion) and by the appearance of the “man of lawlessness,” the Antichrist (2:3). When Jesus comes, he will defeat this rebellious world ruler (2:8). He will bring justice to oppressed Christians and wrath to unbelievers (1:5–10; 2:9–15).

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

Paul wrote 2 Thessalonians (1) to reassure those terrified that the day of the Lord had already come (2:1–3:5); (2) to strengthen the Thessalonians in the face of continuing persecution (1:3–12); and (3) to deal with the problem of some of the church members refusing to earn their own living (3:6–15).

Paul assumes that the Thessalonian church knew that the second coming of Jesus Christ would occur at the same time as the coming of the “day of the Lord.” Yet the Thessalonians may simply have fallen victim to a belief that the day of the Lord had already come. The persecution they were undergoing may have fueled their confusion about the end times.

Some of the Thessalonians may have stopped working to await and proclaim the second coming. More likely, lazy Christians may have been exploiting the generosity of wealthier Christians in order to avoid work.

In contrast to the warm emotional tone of 1 Thessalonians, 2 Thessalonians includes some blunt commands as Paul addresses bad behavior and bad thinking. Further, this letter is noteworthy for Paul’s tough-mindedness in predicting judgment on the ungodly and in rebuking church members who behave and think incorrectly. Still, there is a regular swing back and forth between reproof and warm encouragement.

Key Themes

1. God’s righteous judgment will be completed when Jesus returns. Unbelievers will be condemned and believers will be saved (1:5–10; 2:9–14).
2. Christians will share Christ’s glory (1:10, 12; 2:14).
3. Jesus will return after the “man of lawlessness” appears and humanity rebels for a final time (2:3–4, 9–12).
4. The man of lawlessness will deceive all those who have rejected the gospel. Jesus will judge them when he returns (2:3, 6–12).
5. Christians must not take advantage of the charity of fellow Christians (3:6–15).

The Global Message of 2 Thessalonians

The global message of Paul's second letter to the Thessalonians is that amid suffering, believers must remember the sovereign grace that has rescued them in Jesus Christ. Everything in 2 Thessalonians contributes to these twin themes of endurance through suffering and the eternal scope of divine grace.

Second Thessalonians and Redemptive History

Second Thessalonians does not contain any explicit quotations from the Old Testament. Yet, as is true of all Paul's letters, it uses Old Testament language and themes throughout. Even such common New Testament words as "grace," "peace," and "Christ" cannot be properly understood apart from the Old Testament. Ideas such as "the righteous judgment of God" (2 Thess. 1:5), "the kingdom of God" (1:5), and "the firstfruits" (2:13) also have their roots in the Old Testament.

As is the case with all New Testament books, 2 Thessalonians reflects on who Christ is and how his coming has affected human history (2 Thess. 1:5–7; 2:1–2, 13). Paul directs his readers to the future and to the past, reminding them of how these two time-horizons affect the present.

The future. As was true of 1 Thessalonians, the second coming of Christ is of particular importance in 2 Thessalonians. Again Paul is lifting his readers' eyes to the future horizon when their present suffering will come to an end. God will "grant relief to you who are afflicted as well as to us, when the Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven" (2 Thess. 1:7). Jesus will be worshiped and praised in that day, and his enemies will suffer the horrific fate of righteous condemnation before God (1:5–12).

The past. Yet as in 1 Thessalonians, it is not only the future that is in view. Paul directs his readers also to eternity past. He reminds them that "God chose you as the firstfruits to be saved" (2 Thess. 2:13). God's steadfast love for his people stretches back to even before the dawn of time (see also Eph. 1:4–5, 11). We therefore have "eternal comfort and good hope through grace" (2 Thess. 2:16).

The present. All of this affects the way believers live in the present. If we have been chosen by undeserved grace, and if we are destined to be vindicated gloriously when Jesus comes again, then we are strengthened to endure adversity (2 Thess. 1:4). We stand fast against the Evil One (2:15; 3:3). We persist in well-doing (1:11; 3:13).

Universal Themes in 2 Thessalonians

Justice at Christ's return. As in his previous letter to the Thessalonians, Paul speaks throughout this letter of the second coming of Jesus. In 2 Thessalonians, however, the focus is specifically on the judgment of God's enemies that will take place on that day. This emphasis is perhaps because of the persecution the Thessalonian believers were experiencing (2 Thess. 1:4–5; note also Acts 17:1–9). Paul says therefore that Jesus will appear "in flaming fire, inflicting vengeance on those who do not know God and on those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus. They will suffer the punishment of eternal destruction" (2 Thess. 1:8–9). This cosmic judgment will extend to every corner of creation, including all people groups and tribes who have not bowed the knee to Jesus Christ.

Opposition to Christ. The Old Testament predicted final opposition to God and God's people, and in chapter 2 of 2 Thessalonians Paul indicates that this opposition has already begun (2 Thess. 2:1–12; and note 2:3–4, with reference to Dan. 11:31, 36). "The mystery of lawlessness is already at work" (2 Thess. 2:7). Believers around the world face a fierce enemy, Satan himself (2:9). Satan stirs up unbelievers to join him in his hostility toward us. Even the work of Satan, however, is ultimately under the sovereign hand of God (2:11; see also Job 1:21–22; 2:10; Acts 2:23). Amid such hostility believers are called to "stand firm and hold to the traditions" that have been handed down to them through the Bible and those who faithfully teach it (2 Thess. 2:15).

Warning against laziness. The third chapter of 2 Thessalonians contains many exhortations but the central theme is that of working diligently for the Lord. Paul says he has heard that some of the Thessalonians are proving slack in their efforts (2 Thess. 3:11). Perhaps this was because of mistaken understandings about the timing of the day of the Lord (2:1–2). The Thessalonians are commanded to stay away from those who are idle (3:6). Instead, they should imitate the intense efforts of Paul and his companions (3:7–8). Paul's exhortations land with force on the global church today as there is much need that we “not grow weary in doing good” (3:13) in light of the staggering needs around the world. One thinks not only of the fundamental need for all people everywhere to hear the good news of the gospel, but also of all kinds of earthly needs, such as basic human rights and the kind of legislation that supports such rights.

Paul’s second letter to the Thessalonians delivers strong medicine for the global church today. Never before in world history has the church been as widely persecuted for its faith in Christ. When Paul speaks to the Thessalonians of “the afflictions that you are enduring” (2 Thess. 1:4), he is describing an experience familiar to many Christians around the world today. Even where persecution is not carried out publicly or systemically, it is the universal experience of faithful believers, as Jesus said, that “you will be hated by all for my name’s sake” (Matt. 10:22).

Yet whatever kind of hostility Christians are enduring, the great promises of the gospel of grace hold true and provide solid footing. God has chosen us through a definitive act of cleansing by the Holy Spirit (2 Thess. 2:13). He has summoned us to himself through the gospel, leading us ultimately into the very glory of Jesus himself (2:14). God “loved us and gave us eternal comfort and good hope through grace” (2:16).

As believers around the world find themselves embroiled in conflict due to their faith, whether locally or all the way up to nationally, we can take heart at the great promises of the gospel. In the midst of battles for human rights, the sanctity of life, human dignity, and for ending the many deplorable modern-day forms of slavery, we press on with hope. For although “the mystery of lawlessness is already at work” and “the activity of Satan” seems overwhelming, “Jesus will kill with the breath of his mouth and bring to nothing” the hostile forces of hell that spur on the earthly evils we see all around us (2 Thess. 2:7–9).

Greeting

2 THESSALONIANS 1 [†] [a] Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy,
To the church of the Thessalonians in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:
[2]Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Thanksgiving

[3][†] [b] We ought always to give thanks to God for you, brothers, [1] as is right, because your faith is growing abundantly, and the love of every one of you for one another is increasing. [4]Therefore [c] we ourselves boast about you [d] in the churches of God for your steadfastness and faith [e] in all your persecutions and in the afflictions that you are enduring.

The Judgment at Christ’s Coming

[5][†]This is [f] evidence of the righteous judgment of God, that you may be [g] considered worthy of the kingdom of God, for which you are also suffering— [6][†]since indeed God considers it [h] just [i] to repay with affliction those who afflict you, [7][†]and to grant [j] relief to you who are afflicted as well as to us, when [k] the Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven [l] with his mighty angels [8][†] [m] in flaming fire, inflicting vengeance on those [n] who do not know God and on those who [o] do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus. [9][†]They will suffer the punishment of [p] eternal destruction, [q] away from [2] the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his might, [10][†] [r] when he comes on [s] that day [t] to be glorified in his saints, and to be marveled at among all who have believed, because our [u] testimony to you [v] was believed. [11][†]To this end we [w] always pray for you, that our God may [x] make you worthy of his calling and may fulfill every resolve for good and every [y] work of faith by his power, [12]so that the name of our Lord Jesus [z] may be glorified in you, and you in him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Man of Lawlessness

2 THESSALONIANS 2 [†]Now concerning [a]the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our [b]being gathered together to him, we ask you, brothers, [1] [2][†]not to be quickly shaken in mind or [c]alarmed, either [d]by a spirit or a [e]spoken word, or [e]a letter seeming to be from us, to the effect that [f]the day of the Lord has come. [3][†] [g]Let no one deceive you in any way. For that day will not come, [h]unless the rebellion comes first, and [i]the man of lawlessness [2] is revealed, [j]the son of destruction, [3] [4][†]who opposes and exalts himself against every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, [k]proclaiming himself to be God. [5][†]Do you not remember that when I was still with you I told you these things? [6]And you know what is restraining him now so that he may be revealed in his time. [7]For [l]the mystery of lawlessness [m]is already at work. Only he who now restrains it will do so until he is out of the way. [8][†]And then [n]the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus [o]will kill with [p]the breath of his mouth and bring to nothing by [q]the appearance of his coming. [9][†]The coming of the lawless one is by the activity of Satan [r]with all power and false signs and wonders, [10]and with all wicked deception for [s]those who are perishing, because they refused to love the truth and so be saved. [11][†]Therefore [t]God sends them a strong delusion, so that they may believe [u]what is false, [12]in order that all may be condemned [v]who did not believe the truth but [w]had pleasure in unrighteousness.

Stand Firm

[13][†]But [x]we ought always to give thanks to God for you, [y]brothers beloved by the Lord, because God chose you [z]as the firstfruits [4] [a]to be saved, [b]through sanctification by the Spirit and belief in the truth. [14][†]To this he called you through [c]our gospel, [a]so that you may obtain the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. [15][†]So then, brothers, [d]stand firm and hold to [e]the traditions that you were taught by us, either [f]by our spoken word or by [f]our letter.

[16]Now may our Lord Jesus Christ himself, and God our Father, [g]who loved us and gave us eternal comfort and good [h]hope through grace, [17]comfort your hearts and [i]establish them in every good work and word.

Pray for Us

2 THESSALONIANS 3 [†]Finally, brothers, [1] [j]pray for us, that [k]the word of the Lord may speed ahead and be honored, [2] as happened among you, [2]and [l]that we may be delivered from wicked and evil men. For [m]not all have faith. [3][†]But [n]the Lord is faithful. He will establish you and [o]guard you against [p]the evil one. [3] [4]And [q]we have confidence in the Lord about you, that you are doing and will do the things that we command. [5][†]May the Lord [r]direct your hearts to the love of God and to the steadfastness of Christ.

Warning Against Idleness

[6][†]Now we command you, brothers, [s]in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, [t]that you keep away from any [u]brother [v]who is walking in idleness and not in accord with the tradition that you received from us. [7][†]For you yourselves know [w]how you ought to imitate us, because [x]we were not idle when we were with you, [8][†]nor did we eat anyone’s bread without paying for it, but [y]with toil and labor we worked night and day, that we might not be a burden to any of you. [9]It was [z]not because we do not have that right, but to give you in ourselves [a]an example to imitate. [10]For even when we were with you, we would give you this command: [b]If anyone is not willing to work, let him not eat. [11][†]For we hear that some among you [c]walk in idleness, not busy at work, but [d]busybodies. [12][†]Now such persons we command and encourage in the Lord Jesus Christ to do their work quietly and to earn their own living. [4]

[13][†]As for you, brothers, [e]do not grow weary in doing good. [14][†]If anyone does not obey what we say in this letter, take note of that person, and [f]have nothing to do with him, that he may be ashamed. [15][g]Do not regard him as an enemy, but [h]warn him as a brother.

Benediction

16[†]Now may [i] the Lord of peace himself [j] give you peace at all times in every way. [k] The Lord be with you all.

17[†]I, Paul, write [l] this greeting with my own hand. This is the sign of genuineness in every letter of mine; it is the way I write. 18 [m] The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all.

Study Notes for 2 Thessalonians

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:1–2 Opening. See note on 1 Thess. 1:1. All three missionaries are still together, so 2 Thessalonians was probably written soon after 1 Thessalonians.

FACT

Why were Christians being persecuted? The fact that Christians worshiped only one God excluded them from participation in community gatherings, which often focused on other gods. The church's custom of meeting secretly also raised suspicions of disloyalty to the Roman Empire.

1:3–12 Thanksgiving and Comfort for the Persecuted Thessalonians. In Greek, vv. 3–10 are one long sentence expressing Paul's gratefulness and words of encouragement.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:3 ought . . . as is right. Paul gives thanks to God for the Thessalonians' increasing faith and love (compare 1 Thess. 3:6). The fact that their love for one another is increasing is an answer to Paul's prayer in 1 Thess. 3:12.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:5 The Thessalonians' endurance and faith under persecution show evidence of the righteous judgment of God. God is giving them the grace to endure. He is clearly on their side and is working to make them worthy for entrance into the kingdom of God. Compare Phil. 1:28, where the Philippian Christians' fearless perseverance during persecution is a proof that they will be saved and their enemies destroyed when Jesus returns.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:6–7a God judges fairly. Those now causing trouble for the Thessalonian Christians will be afflicted. The believers will get relief at the second coming.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:7b when the Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven (see 1 Thess. 4:16–17). Jesus is called "Lord." This identifies him as Yahweh, who carries out final judgment (see Isaiah 64; 66).

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:8 in flaming fire. See Isa. 66:15–16.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:9 eternal destruction. Unbelievers will not simply cease to exist. See Matt. 25:46; Rev. 14:9–11.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:10 when he comes. The punishment of unbelievers and the reward of believers both occur on the day of the Lord (that day). This is the day when Jesus comes to save his people. Confusion over the timing of the day of the Lord is a major problem in Thessalonica (2:2). Paul's description of the day in 1:7b–10 was intended to solve the problem. glorified in his saints. By saving his people from sin; Jesus' glory will be seen in them (see Rom. 8:17–18, 30). Saints are "holy ones." our testimony to you. God's saving act in Christ.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 1:11 To this end. That is, in view of vv. 5–10. make you worthy. Building on v. 5, Paul now prays that the Thessalonians may be made worthy of this calling (see 1 Thess. 2:12). work of faith. Work inspired by faith.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:1–17 Disproving the False Claim about the Day of the Lord. Paul reassures the Thessalonians that the day of the Lord has not come. In 1 Thess. 5:1–11 he responded to a question from the community about the timing of the day of the Lord. He has now heard that some of them have believed the false idea that the day of the Lord has already arrived (2 Thess. 2:1–2). Paul states that before that day comes, a final rebellion and the appearance of the "man of lawlessness" must occur (vv. 3–12). Then he reassures the Thessalonians that they are destined for glory (vv. 13–14). Finally, he calls on them to hold firmly to the traditions he passed on to them (v. 15). He concludes with prayer (vv. 16–17).

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:2 The Thessalonians were shaken and alarmed by the false claim that the day of the Lord had already come. Paul did not know the source of the confusion, but he suggests a number of possibilities: a spirit. An alleged prophetic word. a spoken word. A teaching or a sermon. a letter seeming to be from us. Paul seems to have suspected that a letter forged in his name was circulating (see 3:17). the day of the Lord. See notes on Amos 5:18–20; 1 Thess. 5:2–3. Paul seems to teach here, as elsewhere (1 Cor. 1:8; Phil. 1:10; 1 Thess. 5:1–4; 2 Thess. 1:7–10), that the day of the Lord and Christ's second coming occur at the same time. They are parts of one event.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:3 Two events will come before the day of the Lord. Neither has happened yet. The first event is the rebellion. In light of vv. 9–12, Paul probably is describing a rebellion of all humanity against God. the man of lawlessness is revealed. The person in this second event is elsewhere called the "antichrist" (1 John 2:18, 22; 4:3; 2 John 7). He will oppose God. He is the son of destruction. He will be defeated and destroyed when Jesus returns (2 Thess. 2:8).

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:4 Paul draws on Dan. 11:36–37 when he writes that the lawless one opposes and exalts himself against every so-called god or object of worship. The Antichrist will insist that he alone is God. His actions will be like those of Antiochus IV Epiphanes (see Dan. 11:31–35 and notes). The context seems to indicate a concrete and observable act of defiance against God. The temple of God has been variously interpreted as the church, the heavenly temple, and the Jerusalem temple.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:5–7 The man of lawlessness cannot be unveiled while what is restraining him now is at work. Paul refers also to he who now restrains. Scholarly theories on the identity of this restrainer include the Roman Empire/emperor, the Holy Spirit, and the archangel Michael. The restrainer makes sure that the man of lawlessness is revealed in his time, and not before (see v. 3).

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:8 the breath of his mouth (compare Isa. 11:4). Jesus will easily destroy the Antichrist.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:9–10 those who are perishing. Those who have not believed the gospel.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:11–12 God sends them a strong delusion. As part of his righteous judgment, God lets unbelievers follow the Antichrist (believe what is false).

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:13 beloved by the Lord. . . . God chose you. See note on 1 Thess. 1:4. This may echo Deut. 26:18, which refers to God's choice of Israel. as the firstfruits. Like the first harvested fruit or grain, the Thessalonians are set apart for God's use (see Lev. 23:10–11). Christians are divinely elected to be saved. Note the involvement of each person of the Trinity: the Father elects, the Son loves, and the Holy Spirit makes holy.

FACT

Sanctification (2:13) refers to the transforming work of the Holy Spirit in a believer's life, whereby the person becomes increasingly more like Christ. This ongoing process continues until the redeemed person is resurrected and made completely holy in heaven (glorification).

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:14 this. That is, salvation (v. 13). obtain the glory. See 1:10; 1 Thess. 5:9.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 2:15 Paul encourages the Thessalonians to stand firm and hold to the traditions that were communicated to them by our spoken word during his ministry among them and by 1 Thessalonians (our letter).

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:1–5 Transition. Paul requests prayer for his work, reassures them of God's faithfulness, and closes by praying for them.

FACT

Tough love. In contrast to the warm and joyful tone of 1 Thessalonians, 2 Thessalonians includes some blunt commands as Paul addresses bad behavior and bad thinking within the church. Some, for instance, were refusing to work for a living (3:6–15).

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:1–2 Paul asks them to pray that the word of the Lord (the gospel) would speed ahead (progress) and be honored (by people accepting its truth).

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:3–4 guard you against the evil one. Satan has been trying to destroy the Thessalonians' young faith. But God's faithfulness assures Paul that the Evil One will not succeed.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:5 the steadfastness of Christ. Either Christ's endurance as a model for Christians or the perseverance Christ gives to believers.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:6–15 The Problem of Lazy Christians. Paul instructs the Thessalonians to discipline those refusing to work.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:6 Paul tells the Thessalonians to discipline those who refuse to work and depend on others to support them. They are to keep away from these people, which probably means removing them from the church. However, Paul still regards them as "brothers" (v. 15). This behavior was not in accord with the tradition passed on by the missionaries regarding the necessity of working for a living.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:7–10 The missionaries had taught the need to work for a living both by example and through instruction.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:8–9 eat anyone's bread without paying for it. Paul refused to depend on others for his living. He took on manual labor in addition to his ministry commitments to avoid being a financial burden to the Thessalonians. He did so even though he had the God-given right to be supported (see 1 Cor. 9:3–15; 1 Thess. 2:9).

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:11 not busy at work, but busybodies. See 1 Tim. 5:13.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:12 work quietly. The opposite of being "busybodies" (v. 11).

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:13 do not grow weary in doing good. Paul encourages those with money to continue being charitable, though only to those who are deserving.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:14 The purpose of keeping away from the lazy is so these brothers will be ashamed, repent, and be restored to the community.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:16–18 Conclusion. The letter concludes with a blessing, a final greeting, and a prayer for grace.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:16 Lord of peace. Jesus has reconciled Christians to God. He is able to replace their fear (2:2) with peace.

2 THESSALONIANS—NOTE ON 3:17 Paul makes it clear that most of the letter was dictated to a secretary. The final greeting was written in Paul's own handwriting. This served as a mark of its authenticity.

Author, Date, and Recipient

The apostle Paul probably wrote this letter to Timothy in the mid-60s A.D., during a mission trip not recorded in Scripture. This trip took place after the events described in Acts, between Paul’s first and final Roman imprisonments.

Theme

The letter’s theme is that the gospel leads to practical, visible change in believers’ lives. The true gospel, in contrast to false teaching, must and will always lead to godliness.

Purpose

Paul wrote 1 Timothy to advise his coworker Timothy about issues in the church in Ephesus. False teachers are the main cause for the letter. Their teaching apparently involved incorrect assumptions about the law (1:7–11) and not allowing marriage and certain foods (4:1–5). Paul’s real concern is with the results of the false teaching. For example, it promotes mere theories over solid truth (1:4; 6:4). It also leads to arrogance (6:4) and greed (6:5–10). Paul focuses on the fact that true Christianity is shown in lifestyles shaped by the gospel. Those whose lives are not shaped by the gospel have turned away from the faith (1:6, 19–20; 4:1; 5:6, 8, 11–12, 15; 6:9–10).

Key Themes

1. The gospel produces holiness in the lives of believers. There is no legitimate separation between belief and behavior. Thus, those who profess faith but show no progress in godliness should question their spiritual health (1:5; 2:8–15; 3:1–16; 4:6–16; 5:4–6, 8; 6:3–5, 11–14, 18–19).
2. Worldwide evangelism is essential. It is rooted in God's own evangelistic desire (1:15; 2:1–7; 3:16; 4:10).
3. One key evidence of receiving the gospel is proper behavior in corporate worship, in matters like evangelistic prayer, unity, modesty, and submission (2:1–15).
4. Church leaders should be people whose lives are shaped by the gospel (3:1–13; 4:6–16).
5. Appropriate honor is a key element in how Christians should relate to one another in the church (5:1–6:2).
6. Everything God created is good. It is to be appreciated, but not worshiped (4:4–5; 6:17–19).
7. It is important to protect the purity of the gospel (1:3–7, 18–20; 4:6–16; 6:2b–3, 12, 20–21).

The Setting of 1 Timothy

c. A.D. 62–64

Paul likely wrote 1 Timothy during a fourth missionary journey not recorded in the book of Acts. Writing from an unknown location, Paul wrote to Timothy at Ephesus to instruct him on how to lead the church there. Ephesus was a wealthy and highly influential port city in the Roman province of Asia, renowned for its temple of Artemis (Diana).

The Global Message of 1 Timothy

Paul's first letter to Timothy is filled with practical instructions about the life of the local church. Yet all this practical instruction is rooted in the gospel (1 Tim. 1:5, 15), and is intended to promote godliness and to spread the message of salvation to all people (2:1–7; 3:1–13; 4:10).

First Timothy and Redemptive History

Israel's calling. In the opening chapters of Genesis we see God placing the first humans in the garden of Eden and enjoying perfect fellowship with them. With the fall into sin, that fellowship was broken. Down through history, God has been working to restore humanity to himself. With the call of Abraham, God set apart a man whose descendants were to be a blessing to all the nations of the world (Gen. 12:1–3). These descendants were the nation of Israel. They were "a kingdom of priests and a holy nation" (Ex. 19:6). Israel was set apart to be "a light for the nations, that my salvation may reach to the end of the earth" (Isa. 49:6).

The church's calling. Yet Israel largely failed in this calling. When Jesus came, however, he reorganized the people of God around himself. He called twelve disciples, representing the twelve tribes of Israel (Matt. 10:1–4). His life and teaching indicated that he viewed himself as doing what Israel had failed to do, starting by remaining faithful while in a time of testing in the wilderness (Luke 4:1–13). The New Testament letters, likewise, speak of the church as inheriting the calling of Israel to bring God's blessing to the nations (1 Pet. 2:9–10; Acts 13:47). When 1 Timothy tells us of the church, then, we are learning of the institution that God planned from before time as the means of reaching the world with his blessings. Paul tells us elsewhere that the church is the result of "the plan of the mystery hidden for ages" (Eph. 3:9), and that the inclusion of the Gentiles and thus all people everywhere was God's gracious saving intention from before time.

For all people. This heart of God for all people groups to come to know his saving grace resounds through 1 Timothy. God "desires all people to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth" (1 Tim. 2:4). Christ "gave himself as a ransom for all" (2:6). After Jesus' death and resurrection he was "proclaimed among the nations" (3:16). God is "the Savior of all people" (4:10). Time and again Paul reminds Timothy, and us, of the Lord's great heart of compassion for all people throughout the world.

Universal Themes in 1 Timothy

Prayer for those in authority. "I urge," says Paul, "that supplications, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings be made for all people, for kings and all who are in high positions" (1 Tim. 2:1–2). While Paul directs believers to have special regard for fellow Christians, in 1 Timothy he expands our horizons to intercede for "all people," all the way up to world leaders. This has significant implications for global believers today, as we pray for those in positions of authority or political influence.

Church leadership. More clearly than any other New Testament book, 1 Timothy describes the divinely ordained structure of church leadership. Paul tells us of the need for elders who are qualified in certain ways, and of deacons (1 Tim. 3:1–13). He describes the way older men and women should be honored, and how younger men and women should be treated (5:1–2). He gives instructions on caring for widows (5:3–16). The honor due to the church's preachers and teachers is discussed (5:17–18), as is church discipline (5:19–21). In all this the global church is given a blueprint for how to structure local churches in a way that is faithful, effective, and fruitful.

The danger of false teaching. Throughout 1 Timothy Paul returns to the threat of false teaching. This is the very first thing he says to Timothy, encouraging the young pastor to exhort believers to hold to the teaching they have received and to avoid quarrels about myths and genealogies, as well as mistaken notions about the law (1 Tim. 1:3–8). In chapter 4 Paul refers to another strand of false teaching, in which the good things of life such as food and marriage are not received as gifts from God (4:1–5). Paul closes the letter by once more urging Timothy to avoid false teachers, whose messages stir up dissension and promote the love of money (6:3–10). All of these teachings are relevant for the church today: sound teaching on God's law, sound teaching on receiving physical blessings such as food and sexuality, and sound teaching on money and contentment.

The Global Message of 1 Timothy for Today

Paul's first letter to Timothy gives believers a clear picture of what the church is to look like. Two points, however, are particularly striking about the way Paul describes healthy church life.

First, the qualifications Paul gives for both elders and deacons have to do with godliness more than with competency as defined by the world. Elders, for example, are to be self-controlled, respectable, and hospitable (1 Tim. 3:2). Deacons must be guarded in their use of the tongue, sober, and not greedy (3:8). These qualities describe a person of mature character, more than simply a person with impressive natural abilities. This is a strong reminder to the global church of the crucial importance of choosing leaders who walk with God faithfully, whatever their level of gifting or eloquence or natural charisma.

Second, the local church and its various ministries and responsibilities are all rooted in the gospel. It is striking that, in an epistle written to a young pastor, with lots of practical instruction for the local church, Paul begins with a moving statement of his own salvation through Jesus Christ (1 Tim. 1:12–17). The gospel is then connected to Paul’s guidance throughout the rest of the letter—whether he is discussing prayer for political leaders (2:2), selection of elders and deacons (3:1–13), the avoidance of irreverent controversy (4:7), or dealing with money and the wealthy (6:3–10).

The global church is to gladly receive the practical guidance Paul gives in 1 Timothy, and resolutely put it into effect. Through it all, the gospel is to reign supreme, to the great glory of Jesus Christ (1 Tim. 1:17; 6:16).

Greeting

1 TIMOTHY 1 [†]Paul, [a]an apostle of Christ Jesus [b]by command of [c]God our Savior and of Christ Jesus [d]our hope,

[2][†]To Timothy, [e]my true child in the faith:

[f]Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

Warning Against False Teachers

[3][†][g]As I urged you when I was going to Macedonia, remain at Ephesus so that you may charge certain persons not [h]to teach any different doctrine, [4][†]nor [i]to devote themselves to myths and endless [j]genealogies, which promote [k]speculations rather than the stewardship [1] from God that is by faith. [5][†]The aim of our charge is love [l]that issues from a pure heart and [m]a good conscience and [n]a sincere faith. [6]Certain persons, by [o]swerving from these, have wandered away into [p]vain discussion, [7]desiring to be teachers of the law, [q]without understanding either what they are saying or the things about which they make confident assertions.

[8][†]Now we know that [r]the law is good, if one uses it lawfully, [9][†]understanding this, that the [s]law is not laid down for the just but for the lawless and disobedient, for the ungodly and sinners, for the unholy and profane, for those who strike their fathers and mothers, for murderers, [10][†]the sexually immoral, men who practice homosexuality, enslavers, [2] liars, perjurers, and whatever else is contrary to [t]sound [3] doctrine, [11][†]in accordance with [u]the gospel of the glory of [v]the blessed God [w]with which I have been entrusted.

Christ Jesus Came to Save Sinners

[12][†]I thank him [x]who has given me strength, Christ Jesus our Lord, because he judged me faithful, [y]appointing me to his service, [13][†]though formerly I was a blasphemer, [z]persecutor, and insolent opponent. But [a]I received mercy [b]because I had acted ignorantly in unbelief, [14]and [c]the grace of our Lord overflowed for me with the [d]faith and love that are in Christ Jesus. [15][†]The saying is [e]trustworthy and deserving of full acceptance, that Christ Jesus [f]came into the world to save sinners, [g]of whom I am the foremost. [16]But I received mercy for this reason, that in me, as the foremost, Jesus Christ might display his perfect patience as an example to those who were to believe in him for eternal life. [17]To [h]the King of the ages, [i]immortal, [j]invisible, [k]the only God, [l]be honor and glory forever and ever. [4] Amen.

[18][†]This charge [m]I entrust to you, Timothy, my child, in accordance with [n]the prophecies previously made about you, that by them you may [o]wage the good warfare, [19][†][p]holding faith and a good conscience. By rejecting this, some have [q]made shipwreck of their faith, [20][†]among whom are [r]Hymenaeus and [s]Alexander, whom I [t]have handed over to Satan that they may learn not to [u]blaspheme.

Pray for All People

1 TIMOTHY 2 [†]First of all, then, I urge that supplications, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings be made for all people, [2][†][v]for kings and all who are in high positions, that we may lead a peaceful and quiet life, godly and [w]dignified in every way. [3]This is good, and [x]it is pleasing in the sight of [y]God our Savior, [4][†]who desires [z]all people to be saved and [a]to come to [b]the knowledge of the truth. [5][†]For [c]there is one God, and there is one mediator between God and men, the man [1] Christ Jesus, [6][d]who gave himself as a ransom for all, which is [e]the testimony given [f]at the proper time. [7][g]For this I was appointed a preacher and an apostle ([h]I am telling the truth, I am not lying), [i]a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and truth.

[8][†]I desire then that [j]in every place the men should pray, [k]lifting [l]holy hands without anger or quarreling; [9]likewise also [m]that women should adorn themselves in respectable apparel, with modesty and self-control, not with braided hair and gold or pearls or costly attire, [10][n]but with what is proper for women who profess godliness—with good works. [11]Let a woman learn quietly [o]with all submissiveness. [12][†][p]I do not permit a woman to teach or to exercise authority over a man; rather, she is to remain quiet.

[13][†][q]For Adam was formed first, [r]then Eve; [14]and Adam was not deceived, but [s]the woman was deceived and became a transgressor. [15][†]Yet she will be saved through [t]childbearing—if they continue in [u]faith and love and holiness, with self-control.

Qualifications for Overseers

1 TIMOTHY 3 [†]The saying is [v]trustworthy: If anyone aspires to [w]the office of overseer, he desires a noble task. [2][†]Therefore [x]an overseer [1] must be above reproach, [y]the husband of one wife, [2] [z]sober-minded, self-controlled, respectable, [a]hospitable, [b]able to teach, [3]not a drunkard, not violent but [c]gentle, not quarrelsome, [d]not a lover of money. [4][†]He must manage his own household well, with all dignity [e]keeping his children submissive, [5]for if someone does not know how to manage his own household, how will he care for [w]God's church? [6]He must not be a recent convert, or he may [f]become puffed up with conceit and fall into the condemnation of the devil. [7][†]Moreover, he must be well thought of by [g]outsiders, so that he may not fall into disgrace, into [h]a snare of the devil.

Qualifications for Deacons

[8][†][i]Deacons likewise must be dignified, not double-tongued, [3] [j]not addicted to much wine, [k]not greedy for dishonest gain. [9][†]They must [l]hold the mystery of the faith with [m]a clear conscience. [10][†]And [n]let them also be tested first; then let them serve as deacons if they prove themselves blameless. [11][†][o]Their wives likewise must [4] be dignified, not slanderers, but sober-minded, [p]faithful in all things. [12][†]Let deacons each be [q]the husband of one wife, [q]managing their children and their own households well. [13][†]For [r]those who serve well as deacons gain a good standing for themselves and also great confidence in the faith that is in Christ Jesus.

The Mystery of Godliness

14[†]I hope to come to you soon, but I am writing these things to you so that, 15[†]if I delay, you may know how one ought to behave in the household of God, which is the church of the living God, a pillar and buttress of the truth. 16[†]Great indeed, we confess, is the mystery of godliness:

[s]He [5] was manifested in the flesh, vindicated [6] by the Spirit, [7]
[t]seen by angels,
[u]proclaimed among the nations,
[v]believed on in the world,
[w]taken up in glory.

Some Will Depart from the Faith

1 TIMOTHY 4 [†]Now [x]the Spirit expressly says that [y]in later times some will depart from the faith by devoting themselves to [z]deceitful spirits and teachings of demons, 2[†]through the insincerity of [a]liars whose consciences are seared, 3[†][b]who forbid marriage and [c]require abstinence from foods [d]that God created [e]to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth. 4For [f]everything created by God is good, and [g]nothing is to be rejected if it is [e]received with thanksgiving, 5for it is made holy [h]by the word of God and prayer.

A Good Servant of Christ Jesus

6[†][i]If you put these things before the brothers, [1] you will be a good servant of Christ Jesus, being trained in the words of the faith and of the good doctrine that you have [j]followed. 7Have nothing to do with irreverent, [k]silly myths. Rather [l]train yourself for godliness; 8for while [m]bodily training is of some value, godliness [n]is of value in every way, as [o]it holds promise for the present life and also for the life to come. 9[†]The saying is [p]trustworthy and deserving of full acceptance. 10[†]For to this end we toil and strive, [2] because we have our hope set on the living God, [q] who is the Savior of all people, especially of those who believe.

11[†]Command and teach [r] these things. 12[†] [s] Let no one despise you for your youth, but set the believers [t] an example in speech, in conduct, in love, in faith, in purity. 13[†]Until I come, devote yourself to the public reading of Scripture, to exhortation, to teaching. 14[†] [u] Do not neglect the gift you have, which was given you [v] by prophecy when the council of elders [w] laid their hands on you. 15[†]Practice these things, immerse yourself in them, [3] so that [x] all may see your progress. 16[†] [y] Keep a close watch on yourself and on the teaching. Persist in this, for by so doing you will save [z] both yourself and [a] your hearers.

Instructions for the Church

1 TIMOTHY 5 [†] [b] Do not rebuke an older man but encourage him as you would a father, [c] younger men as brothers, 2older women as mothers, younger women as sisters, in all purity.

3[†]Honor widows [d] who are truly widows. 4[†]But if a widow has children or grandchildren, let them first learn [e] to show godliness to their own household and to make some return to their parents, for [f] this is pleasing in the sight of God. 5She [g] who is truly a widow, left all alone, has set her hope on God and [h] continues in supplications and prayers night and day, 6but [i] she who is self-indulgent is [j] dead even while she lives. 7 [k] Command these things as well, so that they may be without reproach. 8But if anyone does not provide for his relatives, and especially for [l] members of his household, he has [m] denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever.

9[†]Let a widow be enrolled if she is not less than sixty years of age, having been [n] the wife of one husband, [1] 10and having a reputation for good works: if she has brought up children, has [n] shown hospitality, [o] has washed the feet of the saints, has [p] cared for the afflicted, and has [q] devoted herself to every good work. 11[†]But refuse to enroll younger widows, for when [r] their passions draw them away from Christ, they desire to marry 12and so incur condemnation for having abandoned their former faith.

[13]Besides that, they learn to be idlers, going about from house to house, and not only idlers, but also [s]gossips and [t]busybodies, saying what they should not. [14][†]So I would have [u]younger widows marry, bear children, [v]manage their households, and [w]give the adversary no occasion for slander. [15][x]For some have already strayed after Satan. [16]If any believing woman has relatives who are widows, let her care for them. Let the church not be burdened, so that it may care for those [y]who are truly widows.

[17][†]Let the elders [z]who rule well be considered worthy of [a]double honor, especially those who labor in preaching and teaching. [18][†]For the Scripture says, [b]“You shall not muzzle an ox when it treads out the grain,” and, [c]“The laborer deserves his wages.” [19][†]Do not admit a charge against an elder except [d]on the evidence of two or three witnesses. [20][†]As for those who persist in sin, [e]rebuke them in the presence of all, [f]so that the rest may stand in fear. [21][†]In the presence of God and of Christ Jesus and of the elect angels [g]I charge you to keep these rules without prejudging, [h]doing nothing from partiality. [22][†] [i]Do not be hasty in the [j]laying on of hands, nor [k]take part in the sins of others; keep yourself pure. [23][†](No longer drink only water, but [l]use a little wine [m]for the sake of your stomach and your frequent ailments.) [24][†]The sins of some people are conspicuous, going before them to judgment, but the sins of others appear later. [25]So also good works are conspicuous, and [n]even those that are not cannot remain hidden.

1 TIMOTHY 6 [†] [o]Let all who are under a yoke as bondservants [1] regard their own masters as worthy of all honor, [p]so that the name of God and the teaching may not be reviled. [2][†]Those who have believing masters must not be disrespectful on the ground that they are [q]brothers; rather they must serve all the better since those who benefit by their good service are believers and beloved.

False Teachers and True Contentment

[r]Teach and urge these things. [3][†]If anyone [s]teaches a different doctrine and does not agree with [t]the sound [2] words of our Lord Jesus Christ and the teaching [u]that accords with godliness, [4][v]he is puffed up with conceit and [w]understands nothing. He has an unhealthy craving for [x]controversy and for [y]quarrels about words, which produce envy, dissension, slander, evil suspicions, 5[†]and constant friction among people [z]who are depraved in mind and deprived of the truth, [a]imagining that godliness is a means of gain. 6But [b]godliness [c]with contentment is great gain, 7for [d]we brought nothing into the world, and [3] we cannot take anything out of the world. 8But [e]if we have food and clothing, with these we will be content. 9[†]But [f]those who desire to be rich fall into temptation, [g]into a snare, into many senseless and harmful desires that [h]plunge people into ruin and destruction. 10For the love of money is a root of [i]all kinds of evils. It is through this craving that some have wandered away from the faith and pierced themselves with many pangs.

Fight the Good Fight of Faith

11[†]But as for you, [j]O man of God, [k]flee these things. [l]Pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, steadfastness, gentleness. 12 [m]Fight the good fight of the faith. [n]Take hold of the eternal life [o]to which you were called and about which you made [p]the good confession in the presence of many witnesses. 13[†] [q]I charge you in the presence of God, who gives life to all things, and of Christ Jesus, [r]who in his testimony before [4] Pontius Pilate made [p]the good confession, 14to keep the commandment unstained and free from reproach until [s]the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ, 15[†]which he will display [t]at the proper time—he who is [u]the blessed and only Sovereign, [v]the King of kings and Lord of lords, 16 [w]who alone has immortality, [x]who dwells in [y]unapproachable light, [z]whom no one has ever seen or can see. To him be honor and eternal dominion. Amen.

17[†]As for the rich in [a]this present age, charge them [b]not to be haughty, nor [c]to set their hopes on [d]the uncertainty of riches, but on God, [e]who richly provides us with everything to enjoy. 18[†]They are to do good, [f]to be rich in good works, to be generous and [g]ready to share, 19thus [h]storing up treasure for themselves as a good foundation for the future, so that they may [i]take hold of [j]that which is truly life.

20[†]O Timothy, guard the deposit entrusted to you. [k] Avoid the [l] irreverent babble and contradictions of what is falsely called “knowledge,” 21for by professing it some have swerved from the faith.

[m] Grace be with you. [5]

Study Notes for 1 Timothy

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:1–2 Greeting. Paul is writing to Timothy, whom he had left to teach the church in Ephesus.

FACT

After Paul established the church in Ephesus, Paul's younger coworker Timothy stayed there to strengthen it against false teaching (1:3). Paul's first letter to Timothy provides further instruction about specific issues that the young church faced.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:1 Paul's ministry as an apostle came by command of God. On the basis of God's authority, he charges Timothy with his task (v. 3) and provides a general charge to Christians (v. 5). On "God our Savior," see note on 2 Tim. 1:8–10.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:2 Paul's normal greeting in his letters is simply grace . . . and peace. mercy. Paul often introduced things at the beginning of his letters that he would deal with later in the letter (see vv. 13, 16).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:3–20 Confronting the False Teaching. Paul charges Timothy to deal with the false teachers (vv. 3–7). Next he briefly corrects their understanding of the law (vv. 8–11). Then he presents himself as an example of the change the gospel creates in a person's life (vv. 12–17). Finally, he restates his main charge and gives specific examples of false teachers (vv. 18–20).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:3–7 Timothy dealt with false teaching in the Ephesus church. Not enough information is given to determine exactly what the false teaching was. Paul's concern has more to do with the effect of the false teaching. It does not produce the good qualities that belief in the gospel produces.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:4 Myths in the NT is a negative term. It describes strange, untrue, and even deceptive beliefs (compare 2 Tim. 4:4; Titus

1:14). Given the reference to the misuse of the law in 1 Tim. 1:7–10, genealogies seems to refer to questionable use of OT accounts of biblical characters or family trees. Stewardship from God refers either to God’s orderly plan of salvation in all human history, or to human responsibility (“stewardship”) in advancing that plan. In either case, the false teaching results in speculations (unprovable theories) rather than the advance of the kingdom by faith in Christ.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:5 Proper biblical teaching results in practical good behavior rooted in love. That love must come from internal, Spirit-worked changes. This verse is central for the whole letter.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:8 the law is good. The false teachers have misused the law, but the law itself was a gracious gift of God to Israel (see Psalm 119).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:9–11 the law is not laid down for the just. People who are “just” do not need the law to restrain them, but those who are lawless and disobedient need such restraint. Paul does not deny that the law has a purpose in teaching Christians how to live, for he has said it is “good” (v. 8) and in vv. 9–10 he mentions several of the Ten Commandments (Ex. 20:1–17). Exactly how the law applies to the NT believer is, however, a matter of some debate. Some say that the Mosaic law has been entirely superseded, and what remains is the “Law of Christ” (see note on 1 Cor. 9:21). Others say there is an ongoing authority of certain aspects of the Mosaic code. Paul elsewhere affirms that Christians are no longer under the Mosaic law (see Rom. 7:6; Gal. 2:16; 3:19–26), and that fits well with what he writes here. As in those passages and also in these verses, one purpose of the law is to expose sin. In addition, though believers are no longer under the Law of Moses, they are, as noted, under the Law of Christ and are governed by the Spirit (Rom. 7:6). All interpreters agree that the Mosaic laws, rightly understood, still give Christians wisdom about righteous living. See notes on 1 Cor. 9:21; Gal. 4:10; 6:2.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:9 Those who strike their fathers and mothers violate Ex. 20:12. Murderers violate Ex. 20:13.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:10 The sexually immoral violate Ex. 20:14. The term includes any sexual conduct outside of heterosexual marriage. men who practice homosexuality. This verse is similar to Lev. 18:22; 20:13. See note on Rom. 1:26–27. enslavers. See ESV footnote. Paul considered all kinds of forced enslavement to be sinful and a violation of Ex. 20:15. Liars and perjurers violate Ex. 20:16. Sound doctrine includes the idea of "healthy" or "health giving" (compare 1 Tim. 6:3; 2 Tim. 1:13; 4:3; Titus 1:9). In 2 Timothy it stands in contrast to false doctrine, which spreads poison throughout the body (2 Tim. 2:17).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:11 "Sound doctrine" (v. 10) is that which flows out of the gospel.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:12 Paul gives thanks because Christ appointed him to be an apostle despite his past sins.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:13 Paul received mercy because he acted ignorantly. However, Paul's ignorance did not excuse his sin. Most likely Paul is contrasting himself with the false teachers: when Paul opposed Christ, he was not a Christian; these men claim to follow Christ and still live in an evil way.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:15 Paul often describes certain sayings as trustworthy (compare 3:1; 4:9; 2 Tim. 2:11; Titus 3:8). sinners, of whom I am the foremost. Apparently Paul means that his previous persecution of the church made him the leading sinner (see 1 Tim. 1:13; compare 1 Cor. 15:9–10). Another interpretation is that, in light of the Holy Spirit's powerful conviction and his nearness to God, Paul could not imagine anyone being a "worse" sinner than he was.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:18–20 Paul restates his charge (vv. 3, 5) and calls for specific action against the false teachers.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:18 prophecies. God had clearly indicated that Timothy was called to ministry (see note on 1 Cor. 12:10). This assurance should strengthen Timothy for the work. See note on 1 Tim. 4:14.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:19 This refers to a good conscience. The false teachers are rejecting their consciences. They continue in their sin. made shipwreck of their faith. They have fallen away from the faith they had claimed (see 1 John 2:19).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:20 Hymenaeus. A false teacher also mentioned in 2 Tim. 2:17. handed over to Satan. Put out of the church (that is, excommunication). See note on 1 Cor. 5:5. This language highlights the protection against Satan that Christian fellowship provides. may learn not to blaspheme. The false teachers can still repent. They currently misrepresent God through their false teaching, but they can change.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:1–3:13 Descriptions of Gospel-shaped Living. Paul now shows what true gospel living (1:5) should look like. He asks for prayer, and he discusses possible barriers to prayer (2:1–15), qualifications for overseers (3:1–7), and qualifications for deacons (3:8–13).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:1 supplications, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings. Paul calls for all sorts of prayer for all sorts of people.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:2 peaceful, quiet, godly, dignified. This lifestyle contrasts with that of the false teachers. Living in this way reflects well on the gospel. This theme occurs throughout this letter (v. 11; 3:7; 5:7, 14; 6:1) as well as in 2 Timothy and Titus.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:4 Paul urges prayer for all people (vv. 1–2) because God desires all people to be saved. Paul emphasizes God's desire that all races and economic classes trust in Christ. Believers must share Christ with all people, regardless of differences. This does not mean that everyone will be saved (see 4:1; 5:24; 6:10; compare Matt. 25:41, 46; Rev. 14:9–11). Come to the knowledge of the truth highlights that individuals must understand key truths to become believers. "The truth" is a synonym for the gospel (see 1 Tim. 3:15; 4:3; 2 Tim. 2:25; Titus 1:1, 14).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:5–6 For. These verses provide the theological basis for the statement in v. 4 that God wants people to be saved. There is only one God. He seeks "all people" (v. 4; see Rom. 3:29–30). All must come to the one true God for salvation. This means that Jesus is the one and only mediator between God and people. He is the only way to salvation (Acts 4:12). Furthermore, this verse allows no place for mediators between people and Jesus, such as saints or priests. Ransom refers to purchasing someone's release (see Mark 10:45). It is a common NT way to express Christ's death as securing a believer's release from God's wrath (see Gal. 1:4; Rev. 5:9).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:8–10 not with . . . gold or pearls or costly attire. Paul does not prohibit wearing jewelry (see note on 1 Pet. 3:3–4). Rather, he says that women should not dress to show off their wealth or to be seductive. They should dress in a way that is proper for Christian witness.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:8 Then resumes the call to prayer from v. 1. Lifting . . . hands is a typical posture for prayer in the Bible (compare 1 Kings 8:22; Ps. 28:2; Isa. 1:15; Luke 24:50).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:12 I do not permit. Paul writes with the authority of an apostle. He does not simply offer an opinion. This statement is about how the church should operate when assembled together. In that context, two things are prohibited: (1) Women are not permitted to publicly teach Scripture and/or Christian doctrine to men in church (the context implies these topics), and (2) women are not permitted to exercise authority over men in church. Women teaching other women, and women teaching children, are not mentioned here, and both are encouraged elsewhere (2 Tim. 1:5; Titus 2:4). This passage also does not address the role of women in leadership situations outside the church (e.g., business or government).

The word or between “to teach” and “to exercise authority” indicates two different activities, not a single activity of “authoritative teaching.” The phrase “exercise authority” occurs only here in the NT. Examples of this word used outside the NT clearly establish that the meaning is “exercise authority,” not “usurp authority” or “abuse authority.” The role of pastor/elder/overseer is rooted in the task of teaching and exercising authority over the church. Thus, this verse excludes women from serving in this office (compare 1 Tim. 3:2). quiet. Paul means “quiet” with respect to the teaching responsibility in the assembled church. Paul elsewhere indicates that women do speak in other ways in the church assembly (see 1 Cor. 11:5). See also note on 1 Cor. 14:34–35.

FACT

Hairstyles. In Paul’s day, upper-class women showcased their wealth by braiding their hair elaborately and wearing expensive jewelry and clothing. Paul tells believing women to dress modestly and respectably. Godliness is more beautiful than external decoration (2:9–10; see 1 Peter 3:3–4).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:13 For introduces the biblical basis for the prohibition stated in v. 12: the order of creation (Adam was formed first) and the deception of Eve (v. 14). Gender roles in the church are not simply the result of the fall. They are rooted in creation and apply to all cultures at all times. Some interpreters argue that the prohibition of v. 12 does not apply today because: (1) the reason for Paul’s command was that women were teaching false doctrine in Ephesus; or (2) Paul said this because women in that culture were not educated enough to teach. But the only false teachers named in connection with Ephesus are men (1:19–20; 2 Tim. 2:17–18; compare Acts 20:30). Moreover, other ancient sources give evidence of a number of well-educated women in that area of Asia Minor at that time (compare also Luke 8:1–3; 10:38–41; John 11:21–27; Acts 18:2–3, 11, 18–19, 26; 2 Tim. 4:19). In addition, some have claimed that this passage only prohibits a “wife” from teaching or exercising authority over her “husband.” (The words translated “woman” and “man” in 1 Tim. 2:12 can also mean “wife” and “husband” in certain contexts.) Given the immediate context of vv. 8–9, however, the most likely meaning in vv. 11–14 would seem to be “woman” and “man.”

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:15 The precise meaning of this verse is not immediately clear. Paul certainly does not believe people can be saved in the sense of earning justification through childbearing or any other means besides grace (see Eph. 2:8–9). But the NT sometimes uses the term “saved” in the sense of coming to experience all aspects of salvation over time (see note on Phil. 2:12–13). It can also mean the perseverance in faith necessary for eternal salvation (see Matt. 24:13). People are saved as they persevere (continue) in the faith through the circumstances of their lives. For instance, a mother can act faithfully as she nurtures her child from birth to adulthood.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:1–7 In listing the qualifications for the overseer of a church, Paul emphasizes character rather than specific duties. The list describes a person of mature Christian character whose faith has had a tangible impact on his behavior.

FACT

Paul often describes the church as the household of God (3:4–5, 12, 15; see Gal. 6:10; Eph. 2:19). This means that the church is God’s family, and its members are brothers and sisters. Also, just like a family, there are certain roles and responsibilities for its members.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:1 The terms overseer, “elder,” and “pastor” (or “shepherd”) are used in the NT to refer to the same role.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:2–3 The meaning of husband of one wife is widely debated. The Greek phrase literally states, “of one woman [wife] man [husband].” (1) Many scholars understand this to mean “having the character of a one-woman man,” that is, “faithful to his wife.” A similar phrase is used in 5:9 as a qualification for widows, where it seems to refer to the trait of faithfulness. (2) Another view is that “husband of one wife” means polygamists cannot be elders. Interpreters who hold this view note that there is evidence of polygamy being practiced in some Jewish circles at the time. According to both of these views, Paul does not say elders may marry only once; he does not prohibit marriage after divorce or the death of a spouse (see 5:14). (3) A third view is that Paul requires that an elder be someone who has never married more than once. But that does not fit the context as well, since its emphasis is on present character. able to teach. This is the only example in this list of the pastor/elder's actual duties (see note on Titus 1:9).

3:2	able to teach	1:9	able to give instruction
3:3	not a drunkard	1:7	not . . . a drunkard
3:3	not violent but gentle	1:7	not . . . violent
3:3	not quarrelsome	1:7	not be arrogant or quick-tempered
3:3	not a lover of money	1:7	not . . . greedy for gain
3:4–5	manage his own household well, care for God's church	1:7	God's steward
3:4	keeping his children submissive	1:6	children are believers (or "faithful"), not insubordinate
3:6	not a recent convert		—
3:7	well thought of by outsiders		—
	—	1:8	a lover of good; upright, holy

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:4–5 Good management of one's own household is in keeping with Paul's picture of the church as "the household of God" (v. 15).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:7 well thought of by outsiders. See 2:2; 5:7, 14; 6:1.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:8–13 Along with elders (vv. 1–7), deacons have specific responsibilities in the NT church (see Phil. 1:1). Likewise (1 Tim. 3:8) suggests a link between the lists of qualifications for elders and deacons, and there are striking similarities. One key difference is that deacons are not required to be able to teach. The NT contains little discussion of the role of deacons (although, see note on Acts 6:6). The Greek word means "servant," so the role probably involved responsibility for various areas of service in the church.

Qualifications for Deacons

3:8	dignified
3:8	not double-tongued
3:8	not addicted to much wine
3:8	not greedy for dishonest gain
3:9	clear conscience
3:10	tested
3:10	blameless
3:12	husband of one wife
3:12	managing children and household well

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:9 Mystery refers here to the entire revealed content of God's plan of salvation through Christ (see 1 Cor. 4:1; Eph. 3:4–13; Col. 1:26–27; 2:2). with a clear conscience. Deacons must understand the gospel, and their behavior must be consistent with it.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:10 Deacons should be tested, presumably under the leadership of the overseers.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:11 As the ESV footnote indicates, the Greek word for "wives" can mean either "women" or "wives." The text could refer to: (1) the wives of deacons (their wives); (2) women who serve with men as deacons (the word "their" is not a distinct word in the original Greek); or (3) women who are distinct from the male deacons but who perform similar tasks (sometimes called "deaconesses"). Romans 16:1 refers to Phoebe as a "servant" or "deacon" or "deaconess" (see note on Rom. 16:1).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:12 husband of one wife. See note on vv. 2–3.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:13 good standing. Respect and appreciation from the church. great confidence. Probably refers to the increase in confidence that comes from seeing the power of the gospel regularly proven in ministry.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:14–16 Purpose of Writing: Behavior in the Church. Paul states the purpose of his letter and reveals its central focus. How one ought to behave in the church summarizes the instructions to groups in the church (2:1–3:13; 5:1–6:2), the instructions to Timothy, and the warnings against false teachers (1:3–20; 4:1–16; 6:3–20). True doctrine leads to right living.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:15 Paul provides one of the key NT descriptions of the church's identity and mission. He often uses household and related words to describe the church and its ministry (see Gal. 6:10; Eph. 2:19; 1 Pet. 4:17). The church is like a family, with similar responsibility and authority. pillar and buttress of the truth. God has given the church the task of sharing and protecting the gospel (that is, "the truth"; see note on 1 Tim. 2:4).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:16 Paul offers a poetic exposition of the gospel—perhaps a hymn—whose source is unknown. mystery of godliness. See note on v. 9. Great indeed, we confess. This introduction may be calling on the Ephesian church to affirm this statement and its doctrinal implications. The basic idea is clear: God the Son has been revealed in human flesh (resulting in the crucifixion, line 1); he was vindicated by the resurrection (line 2); afterward he was seen by angels in victory (line 3); the message of salvation has been proclaimed among the nations, that is, among the Gentiles (line 4); this preaching has been effective (believed on, line 5); taken up (line 6) seems most naturally to refer to the ascension, although chronologically it would precede lines 4 and 5.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:1–5 Identifying the False Teaching. After his celebration of the spread of the gospel (3:16), Paul returns to the false teaching (see ch. 1).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:1 The means by which the Spirit . . . says is not made clear. later times. As is typical in the NT, this is the time that began with the outpouring of the Spirit after the work of Christ. Those who follow the false teaching depart from the faith, so this teaching is outside the bounds of true Christianity.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:2 The consciences of the false teachers have been seared (that is, made insensitive and useless) by their rebellion against the gospel. Compare "good conscience," 1:5.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:3–5 Paul reveals some of the content of the false teaching. Questions about foods and marriage were significant issues elsewhere in Paul's letters (see Romans 14; 1 Cor. 7:25–35; 8:1–10:33; Col. 2:16–23). The false teaching seems to define holiness by what one gives up.

In response, Paul affirms the goodness of everything created by God. God's gifts should be enjoyed (see Eccles. 9:7–9). The word of God is probably a reference to Gen. 1:12, 21, 25, 31 ("God saw that it was good").

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:6–16 How Timothy Should Be Shaped by the Gospel. Paul focuses on how Timothy, by his teaching and lifestyle, can help the church stand against the false teaching.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:6 these things. Refers at least to the preceding paragraph, and possibly to the entire letter. See also 3:14; 4:15; 5:7; 6:2b.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:9 The saying probably refers specifically to the "value" of "godliness" (v. 8).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:10 to this end. The goal of Paul's ministry is that people attain "godliness" and its eternal "value" (v. 8). Toil and strive is typical of Paul's description of gospel ministry (compare 5:17; Rom. 16:6, 12; 1 Cor. 16:16; Gal. 4:11). The statement that God is the Savior of all people, especially of those who believe could seem to teach universalism—that everyone will eventually be saved. However, the rest of Scripture clearly denies this idea (see note on 1 Tim. 2:4). There are several other possible explanations for this phrase: (1) Christ died for all people, but only those who believe in him are saved. (2) Christ is offered to all people, though not all receive him. (3) Christ is the Savior of all people, namely, those who believe. (4) Christ is the helper of all people, taking "Savior," to refer to how God helps and protects people in need. (5) Christ is the Savior of all kinds of people, both Jews and Greeks. In any case, the emphasis is on God's care for the unsaved world. On God as "Savior," see note on 2 Tim. 1:8–10.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:11 these things. See note on v. 6.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:12 your youth. Timothy is young compared to Paul. Scholars estimate Timothy's age to be somewhere from his late 20s to mid-30s, with most favoring the mid-30s. He was an experienced missionary and had served about 15 years with Paul (Acts 16:1–5).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:13 Public reading in the churches points to the authority of Paul's letters. It also assumes they were written to be understood by ordinary believers.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:14 gift. Timothy's calling to and gifting for ministry came from God. God revealed it by prophecy, and it was recognized by the church when the council of elders laid their hands on you. See note on 2 Tim. 1:6.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:15 These things refers to the things commanded in vv. 12–13.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:16 Timothy's perseverance in sound doctrine and practice will save him. That is, it will lead him (and others) to continue in the faith.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:1–6:2a How Specific Groups in the Church Should Be Shaped by the Gospel. "Honor" (5:3, 17; 6:1) connects the three groups mentioned in these verses (widows, elders, masters). There is a progression from "honor" (5:3) to "double honor" (5:17) to "all honor" (6:1). Each paragraph explains what "gospel living" looks like in relation to that particular group.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:1–2 The church is pictured as family (compare 3:4–5, 15). Verse 1 of ch. 5 does not prohibit the correcting of an older man, but teaches that such correction should be done respectfully.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:3–16 Providing for widows was an important role for the church from its earliest days (see Acts 6). This passage identifies which widows the church should support.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:4 Make some return indicates financial support.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:9–10 Having been the wife of one husband is the feminine form of a phrase found in the requirements for overseers and deacons (see note on 3:2–3).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:11–12 desire to marry . . . incur condemnation. These verses may at first appear to condemn remarriage. But v. 14 encourages it (compare 1 Cor. 7:39b). Thus, a different concern must be in view here. Perhaps the widows who are being supported by the church have pledged to remain unmarried. Perhaps younger widows have been tempted to marry unbelievers, thus turning away from the faith. These concerns arise from the fact that "some have already strayed after Satan" (1 Tim. 5:15), so perhaps the second interpretation is most likely.

FACT

Hospitality was encouraged within the early church (5:10). Peter teaches Christians to "show hospitality to one another without grumbling" (1 Pet. 4:9; see Rom. 12:13) The writer of Hebrews even comments that some who offered hospitality actually "entertained angels" without realizing it (Heb. 13:2).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:14 no occasion for slander. Compare 3:7; 5:7, 14; 6:1.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:17–25 Honoring elders includes providing for them financially and being careful in handling accusations against them.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:17 Labor means hard work that makes a person tired (compare "toil," 4:10). Such effort in preaching and teaching calls for double honor. This could include financial support (5:18). "Double" could imply generous provision, or financial provision in addition to proper respect.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:18 muzzle an ox. See Deut. 25:4, which requires an owner to allow an ox to eat of the grain he is grinding. One who works for something should be able to benefit from it. The laborer deserves his wages is a direct quotation from Luke 10:7 (compare Matt. 10:10). Thus, Paul may already be referring to the written records of the statements of Jesus (the Gospels) as Scripture. See 2 Tim. 3:16.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:19 two or three witnesses. Accusations against leaders must be proven (see Deut. 19:15).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:20 The ones to be corrected in the presence of all are elders who persist in sin. Such public correction goes beyond the discipline procedures that apply to other church members (Matt. 18:15–20).

It reassures the congregation that disqualifying sin by an elder will not be covered up. As a result of this public act, the rest will stand in fear of sinning. This refers specifically to “the rest of the elders.” It probably also implies “the rest of the congregation,” since the correction was done “in the presence of all.”

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:21 In the presence of God and of Christ Jesus and of the elect angels. Paul presents this charge (v. 20) as being delivered before the heavenly court. See note on 1 Cor. 11:10.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:22 laying on of hands. Setting aside for service. See 4:14. hasty. Not taking the time to examine the candidates’ lives. take part in the sins of others. If believers rush to appoint someone as an elder, they share responsibility for the elders’ future sin. See note on 5:24.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:23 How this verse connects to the rest of the paragraph is not entirely clear. People concerned with purity often drank only water. Paul makes it clear that there would be nothing wrong with Timothy using a little wine for the sake of his health.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 5:24 Paul returns to exercising care in appointing elders (v. 22). Because some sins . . . appear later, it is important to be patient in choosing potential elders. Time must be allowed for the quality of their lives to become evident.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:1–2a Paul addresses Christian slaves (or “bondservants”; see ESV footnote and note on 1 Cor. 7:21), who may be serving either believing or unbelieving masters. This issue shows up often in the NT (Eph. 6:5–8; Col. 3:22–25; 1 Pet. 2:18–25).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:1 worthy of all honor. See note on 5:1–6:2a. may not be reviled. See 2:2; 3:7; 5:7, 14; see note on Titus 2:5, 8, 10.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:2b–21 Confronting the False Teaching Again. This concluding section is very similar to the opening section (1:3–20). Both include discussion about false teachers (1:3–7, 18–20; 6:2b–10, 20–21). Both contain encouragement for Timothy in light of this false teaching. Both call him to fight the good fight of faith against it (1:18; 6:12). Both contain a blessing (1:17; 6:15–16).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:2b–10 Paul notes the false teachers' greed and their apparent misuse of the faith for material gain.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:2b These things most likely refers to the preceding section of instructions (5:1–6:2a), but it could refer to all that Paul has taught so far in the letter.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:3 sound words of our Lord Jesus Christ. Jesus' teaching and work direct Paul's understanding and application of the gospel.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:5 depraved in mind. The false teachers have faulty reasoning (v. 4; 1:7; 2 Tim. 3:8). Since the gospel is the truth, to deny it is to think in an incorrect way.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:9–10 The desire to be rich leads one to fall into temptation. Love of money has led some to wander away from the faith (see 1:19).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:11–16 Paul contrasts Timothy and the false teachers. True ministry is not motivated by greed. It is motivated by the reality of eternal life and an awareness of accountability to God.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:11–12 Man of God affirms Timothy's authority and contrasts him with the false teachers. "Man of God" is used in the OT to describe a prophet (Deut. 33:1; 1 Sam. 9:6). The call to fight the good fight of the faith and to take hold of the eternal life includes fleeing sin and pursuing virtue (see note on 2 Tim. 2:22).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:13–14 This is another solemn charge (see 5:21 and note). Jesus' good confession before Pontius Pilate (see Matt. 27:11; John 18:37) sets the example for the believer's good confession.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:15–16 Timothy must continue in his work because he knows that one day he will stand before God. Paul stresses God's glory in contrast to the smallness of Timothy's opponents.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:17–19 Paul corrects the false teachers' view of wealth. He stresses that riches are only for "this present age." This focus on using wealth to prepare "for the future" could mean (1) that how people use their wealth demonstrates whether they are saved, or (2) that Paul urges them to care more about eternal riches than earthly riches, or (3) both.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:18 rich in good works. Some rich people may not need to work to earn a living. They may have opportunities to spend their time doing "good works" for others and building up the church.

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:20–21 In this brief closing, Paul repeats his charge to Timothy (1:3–5, 18–20).

1 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 6:20 the deposit entrusted to you. The gospel. what is falsely called "knowledge." The false teaching addressed in the letter. The false teachers' rejection of "the truth" (that is, the gospel; see note on 2:4) means that their teaching cannot be true knowledge.

Author, Date, and Recipient

Paul wrote this second letter to Timothy during his second imprisonment in Rome, shortly before his death. This imprisonment was after the one recorded in Acts 28. He probably wrote it in A.D. 64–65, though some would place it as late as 67.

Theme

Paul gives Timothy a bold, clear call to continue in the gospel despite suffering.

Purpose

Several people have abandoned Paul while he has been in prison, and several others are away on assignments (1:15; 4:9–12). In such a time, Paul's memories of Timothy's sincerity and devotion are especially touching (1:3–5). Paul thinks he will die soon (4:6–8), so he writes this final message to Timothy. Paul urges Timothy to stand firm and asks him to come for one final visit before Paul is executed. Though Paul's death is near, he does not know just when it will come. Paul also asks Timothy to bring his books and parchments, so that he can keep studying and writing until the end.

Second Timothy is very personal. It is a final letter to a close friend and coworker. Paul encourages Timothy to continue in faithfulness and offers his own life as an example for Timothy to follow. What he calls on Timothy to do, he himself has done already.

Key Themes

1. Suffering is part of the Christian experience (1:8, 12; 2:3, 9; 3:11–12; 4:5, 14–18).
2. The Christian response to suffering is steady faith by God’s power (1:8; 2:1, 11–13; 4:1–8).
3. The gospel is the basis for the Christian’s endurance (1:9–11; 2:8–10).
4. The Scriptures have power to save and to preserve (2:15; 3:15–17; 4:1–2).
5. True believers will continue in the faith. Failure to do so proves one is not truly converted (2:11–13, 19; 3:14; 4:7, 10).
6. False teaching is deadly and must be dealt with firmly (2:16–18, 23–26; 3:1–9; 4:3–5).

The Setting of 2 Timothy

c. A.D. 64–67

Paul probably wrote 2 Timothy during a second imprisonment in Rome following a fourth missionary journey that is not recorded in Acts. Expecting that death would come soon, Paul wrote this “farewell” letter to Timothy, who was at Ephesus, urging him to stand firm and asking him to come for one final visit.

The Global Message of 2 Timothy

Paul’s second letter to Timothy is a moving letter of farewell to the young pastor in Ephesus. In it we find a message of tremendous significance for the global church: Christians and especially Christian leaders are called to share in suffering as they hold fast to Scripture and to truth while pursuing godliness and encouraging others to do the same. These three themes—suffering, truth, and godliness—are the themes to which Paul returns throughout this letter.

Second Timothy and Redemptive History

As with all of his letters, Paul speaks into a specific historical situation while bearing in mind the drama of redemption that began in ages past and which will be completed one day, at Christ’s return. Creation, fall, redemption, and consummation form the broad framework that Paul works with as he speaks to specific congregations and to leaders such as Timothy.

Salvation past, present, and future. Speaking of the salvation that has rescued those who trust in Christ, Paul says that God rescued us “because of his own purpose and grace, which he gave us in Christ Jesus before the ages began” (2 Tim. 1:9). Paul then moves from eternity past to the very center point of all history: this “purpose and grace” of God “now has been manifested through the appearing of our Savior Christ Jesus” (1:10). Later in 2 Timothy Paul speaks of Christ’s second coming in the future, referring to Christ as the one “who is to judge the living and the dead” (4:1) and reflecting on the “crown of righteousness” that will be given to Paul “on that Day” (4:8; also 1:18).

A story of redemption. Against the broad backdrop of eternity past, the climactic moment of Christ’s appearing, and the future return of Christ, Paul refers throughout 2 Timothy to the story of redemption. He does this not only by mentioning important figures in the history of redemption such as Moses and the men who opposed him (2 Tim. 3:8), but also by describing the gospel in this way: “Remember Jesus Christ, risen from the dead, the offspring of David” (2:8). Here, in a condensed version of his description of the gospel in Romans 1:1–4, Paul reminds Timothy that Jesus is the long-awaited son of David, who had been promised an eternal throne (see 2 Sam. 7:1–16).

Even in this short, practical epistle about godliness amid suffering, then, Paul presents his remarks against the background of what God has been doing down through history. The ancient promises of a coming Messiah find their fulfillment in Jesus. Hope has dawned in his appearing and kingdom (2 Tim. 4:1). It is as a result of this that Timothy is called to “share in suffering for the gospel by the power of God” (1:8).

Universal Themes in 2 Timothy

Suffering amid faithfulness. Throughout the letter Paul reminds Timothy that suffering is part of the normal Christian life (2 Tim. 1:8; 2:3; 3:12; 4:5). The apostle reminds young Timothy that he is called to endure such suffering faithfully by God’s grace and power (1:8–9; 2:1, 11–13). The adversity that comes in the normal course of Christian living is not abnormal (3:12; Acts 14:22). As Christians around the world face different kinds of hardship due to their loyalty to Christ, they should remember that they are identifying with the Savior himself, who suffered faithfully on our behalf. Indeed, suffering for the sake of Christ is one of God’s primary ways of spreading the good news (2 Tim. 2:8–10).

Especially poignant are Paul’s repeated words about those who have forsaken him and those who have stood by him. Everyone in Asia has deserted Paul, as has Demas (2 Tim. 1:15; 4:10). Crescens and Titus have left (4:10). Only Onesiphorus stood by Paul in Rome (1:16–18), and now only Luke is with him (4:11). The suffering of the Christian and especially the Christian leader includes the suffering of loneliness despite faithfulness.

Truth and doctrine. Throughout 2 Timothy, Paul refers to “the truth” (2 Tim. 2:15, 18, 25; 3:7, 8; 4:4). He charges Timothy to guard the “deposit” that has been entrusted to him, referring to the gospel as the message that sums up the entire Christian faith (1:14). The apostle clearly views orthodox doctrine that preserves the gospel to be crucial to the life of the church. As believers around the world come into contact with various ideas and worldviews, these must all be tested against the Word of God (see also Acts 17:11; 1 Thess. 5:21). True doctrine matters because it is through truth that we come to see Jesus himself in full clarity.

Wise use of our words. Timothy receives various exhortations from Paul regarding how he can lead God’s people wisely. Today’s leaders in the church can learn from this. Paul especially speaks to Timothy about the use of the tongue, warning him of the danger of being swept up in fruitless arguments and discussions (2 Tim. 2:14–19, 23–26; 4:1–5). Instead, in faith and love (1:13), Timothy must kindly yet firmly correct his opponents (2:24–25). He must “reprove, rebuke, and exhort, with complete patience” (4:2). Amid the many cultural differences that exist across the global church, not least concerning language, a universal key to healthy church life is wise use of the tongue.

As the global church submits itself quietly to the penetrating words of 2 Timothy, we will be chastened and strengthened.

The resounding theme of this letter is that Jesus Christ is our secure Rock, whatever happens to us circumstantially—in the governments of the world, in the volatile economic systems, in the flood of worldliness that threatens to overwhelm our families and those dearest to us. Christian pastors and leaders especially are reminded that the great cause they are a part of is an invincible one. The victory is sure, for “the word of God is not bound!” (2 Tim. 2:9). Jesus has “abolished death and brought life and immortality to light” (1:10). God’s leaders can be strengthened by grace (2:1) through the power of the Holy Spirit (1:14) as they are fixed on the Word of God (3:16–17).

As the global church engages for Christ’s sake with the fallenness of our world, we take the hope of 2 Timothy with us. In working to promote the sanctity of life and the dignity of the individual created in God’s image, we remember that if we endure, we will one day reign with Jesus over the whole earth (2 Tim. 2:12). In seeking to comfort the bereaved and shelter the homeless and feed the poor and resolve conflict both locally and internationally, we look forward confidently to “the crown of righteousness” which God will award to his faithful saints one day soon (4:8). Above all, in pursuing godliness and commending it to others, especially through the hard words of reproof and exhortation that are sometimes necessary, we know that God will preserve us “from every evil deed and bring [us] safely into his heavenly kingdom” (4:18).

God reigns. His kingdom has dawned (2 Tim. 4:1). We take heart, remember the gospel, and get to work.

Greeting

2 TIMOTHY 1 [†]Paul, [a]an apostle of Christ Jesus [b]by the will of God according to [c]the promise of the life that is in Christ Jesus,

2To Timothy, [d]my beloved child:

[e]Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

Guard the Deposit Entrusted to You

3[†][f]I thank God [g]whom I serve, as did my ancestors, [h]with a clear conscience, as I remember you [i]constantly in my prayers night and day. 4[j]As I remember your tears, [k]I long to see you, that I may be filled with joy. 5I am reminded of [l]your sincere faith, a faith that dwelt first in your grandmother Lois and [m]your mother Eunice and now, I am sure, dwells in you as well. 6[†]For this reason I remind you [n]to fan into flame the gift of God, which is in you through the laying on of my hands, 7[†]for God gave us [o]a spirit not of fear but [p]of power and love and self-control.

8[†]Therefore [q]do not be ashamed of [r]the testimony about our Lord, nor of [s]me his prisoner, but [t]share in suffering for the gospel by the power of God, 9[u]who saved us and [v]called us to [1] a holy calling, [w]not because of our works but because of [v]his own purpose and grace, which he gave us in Christ Jesus [x]before the ages began, [2] 10and which now has [y]been manifested through [z]the appearing of our Savior Christ Jesus, [a]who abolished death and [b]brought life and [c]immortality to light through the gospel, 11[d]for which I was appointed a preacher and apostle and teacher, 12[†][e]which is why I suffer as I do. But [f]I am not ashamed, for [g]I know whom I have believed, and I am convinced that he is able to guard until [h]that Day [i]what has been entrusted to me. [3] 13[†][j]Follow [k]the pattern of [l]the sound [4] words [m]that you have heard from me, in [n]the faith and love that are in Christ Jesus. 14[†]By the Holy Spirit [o]who dwells within us, guard [i]the good deposit entrusted to you.

15[†]You are aware that [p]all who are in Asia turned away from me, among whom are Phygelus and Hermogenes. 16May the Lord grant mercy to [q] the household of Onesiphorus, for he often [r] refreshed me and was not ashamed of [s] my chains, [17]but when he arrived in Rome [t] he searched for me earnestly and found me— [18][†]may the Lord grant him to find mercy from the Lord on [u] that Day!—and you well know all the service he [v] rendered at Ephesus.

A Good Soldier of Christ Jesus

2 TIMOTHY 2 You then, [w] my child, [x] be strengthened by the grace that is in Christ Jesus, [2][†]and [y] what you have heard from me in the presence of many witnesses [z] entrust to faithful men [1] [a] who will be able to teach others also. [3] [b] Share in suffering as [c] a good soldier of Christ Jesus. [4][†]No soldier [d] gets entangled in civilian pursuits, since his aim is to please the one who enlisted him. [5] [e] An athlete is not [f] crowned unless he competes according to the rules. [6]It is [g] the hard-working farmer who ought to have the first share of the crops. [7][†]Think over what I say, for the Lord will give you understanding in everything.

[8][†]Remember Jesus Christ, [h] risen from the dead, the [i] offspring of David, [j] as preached in my gospel, [9] [k] for which I am suffering, [l] bound with chains as a criminal. But [m] the word of God is not bound! [10][†]Therefore [n] I endure everything for the sake of the elect, that they also may obtain [o] the salvation that is in Christ Jesus with [p] eternal glory. [11][†]The saying is [q] trustworthy, for:

[r] If we have died with him, we will also [s] live with him;
12 [t] if we endure, we will also reign with him;
[u] if we deny him, he also will deny us;
13 [v] if we are faithless, [w] he remains faithful—for [x] he cannot deny himself.

A Worker Approved by God

[14][†]Remind them of these things, and [y] charge them before God [2] [z] not to quarrel about words, [a] which does no good, but only ruins the hearers.

15[†]Do your best to present yourself to God as one approved, [3] a worker [b] who has no need to be ashamed, rightly handling the word of truth. 16But [c] avoid [d] irreverent babble, for it will lead people into more and more ungodliness, 17[†]and their talk will spread like gangrene. Among them are [e] Hymenaeus and Philetus, 18[†]who have swerved from the truth, [f] saying that the resurrection has already happened. They are upsetting the faith of some. 19[†]But God's firm foundation stands, bearing this seal: [g] "The Lord knows those who are his," and, "Let everyone [h] who names the name of the Lord depart from iniquity."

20[†]Now in [i] a great house there are not only vessels of gold and silver but also of wood and clay, [j] some for honorable use, some for dishonorable. 21Therefore, [k] if anyone cleanses himself from what is dishonorable, [4] he will be a vessel for honorable use, set apart as holy, useful to the master of the house, [l] ready for every good work.

22[†]So [m] flee [n] youthful passions and pursue righteousness, faith, love, and peace, along with [o] those who call on the Lord [p] from a pure heart. 23Have nothing to do with foolish, ignorant [q] controversies; you know that they breed quarrels. 24[†]And [r] the Lord's servant [5] must not be quarrelsome but [s] kind to everyone, [t] able to teach, patiently enduring evil, 25[†]correcting his opponents [u] with gentleness. God [v] may perhaps grant them repentance [w] leading to a knowledge of the truth, 26[†]and they may come to their senses and escape from [x] the snare of the devil, after being captured by him to do his will.

Godlessness in the Last Days

2 TIMOTHY 3 [†]But understand this, that [y] in the last days there will come times of difficulty. 2[†]For people will be [z] lovers of self, [a] lovers of money, [b] proud, [b] arrogant, abusive, [b] disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, 3 [c] heartless, unappeasable, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, [d] not loving good, 4treacherous, reckless, [e] swollen with conceit, [f] lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, 5[†]having the appearance of godliness, but [g] denying its power. [h] Avoid such people. 6[†]For among them are [i] those who creep into households and capture weak women, burdened with sins and led astray by various passions, [7]always learning and never able to [j]arrive at a knowledge of the truth. [8][†]Just as [k]Jannes and Jambres [l]opposed Moses, so these men also oppose the truth, [m]men corrupted in mind and [n]disqualified regarding the faith. [9]But they will not get very far, for their folly will be plain to all, [o]as was that of those two men.

All Scripture Is Breathed Out by God

[10][†][p]You, however, have followed my teaching, my conduct, my aim in life, my faith, my patience, my love, my steadfastness, [11][†]my persecutions and sufferings that happened to me [q]at Antioch, [r]at Iconium, and [s]at Lystra—which persecutions I endured; yet [t]from them all [u]the Lord rescued me. [12]Indeed, all who desire to [v]live a godly life in Christ Jesus [w]will be persecuted, [13]while [x]evil people and impostors will go on from bad to worse, deceiving and [y]being deceived. [14][†]But as for you, [z]continue in what you have learned and have firmly believed, knowing from whom [1] you learned it [15][†]and how [a]from childhood you have been acquainted with [b]the sacred writings, [c]which are able to make you wise for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. [16][†][d]All Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, [17]that [e]the man of God [2] may be complete, [f]equipped [g]for every good work.

Preach the Word

2 TIMOTHY 4 [†][h]I charge you in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, [i]who is to judge the living and the dead, and by [j]his appearing and his kingdom: [2][†]preach the word; be ready in season and out of season; [k]reprove, rebuke, and [l]exhort, with complete patience and teaching. [3][†][m]For the time is coming when people will not endure [n]sound [1] teaching, but having itching ears they will accumulate for themselves teachers to suit their own passions, [4][†]and [o]will turn away from listening to the truth and [p]wander off into myths. [5][†]As for you, [q]always be sober-minded, [r]endure suffering, do the work of [s]an evangelist, [t]fulfill your ministry.

[6][†]For [u]I am already being poured out as a drink offering, and the time of my [v]departure has come. [7][†] [w]I have fought the good fight, [x]I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. [8][†]Henceforth there is [y]laid up for me [z]the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, [a]the righteous judge, will award to me on [b]that Day, and not only to me but also to all [c]who have loved his appearing.

Personal Instructions

[9][†] [d]Do your best to come to me soon. [10][†]For [e]Demas, [f]in love with [g]this present world, [h]has deserted me and gone to Thessalonica. Crescens has gone to Galatia, [2] [i]Titus to Dalmatia. [11][†] [h]Luke alone is with me. Get [j]Mark and bring him with you, for he is very useful to me for ministry. [12] [k]Tychicus I have sent to Ephesus. [13][†]When you come, bring the cloak that I left with Carpus at Troas, also the books, and above all the parchments. [14][†] [l]Alexander the coppersmith did me great harm; [m]the Lord will repay him according to his deeds. [15]Beware of him yourself, for he strongly opposed our message. [16][†]At my first defense no one came to stand by me, but all deserted me. [n]May it not be charged against them! [17][†]But [o]the Lord stood by me and [p]strengthened me, so that through me the message might be fully proclaimed and [q]all the Gentiles might hear it. So [r]I was rescued [s]from the lion's mouth. [18][†]The Lord will rescue me from every evil deed and bring me safely into his heavenly kingdom. [t]To him be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

Final Greetings

[19][†]Greet [u]Prisca and Aquila, and [v]the household of Onesiphorus. [20]Erastus remained at Corinth, and I left [w]Trophimus, who was ill, at Miletus. [21][†] [x]Do your best to come before winter. Eubulus sends greetings to you, as do Pudens and Linus and Claudia and all the brothers. [3]

[22][†]The Lord be [y]with your spirit. [z]Grace be with you. [4]

Study Notes for 2 Timothy

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:1–2 Opening. Paul begins this letter in his standard way. As he awaits death, he reminds Timothy that the purpose of his work as an apostle has been to proclaim the gospel, the promise of the life that is in Christ Jesus.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:3–2:13 Enduring for the Gospel. Paul's thanksgiving (1:3–5) leads to encouraging Timothy (1:6–14; 2:1–13). In between, he provides positive and negative examples of faithfulness in gospel service (1:15–18). Facing his own death, Paul urges Timothy to continue in faithfulness in spite of hardship.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:3–5 Paul thanks God for Timothy. Paul notes that both he (my ancestors) and Timothy (your grandmother . . . your mother) have a heritage of faith.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:6–14 Paul challenges Timothy to continue following in his footsteps (compare 3:10–11).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:6 fan into flame the gift of God. Paul does not explain what this gift is (see note on 1 Tim. 4:14), but Timothy is to grow and strengthen it. The laying on of my hands may refer to Timothy's ordination. Paul was probably part of "the council of elders" mentioned in 1 Tim. 4:14.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:7 spirit. Probably the Holy Spirit.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:8–10 These verses summarize the gospel for which God's servants suffer. Paul clearly believes that such a glorious message is worthy of their suffering. God, who saved us . . . our Savior Christ Jesus. Paul often describes both God the Father and God the Son as Saviors of their people (compare 1 Tim. 1:1; Titus 1:3–4; 2:13 [and note]).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:12 Paul suffers because of his current imprisonment and approaching death. what has been entrusted to me. Either the gospel, which God entrusted to Paul, or Paul's life ("what I have entrusted to him," see ESV footnote). Either way, this confidence in God prevents Paul from being ashamed. See note on v. 14. until that Day. See v. 18; 4:8; Heb. 10:25; and notes on Amos 5:18–20; 1 Thess. 5:2–3.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:13 sound words. Jesus' teaching and work direct Paul's understanding and application of the gospel.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:14 the good deposit entrusted to you. The gospel in the fullest sense, that is, the entire content of the Christian faith.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:15 Asia was the Roman province in which Ephesus, Timothy's current place of service, was located. all . . . turned away from me. Key people who could have supported Paul failed to do so. It seemed as if "all" had deserted him (compare 4:16). There is no further information about Phygelus and Hermogenes. These details of Paul's situation help explain why Timothy, the faithful one, was such a source of joy for Paul (see 1:3–5).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 1:18 that Day. See note on v. 12.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:2 what you have heard from me. Throughout this letter, Paul emphasizes the message Timothy received from him (see 1:13; 2:8).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:4 This verse has at times been misinterpreted as a call away from "secular," civilian pursuits. The Bible, however, does not separate life into "spiritual" and "secular" areas. All of life is to be lived in obedience to the Spirit according to the Word of God. Paul is warning Timothy not to allow anything to distract him from his task.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:7 Think . . . for the Lord will give you understanding. The believer's efforts and God's empowering work together.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:8 Remember Jesus Christ. Paul certainly doesn't think that Timothy is in danger of forgetting Jesus! Rather, this is a call to remain mindful of the gospel message.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:10 endure everything. Paul suffered persecution, hunger, and prison to preach the gospel. for the sake of the elect. For those God saves. See notes on Rom. 8:29; 8:30; Eph. 1:11.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:11–13 In this context, to deny Christ means a final rejection of him. This is not merely a temporary lapse in one's faith (if we are faithless).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:14–3:9 Dealing with False Teachers. These verses divide into two sections. In 2:14–26 Paul introduces the false teaching (2:16) and explains how Timothy should respond to it. In 3:1–9 he describes the false teachers in more detail. Having called Timothy to continued endurance (1:3–2:13), Paul addresses the problem of false teaching directly.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:14 Remind them. To this point Timothy has been the one who must "remember" (v. 8). Now Paul shifts to Timothy's role in reminding the people under his care. not to quarrel about words. Paul is clearly willing to argue when the gospel is at stake (e.g., Gal. 2:11). What he prohibits here is pointless argument that has no positive, practical impact on people (see 2 Tim. 2:16–17).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:15 Do your best. Timothy must consistently and happily carry out the work God has given him to do. One way to do this is to make sure he is rightly handling Scripture. This contrasts with the meaningless disputes the false teachers engage in.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:17 spread like gangrene. This phrase pictures the false teaching killing as it spreads. This is in contrast to the "healthy" or "sound" teaching of Paul (see note on 1 Tim. 1:10; also 2 Tim. 4:3; Titus 1:9). Hymenaeus was mentioned as a false teacher in 1 Tim. 1:20. Philetus is not mentioned elsewhere.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:18 The idea that the resurrection has already happened seems similar to some errors Paul addresses in 1 Corinthians 15 (see especially 1 Cor. 15:12–20). Apparently some were teaching that believers had already entered the glorified post-resurrection state.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:19 God's firm foundation. Probably the elect members of the church; see v. 10. bearing this seal. See note on John 6:27. The twofold inscription that follows emphasizes (1) divine sovereignty (preserving) and (2) human responsibility (persevering).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:20–21 Paul illustrates his call to "depart from iniquity" (v. 19). What is dishonorable includes both doctrinal and moral error, since Paul discusses both in this letter.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:22 youthful passions. Not only sinful sexual desire but sinful desires in general, especially those characteristic of youth. One of these might be the tendency to quarrel or be hotheaded (vv. 23–25). Christians need not fight such battles alone, but along with other believers.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:24–26 This is a key passage on how pastors should handle people who make trouble in the church.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:24 Servant is the common word for "slave" or "bondservant." Paul also uses it to refer to those who, like himself, preach the gospel (Rom. 1:1).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:25 Most interpreters see these opponents as unbelievers who do not have a knowledge of the truth (that is, salvation; see note on 1 Tim. 2:4). Paul advises correcting the opponents in a spirit of gentleness (Gal. 6:1; Eph. 4:2; 1 Pet. 3:15). This verse further emphasizes the sovereignty of God in granting repentance.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 2:26 come to their senses. Sin has a destructive effect on human reason. Salvation restores the ability to see reality. the snare of the devil. Paul often describes humanity as enslaved by the devil and in need of rescue (see 2 Cor. 4:4).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:1 last days. As Acts 2:17 indicates, "the last days" began with the coming of the Spirit at Pentecost (see note on 1 Tim. 4:1). Thus Paul's prediction of times of difficulty that will occur in "the last days" is already beginning to be fulfilled.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:2–5 This list of vices vividly describes the negative impact of those who were opposing Paul and Timothy. The list begins and ends with references to misplaced love.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:5 Avoid such people. Do not allow them to be part of the church or support their ministries. Unlike those discussed in 2:25–26, the people described here (3:2–5) remain stubborn in their sin.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:6 women, burdened with sins. These women carry guilt from their past. Some seek self-cleansing. They are vulnerable to false teaching about self-denial (see 1 Tim. 4:3). Others seek to justify their behavior. They are vulnerable to false teaching that says that sin is acceptable (see 2 Tim. 3:2–4).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:8 Jannes and Jambres are the names given in early extrabiblical Jewish writings to the Egyptian magicians who opposed Moses in Ex. 7:8–13. In these writings, these men symbolize opposition to God's truth. corrupted in mind. Again false teaching is considered bad thinking (see note on 2 Tim. 2:26). disqualified regarding the faith. In spite of their claims, these people do not have saving faith. They oppose the gospel in their teaching and in their living (see Titus 1:16).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:10–4:8 Contrasting Timothy with False Teachers. Paul tells Timothy how to resist the false teachers and remain faithful to the gospel.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:10–17 This paragraph opens with a clear, strong contrast: "You, however." The false teachers live and teach one way (vv. 1–9). Paul gives Timothy a totally different pattern to follow. See note on Phil. 3:17.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:11 Antioch, Iconium, and Lystra are cities Paul visited on his first missionary journey (Acts 13–14). Timothy joined him during his second journey (Acts 16:1). Lystra was Timothy's hometown (Acts 16:1–2), so he probably knew of the sufferings that Paul had experienced there on this first journey. From them all the Lord rescued me does not mean that God kept Paul from experiencing any harm. In Lystra he was stoned and left for dead (Acts 14:19–20). Paul probably means that the Lord preserved him from death and kept him faithful even in suffering. See 2 Tim. 4:18.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:14 from whom you learned. This could refer to Paul. It may also refer back to Timothy's mother and grandmother (1:5; see ESV footnote on 3:14).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:15 to make you wise for salvation. Scripture can lead to the "knowledge of the truth" (2:25; 1 Tim. 2:4). It has the power to bring its readers to faith (see James 1:18; 1 Pet. 1:23). False teaching leads only to useless arguments and ungodliness.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 3:16 All Scripture, as Paul uses the term here, would include all of the OT and at least some NT writings, which by this time were already considered Scripture (see 1 Tim. 5:18 and note; 2 Pet. 3:15–16 and note). Breathed out by God translates a Greek word that does not occur in any known Greek text (biblical or otherwise) prior to this letter. Some suggest that Paul invented this term from words meaning "God" and "breathed." This is certainly possible. The term stresses the divine origin and thus the authority of Scripture. Paul says that the writings themselves are the words spoken ("breathed out") by God. The opponents of Paul and Timothy stressed certain aspects or portions of Scripture (such as genealogies, 1 Tim. 1:4; see Titus 3:9). Paul stresses the authority of all Scripture. The divine origin of Scripture is the reason for its power to convert (2 Tim. 3:15) and its usefulness in training (v. 17).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:1 Paul reminds Timothy that Christ is the one who will judge him, and that Christ will certainly return (his appearing). Christ's kingdom is the ultimate reality with which Timothy should be concerned.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:2 Preach the word refers back to "Scripture" (3:16). The gospel is proclaimed by explaining the Scriptures. in season and out of season. When it is convenient and when it is inconvenient. Reprove, rebuke, and exhort means communicating all that Scripture includes—doctrine, instruction, correction, and encouragement.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:3 the time is coming. Paul is not referring to some time in the distant future. He means a situation he expects Timothy to face or to be already facing (see 3:1; 1 Tim. 4:1–3). Itching ears indicates a desire for unusual teaching. People with "itching ears" seek teachers who will tell them what they want to hear (to suit their own passions).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:4 myths. See note on 1 Tim. 1:4.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:5 The role of evangelist is not clearly explained in Scripture. Paul instructs Timothy in terms of the "gospel" (see 1:8, 10; 2:8). This certainly includes preaching to the unconverted. However, Paul does not typically distinguish between evangelism and discipling.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:6 a drink offering. Paul describes his death in OT sacrificial language (compare Gen. 35:14; Ex. 29:40–41). This suggests he sees himself as laying down his life for the sake of the gospel. However, the use of the passive voice (I am . . . being poured out) stresses that it is God who is acting here.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:7 I have fought the good fight. Using athletic imagery (as is typical of Paul; see 1 Cor. 9:24–27; Phil. 3:14), he states that he has dedicated himself to the one thing worth dying for, the gospel mission. There is no claim of personal glory here. Paul is grateful that he has finally completed the course God set for him (see Acts 20:24). By God's grace, he has done what he encourages Timothy to do (2 Tim. 4:5).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:8 crown of righteousness. One interpretation is that this means "the crown that consists of righteousness," referring to the final righteous state of believers. Another interpretation is "the crown that is the reward for righteousness," that is, a victory crown. This agrees with Matt. 5:12; 10:41–42; 1 Cor. 3:14; Heb. 11:26; 2 John 8. all who have loved his appearing. All true believers, who eagerly await Christ's return (see Titus 2:13; contrast Demas, 2 Tim. 4:10).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:9–22 Conclusion. Paul closes with some final comments concerning travel, and greetings. The key themes of the letter continue even here.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:10 Paul is persevering despite suffering (1:11–12; 2:8–13) because he has an eternal perspective (4:6–8). Demas (see Col. 4:14; Philem. 24) abandoned Paul because he loved this present world.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:11 Despite his earlier problem with Mark (Acts 15:36–40), Paul now desires Mark's presence and considers him useful . . . for ministry. Clearly, Mark has become a faithful and effective pioneer missionary.

JOHN MARK

John Mark was probably Barnabas's cousin (Col. 4:10). The early church at Jerusalem met at the home of his mother, Mary (Acts 12:12). He accompanied Paul and Barnabas on their first missionary journey, but then chose to leave them. As a result, Paul refused to take him along on his second expedition. However, it seems that Mark eventually regained Paul's favor (2 Tim. 4:11). He ultimately demonstrated his effectiveness and commitment as a missionary pioneer and as the author of the Gospel of Mark. He was closely associated with the apostle Peter, who refers to Mark as his "son" (1 Pet. 5:13). (2 Timothy 4:11)

---

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:13 cloak. A heavy coat that would be especially important in the winter (see v. 21). books. Scrolls made of papyrus. The papyrus scrolls may have included writing materials, official documents, or Paul's personal correspondence. parchments. Vellum sheets made of animal skins. The parchments probably would have been books of some kind.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:14 Alexander. It is unclear whether this is the same Alexander mentioned in 1 Tim. 1:20. If he is the same person, he may still have been in Ephesus causing trouble. However, Alexander is identified as a coppersmith. There is evidence of coppersmiths in Troas, so this may be a different man living in Troas. This would explain his mention here after Paul has asked Timothy to collect his cloak in Troas (2 Tim. 4:13).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:16 first defense. Paul's preliminary hearing before Caesar during his second imprisonment. May it not be charged against them! Paul forgives those who abandoned him.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:17 Deliverance from the lion's mouth was a common biblical metaphor for rescue from great danger (see Ps. 22:21; Dan. 6:22; Heb. 11:33). For Paul it means that he was not put to death at that time (2 Tim. 4:16).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:18 will rescue me. An assurance of ultimate well-being, not an assurance of release from his present danger (compare Luke 21:16–19). Paul expects execution, but even through death God will bring him safely into his heavenly kingdom.

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:19 Prisca (a variant of Priscilla) and Aquila are often mentioned in connection with Paul (Acts 18:2, 18, 26).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:21 Travel in the Mediterranean basically stopped during winter due to dangerous conditions by land and sea. If his trip to Rome was not completed before then, Timothy would not be able to come "soon" (v. 9).

2 TIMOTHY—NOTE ON 4:22 be with your spirit. Paul uses this language also in Gal. 6:18; Phil. 4:23; and Philem. 25. He uses "be with you" in Rom. 16:20; 1 Cor. 16:23; 2 Cor. 13:14; 1 Thess. 5:28. The meaning is the same.

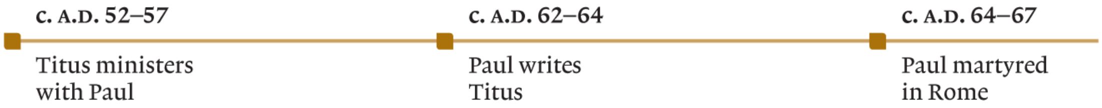
Introduction to Titus

Introduction to Titus

Timeline



Author, Date, and Recipient

The apostle Paul wrote this letter to his coworker Titus. The letter was probably written in the mid-60s A.D. between Paul's first imprisonment (Acts 28) and his second imprisonment, which is not mentioned in Acts.

Theme

The letter's theme is the unbreakable link between faith and practice, belief and behavior. This truth is the basis for Paul's criticism of false teaching, his instruction in Christian living, and standards he sets for church leaders.

Purpose

Paul had recently completed a journey to Crete. He had left Titus there to teach the new church (see Acts 14:21–23).

False teachers were already a problem in the church (Titus 1:10–16), and the letter focuses primarily on that issue. The description of elders (1:5–9) and of proper Christian living (2:1–10; 3:1–3) appear to be worded for intentional contrast with these false teachers. The content of the false teaching is not fully explained (as in 1 Timothy). There appears to be a significant Jewish element to the teaching. The opponents come from "the circumcision party" (Titus 1:10). They are interested in "Jewish myths" (1:14) and perhaps ritual purity (1:15). Paul's primary concern, however, is with the practical effect of the false teaching. They taught ritual purity, but they lived in a way that proved they did not know God (1:16).

This false teaching would have been welcome in Crete, which was known in the ancient world for immorality. But Paul expected the gospel to produce real godliness in everyday life, even in Crete.

In dealing with the false teaching, Paul also provides Titus with a portrait of a healthy church. He describes proper leadership (1:5–9), proper handling of error (1:10–16; 3:9–11), proper Christian living (especially important for new believers in an immoral setting; 2:1–10; 3:1–2), and the gospel as the source of godliness (2:11–14; 3:3–7).

Key Themes

1. The gospel produces godliness in the lives of believers. There is no legitimate separation between belief and behavior (1:1; 2:1, 11–14; 3:4–7).
2. One’s deeds will either prove or disprove one’s claim to know God (1:16).
3. It is vitally important to have godly men serving as elders/pastors (1:5–9).
4. True Christian living will draw others to the gospel (2:5, 8, 10).
5. Good works have an important place in the lives of believers (2:1–10, 14; 3:1–2, 8, 14).
6. It is important to deal clearly and firmly with doctrinal and moral error in the church (1:10–16; 3:9–11).
7. The gospel is the basis for Christian ethics (2:11–14; 3:3–7).

Outline

I. Opening (1:1–4)
II. The Occasion: The Need for Proper Leadership (1:5–9)
III. The Problem: False Teachers (1:10–16)
IV. Christian Living in Contrast to the False Teachers (2:1–3:8)
V. The Problem Restated: False Teachers (3:9–11)
VI. Closing Encouragement (3:12–15)

The Setting of Titus

c. A.D. 62–64

Paul likely wrote Titus during a fourth missionary journey not recorded in the book of Acts. Writing from an unknown location, he instructed Titus in how to lead the churches on the island of Crete. The churches there had apparently been founded by Paul.

The Global Message of Titus

The message of Titus is that sound teaching leads to godliness. As authentic apostolic doctrine is received and loved, all kinds of people will learn to live in ways that are pleasing to God—from those currently enmeshed in false teaching to those who are elders and overseers of the church.

Titus and Redemptive History

In Titus as in 1 and 2 Timothy, Paul speaks of Christian salvation as "appearing" (Titus 2:11, 13; 3:4; 1 Tim. 6:14; 2 Tim. 1:10; 4:1, 8). This is one way Paul speaks of the coming of Jesus into this world as the Savior of God's people.

Yet Paul speaks of Christ's coming not as some kind of isolated event but as the climactic moment of all of human history. In the opening verses of Titus, Paul says that God promised eternal life "before the ages began" (Titus 1:2; literally, "before times eternal"). Then he speaks of the grace of God appearing and "bringing salvation for all people" (2:11). Here we see a reference to Christ's first coming. We also see once more that the gospel is a message "for all people."

Paul then goes on to say that, while Christ's first coming trains us to live in godliness in the present, we are "waiting for our blessed hope, the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior Jesus Christ" (Titus 2:13). Here Paul speaks of Christ's "appearing" as still being in one sense a future event, that is, a second coming.

In Titus, then, Paul addresses a specific historical context against the broad background of a history of redemption that stretches from eternity past all the way forward to Christ's second coming. Of particular importance to the apostle is that the salvation that has appeared in Christ is for all people.

Universal Themes in Titus

Doctrine fuels godliness. Right at the start of his letter, in the greeting, Paul underscores that doctrinal truth leads to godly living. He says he is an apostle for the sake of believers' "knowledge of the truth, which accords with godliness" (Titus 1:1). Throughout the letter Paul comes back to this theme. It is especially striking when Paul exhorts Titus to “teach what accords with sound doctrine” (2:1), for Paul does not then launch into a series of teachings about theology; rather, he speaks of godly behavior: “Older men are to be sober-minded, dignified, self-controlled, sound in faith, in love . . .” (2:2). The church today is reminded that orthodox doctrine is crucial, yet orthodoxy is not an end in itself but is for the sake of making us more godly.

Qualifications for church leadership. In the first chapter of his letter to Titus, Paul carefully lays out the qualifications for church leadership. He lists the virtues that must be present in those who are elders (or overseers) of the church. As Christians from all around the world hear these instructions today, we should note that none of the virtues Paul lists are culturally conditioned and none relate only to specific ethnic groups: these character traits are marks of godliness to be cultivated in the lives of all God’s people. And, says Paul, they should be most clearly on display among church leaders.

Grace and obedience. The letter to Titus contains two of the Bible’s most magnificent statements concerning the salvation God has accomplished through Jesus Christ (Titus 2:11–14; 3:4–7). Indeed, Titus 3:4–7 may be the most effective summary of salvation in the entire New Testament. At the same time, while affirming that believers are saved “not because of works done by us” (3:5), few New Testament letters contain such frequent exhortations to good works (2:7, 14; 3:8, 14; see also 1:16). The fact that we have been saved by grace alone through faith alone does not cancel out the need to work hard at showing God’s love in our lives. Rather, it is the grace of the gospel that makes possible, and motivates, such lives of sincere love.

The Global Message of Titus for Today

The letter to Titus gives the church a rich theology of the gospel of grace for all people, connecting this gospel with the good works that must shine forth in the lives of Christians.

While it is utterly apart from moral goodness that we are saved—we are sinful, and Jesus Christ alone has fully redeemed us from the curse of sin and death—this salvation is not meant to be a blessing that terminates with us. Salvation is meant to result in beautiful, sacrificial living. Paul closes his letter by remarking, “And let our people learn to devote themselves to good works, so as to help cases of urgent need” (Titus 3:14).

As the church seeks to be true disciples of Christ in the various corners of the world in which God has placed us, we will find many opportunities to help those in “urgent need.” The unborn and others not able to defend themselves must be defended by Christians, who understand that all humans are made in God’s image and that human life therefore has intrinsic worth and dignity. The scarcity in some parts of the world of such basic needs as clean water prompts those who have been saved by God’s matchless compassion to extend compassion to others, by laboring to supply these needs. As Christians come into contact with others who are mired in sin, our response cannot be one of judgment and condemnation, for we too are sinners who have been saved by grace rather than being judged and condemned.

In these ways and a thousand more, we are freed to serve those around us with the mercy we ourselves have been shown. Paul’s letter to Titus summons us to a life of self-giving love as we walk with Jesus, “who gave himself for us to redeem us from all lawlessness and to purify for himself a people for his own possession who are zealous for good works” (Titus 2:14).

Greeting

TITUS 1 [†]Paul, a servant [1] of God and [a]an apostle of Jesus Christ, for the sake of the faith of God’s elect and [b]their knowledge of the truth, [c]which accords with godliness, [2][†] [d]in hope of eternal life, which God, [e]who never lies, [f]promised [g]before the ages began [2] [3]and [h]at the proper time manifested in his word [i]through the preaching [j]with which I have been entrusted [k]by the command of God our Savior;

[4]To Titus, [l]my true child in [m]a common faith:

[n]Grace and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Savior.

Qualifications for Elders

[5][†] [o]This is why I left you in Crete, so that you might put what remained into order, and [p]appoint elders in every town as I directed you— [6][†] [q]if anyone is above reproach, the husband of one wife, [3] and his children are believers [4] and not open to the charge of [r]debauchery or insubordination. [7]For an overseer, [5] [s]as God’s steward, must be above reproach. He must not [t]be arrogant or quick-tempered or a drunkard or violent [u]or greedy for gain, [8]but hospitable, a lover of good, self-controlled, upright, holy, [v]and disciplined. [9][†]He must [w]hold firm to the trustworthy word as taught, so that he may be able to give instruction in [x]sound [6] doctrine and also to rebuke those who contradict it.

[10][†]For there are many who are insubordinate, [y]empty talkers and deceivers, especially those of [z]the circumcision party. [7] [11][†]They must be silenced, since [a]they are upsetting whole families by teaching [b]for shameful gain what they ought not to teach. [12][†] [c]One of the Cretans, [8] a prophet of their own, said, “Cretans are always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons.” [9] [13]This testimony is true. Therefore [d]rebuke them [e]sharply, that they [f]may be sound in the faith, [14][†] [g]not devoting themselves to Jewish myths and [h]the commands of people [i]who turn away from the truth. [15][†] [j]To the pure, all things are pure, but to the defiled and [k]unbelieving, nothing is pure; but both [l]their minds and their consciences are defiled. [16] [m]They profess to know God, but they [n]deny him by their works. They are detestable, disobedient, [o]unfit for any good work.

Teach Sound Doctrine

TITUS 2 [†]But as for you, teach what accords with [p]sound [1] doctrine. [2]Older men are to be sober-minded, dignified, self-controlled, [p]sound in faith, in love, and in steadfastness. [3][†] [q]Older women likewise are to be reverent in behavior, [r]not slanderers [s]or slaves to much wine. They are to teach what is good, [4]and so train the young women to love their husbands and children, [5][†]to be self-controlled, [t]pure, [u]working at home, kind, and [v]submissive to their own husbands, [w]that the word of God may not be reviled. [6]Likewise, urge [x]the younger men to be self-controlled. [7]Show yourself in all respects to be [y]a model of good works, and in your teaching [z]show integrity, [a]dignity, [8]and [b]sound speech that cannot be condemned, [c]so that an opponent may be put to shame, having nothing evil to say about us. [9] [d]Bondservants [2] are to be submissive to their own masters [e]in everything; they are to be well-pleasing, not argumentative, [10]not pilfering, [f]but showing all good faith, [g]so that in everything they may adorn the doctrine of God our Savior.

[11][†]For [h]the grace of God [i]has appeared, bringing salvation [j]for all people, [12][†]training us to renounce ungodliness and [k]worldly passions, and [l]to live self-controlled, upright, and godly lives in [m]the present age, [13][†] [n]waiting for our blessed [o]hope, the [p]appearing of the glory of our great [q]God and Savior Jesus Christ, [14][†] [r]who gave himself for us to [s]redeem us from all lawlessness and [t]to purify for himself [t]a people for his own possession who are [u]zealous for good works.

[15][†]Declare these things; exhort and [v]rebuke with all authority. [w]Let no one disregard you.

Be Ready for Every Good Work

TITUS 3 [†]Remind them [x]to be submissive to rulers and authorities, [y]to be obedient, to be ready for every good work, [2][†] [z]to speak evil of no one, [a]to avoid quarreling, to be gentle, and [b]to show perfect courtesy toward all people. [3][†]For [c]we ourselves were once foolish, disobedient, led astray, slaves to various passions and pleasures, passing our days in malice and envy, hated by others and hating one another. [4][†]But when [d]the goodness and loving kindness of God our Savior appeared, [5][†]he saved us, [e]not because of works done by us in righteousness, but [f]according to his own mercy, by [g]the washing of regeneration and [h]renewal of the Holy Spirit, [6]whom he [i]poured out on us richly through Jesus Christ our Savior, [7]so that [j]being justified by his grace we might become [k]heirs [l]according to the hope of eternal life. [8][†]The saying is [m]trustworthy, and I want you to insist on these things, so that those who have believed in God may be careful [n]to devote themselves to good works. These things are excellent and profitable for people. [9][†]But [o]avoid foolish [p]controversies, [q]genealogies, dissensions, and quarrels about the law, for [r]they are unprofitable and worthless. [10][†]As for a person who stirs up division, [s]after warning him once and then twice, [t]have nothing more to do with him, [11]knowing that such a person is warped and sinful; he is self-condemned.

Final Instructions and Greetings

[12][†]When I send Artemas or [u]Tychicus to you, do your best to come to me [v]at Nicopolis, for I have decided to spend the winter there. [13][†]Do your best to speed Zenas the lawyer and [w]Apollos on their way; see that they lack nothing. [14][†]And let our people learn [x]to devote themselves to good works, so as to help cases of urgent need, and not [y]be unfruitful.

[15][†]All who are with me send greetings to you. Greet those who love us in the faith.

[z]Grace be with you all.

Study Notes for Titus

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:1–4 Opening. The doctrinal themes in this section occur again in the other doctrinal sections of the letter (2:11–14; 3:3–7).

FACT

Famous liars. Paul quotes a Cretan author who admits that the people of his own nation had a reputation for not telling the truth (1:12). In fact, the Greeks even coined the word "Cretanize," which meant dealing falsely with people.

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:1 servant of God. Paul often uses "servant" (or "slave") to describe himself (Rom. 1:1; Gal. 1:10; Phil. 1:1) and other Christians (Eph. 6:6; Col. 4:12; see also 2 Pet. 1:1). Typically, though, Paul refers to himself as "servant of Christ." This is the only place he uses "servant of God." This wording suggests a direct connection to Moses, David, and OT prophets who were described as servants of God (see 2 Sam. 7:4, 8; Ps. 105:26; Jer. 7:25; Amos 3:7). This places Paul among those who have been God's spokesmen from the beginning. Furthermore, a slave in the first century did not act on his own authority; he acted on his master's authority. This concept of received authority is expanded by the phrase apostle of Jesus Christ (see note on Rom. 1:1). For the sake of points to the purpose or goal of Paul's apostleship. He labors to see people saved, coming to faith and the knowledge of the truth (see 1 Tim. 2:4; 2 Tim. 2:25). accords with godliness. The true gospel always produces godliness in its followers. This introduces a serious problem with the false teachers: they did not exhibit godly character.

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:2–3 Hope is not wishful thinking. It is confidence that the things God has promised will occur. God never lies. It is against God's character and thus impossible for God to lie (see Heb. 6:18). This truth was particularly meaningful in the Cretan context (see Titus 1:12–13 and note). God our Savior. On God as "Savior," see note on 2 Tim. 1:8–10. See also Titus 2:13 and note. See also chart.

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:5–9 The Occasion: The Need for Proper Leadership. Paul reminds Titus of the directions for ministry he had left with him. A "virtue list" shows the sort of leadership needed for the new churches in Crete.

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:5 The churches in Crete do not yet have elders, and there are things that need to be put . . . into order. This suggests that these churches are still fairly young. Titus is there as Paul's delegate to get these churches properly established. in every town. In all NT churches elders (plural) govern the churches (see notes on Acts 14:23; 20:17). Here "elder" is used interchangeably with "overseer" (Titus 1:7). The rest of the NT shows that these two terms, as well as "pastor" (see Eph. 4:11, ESV footnote), refer to the same office (see note on 1 Tim. 3:1).

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:6 husband of one wife. See note on 1 Tim. 3:2–3. His children are believers can also be translated "his children are faithful." The primary argument for translating it as "believers" is that, in the letters to Timothy and Titus, this word almost always refers to saving faith. Those who prefer "faithful" argue that no father can guarantee the conversion of his children, but he can ordinarily ensure that they act in a "faithful" way. The word "children" applies only to children living at home and still under their father's authority.

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:9 able to give instruction. A pastor or elder must have the ability to teach. This includes both teaching what is right and correcting error. The reason for this emphasis is clear from what follows (vv. 10–16). sound doctrine. See note on 1 Tim. 1:10.

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:10–16 The Problem: False Teachers. The description of the false teachers contrasts directly with the descriptions of what the elders should be (vv. 5–9).

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:10 especially those of the circumcision party. The false teachers emerged particularly from among Jewish Christians.

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:11 They must be silenced. One responsibility of church leaders is to stop false teaching when it arises in the church. shameful gain. These teachers are motivated by greed (compare 1 Tim. 6:5).

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:12–13 Cretans are always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons. Crete was famous in the ancient world for its immorality. a prophet of their own. Paul does not criticize Cretan society directly. He quotes a Cretan author and then agrees with him (this testimony is true). Of course Paul means this as a generalization. The quotation seems to be from Epimenides of Crete, although his writings are known only through other authors' quotations of him (see note on Acts 17:28).

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:14 Jewish myths. On "myths," see note on 1 Tim. 1:4. The specific content of these myths is unknown. The false teaching in Titus is more directly tied to a Jewish background than the false teaching described in 1 and 2 Timothy (see Titus 1:10).

God and Christ as "Our Savior" in Titus

"the preaching with which I have been entrusted by the command of God our Savior" (1:3)	"Grace and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Savior" (1:4)
"so that in everything they may adorn the doctrine of God our Savior" (2:10)	"the glory of our great God and Savior Jesus Christ" (2:13)
"when the goodness and loving kindness of God our Savior" (3:4)	"he poured out on us richly through Jesus Christ our Savior" (3:6)

TITUS—NOTE ON 1:15 To the pure, all things are pure. In light of v. 14 and earlier teaching by Jesus (Luke 11:41) and Paul (Rom. 14:20), the issue here seems to concern Jewish food laws.

TITUS—NOTE ON 2:1–3:8 Christian Living in Contrast to the False Teachers. Paul describes proper Christian living rooted in the gospel. This is in direct contrast to the behavior of the false teachers (1:10–16), but it does match what is required of true church leaders (1:5–9). This is the primary concern of the letter: right doctrine leads to right behavior.

FACT

What is theology? Theology is the study of God. Biblical theology attempts to make accurate statements about God based on what he has revealed about himself in Scripture. Accurate knowledge of the Bible is especially important in responding to the kind of false teachings that Paul talks about in his letter to Titus.

TITUS—NOTE ON 2:1–10 Some argue that the behavior commanded here is specific to the first century context because its purpose is to avoid offense (see note on vv. 5, 8, 10). However, v. 1 bases this behavior on "sound doctrine" itself, not on cultural ideas.

TITUS—NOTE ON 2:1 But as for you. Titus must be different than the false teachers. He must teach the people to live in a way that accords with sound doctrine.

TITUS—NOTE ON 2:3–5 The instruction to older women and young women is connected because part of the role of a Christian older woman is to train the younger women. The Greek word for "train" means "give instruction in wise behavior and good judgment." The topics to be taught in vv. 4–5 are very practical and focus on domestic matters. Working at home does not prohibit working outside the home (see Prov. 31:16, 18, 24). It does indicate that Paul expects wives to have the primary responsibility for the day-to-day care of their homes and children.

TITUS—NOTE ON 2:5, 8, 10 These verses encourage a "gospel lifestyle" that gives unbelievers no reason to reject the gospel. This lifestyle also highlights the gospel's attractiveness ("adorn," v. 10). On God as Savior (v. 10), see note on 2 Tim. 1:8–10. See also chart.

TITUS—NOTE ON 2:11–14 One cannot truly claim to have received saving grace without also accepting "training grace." This change in lifestyle is rooted in the atonement (v. 14) and the expectation of Christ's return (v. 13).

TITUS—NOTE ON 2:11 Bringing salvation for all people means that salvation has been offered to all people (including all ethnic groups), not just to some. It does not mean that all people will be saved (see note on 1 Tim. 2:4).

TITUS—NOTE ON 2:12 Saving grace teaches its recipients to say no to sin and yes to godliness. In the present age stresses that this godliness is to be lived out now. It also sets up the reference to the future return of Christ in v. 13.

TITUS—NOTE ON 2:13 The Greek for waiting implies eagerness. Eagerly expecting Christ's return is how grace trains Christians to reject sin and live a godly life (see vv. 11–12). Our blessed hope means Christ's second coming, which Paul calls the appearing of . . . our great God and Savior Jesus Christ. Paul does not refer here to two persons (God the Father and Jesus Christ). Rather, Jesus is identified as "our great God and Savior" (compare John 1:1; 20:28; etc.).

TITUS—NOTE ON 2:14 to redeem us from all lawlessness. This phrase in Greek closely resembles the Greek translation of Ps. 130:8. One purpose of Jesus' death was to make his people holy. A people for his own possession translates an unusual phrase with intentional echoes from the OT (see especially Ex. 19:5; Mal. 3:17). It has the sense of "prized, treasured possession." These people are to be zealous for good works, so again redemption is tied specifically to living in a godly manner.

TITUS—NOTE ON 2:15 After describing the gospel, Paul returns to giving Titus instructions (as in vv. 1–10).

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:1–2 Paul again describes "gospel living." This time he emphasizes interaction with unbelievers. In general, the qualities encouraged here are in contrast to the description of the false teachers in 1:10–16.

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:2 Perfect courtesy is a good translation of an often misunderstood word which literally means "meekness/gentleness."

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:3–7 As in 2:11–14, Paul explains how his encouragements to godly living (3:1–2) are based on the gospel. This gospel statement highlights the ethical and practical changes that grace produces.

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:4 Goodness and loving kindness stand in stark contrast to the description of lost humanity in v. 3.

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:5 Salvation comes by the washing of regeneration and renewal of the Holy Spirit. Some have understood this as saying that baptism ("the washing") causes salvation. However, in this context human deeds are clearly less important (not because of works) than God's taking the initiative in salvation (he saved us). The “washing” described here is spiritual cleansing, which baptism outwardly symbolizes.

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:8 Again note the emphasis on good works as a mark of believers (compare 1:16; 2:14; 3:1).

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:9–11 The Problem Restated: False Teachers. Paul returns to the problem of false teachers. Thus, the discussion of gospel living (2:1–3:8) is followed by discussion of those who claim to believe this gospel but fail to live it out.

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:9 But. The reference to the usefulness of correct doctrine in v. 8 sets up the contrast with the worthless nature of the false teaching. It is foolish and unprofitable.

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:10–11 have nothing more to do with him. The NT is clear about seeking the repentance of such sinners. It is equally clear that refusal to change eventually shows that one is not in Christ and therefore must be excluded from the Christian community (see also 1 Corinthians 5).

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:12–15 Closing Encouragement. Paul closes with travel plans and greetings. Even these items echo the letter’s main points.

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:12 do your best to come to me. Paul did not expect Titus to stay in Crete permanently. Artemas is not mentioned elsewhere in the NT. Tychicus is mentioned as an Asian who accompanied Paul on his third journey (Acts 20:4). In Eph. 6:21 and Col. 4:7 he is referred to as a “beloved brother and faithful minister” (see also 2 Tim. 4:12). Nicopolis was a port city in Epirus. It was located on the west coast of the Greek peninsula, 178 miles (286 km) northwest of Athens.

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:13–14 Speed . . . on their way; see that they lack nothing shows Paul’s concern that fellow missionaries be adequately supported. Zenas is not mentioned elsewhere in the NT. Apollos is undoubtedly the popular speaker mentioned in Acts and 1 Corinthians (Acts 18:24; 19:1; 1 Cor. 3:6; etc.).

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:14 One last time Paul stresses good works.

TITUS—NOTE ON 3:15 Grace be with you all. Paul’s letter, though written primarily to Titus, will be read to the entire congregation.

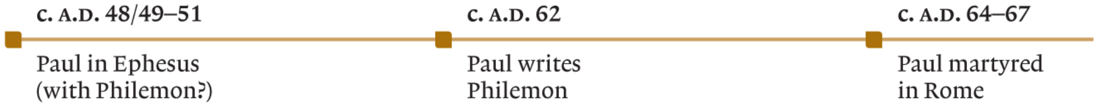
Introduction to Philemon

Introduction to Philemon

Timeline



Author, Date, and Recipients

This is a personal letter from the apostle Paul to Philemon, a wealthy Christian from Colossae. It was also intended for reading to the entire church that met in Philemon's home. It was probably written c. A.D. 62, while Paul was in prison following his voyage to Rome (Acts 27–28).

Theme

The theme of Paul's letter is the power of the gospel to transform individual lives (v. 11) and human relationships (v. 16). Onesimus had experienced that transforming power in his life ("formerly he was useless" but "now he is indeed useful"; v. 11). Paul therefore urged his friend Philemon to form a new relationship with Onesimus, his runaway slave.

Purpose

Apparently, during Paul's three-year ministry in Ephesus (A.D. 52–55), Philemon heard the gospel and was saved. He began serving Christ in the Colossian community. He opened his home for a group of Christians to meet there regularly.

At some point, Onesimus, one of Philemon's bondservants, fled to Rome. Before he left, he possibly had stolen money or property from Philemon. While in Rome, Onesimus came into contact with Paul and became a Christian. As he grew in Christ, he was a great help to Paul during Paul's imprisonment.

As much as Paul would like to have retained the services of Onesimus, Paul knew that Onesimus's wrongdoing against his master Philemon needed to be addressed. He wrote this letter urging Philemon to appreciate the transformation that had occurred in Onesimus. Paul asked Philemon to receive Onesimus back not merely as a bondservant but as a "beloved brother" (v. 16).

It is difficult to know if Paul sought Onesimus's full freedom. It is clear, however, that he was seeking a transformed relationship between bondservant and master. This new relationship would defy all of the ingrained status distinctions of the surrounding Greek and Roman culture. It would have been difficult for the kind of servitude practiced by Rome to survive in the atmosphere of Christian love exemplified by the letter. On first-century forms of servitude, see the ESV Preface.

This simplified letter is in the form of letters that people ordinarily write, in contrast to the more stylized and literary five-part format of most NT epistles. The letter is a masterpiece of persuasion as Paul seeks a favorable reception for the returning bondservant, where normally one might expect the master to be vindictive.

Paul's strategy follows that prescribed by Greek and Roman rhetoricians of the day: begin by building rapport and goodwill with an audience (vv. 4–10), then lay out the facts in a way that will convince the mind or intellect (vv. 11–19), and finally appeal to the emotions of the audience (vv. 20–21).

Key Themes

1. Reconciliation is the theme of this letter. Onesimus is reconciled to God. He is in the process of being reconciled to a fellow believer.
2. The basis for Paul's appeal to Philemon is the supreme Christian virtue of love. Paul praises Philemon for the love he has shown not just to him but to all the believers in that area.

The Global Message of Philemon

The heart of Paul's letter to Philemon is the fellowship that comes from reconciliation. Philemon the slave-owner and Onesimus the runaway slave (or bondservant) had both been reconciled to God through Paul's ministry. Paul's letter to Philemon is a plea that the slave-owner and the slave be reconciled with one another. In light of their restored relationships with God, fellowship should and must flourish between the two of them.

In dealing with fellowship and reconciliation in the context of the socially charged issue of slavery, this brief letter has much to say to the global church today.

Philemon and Redemptive History

There is not the space in this brief letter for Paul to say much specifically about the Bible's story line of creation, fall, redemption, and consummation. Even so, Paul clearly is thinking about the coming of Christ and the saving purposes of God as he writes. Paul greets Philemon with a familiar and theologically rich greeting: "Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ" (Philem. 3). "Christ" here as elsewhere refers to the Messiah, the anointed coming king who would restore the people of God (see also vv. 6, 8, 9, 20, 23, 25). The central hope of the Old Testament is therefore brought to mind right from the start of Philemon. Paul then appeals to Philemon throughout the rest of letter by employing language and ideas that are given their significance from the Old Testament and its unfolding story of redemption—words such as "saints" (vv. 5, 7), "gospel" (v. 13), and "grace" (vv. 3, 25).

In short, Paul addresses Philemon against the backdrop of the history of redemption that has come to its climax in the gospel of grace manifested in the coming of Christ.

The Global Implications of Philemon

Because Paul's letter to Philemon deals with the issue of slavery, it is at once both exceedingly relevant for the contemporary global church as well as requiring delicacy and care in applying its teachings. Several implications emerge.

Fellowship among Christians. Through Paul's ministry, Philemon has come to know Christ (Philem. 19), as has his former bondservant Onesimus (v. 10). Consequently, Philemon the slave-owner and Onesimus the slave/bondservant are now brothers in Christ. Onesimus had apparently stolen money and run away; nonetheless, Paul now pleads with Philemon to receive Onesimus "no longer as a bondservant but more than a bondservant, as a beloved brother" (v. 16). Philemon's most important relationship to Onesimus was no longer as owner but as brother. The warmth and tenderness with which Paul writes to Philemon is to be extended to Onesimus. Philemon is to welcome him back, and forgive him, and let Paul pay back the equivalent of the stolen money. This should remind the church today that the fundamental relationship between believers is that of forgiven sinners who are now brothers and sisters "in the Lord" (v. 16). Economic status, wealth, ethnicity, family background, and other social distinctions are all secondary to our new identity in Christ as God's sons and daughters.

The gospel and the social order. Bondservitude in the ancient world ought not to be equated with any of the forms of slavery found in the modern world. In Colossae, where Philemon lived, perhaps one third of the people were bondservants. Bondservants, while belonging to their owner, had a status deriving from this relationship. Indeed, for many bondservants in those days, freedom would have been a disadvantage rather than an advantage—similar to the situation of a person today who loses his or her job. Moreover, while treatment of bondservants varied widely, some bondservants were entrusted by their owners with significant responsibilities. Social advancement was possible; for example, the governor Felix, mentioned in Acts 24, was a former bondservant. We might also note that, in New Testament times, bondservants did not come from just one particular ethnic group. People of all races might end up in this form of servitude.

Unity in mind and action. Philemon is a fairly private letter from one individual to another. Yet it is addressed not only to Philemon but also to Apphia, Archippus, and, indeed, the whole church that met in Philemon's home (Philem. 2). And while the verbs are singular throughout most of the letter, toward the end Paul begins to address the church more widely: "your prayers" (v. 22) and "your spirit" (v. 25) are plural. In all this we see that believers in Christ are bound to one another in mind and action. While Philemon's response to Paul's letter would be his own, the entire church that met in his home would be represented by that decision. Members of the Christian church never act strictly "on their own"; in all things they represent Christ and Christ's body, the organism of fellow believers that we call the church.

The Global Message of Philemon for Today

It is unclear whether Paul was advocating that Philemon should free Onesimus from servitude. He may have been suggesting this when he expressed his confidence that Philemon would do "even more than I say" for Onesimus (Philem. 21). Whatever the case, it is clear that Paul is appealing to Philemon's heart and seeking an act of willing love on Philemon's part. Paul does not command that Philemon cooperate, despite the fact that Paul has the right to do so (vv. 8, 19). The apostle is therefore going beneath the letter of the law to the spirit of the law. In so doing he reminds believers around the world today that it is freely chosen love, not forced demand, that transforms hearts.

The deepest truth that emerges from Philemon is that what matters most amid all our varying social circumstances is the new realm into which believers have been swept up. By the gracious saving initiative of God, believers have been granted a new citizenship (note Phil. 3:20). Our union with Christ, and thus with all those who are also in him, transcends all cultural and social barriers. We must work diligently to end all modern forms of unjust social institutions such as slavery. But we do so in the knowledge that even the best social systems cannot deliver true peace if Christ is not present, and even the worst social systems cannot take away our joy, if Christ is present.

Greeting

PHILEMON 1 [†]Paul, [a]a prisoner for Christ Jesus, and [b]Timothy our brother,

To Philemon our beloved fellow worker [2][†]and Apphia our sister and [c]Archippus our [d]fellow soldier, and [e]the church in your house:

[3][f]Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Philemon’s Love and Faith

[4][†][g]I thank my God always when I remember you in my prayers, [5]because I [h]hear of your love and [i]of the faith that you have toward the Lord Jesus and for all the saints, [6][†]and I pray that the sharing of your faith may become effective for the full [j]knowledge of every good thing that is in us for the sake of Christ. [1] [7][†]For I have derived much joy and [k]comfort from your love, my brother, because the hearts of the saints [l]have been refreshed through you.

Paul’s Plea for Onesimus

[8][†]Accordingly, [m]though I am bold enough in Christ to command you to do [n]what is required, [9]yet for love’s sake I prefer to appeal to you—I, Paul, an old man and now [o]a prisoner also for Christ Jesus— [10][†]I appeal to you for [p]my child, [q]Onesimus, [2] [r]whose father I became in my imprisonment. [11][†](Formerly he was useless to you, but now he is indeed useful to you and to me.) [12][†]I am sending him back to you, sending my very heart. [13]I would have been glad to keep him with me, in order that he might serve me [s]on your behalf [t]during my imprisonment for the gospel, [14]but I preferred to do nothing without your consent in order that your goodness might not be [u]by compulsion but of your own accord. [15][†]For this perhaps is why [v]he was parted from you for a while, that you might have him back forever, [16][†][w]no longer as a bondservant [3] but more than a bondservant, as [x]a beloved brother—especially to me, but how much more to you, [y]both in the flesh and in the Lord.

[17][†]So if you consider me [z]your partner, receive him as you would receive me. [18][†]If he has wronged you at all, or owes you anything, charge that to my account. [19][a]I, Paul, write this with my own hand: I will repay it —to say nothing of your owing me even your own self. [20][†]Yes, brother, I want some benefit from you in the Lord. [b]Refresh my heart in Christ.

[21][†][c]Confident of your obedience, I write to you, knowing that you will do even more than I say. [22][†]At the same time, prepare a guest room for me, for [d]I am hoping that [e]through your prayers [f]I will be graciously given to you.

Final Greetings

[23][†][g]Epaphras, my [h]fellow prisoner in Christ Jesus, sends greetings to you, [24][†]and so do [i]Mark, [i]Aristarchus, [j]Demas, and [j]Luke, my fellow workers.

[25][k]The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.

Study Notes for Philemon

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 1–3 Greetings. The beginning of this letter follows Paul's typical style, but it is addressed to a person rather than an entire community of believers.

FACT

How did a person become a bondservant? Being a "bondservant" in NT times (v. 16) was different from many of the more recent kinds of slavery. Bondservants were bound to serve their master for a specific period of time. People did not necessarily become slaves because of their race, nor were they completely without legal rights. A person might become a slave as punishment for a crime or as a way to pay off a debt.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 1 On Timothy, see Introduction to 1 Timothy.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 2 Apphia may have been Philemon's wife. Archippus may have been Philemon's son. He may have had a significant ministry in Colossae (see Col. 4:17). the church in your house. The early Christians met in private homes. Philemon opened his home in Colossae (Col. 4:15; see note on 1 Cor. 16:19).

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 4–7 Thanksgiving and Prayer. Before Paul makes his appeal, he expresses his gratitude for Philemon (vv. 4–5) and describes how he prays for him (vv. 6–7).

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 6 Sharing as used here includes the ideas of generosity, partnership, and fellowship. These result from the common faith and common life that believers have in Christ. Paul lays the groundwork for his appeal to Philemon on behalf of Onesimus. knowledge of every good thing. That is, a deep awareness and experience of the blessings of Christ.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 7 hearts. See note on v. 12.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 8–20 Paul's Appeal to Philemon for Onesimus. Paul makes his appeal by first describing the remarkable change that has happened to Onesimus (vv. 8–12). He explains how helpful Onesimus would be to him in his imprisonment (vv. 13–14). Paul then suggests that God has been sovereignly involved in this situation, so that Philemon may receive Onesimus back now as a fellow Christian (vv. 15–16). Onesimus will therefore be all the more useful to Philemon. He concludes with a direct appeal that Philemon receive Onesimus back as he would receive Paul himself (vv. 17–20).

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 8–9 Bold suggests a "frankness" or "openness" to speak freely about difficult matters. an old man. Paul may have been 60 or older.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 10 The name Onesimus means "useful" or "profitable." This name was frequently given to bondservants. Onesimus is also mentioned in Col. 4:9 as accompanying Tychicus with the letter to the Colossians.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 11 useless . . . useful. The play on words describes the "before and after" of Onesimus's conversion. By stealing from Philemon and running away, Onesimus had become "useless." Having repented and become obedient to Christ, Onesimus had now become "useful" both to Paul and to Philemon.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 12 my very heart. Not the common word for heart, but literally "internal organs" (especially the stomach and intestines). The word indicates affection, intimacy, and deep love (see vv. 7, 20; Phil. 2:1; Col. 3:12).

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 15 why he was parted from you. God is understood to be sovereignly behind the events. It is like Joseph's remark to his brothers that "it was not you who sent me here, but God" (Gen. 45:8).

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 16 no longer as a bondservant. Paul expects an entirely transformed relationship between Philemon and Onesimus based on the fact that Onesimus was now Philemon's beloved brother.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 17 Partner is from the same root word as "sharing" in v. 6.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 18–19 If he has wronged you suggests that Onesimus probably took money from Philemon when he ran away. Roman society expected brutal punishment of runaway slaves or bondservants, at times resulting in death. (Regarding servitude in Roman society, see notes on 1 Cor. 7:21 and Eph. 6:5, and the ESV Preface.) I, Paul, write this with my own hand. Although Paul was probably dictating the letter to Timothy (see Philem. 1), Paul signs his own name. This action gives his personal guarantee that he will repay any loss Philemon has experienced because of Onesimus's actions. This is a remarkable offer, considering that Paul was a prisoner at the time. owing me even your own self. A reference to the fact that Philemon was converted through Paul's ministry. Philemon "owed" Paul his eternal life. The debt that Onesimus owed to Philemon, therefore, was tiny by comparison.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 20 Refresh my heart in Christ. See note on v. 12.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 21–25 Personal Remarks and Greetings. Paul concludes the letter by sharing his plans to travel to Colossae (vv. 21–22). He also sends greetings from various coworkers in Rome (vv. 23–25).

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 21 Even more could suggest freeing Onesimus or perhaps sending Onesimus back to minister to Paul (compare vv. 13–14). Paul may have deliberately given Philemon the freedom to decide which course of action would be best.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 22 prepare a guest room for me. Paul hopes to be released from prison and come to Colossae for a visit.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 23 Epaphras is one of Philemon's fellow Colossians. God had used him to plant the church in Colossae (Col. 1:7; 4:12). fellow prisoner. The circumstances of Epaphras's arrest are unknown.

PHILEMON—NOTE ON 24 Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke are also named in Col. 4:10, 14. For Mark, see Acts 12:12. For Aristarchus, see Acts 19:29. Demas later was drawn away by worldly pursuits and deserted Paul (2 Tim. 4:10). Luke is almost certainly the one who authored the Gospel of Luke and Acts (see 2 Tim. 4:11). Luke was apparently with Paul throughout his two-year imprisonment in Caesarea and also during his two-year Roman imprisonment.

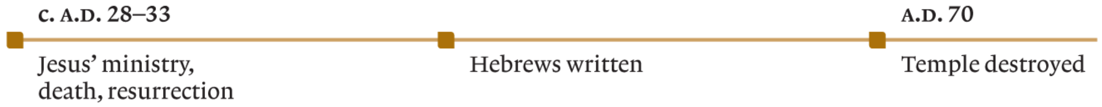
Introduction to Hebrews

Introduction to Hebrews

Timeline



Author, Date, and Recipients

The author of Hebrews is unknown. He knew Timothy (13:23). He was not an eyewitness of Jesus (see 2:1, 3). The letter was probably written before A.D. 70. Early manuscripts bear the title "To the Hebrews," which reflects the ancient assumption that it was written to Jewish Christians as well as Gentile Christians who previously had been drawn to the Jewish religion. The author knew his readers and wanted to see them again (13:19).

Theme

Jesus Christ is greater than any angel, priest, or old covenant practice. Christians must not forsake the great salvation that Jesus has brought about. They must hold on by faith to the true rest found in Christ, and they must encourage others in the church to do the same.

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

Hebrews has two primary purposes: to encourage Christians to endure, and to warn them not to abandon their faith in Christ. These warning passages appear throughout the book (2:1–4; 3:7–4:13; 5:11–6:12; 10:19–39; 12:1–29). The author encourages faithfulness, love, and sound doctrine. He does so by carefully teaching the OT in light of God's revelation in Jesus Christ.

The author shows the superiority of Christ and his new covenant over angels, Moses, the OT priesthood, and the OT sacrificial system. These are so inferior to Christ that it is futile to return to them—or to go anywhere else. Rather, believers should hold fast to their faith, because that faith is grounded in the most superior revelation.

The background of such exhortations must have been the readers' need to continue enduring amid persecution and the trials of life (e.g., ch. 12). They appear to have grown less attentive to Christian instruction (5:11–14), and some apparently have ceased regular attendance at their meetings (10:25). The author reminds them of their past faithfulness and love despite persecution (10:32–34).

Ultimately, the author's words of encouragement and exhortation are rooted in his teaching about Jesus Christ. The Son of God became the heavenly high priest, who offered himself as a sacrifice once for all. Christ obtained salvation for all who approach him in faith (6:1; 11:6; compare 4:2), and such faith perseveres until it receives the promised eternal reward (6:12; 10:22, 38–39).

Key Themes

1. Jesus is fully God and fully man (1:1–14; 2:5–18).
2. Jesus, the Son of God, reveals God the Father. He is the creator and he sustains all creation (1:1–14).
3. Jesus is the eternal high priest. As a man, he sympathizes with human weaknesses, and he offered himself as the perfect sacrifice for sin (1:3; 2:10–18; 4:15–16; 9:11–10:19).
4. Jesus is superior to angels, to Moses, to the Mosaic covenant, to the earthly tabernacle, and to the priesthood (1:4–2:18; 3:1–6; 5:1–10; 7:1–10:18).
5. All humanity faces eternal judgment for sin (4:12–13; 9:27–28; 10:26–31).
6. Faith is necessary to please God and to participate in his eternal salvation. Faith requires confidence about the unseen realities of God and his promises. Such faith produces perseverance (6:1; 10:22, 38–39; 11:1–40).
7. Perseverance is necessary in the Christian life; believers are warned against a lack of endurance (2:1–4; 3:7–4:13; 10:19–39; 12:1–29).

8. God’s promises are trustworthy, including his promise of eternal salvation (6:13–20).
9. With the coming of Jesus Christ, the last days have begun. They will be completed when he returns (1:2; 9:9–28; 12:22–29).

Outline

I. Jesus Is Superior to Angelic Beings (1:1–2:18)
II. Jesus Is Superior to the Mosaic Law (3:1–10:18)
III. Call to Faith and Endurance (10:19–12:29)
IV. Concluding Encouragements and Remarks (13:1–25)

The Global Message of Hebrews

The message of Hebrews for the global church is that Jesus is better than every other thing believers are tempted to fall back into, such as their formers ways of sin, culturally comfortable patterns of thinking or living, or non-Christian ethical codes. In the midst of adversity, believers are to fix their eyes on Jesus, live by faith, and run the race that is marked out for them.

Hebrews and Redemptive History

The book of Hebrews displays a clear and profound awareness of redemptive history. Through its quotations from the Old Testament, interpretation of past events, and reflection upon saints of old such as Moses or Melchizedek, Hebrews presents rich teaching on the story of salvation that has culminated in Jesus Christ.

While Hebrews makes many individual points relating to redemptive history, all this serves to make one basic point: Jesus is superior. Jesus is better than the prophets (Heb. 1:1–2), better than the angels (1:5–14), better than Moses (3:1–19), better than the priests (4:14–5:10; 7:23–28), better than Melchizedek (6:19–7:19), and better than all previous sacrifices (9:11–14; 10:19). Through Jesus, God has brought about the longed-for new covenant (8:1–13; 9:15).

Hebrews therefore views all of history as falling into two broad eras. The first is the old age, which has been abolished with the coming of Christ. The second is the new age, which has dawned with the coming of Christ. Jesus Christ is the hinge, the turning point of all of human history. Those who have been ushered into the new age would therefore be foolish to turn back the clock and try to enter once more into the old age.

Universal Themes in Hebrews

Jesus and suffering. Throughout Hebrews the author encourages his readers to stand fast in the midst of their troubles (e.g., Heb. 10:32–33). He does so by connecting the suffering of his readers to the suffering of Christ. “Consider him who endured from sinners such hostility against himself, so that you may not grow weary or fainthearted” (12:3). Jesus himself has experienced whatever suffering believers experience. “We do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but one who in every respect has been tempted as we are, yet without sin” (4:15). The result of Jesus’ enduring all our weakness is that he is uniquely qualified to represent his people before God. Jesus “had to be made like his brothers in every respect, so that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest” (2:17).

There is deep comfort for the church in what Hebrews says about Jesus and his suffering. We learn that our suffering, especially when it is due to our loyalty to Jesus, is not experienced alone. He himself has gone through it. Jesus draws near to his people who are in the darkness of adversity. He is the friend of sufferers. He knows what it is to be rejected (Heb. 13:11–13). Suffering is not inherently good; it is a result of the fall and will one day be completely eradicated. But in the meantime, believers around the world take heart, knowing that whatever pain is upon them is a pain for which Jesus, our great high priest, cares deeply and which he himself has experienced. And it is a pain that can only work to produce greater glory for those who are united to Christ (Rom. 8:17–18; 2 Cor. 4:17–18).

The danger of apostasy. “Apostasy” means to fall away from faith in Christ. More than any other New Testament book, Hebrews addresses the danger of Christians failing to persevere by faith to the end (Heb. 2:1–4; 3:7–4:13; 5:11–6:12; 10:19–39; 12:1–29). The writer describes faithful discipleship as a race that requires endurance (12:1). On the one hand, perseverance is not a self-generated effort that is wholly up to us, as a way of earning our final acceptance. Indeed, as much as Hebrews calls on believers to persevere, it comforts believers with the glorious truth that Jesus has offered the sacrifice that fully pays for our sins and guarantees our eternal acceptance (9:1–10:18). On the other hand, this book calls on Christians to live in a way that honors our Lord and Savior. We must endure (10:36). We must look to Jesus (12:1–2). This will require strenuous earnestness as we labor on toward the end of this race, imitating “those who through faith and patience inherit the promises” (6:11–12).

There is deep strengthening for the church today in this call to perseverance. The temptation to quit the Christian life is universal and must be resisted. Our call in the gospel is to fix our eyes on Christ, weathering the storms that threaten to sink us as we journey on through this fallen world. The specific forms of what will threaten our faith will vary culturally around the world. But the call to faith and the Christ whom we trust remain the same.

The Global Message of Hebrews for Today

Endless distractions bombard believers around the world today. The news media and volatile economies provide an endless stream of temptations to worry. The Internet and the array of devices through which to connect to it are more widely available than ever before. Potential wars and actual wars rage within nations and between nations. Natural disasters continue to remind us how fragile life is, despite the massive technological and medical advances of recent decades. And in the midst of this, we are dealing with the more immediate challenges of simply keeping our marriages and families together.

As twenty-first-century Christians, it can be difficult to "look to Jesus" (see Heb. 12:2). And yet beneath every reason for discouragement or distraction, our great High Priest lives and stands, interceding for his brothers and sisters from every tribe and people and nation. He has experienced all our suffering and more. He knows our weakness. Let us run the race of faith. "Let us hold fast the confession of our hope without wavering, for he who promised is faithful" (10:23).

The Supremacy of God’s Son

HEBREWS 1 [†]Long ago, at many times and [a]in many ways, God spoke to our fathers by the prophets, [2][†]but [b]in these last days [c]he has spoken to us by [d]his Son, whom he appointed [e]the heir of all things, [f]through whom also he created [g]the world. [3][†]He is the radiance of the glory of God and [h]the exact imprint of his nature, and he upholds the universe by the word of his power. [i]After making purification for sins, [j]he sat down [k]at the right hand of the Majesty on high, [4][†]having become as much superior to angels as the name [l]he has inherited is more excellent than theirs.

[5][†]For to which of the angels did God ever say,

[m]“You are my Son,
today I have begotten you”?

Or again,

[n]“I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son”?

[6][†]And again, when he brings [o]the firstborn into the world, he says,

[p]“Let all God’s angels worship him.”

[7][†]Of the angels he says,

[q]“He makes his angels winds, and his ministers a flame of fire.”

[8][†]But of the Son he says,

[r]“Your throne, O God, is forever and ever, the scepter of uprightness is the scepter of your kingdom.
[9] You have loved righteousness and hated wickedness;
therefore God, your God, [s]has anointed you with [t]the oil of gladness beyond your companions."

10[†]And,

[u]"You, Lord, laid the foundation of the earth in the beginning, and the heavens are the work of your hands;
11 they will perish, but you remain;
they will all wear out like a garment, 12 like a robe you will roll them up, like a garment they will be changed. [1]
But you are [v]the same, and your years will have no end."

13[†]And to which of the angels has he ever said,

[w]"Sit at my right hand
[x]until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet"?

14[†]Are they not all ministering spirits [y]sent out to serve for the sake of those who are to [z]inherit salvation?

Warning Against Neglecting Salvation

HEBREWS 2 [†]Therefore we must pay much closer attention to what we have heard, lest we drift away from it. 2[†]For since [a]the message declared by angels proved to be reliable, and [b]every transgression or disobedience received a just [c]retribution, 3[†][d]how shall we escape if we [e]neglect such a great salvation? It was [f]declared at first by the Lord, and it was [g]attested to us [h]by those who heard, 4[†][g]while God also bore witness [i]by signs and wonders and various miracles and by [j]gifts of the Holy Spirit [k]distributed according to his will.

The Founder of Salvation

5[†]For it was not to angels that God subjected the world [l]to come, of which we are speaking. 6It has been testified somewhere,

[m]“What is man, that you are mindful of him, or the son of man, that you care for him?
[7][†] You made him for a little while lower than the angels;
you have crowned him with glory and honor, [1] [8][†] putting everything in subjection under his feet.”

Now in putting everything in subjection to him, he left nothing outside his control. At present, [n]we do not yet see everything in subjection to him. [9][†]But we see him [o]who for a little while was made lower than the angels, namely Jesus, [p]crowned with glory and honor [q]because of the suffering of death, so that by the grace of God he might [r]taste death [s]for everyone.

[10][†]For it [t]was fitting that he, [u]for whom and by whom all things exist, in bringing many sons [v]to glory, should make the [w]founder of their salvation [x]perfect through suffering. [11][†]For [y]he who sanctifies and [z]those who are sanctified [a]all have one source. [2] That is why he is not ashamed to call them [b]brothers, [3] [12][†]saying,

[c]“I will tell of your name to my brothers; in the midst of the [d]congregation I will sing your praise.”

[13][†]And again,

[e]“I will put my trust in him.”

And again,

[f]“Behold, I and the children [g]God has given me.”

[14][†]Since therefore the children share in flesh and blood, he himself likewise [h]partook of the same things, that [i]through death he might [j]destroy [k]the one who has the power of death, that is, the devil, [15]and deliver all those who [l]through fear of death were subject to lifelong slavery. [16]For surely it is not angels that he helps, but he [m]helps the offspring of Abraham. [17][†]Therefore he had [n]to be made like his brothers in every respect, [o]so that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest [p]in the service of God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people. 18[†]For because he himself has suffered [q]when tempted, he is able to help those who are being tempted.

Jesus Greater Than Moses

HEBREWS 3 [†]Therefore, holy brothers, [1] you who share in [r]a heavenly calling, consider Jesus, [s]the apostle and high priest of our confession, 2who was faithful to him who appointed him, [t]just as Moses also was faithful in all God's [2] house. 3[†]For Jesus has been counted worthy of more glory than Moses—as much more glory as the builder of a house has more honor than the house itself. 4(For every house is built by someone, but [u]the builder of all things is God.) 5 [v]Now Moses was faithful in all God's house [w]as a servant, [x]to testify to the things that were to be spoken later, 6[†]but Christ is faithful over God's house as [y]a son. And [z]we are his house if indeed we [a]hold fast our confidence and our boasting in our hope. [3]

A Rest for the People of God

7[†]Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says,

> [b]"Today, if you hear his voice,
> 8 do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion,
> on the day of testing in the wilderness, > 9 where your fathers put me to the test > and saw my works for [c]forty years.
> 10 Therefore I was provoked with that generation, > and said, 'They always go astray in their heart;
> they have not known my ways.'
> 11 [d]As I swore in my wrath,
> 'They shall not enter my rest.'"

12[†]Take care, brothers, lest there be in any of you an evil, unbelieving heart, leading you to fall away from [e]the living God. 13But [f]exhort one another every day, as long as it is called "today," that none of you may be hardened by [g]the deceitfulness of sin. 14[†]For we have come to share in Christ, [h] if indeed we hold our original confidence firm to the end. 15[†]As it is said, > [h]“Today, if you hear his voice,

> do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion.”

16For [i] who were those who heard and yet rebelled? Was it not [j] all those who left Egypt led by Moses? 17And with whom was he provoked for forty years? Was it not with those who sinned, [k] whose bodies fell in the wilderness? 18And to whom did he swear that [l] they would not enter his rest, but to those who were disobedient? 19So we see that [m] they were unable to enter because of unbelief.

HEBREWS 4 [†]Therefore, while the promise of entering his rest still stands, let us fear lest any of you should seem [n] to have failed to reach it. 2[†]For good news came to us just as to them, but the message they heard did not benefit them, because [o] they were not united by faith with those who listened. [1] 3[†]For we who have believed enter that rest, as he has said,

> [p]“As I swore in my wrath,
> ‘They shall not enter my rest,’”

although his works were finished from the foundation of the world. 4For he has somewhere spoken of the seventh day in this way: [q]“And God rested on the seventh day from all his works.” 5And again in this passage he said,

> [r]“They shall not enter my rest.”

6[†]Since therefore it remains for some to enter it, and those who formerly received the good news [s] failed to enter because of disobedience, 7again he appoints a certain day, “Today,” saying through David so long afterward, in the words already quoted, > [t]“Today, if you hear his voice, > do not harden your hearts.”

8[†]For if Joshua had given them rest, God [2] would not have spoken of another day later on. 9So then, there remains a Sabbath rest for the people of God, 10for whoever has entered God's rest has also [u] rested from his works as God did from his.

11[†]Let us therefore strive to enter that rest, so [v] that no one may fall by the same sort of disobedience. 12[†]For [w] the word of God is living and [x] active, [y] sharper than any [z] two-edged sword, piercing to the division of soul and of spirit, of joints and of marrow, and [a] discerning the thoughts and intentions of the heart. 13And [b] no creature is hidden from his sight, but all are [c] naked and exposed to the eyes of him to whom we must give account.

Jesus the Great High Priest

14[†]Since then we have [d] a great high priest [e] who has passed through the heavens, Jesus, the Son of God, [f] let us hold fast our confession. 15[†]For we do not have a high priest [g] who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but one who in every respect has been [d] tempted as we are, [h] yet without sin. 16[†] [i] Let us then with confidence draw near to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and find grace to help in time of need.

HEBREWS 5 [†]For every high priest chosen from among men [j] is appointed to act on behalf of men [k] in relation to God, [l] to offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. 2 [m] He can deal gently with the ignorant and wayward, since he himself [n] is beset with weakness. 3Because of this he is obligated to offer sacrifice for his own sins [o] just as he does for those of the people. 4And [p] no one takes this honor for himself, but only when called by God, [q] just as Aaron was.

5[†]So also Christ [r] did not exalt himself to be made a high priest, but was appointed by him who said to him,

[s] "You are my Son,
today I have begotten you";

6as he says also in another place,

[t] "You are a priest forever,

> after the order of Melchizedek.”

[7][†]In the days of his flesh, [u]Jesus [1] offered up prayers and supplications, [v]with loud cries and tears, to him [w]who was able to save him from death, and [x]he was heard because of his reverence. [8][†]Although [y]he was a son, [z]he learned obedience through what he suffered. [9][†]And [a]being made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation to all who obey him, [10]being designated by God a high priest [b]after the order of Melchizedek.

Warning Against Apostasy

[11][†]About this we have much to say, and it is [c]hard to explain, since you have become dull of hearing. [12][†]For though by this time you ought to be teachers, you need someone to teach you again [d]the basic principles of the oracles of God. You need [e]milk, not solid food, [13]for everyone who lives on milk is unskilled in the word of righteousness, since he is [f]a child. [14]But solid food is for [g]the mature, for those who have their powers [h]of discernment trained by constant practice to distinguish good from evil.

HEBREWS 6 [†]Therefore [i]let us leave [j]the elementary doctrine of Christ and go on to maturity, not laying again a foundation of repentance [k]from dead works and of faith toward God, [2]and of [l]instruction about washings, [1] [m]the laying on of hands, [n]the resurrection of the dead, and [o]eternal judgment. [3]And this we will do [p]if God permits. [4][†]For it is impossible, in the case of those [q]who have once been enlightened, who have tasted [r]the heavenly gift, and [s]have shared in the Holy Spirit, [5][†]and [t]have tasted the goodness of the word of God and the powers of the age to come, [6][†]and [u]then have fallen away, to restore them again to repentance, since [v]they are crucifying once again the Son of God to their own harm and holding him up to contempt. [7][†]For [w]land that has drunk the rain that often falls on it, and produces a crop useful to those for whose sake it is cultivated, receives a blessing from God. [8]But [x]if it bears thorns and thistles, it is worthless and near to being cursed, [y]and its end is to be burned.

[9][†]Though we speak in this way, yet in your case, beloved, we feel sure of better things—things that belong to salvation. [10]For [z]God is not unjust so as to overlook [a]your work and the love that you have shown for his name in [b]serving the saints, as you still do. [11][†]And we desire each one of you to show the same earnestness to have the full assurance [c]of hope until the end, [12]so that you may not be sluggish, but [d]imitators of those who through faith and patience inherit the promises.

The Certainty of God's Promise

[13][†]For when God made a promise to Abraham, since he had no one greater by whom to swear, [e]he swore by himself, [14]saying, [f]"Surely I will bless you and multiply you." [15][†]And thus Abraham, [2] [g]having patiently waited, obtained the promise. [16][†]For people swear by something greater than themselves, and in all their disputes [h]an oath is final for confirmation. [17][†]So when God desired to show more convincingly to [i]the heirs of the promise [j]the unchangeable character of his purpose, [k]he guaranteed it with an oath, [18]so that by two unchangeable things, in which [l]it is impossible for God to lie, we who have fled for refuge might have strong encouragement to hold fast to the hope [m]set before us. [19][†]We have this as a sure and steadfast anchor of the soul, a hope that enters into [n]the inner place behind the curtain, [20]where Jesus has gone [o]as a forerunner on our behalf, [p]having become a high priest forever after the order of Melchizedek.

The Priestly Order of Melchizedek

HEBREWS 7 [†]For this [q]Melchizedek, king of [r]Salem, priest of [s]the Most High God, met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings and blessed him, [2]and to him Abraham apportioned a tenth part of everything. He is first, by translation of his name, king of righteousness, and then he is also king of Salem, that is, king of peace. [3][†]He is without father or mother [t]or genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but resembling the Son of God he continues a priest forever.

[4][†]See how great this man was to whom Abraham [u]the patriarch gave a tenth of the spoils! [5][†]And [v]those descendants of Levi who receive the priestly office have a commandment in the law to take tithes from the people, that is, from their brothers, [1] though these also are descended from Abraham. [6]But this man [w]who does not have his descent from them received tithes from Abraham and blessed [x]him who had the promises. [7][†]It is beyond dispute that the inferior is blessed by the superior. [8][†]In the one case tithes are received by mortal men, but in the other case, by one [y]of whom it is testified that [z]he lives. [9][†]One might even say that Levi himself, who receives tithes, paid tithes through Abraham, [10]for he was still in the loins of his ancestor when Melchizedek met him.

Jesus Compared to Melchizedek

[11][†] [a]Now if perfection had been attainable through the Levitical priesthood (for under it the people received the law), what further need would there have been for another priest to arise after the order of Melchizedek, rather than one named after the order of Aaron? [12]For when there is a change in the priesthood, there is necessarily a change in the law as well. [13][†]For the one of whom these things are spoken belonged to another tribe, from which no one has ever served at the altar. [14]For it is evident that our Lord was descended [b]from Judah, and in connection with that tribe Moses said nothing about priests.

[15][†]This becomes even more evident when another priest arises in the likeness of Melchizedek, [16]who has become a priest, not on the basis of a legal requirement concerning bodily descent, but by the power of an indestructible life. [17]For it is witnessed of him,

> [c]“You are a priest forever,
> after the order of Melchizedek.”

[18][†]For on the one hand, a former commandment is set aside [d]because of its weakness and uselessness [19](for [e]the law made nothing perfect); but on the other hand, [f]a better hope is introduced, through which [g]we draw near to God.

[20][†]And it was not without an oath. For those who formerly became priests were made such without an oath, [21]but this one was made a priest with an oath by the one who said to him:

[h]“The Lord has sworn and will not change his mind,
‘You are a priest forever.’”

[22]This makes Jesus the guarantor of [i]a better covenant.

[23][†]The former priests were many in number, because they were prevented by death from continuing in office, [24]but he holds his priesthood permanently, because he continues [j]forever. [25]Consequently, he is able to save to the uttermost[2] [k]those who draw near to God [l]through him, since he always lives [m]to make intercession for them.

[26][†]For it was indeed fitting that we should have such a high priest, [n]holy, innocent, unstained, [o]separated from sinners, and [p]exalted above the heavens. [27]He has no need, like those high priests, to offer sacrifices daily, [q]first for his own sins and then for those of the people, since he did this [r]once for all when he offered up himself. [28][†]For the law appoints men [s]in their weakness as high priests, but the word of the oath, which came later than the law, appoints a Son who has been made [t]perfect forever.

Jesus, High Priest of a Better Covenant

HEBREWS 8 [†]Now the point in what we are saying is this: we have such a high priest, [u] one who is seated at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in heaven, [2]a minister in the holy places, in [v] the true tent [1] that the Lord [w] set up, not man. [3]For [x] every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices; thus [y] it is necessary for this priest also to have something to offer. [4][†]Now if he were on earth, he would not be a priest at all, since there are priests who offer gifts according to the law. [5][†]They serve [z] a copy and [a] shadow of the heavenly things. For when Moses was about to erect the tent, he was instructed by God, saying, [b] “See that you make everything according to the pattern that was shown you on the mountain.” [6][†]But as it is, Christ [2] has obtained a ministry that is [c] as much more excellent than the old as [d] the covenant [e] he mediates is better, since it is enacted on better promises. [7][†] [f] For if that first covenant had been faultless, there would have been no occasion to look for a second.

[8][†]For he finds fault with them when he says: [3]

[g] “Behold, the days are coming, declares the Lord, when I will establish a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah, [9] not like the covenant that I made with their fathers on the day when I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt.
For they did not continue in my covenant, and so I showed no concern for them, declares the Lord.
[10] [h] For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, declares the Lord:
I will put my laws into their minds, and [i] write them on their hearts,
and I will be their God,
and they shall be my people.
[11] And they shall not teach, each one his neighbor and each one his brother, saying, ‘Know the Lord,’ for they shall [j]all know me, from the least of them to the greatest.

[12] For I will be merciful toward their iniquities, [k]and I will remember their sins no more.”

[13]In speaking of a new covenant, he makes the first one obsolete. And [l]what is becoming obsolete and growing old is ready to vanish away.

The Earthly Holy Place

HEBREWS 9 [†]Now even the first covenant had regulations for worship and [m]an earthly place of holiness. [2]For [n]a tent [1] was prepared, the first section, in which were [o]the lampstand and [p]the table and [q]the bread of the Presence. [2] It is called the Holy Place. [3]Behind [r]the second curtain was a second section [3] called the Most Holy Place, [4][†]having the golden [s]altar of incense and [t]the ark of the covenant covered on all sides with gold, in which was [u]a golden urn holding the manna, and [v]Aaron’s staff that budded, and [w]the tablets of the covenant. [5]Above it were [x]the cherubim of glory overshadowing [y]the mercy seat. Of these things we cannot now speak in detail.

[6][†]These preparations having thus been made, [z]the priests go regularly into the first section, performing their ritual duties, [7][†]but into the second only [a]the high priest goes, and he but [a]once a year, and not without taking blood, [b]which he offers for himself and for the unintentional sins of the people. [8][†]By this the Holy Spirit indicates that [c]the way into the holy places is not yet opened as long as the first section is still standing [9][†] (which is symbolic for the present age). [4] According to this arrangement, gifts and sacrifices are offered [d]that cannot perfect the conscience of the worshiper, [10][†]but deal only with [e]food and drink and [f]various washings, regulations for the body imposed until the time of reformation.

Redemption Through the Blood of Christ

[11][†]But when Christ appeared as a high priest [g]of the good things that have come, [5] then through [h]the greater and more perfect tent ([i]not made with hands, that is, not of this creation) [12][†]he [j]entered [k]once for all into the holy places, not by means of [l]the blood of goats and calves but [m]by means of his own blood, [n]thus securing an eternal redemption. [13][†]For if [o]the blood of goats and bulls, and the sprinkling of defiled persons with [p]the ashes of a heifer, sanctify [6] for the purification of the flesh, [14][†]how much more will [q]the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit [r]offered himself without blemish to God, [s]purify our [7] conscience [t]from dead works [u]to serve the living God.

[15][†]Therefore he is [v]the mediator of a new covenant, so that [w]those who are called may [x]receive the promised eternal inheritance, [y]since a death has occurred that redeems them from the transgressions committed under the first covenant. [8] [16][†]For where a will is involved, the death of the one who made it must be established. [17]For [z]a will takes effect only at death, since it is not in force as long as the one who made it is alive. [18][†]Therefore not even the first covenant was inaugurated [a]without blood. [19]For when every commandment of the law had been declared by Moses to all the people, he took [b]the blood of calves and goats, [c]with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book itself and all the people, [20]saying, [d]"This is the blood of the covenant that God commanded for you." [21]And in the same way he sprinkled with the blood both [e]the tent and all the vessels used in worship. [22]Indeed, under the law almost everything is purified with blood, and [f]without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness of sins.

[23][†]Thus it was necessary for [g]the copies of the heavenly things to be purified with these rites, but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these. [24][†]For Christ has entered, not into holy places [h]made with hands, which are copies of the true things, but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God [i]on our behalf. [25][†]Nor was it to offer himself repeatedly, as [j]the high priest enters [k]the holy places every year with blood not his own, [26]for then he would have had to suffer repeatedly since the foundation of the world. But as it is, [l]he has appeared [m]once for all [n]at the end of the ages to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself. [27][†]And just as [o]it is appointed for man to die once, and [p]after that comes judgment, [28]so Christ, having been offered once [q]to bear the sins of [r] many, will appear [s] a second time, [t] not to deal with sin but to save those who are eagerly [u] waiting for him.

Christ’s Sacrifice Once for All

HEBREWS 10 [†]For since the law has but [v] a shadow [w] of the good things to come instead of the true form of these realities, [x] it can never, by the same sacrifices that are continually offered every year, make perfect those who draw near. [2]Otherwise, would they not have ceased to be offered, since the worshipers, having once been cleansed, would no longer have any consciousness of sins? [3]But [y] in these sacrifices [z] there is a reminder of sins every year. [4][†]For [a] it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins.

[5][†]Consequently, [b] when Christ [1] came into the world, he said,

[c] “Sacrifices and offerings you have not desired, but a body have you prepared for me;
[6] in burnt offerings and sin offerings you have taken no pleasure.
[7] Then I said, ‘Behold, I have come to do your will, O God, as it is written of me in the scroll of the book.’”

[8][†]When he said above, “You have neither desired nor taken pleasure in [c] sacrifices and offerings and burnt offerings and sin offerings” (these are offered according to the law), [9]then he added, [d] “Behold, I have come to do your will.” He does away with the first in order to establish the second. [10][†]And by that will [e] we have been sanctified through the offering of [f] the body of Jesus Christ [g] once for all.

[11][†]And every priest stands [h] daily at his service, [i] offering repeatedly the same sacrifices, [j] which can never take away sins. [12]But when Christ [2] had offered for all time a single sacrifice for sins, he [k] sat down at the right hand of God, [13]waiting from that time [l] until his enemies should be made a footstool for his feet. [14][†]For by a single offering [m] he has perfected for all time those who are being sanctified.

[15][†]And the Holy Spirit also bears witness to us; for after saying, 16 [n]“This is the covenant that I will make with them

after those days, declares the Lord:
I will put my laws on their hearts, and write them on their minds,”

17 then he adds,

[o]“I will remember their sins and their lawless deeds no more.”

18 Where there is forgiveness of these, there is no longer any offering for sin.

The Full Assurance of Faith

19 [†] [p]Therefore, brothers, [3] since we have confidence to enter [q]the holy places by the blood of Jesus, 20 [†]by [r]the new and living way that he opened for us through [s]the curtain, that is, through his flesh, 21 [†]and since we have [t]a great priest over the house of God, 22 [†]let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, with our hearts [u]sprinkled clean [v]from an evil conscience and our bodies [w]washed with pure water. 23 [†] [x]Let us hold fast the confession of our hope without wavering, for [y]he who promised is faithful. 24 And [z]let us consider how to stir up one another to love and good works, 25 [†] [a]not neglecting to meet together, as is the habit of some, but encouraging one another, and [b]all the more as you see [c]the Day drawing near.

26 [†]For [d]if we go on sinning deliberately [e]after receiving the knowledge of the truth, [f]there no longer remains a sacrifice for sins, 27 [g]but a fearful expectation of judgment, and [h]a fury of fire that will consume the adversaries. 28 [†] [i]Anyone who has set aside the law of Moses dies without mercy [j]on the evidence of two or three witnesses. 29 How much worse punishment, do you think, will be deserved by the one [k]who has trampled underfoot the Son of God, and has profaned [l]the blood of the covenant [m]by which he was sanctified, and has [n]outraged the Spirit of grace? 30 [†]For we know him who said, [o]“Vengeance is mine; I will repay.” And again, [p]“The Lord will judge his people.” 31 [q]It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

[32][†]But recall the former days when, after [r]you were enlightened, you endured [s]a hard struggle with sufferings, [33]sometimes being [t]publicly exposed to reproach and affliction, and sometimes being partners with those so treated. [34]For [u]you had compassion on those in prison, and [v]you joyfully accepted the plundering of your property, since you knew that you yourselves had [w]a better possession and an abiding one. [35]Therefore do not throw away your confidence, which has [x]a great reward. [36][†]For [y]you have need of endurance, so that [z]when you have done the will of God you may [a]receive what is promised. [37][†]For,

and [c]the coming one will come and will not delay; 38 [d]but my righteous one shall live by faith, and if he shrinks back,
my soul has no pleasure in him.”

[39]But we are not of those who shrink back and are destroyed, but of those who have faith and preserve their souls.

By Faith

HEBREWS 11 [†]Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of [e]things not seen. [2]For by it the people of old received their commendation. [3][†]By faith we understand that the universe was created by [f]the word of God, so that what is seen was not made out of [g]things that are visible.

[4][†]By faith [h]Abel offered to God [i]a more acceptable sacrifice than Cain, through which he was commended as righteous, God commending him by accepting his gifts. And [j]through his faith, though he died, he [k]still speaks. [5][†]By faith [l]Enoch was taken up so that he should not see death, and he was not found, because God had taken him. Now before he was taken he was commended as having pleased God. [6][†]And without faith it is impossible to please him, for whoever would draw near to God [m]must believe that he exists and [m]that he rewards those who seek him. [7][†]By faith [n]Noah, being warned by God concerning [o]events as yet unseen, in reverent fear constructed an ark for the saving of his household. By this he condemned the world and became an heir of [p]the righteousness that comes by faith.

[8][†]By faith [q]Abraham obeyed when he was called to go out to a place [r]that he was to receive as an inheritance. And he went out, not knowing where he was going. [9]By faith he went to live in [s]the land of promise, as in a foreign land, [t]living in tents [u]with Isaac and Jacob, heirs with him of the same promise. [10]For he was looking forward to [v]the city that has [w]foundations, [x]whose designer and builder is God. [11][†]By faith [y]Sarah herself received power to conceive, even when she was past the age, since she considered [z]him faithful who had promised. [12]Therefore from one man, and [a]him as good as dead, were born descendants [b]as many as the stars of heaven and as many as the innumerable grains of sand by the seashore.

[13][†]These all died in faith, [c]not having received the things promised, but [d]having seen them and greeted them from afar, and [e]having acknowledged that they were [f]strangers and exiles on the earth. [14][†]For people who speak thus make it clear that they are seeking a homeland. [15]If they had been thinking of that land from which they had gone out, [g]they would have had opportunity to return. [16]But as it is, they desire a better country, that is, a heavenly one. Therefore God is not ashamed [h]to be called their God, for [i]he has prepared for them a city.

[17][†]By faith [j]Abraham, when he was tested, offered up Isaac, and he who had received the promises was in the act of offering up his only son, [18]of whom it was said, [k]“Through Isaac shall your offspring be named.”
[19][l]He considered that God was able even to raise him from the dead, from which, figuratively speaking, he did receive him back. [20][†]By faith [m]Isaac invoked future blessings on Jacob and Esau. [21][†]By faith [n]Jacob, when dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph, [o]bowing in worship over the head of his staff. [22][†]By faith [p]Joseph, at the end of his life, made mention of the exodus of the Israelites and gave directions concerning his bones.

[23][†]By faith [q]Moses, when he was born, was hidden for three months by his parents, because they saw that the child was beautiful, and they were not afraid of [r]the king’s edict. [24][†]By faith Moses, when he was grown up, [s]refused to be called the son of Pharaoh’s daughter, [25][t]choosing rather to be mistreated with the people of God than to enjoy [u]the fleeting pleasures of sin. [26] [v]He considered the reproach of Christ greater wealth than the treasures of Egypt, for he was looking to [w]the reward. [27][†]By faith he [x]left Egypt, [y]not being afraid of the anger of the king, for he endured [z]as seeing him who is invisible. [28][†]By faith [a]he kept the Passover and sprinkled the blood, so that the Destroyer of the firstborn might not touch them.

[29][†]By faith [b]the people crossed the Red Sea as on dry land, but the Egyptians, when they attempted to do the same, were drowned. [30][†]By faith [c]the walls of Jericho fell down after they had been encircled for seven days. [31][†]By faith [d]Rahab the prostitute did not perish with those who were disobedient, because she [e]had given a friendly welcome to the spies.

[32][†]And what more shall I say? For time would fail me to tell of [f]Gideon, [g]Barak, [h]Samson, [i]Jephthah, of [j]David and [k]Samuel and the prophets— [33][†]who through faith conquered kingdoms, enforced justice, obtained promises, [l]stopped the mouths of lions, [34][†] [m]quenched the power of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, were made strong out of weakness, [n]became mighty in war, [n]put foreign armies to flight.
[35][†] [o]Women received back their dead by resurrection. Some were tortured, refusing to accept release, so that they might rise again to a better life. [36][†]Others suffered mocking and flogging, and even [p]chains and imprisonment. [37][†] [q]They were stoned, they were sawn in two, [1] [r]they were killed with the sword. [s]They went about in skins of sheep and goats, destitute, afflicted, mistreated— [38][†]of whom the world was not worthy —[t]wandering about in deserts and mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth.

[39][†]And all these, [u]though commended through their faith, [u]did not receive what was promised, [40]since God had provided something better for us, [v]that apart from us they should not be made perfect.

Jesus, Founder and Perfecter of Our Faith

HEBREWS 12 [†]Therefore, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us also lay aside every weight, and [w]sin which clings so closely, and [x]let us run [y]with endurance the race that is [z]set before us, [2][†]looking to Jesus, the founder and perfecter of our faith, [a]who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising [b]the shame, and [c]is seated at the right hand of the throne of God.

Do Not Grow Weary

[3][†][d]Consider him who endured from sinners such hostility against himself, so that you may not grow weary or [e]fainthearted. [4][†]In your struggle against sin you have not yet resisted to the point of shedding your blood. [5][†]And have you forgotten the exhortation that addresses you as sons?

> [f]“My son, [g]do not regard lightly the discipline of the Lord, > nor be weary when reproved by him.
> [6] For [h]the Lord disciplines the one he loves, > and chastises every son whom he receives.”

[7]It is for discipline that you have to endure. [i]God is treating you as sons. For what son is there whom his father does not discipline? [8]If you are left without discipline, [j]in which all have participated, then you are illegitimate children and not sons. [9]Besides this, we have had earthly fathers who disciplined us and we respected them. Shall we not much more be subject to [k]the Father of spirits [l]and live? [10]For they disciplined us for a short time as it seemed best to them, but he disciplines us for our good, [m]that we may share his holiness. [11] [n]For the moment all discipline seems painful rather than pleasant, but later it yields [o]the peaceful fruit of righteousness to those who have been trained by it.

[12][†]Therefore [p]lift your drooping hands and strengthen your weak knees, [13]and [q]make straight paths for your feet, so that what is lame may not be put out of joint [r]but rather be healed. [14][†][s]Strive for peace with everyone, and for the [t]holiness [u]without which no one will see the Lord. [15][†]See to it that no one [v]fails to obtain the grace of God; that no [w]“root of bitterness” springs up and causes trouble, and by it many become defiled; [16][†]that no one is [x]sexually immoral or unholy like Esau, who sold his birthright for a single meal. [17]For you know that [y]afterward, when he desired to inherit the blessing, he was rejected, for he found no chance to repent, though he sought it with tears.

A Kingdom That Cannot Be Shaken

[18][†]For you have not come to [z]what may be touched, a blazing fire and darkness and gloom and a tempest [19]and [a]the sound of a trumpet and a voice whose words [b]made the hearers beg that no further messages be spoken to them. [20]For they could not endure the order that was given, [c]“If even a beast touches the mountain, it shall be stoned.” [21]Indeed, [d]so terrifying was the sight that Moses said, “I tremble with fear.” [22][†]But you have come to [e]Mount Zion and to the city of the living God, [f]the heavenly Jerusalem, and to [g]innumerable angels in festal gathering, [23][†]and to [h]the assembly [1] of the firstborn who are [i]enrolled in heaven, and to [j]God, the judge of all, and to the spirits of the righteous made perfect, [24][†]and to Jesus, [k]the mediator of a new covenant, and to [l]the sprinkled blood [m]that speaks a better word than the blood of Abel.

[25][†]See that you do not refuse him who is speaking. For [n]if they did not escape when they refused him who warned them on earth, much less will we escape if we reject him who warns from heaven. [26][†]At that time [o]his voice shook the earth, but now he has promised, [p]“Yet once more I will shake not only the earth but also the heavens.” [27]This phrase, “Yet once more,” indicates [q]the removal of things that are shaken—that is, things that have been made—in order that the things that cannot be shaken may remain. [28][†]Therefore let us be grateful for receiving [r]a kingdom that cannot be shaken, and thus [s]let us offer to God acceptable worship, with reverence and awe, [29]for our [t]God is a consuming fire.

Sacrifices Pleasing to God

HEBREWS 13 [†]Let [u]brotherly love continue. [2][†][v]Do not neglect to show hospitality to strangers, for thereby [w]some have entertained angels unawares. [3][†][x]Remember those who are in prison, as though in prison with them, and those who are mistreated, since you also are in the body.

[4][†] [y]Let marriage be held in honor among all, and let the marriage bed be undefiled, for God will judge [z]the sexually immoral and adulterous. [5][†]Keep your life [a]free from love of money, and [b]be content with what you have, for he has said, [c]“I will never leave you nor forsake you.” [6]So we can confidently say,

[d]“The Lord is my helper;
[e]I will not fear;
what can man do to me?”

[7][†]Remember [f]your leaders, those who spoke to you the word of God. Consider the outcome of their way of life, and [g]imitate their faith. [8][†]Jesus Christ is [h]the same yesterday and today and forever. [9][†]Do not be [i]led away by diverse and strange teachings, for it is good for the heart to be strengthened by grace, [j]not by foods, which have not benefited those devoted to them. [10]We have an altar [k]from which those who serve the tent have no right to eat. [11]For [l]the bodies of those animals whose blood is brought into the holy places by the high priest as a sacrifice for sin are burned [m]outside the camp. [12][†]So Jesus also [n]suffered [o]outside the gate in order to sanctify the people [p]through his own blood. [13][†]Therefore let us go to him outside the camp and bear [q]the reproach he endured. [14]For [r]here we have no lasting city, but we seek the city that is to come. [15][†] [s]Through him then let us continually offer up [t]a sacrifice of praise to God, that is, [u]the fruit of lips that acknowledge his name. [16]Do not neglect to do good and [v]to share what you have, for such [w]sacrifices are pleasing to God.

[17][†]Obey [x]your leaders and submit to them, [y]for they are keeping watch over your souls, as those who will have to [z]give an account. [a]Let them do this with joy and not with groaning, for that would be of no advantage to you.

[18][†] [b]Pray for us, for we are sure that we have a clear conscience, desiring to act honorably in all things. [19]I urge you the more earnestly to do this in order [c]that I may be restored to you the sooner.

Benediction

20[†]Now [d] may the God of peace [e] who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, [f] the great shepherd of the sheep, by [g] the blood of the eternal covenant, 21 [h] equip you with everything good that you may do his will, [i] working in us [1] that which is pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, [j] to whom be glory forever and ever. Amen.

Final Greetings

22I appeal to you, brothers, [2] bear with my word of exhortation, for [k] I have written to you briefly. 23[†]You should know that [l] our brother Timothy has been released, with whom I shall see you if he comes soon. 24[†]Greet all [m] your leaders and all the saints. Those who come from Italy send you greetings. 25[†] [n] Grace be with all of you.

Study Notes for Hebrews

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:1–2:18 Jesus Is Superior to Angelic Beings. Jesus' identity (1:1–4) shows his superiority to angels. This superiority includes his uniqueness as Son of God (1:5–14) and his humanity as Son of Man. Because of both he is the perfect founder of salvation (2:5–18).

FACT

Who wrote Hebrews? The author and the audience of Hebrews are both unknown. However, we do know that Timothy was a friend of the author (13:23), that the author was probably not an eyewitness of Jesus (2:1, 3), and that Jewish Christians are the most likely recipients.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:1–4 This is a single sentence in Greek. Many of the book's themes are announced here. These include the contrasting periods of revelation (vv. 1–2; compare 2:2–4; 3:1–6; 4:14–5:10; 6:13–10:18), Jesus' unique status as Son of God (1:2–3; compare vv. 5–14; 3:1–6; 5:5–10; 7:26–28), his purifying work (1:3; compare 9:11–10:18), and his supremacy (1:4; compare 1:5–2:18).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:1 Long ago contrasts with "these last days" in v. 2. Two similar Greek words emphasize the many times and many ways in which God has spoken. This speaking was through prophets, which included both the prophetic and the historical books of the OT (see Deut. 18:15; Acts 3:22; 4:25; 26:22). our fathers. The OT patriarchs (compare Heb. 3:9; 8:9), the readers' spiritual ancestors.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:2 Four contrasts occur between vv. 1 and 2: time of revelation ("long ago" vs. these last days); agent of revelation ("prophets" vs. Son); recipients of revelation ("fathers" vs. us); and the unity of the final revelation in the Son ("many times and in many ways" vs. at one time, in and through God's Son). Since God has spoken finally and fully in the Son, and since the NT fully reports and interprets this supreme revelation, the canon of Scripture is complete. Jesus is heir of all things. He "inherits" all creation from his Father (v. 4). The Son's preexistence, authority, power, and full deity are evident in his role in creating the world; compare John 1:3, 10; Col. 1:16.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:3 Glory is often described as light (Isa. 60:1; Rev. 21:23). Here the Son is God's glorious light. Jesus is the exact imprint of God's real nature. Thus the Son is identical to God in substance, characteristics, and abilities. right hand of the Majesty on high. The place of supreme authority (see Heb. 1:13; 8:1; 10:12; 12:2; also Mark 14:62; Rom. 8:34; Eph. 1:20). sat down. Jesus' work of salvation is complete. "Majesty" also describes God in Heb. 8:1 (compare Jude 25).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:4 The main theme of chs. 1–2 is announced: Jesus is superior to angels. There was much speculation about angels in first-century Judaism. Angels minister before God's throne. They guide and protect humans. They revealed the Mosaic law (see 1:7; 2:2; 12:22; 13:2). Yet Jesus is superior to them, in part because his name (that is, his essence) is "Son" (1:5). He has a closer relationship with and better inheritance from the Father than the angels have.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:5 You are my Son. This quotes Ps. 2:7. In that psalm the Messiah is the Anointed One (Ps. 2:2), is king over all (Ps. 2:6–8), and especially is God's Son (Ps. 2:7). today I have begotten you. A poetic expression reflecting the unique relationship of the Son to God Almighty (see further Heb. 1:6); this speaks of entering into a new phase of that Father-Son relationship and does not mean that the Son once did not exist. Similar words of divine sonship are spoken at Jesus' baptism (Mark 1:11; Luke 3:22; compare Matt. 3:17) and his transfiguration (Matt. 17:5; Mark 9:7; Luke 9:35). he shall be to me a son. This proclamation (2 Sam. 7:14; also 1 Chron. 17:13) is declared to King David concerning his covenant heir, whom God will designate God's own "Son." Solomon failed to follow the law and was not "established forever" (2 Sam. 7:16); hence, the promise can only be fulfilled by the Davidic Messiah.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:6 The firstborn son in Israelite families had first place in terms of inheritance (see Gen. 43:33; Ex. 4:22). The title as applied to Jesus does not mean that he was created (see note on Col. 1:15). Let all God's angels worship him may refer to either Ps. 97:7 or Deut. 32:43—or possibly both. Since only God is worthy of worship (Ex. 20:3–5; Isa. 42:8; Rev. 19:10), this is further evidence of the Son's full deity.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:7 The splendor of angels is acknowledged, proving that the Son, who is superior to all the angels, is all the more glorious.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:8–9 The quotation (Ps. 45:6–7) is from a psalm about the Davidic king. Only Jesus, the Davidic Messiah (the anointed One), truly fits this description. Your throne, O God. The messianic Son is rightfully called God by God the Father. (See also John 1:1, 18; 20:28; Titus 2:13.)

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:10–12 In light of the clear statement about Christ's deity (vv. 8–9), the author emphasizes his role in creation and his eternality.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:13 Cited from Ps. 110:1. This psalm of David is quite significant in Hebrews (see Heb. 5:6; 7:17, 21) and elsewhere (Matt. 22:44; Acts 2:34; 1 Cor. 15:25). It applies to "great David's greater son," the Messiah. right hand. See note on Heb. 1:3.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 1:14 ministering spirits. Angels serve believers, those who are to inherit salvation. But salvation is possible only through Jesus (2:10; 5:9; 9:28). The angels' important role still pales in comparison to him.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:1–4 This warning calls the reader to pay heed to the greater salvation which was declared by the Lord himself, attested by human eyewitnesses, and authenticated by God's power. The warning proceeds from the lesser (punishments under the Mosaic law; v. 2) to the greater (the danger of neglecting the greater salvation; vv. 3–4).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:2 The message declared by angels is the Mosaic law (see Deut. 33:2; Acts 7:53; Gal. 3:19). reliable. Even though the revelation in Christ is superior, the author does not diminish the importance of the Mosaic law.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:3 how shall we escape? If the Mosaic law came with "retribution" for failure to obey it (v. 2), then surely the greater salvation announced by the Lord comes with more dangerous retribution for those who neglect it.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:4 The terms signs, wonders, and miracles overlap in meaning. They appear together in Acts 2:22 and 2 Cor. 12:12 (contrast 2 Thess. 2:9). The Greek word for gifts can mean "distributions." Distributed according to his will probably refers to the spiritual gifts and to all the other works of God described in this verse.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:5–18 Jesus is also superior to angels since, as Son of Man, the world is subjected to him, though this has yet to be fully revealed (vv. 5–9). Jesus' sacrificial suffering and death required him to partake of humanity (vv. 10–18).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:5 For indicates that the argument continues from 1:5–14 and 2:2–4. The "son of man" (v. 6) has responsibilities of worldwide rule not given to angels. the world to come. The future age when all of God's purposes in salvation will be fulfilled. The author is speaking of a future salvation (see note on 9:27–28), though the "last days" have already begun (1:2).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:7 You made him. Some think the author of Hebrews, quoting Psalm 8, refers to the human race in general. Others think he refers to Jesus, the true Son of Man. for a little while lower. If this refers to mankind in general, then it means that believers, during their earthly lives, are slightly lower in status and authority than angels. If the writer refers to Jesus, it means that, in his earthly suffering, Jesus' divine nature was temporarily obscured (compare Phil. 2:6–8).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:8 Putting everything in subjection to him echoes Gen. 1:28, where God put everything under the stewardship of Adam and Eve (Gen. 1:26–28). But if Jesus, the true representative of humanity, is specifically in view, then it means that the "world to come" (Heb. 2:5) is subjected to Jesus, indicating his superiority to angels in his authority to rule the world. This also implies that he rules the angels themselves, since nothing is outside his control. However, at present believers do not see the entire world subject either to human beings or to Christ. This raises the question, What has happened to God's plan to put everything in subjection under man (or under Christ)?

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:9 But we see him. All interpreters agree that this refers to Jesus (compare notes on vv. 7, 8). The phrase little while and the sequence of events in vv. 7–8 (compare Ps. 8:5–6) show that, after first being made lower than the angels, Jesus was crowned and exalted. Jesus' suffering of death was the reason for his being crowned with glory and honor. He tasted death as a work of God's grace on behalf of everyone (that is, all who follow him; Heb. 9:15, 28; 10:39). Jesus. This is the first mention of Jesus' name in Hebrews (see 3:1; 4:14; etc.; "Christ" first appears in 3:6). Though the human race generally did not fulfill God's plan to put everything on earth under man's feet (2:6–8), there is one man who is fulfilling God's great plan, and that is Jesus.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:10 he, for whom and by whom all things exist. God the Father. many sons. The followers of the one unique Son of God are adopted into the newly redeemed human family (see "brothers," vv. 11–12; and "children," v. 13; also 12:5–8). founder. The Greek can designate either an originator or a leader (see 12:2). The concept of making perfect applies in Hebrews both to Jesus himself (5:9; 7:28) and to his work in sanctifying his followers (10:14; 12:23). The author is not suggesting that Jesus was sinful (compare 4:15; 7:26), but that as Jesus lived his life, his maturity and experience deepened, always with full obedience to the Father.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:11 those who are sanctified. Jesus' true followers, who are set apart for his purposes by his sacrifice (10:10, 14; 13:12). he is not ashamed to call them brothers. Since they share a common source of life, they are members of the same family.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:12 This verse quotes from Ps. 22:22. The psalm speaks of Jesus' death (Ps. 22:1, 16–18) and resurrection (Ps. 22:19–24). congregation. All the redeemed in heaven.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:13 The second citation in this verse clearly comes from Isa. 8:18. The first likely is adapted from Isa. 8:17.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:14–15 A human Savior was necessary, because human beings (children) need a sacrifice that bears God's wrath and turns it to favor (see note on v. 17). They also need a sympathetic high priest (vv. 17–18). share in flesh and blood. Jesus was fully human, just like the "children" and the high priest (see 5:1–2). the one who has the power of death. God ultimately rules over life and death (Deut. 32:39; Ps. 90:3; 139:16), but Satan claims that power.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:17 had to be. Unless Jesus became fully human in every respect (except for sin), he could not represent believers as their high priest. Jesus must be human in order to serve as high priest on behalf of humanity. propitiation. An atoning sacrifice that cancels sin and satisfies God's wrath (compare Deut. 21:8; Ps. 25:11; 78:38; see note on Rom. 3:25).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 2:18 suffered. Jesus' sufferings as a human, especially his death (vv. 9–10). tempted. Jesus, as high priest, was tempted in every way and yet did not sin (4:15; also 7:26).

3:1–10:18 Jesus Is Superior to the Mosaic Law. Having concluded that Jesus is superior to the mediators of the Mosaic law (angels, 2:2), the author now establishes Jesus' superiority to Moses (3:1–6), to the Aaronic high priesthood (4:14–7:28), to the former covenant (8:1–13), and to the Mosaic sacrifices (9:1–10:18). This section includes three exhortations to Christian perseverance (3:7–4:13; 5:11–6:12; 10:19–39).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 3:1 Therefore. In light of Jesus' high priesthood (2:17). holy brothers. Members of the family of God (3:12; 10:19; 13:22); also called "saints" or sanctified ones (13:24). heavenly calling. "Heavenly" elsewhere describes God's perfect order (8:5; 9:23) and the future life with God (11:16; 12:22). For "calling," see 2:11 and 9:15. Jesus is an apostle in that he is "one who is sent" (see Luke 4:18). our confession. The content of the Christian faith (see Heb. 4:14; 10:23).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 3:3–6 more glory. Despite Moses' great faithfulness, Jesus is superior. house. Jesus as the Son of God has a privileged place in the household of God (1 Chron. 17:14). Moses remains a valued servant in that household (Num. 12:7).

FACT

Jesus the master builder. In the era of peace made possible by Roman rule, the building of public buildings and private homes flourished. Working primarily with materials such as marble, bronze, and terra-cotta, architects designed and built large, beautiful structures throughout the empire. However, such buildings were nothing compared to the individual new lives being "built" by Jesus the master builder (3:3–6).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 3:6 Christ is the Greek equivalent of "Messiah," meaning "anointed one" (see 1:9). we are his house.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 3:7–4:13 The contrasting of Jesus and Moses (3:1–6) leads to a comparison of their followers' responses.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 3:7–11 Therefore. Citing Ps. 95:7–11, the author contrasts Moses' faithfulness with the faithless people of Moses' day. Hebrews attributes this psalm to the Holy Spirit (compare Mark 12:36; Acts 1:16).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 3:12–13 Drawing on Psalm 95, Hebrews warns against allowing the unbelief of a hardened, sinful heart to cause one to fall away ("turn away from, forsake"; compare Luke 8:13; 1 Tim. 4:1). as long as it is called "today." From the perspective of God's saving plans for world history, the church lives in a special moment in which the Lord has come, spoken, and gone, and believers await his return—faith is called for in this hour.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 3:14 The true Christian will endure to the end. The condition (if indeed) has been understood in various ways. Some have argued that the condition ("if") indicates that true Christians can lose their salvation. Scripture is clear, however, that true believers cannot lose their salvation (John 6:39–40; 10:27–29; Rom. 8:35, 38–39; Eph. 1:4; Phil. 1:6; 1 Pet. 1:3–5). Hebrews 3:14 should be understood in connection with v. 13, as is indicated by the linking word For. That is, those who become hardened (v. 13) give outward evidence that they never have been genuine believers who "share in Christ," because genuine believers hold on to their original confidence to the end. Of course, Scripture also encourages believers to pray for and seek to reclaim any who have fallen away (James 5:20; 1 John 5:16), in the hope that they will turn back. Still, this passage should be viewed as a sober warning—intended as a means that God uses to keep Christians resolved in faith and obedient until the end.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 3:15–19 Quoting Ps. 95:7–8 again, the author draws several points from the failure of the exodus generation (see especially Ex. 17:1–7; Num. 14:20–38). They witnessed God's salvation and many miracles in the exodus, and yet they had responded in disobedience and unbelief, so they were unable to enter into the rest of the Promised Land.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:1–13 Continuing to use Psalm 95, the author focuses on the word "rest." The section makes most sense if the rest is understood as having begun but still awaiting completion.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:1 Therefore. Verses 1–13 connect closely to the preceding argument (compare 3:7–11, 16–19 with 4:2–10) and to the previous exhortation (compare 3:12–14 with 4:1–2, 11–13). There remains a future, end-time Sabbath rest from God that can be enjoyed in some measure even in this life (vv. 3–10). fear. Reverent fear before God, here concerning a person’s spiritual state (see notes on Prov. 1:7; Acts 5:5; 1 Pet. 1:17; 1 John 4:18).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:2 Comparisons continue between the exodus generation and the church. Both received God’s declaration of deliverance (good news). Both were called to respond in faith. The exodus generation did not receive the promised benefit because they failed to respond in faith. Their failure warns Christians against unbelief.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:3–5 we who have believed. Faith in God’s good news is necessary to enter God’s rest. The “rest” of God in Ps. 95:11 (they shall not enter my rest) is connected with God’s resting on the seventh day after his work of creation. The fact that the exodus generation was not allowed to enter that rest proves that God’s Sabbath rest was still open. Even “today,” at the time of the writing of Hebrews, this rest could still be entered. Indeed, people throughout the entire church age can enter into this rest.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:6–7 Verse 6 restates the conclusions of vv. 2–5. Verse 7 advances the argument by suggesting that the today of Ps. 95:7–8 holds out to the worshiper the possibility of entering even now in a partial way into the end-time “rest” and blessing that the exodus generation missed. Christians enter into God’s rest through recognizing that Christ’s work of redeeming them from sin has been completed.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:8–10 For if Joshua had given them rest. One could conceivably argue that the “rest” that the exodus generation sought was their entrance into the Promised Land. However, that entrance occurred in the days of Joshua, and Psalm 95 (with its promise of “today” entering into God’s rest) is later than Joshua’s day. Therefore, the Sabbath rest remains possible for God’s people to enter even now, in this life (Heb. 4:9).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:11 therefore (in light of the conclusion from vv. 9–10) strive to enter that rest. This phrase again emphasizes the need for perseverance (see 2:1; 3:14; 4:14).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:12–13 The warning continues: faithless disobedience will not go unnoticed. word of God. Usually this phrase in Hebrews refers to the message of salvation (13:7; compare 4:2), but here the “word” is pictured as God’s personal utterance, living, active, sharp, piercing, and discerning, with eyes that expose. The Word of God acts as God himself, so that one’s innermost thoughts and intentions are exposed. This happens constantly in Christians’ lives.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:14–10:18 As high priest, Jesus is superior to the Mosaic priesthood due to (1) his ability to sympathize with human need, (2) his perfect holiness, (3) his eternal call to the priestly order of Melchizedek, (4) his initiating a new and better covenant, (5) his ministering in the true heavenly tabernacle, and (6) his once-for-all sacrifice for the salvation and perfection of his followers.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:14 Jesus’ role as high priest is announced in 2:17, discussed here (4:14–5:10), and further explained in 7:1–9:8. passed through the heavens. Jesus ascended to the right hand of God the Father (see note on 1:3). Son of God. Jesus’ role as a human high priest (2:5–18) is united with his position as God’s unique Son (5:5–6; see 1:1–14; 3:5–6). Let us hold fast continues the theme of perseverance (2:1; 3:6, 12–14; 4:11). confession. See 3:1; 10:23.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:15 tempted. The Greek word can refer either to temptation to make one sin (compare Matt. 4:1–11) or testing designed to strengthen one’s faith (compare Luke 22:28). Here it means temptation to sin. in every respect. Jesus was tempted in every area of personal life. He (unlike every other human) remained without sin. Thus he is truly the holy high priest (Heb. 7:26–28; see 5:2–3).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 4:16 Draw near is used consistently in Hebrews to describe a person approaching God (7:25; 10:1, 22; 11:6; 12:18, 22; see Lev. 9:5). This is possible only when one’s sins are forgiven through the ministry of a high priest (Heb. 7:25; 10:22). Confidence indicates that Christians may come before God without fear that they will be punished for approaching someone with greater authority and power.

FACT

Approaching a human ruler’s throne with a request can be dangerous, especially when one is fully at the mercy of the ruler. In contrast, Christians can expect to find mercy and help when they approach God’s throne with a request (4:16).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 5:1–4 He can deal gently. High priests were human and understood human weakness. They presented sacrifices for sins for others and for themselves. Jesus, however, is the perfect high priest, since he is without sin and therefore does not need to offer a sacrifice for himself (7:26–28).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 5:5–6 God the Father appointed Jesus to be high priest (see vv. 1, 4). Psalm 2:7 is quoted, followed by Ps. 110:4. Jesus combines the role of high priest with his status as Son of God (see Heb. 4:14; 5:8–10). after the order of Melchizedek. See 7:1–28.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 5:7 with loud cries and tears. One might first recall Jesus' agonizing prayer in Gethsemane, but the broad time reference (In the days of his flesh) suggests that Jesus' earthly prayers were constantly heartfelt, earnest, and accompanied by tears. Able to save him from death describes the resurrection, whereby God saved Jesus "from" or "out of" death.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 5:8 he learned obedience through what he suffered. Jesus was always without sin (4:15; 7:26) and always obedient. Yet he still gained knowledge and experience by living as a human being (see Luke 2:40, 52).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 5:9–10 being made perfect. During his childhood, Jesus did not lack any godly character quality. But he did lack the full experience of having lived a perfect human life, obeying the Father in everything, without sin. order of Melchizedek. See v. 6 and ch. 7.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 5:11–6:12 The author interrupts his discussion of Jesus as high priest to challenge his readers to grow in their faith. He rebukes them for their lack of maturity (5:11–14), lists the basics that they should already know (6:1–3), and warns them about the danger of falling away (6:4–8). Nevertheless, he is confident that they will persevere (6:9–12).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 5:11 The author often encourages his readers (6:9–10; 10:32–34), but here he scolds them. hard to explain. In ch. 7 he will "explain" the reference to Melchizedek (5:10).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 5:12–14 basic principles of the oracles of God. The most basic truths about God. Milk vs. solid food shows the readers' immaturity in the faith.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:1–2 elementary doctrine of Christ. Compare "basic principles" (5:12). Washings may refer to teaching about the differences between Jewish purification rituals and Christian baptism. Laying on of hands could refer to a practice at the time of baptism (see Acts 8:14–17; 19:5–6) or to other times during prayers for healing and appointing individuals for ministry (see notes on Acts 6:6; 13:3).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:4–8 This passage has been much debated. The central issue is whether vv. 4–5 describes people who were once true Christians. (1) Some argue that the passage does describe true Christians, meaning that Christians can "fall away" and lose their salvation. Most who hold this view think that those who fall away can still return to Christian faith, so this limits vv. 4–6 to people who refuse to return. (2) Most argue, however, that although these people have participated fully in the Christian community, the fact that they "fall away" shows that they are not true Christians. (3) Another view is that the warnings are addressed to true believers, and that although they will never completely fall away, the warnings are still the means God uses to challenge them to persevere in their faith. (4) Finally, some believe that the falling away has to do with a loss of heavenly rewards. In any case, though the author recognizes that there may be a few in the congregation who fit the description of vv. 4–8, in general he does not think it to be true as a whole of the congregation, for he says, "yet in your case, beloved, we feel sure of better things—things that belong to salvation" (v. 9).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:4 If a person worries that he may have committed such a deep sin that repentance is impossible, his very desire to repent is evidence that he has not done so (see note on Matt. 12:31–32). Enlightened likely describes the initial entrance into Christian community through hearing an explanation of the Christian faith (compare Heb. 10:32). Tasted the heavenly gift probably refers to either the Lord's Supper or the general blessing of Christian fellowship (or both). have shared in (literally, "have become a partaker of") the Holy Spirit. Some understand this to mean having experienced the laying on of hands in the church; others link it to the communal experience of the Spirit active in the church.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:5 tasted the goodness of the word of God. These people (see note on v. 4) have heard the truth explained. They have learned of God's word (1:3; 11:3). This word will be fully shown in powers that renew the world in the age to come (2:5; 13:14). Through the ministry of the Spirit, these powers are partially experienced now in the Christian community (see 2:4).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:6 Fallen away involves a sustained, committed rejection of Christ and a departure from the Christian community. to restore them again to repentance. This wording does not clarify whether the earlier repentance was merely outward, or whether it was the genuine repentance that accompanied true saving faith (see note on vv. 4–8). Crucifying once again graphically portrays rejection of Jesus. holding . . . up to contempt. A public, shameful display. The warning of vv. 4–8 is serious: such "falling away" treats God's own Son with such disrespect that it is as though the person wanted to put Christ on a cross again.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:7–8 land that has drunk the rain. The author uses a common OT and NT agricultural metaphor (see ESV cross-references on v. 7; also Matt. 13:24–30, 36–43; Luke 3:17). He warns that those who fall away are like land that does not bear a crop that is useful, but only bears thorns and thistles. Reminding them of the final judgment, the author says that such land is near to being cursed and its end is to be burned.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:9–10 Having warned about falling away from the faith, the author shows confidence in his readers' salvation (v. 9; see 10:32–34).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:11–12 imitators of those who . . . inherit the promises. Abraham is the immediate example (vv. 13–15). Other examples appear in ch. 11 (OT saints) and in 13:7 (church leaders).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:13–14 promise to Abraham. God's promises to Abraham include those in Gen. 12:1–3; 17:1–22; 22:16–18. Here the author focuses on Gen. 22:16–17.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:15 having patiently waited. Abraham waited 25 years for Isaac's birth (see Gen. 12:4 with Gen. 21:5), and he did not witness the fulfilled promise of countless descendants (see note on Heb. 11:13). In his lifetime, Abraham obtained the promise through seeing Isaac born, and through the ram offered on Isaac's behalf (Genesis 22).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:16 Oaths were common legal devices in ancient times (disputes implies a legal context). Oaths usually appealed to some higher authority (something greater than themselves).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:17–18 The two unchangeable things are God's promise/purpose and his oath.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 6:19–20 The Christian's hope is in the person and saving work of Christ. This hope is an anchor, providing security and stability for the soul. Clearly, even though the author has warned the readers about apostasy (vv. 4–8), he believes they can have assurance of their salvation. curtain. The veil in the tabernacle or temple that separated the inner place ("Most Holy Place," 9:3) from the rest of the structure. See Ex. 26:31; Num. 18:7; Matt. 27:51; Heb. 9:3; 10:20. forerunner. Jesus went beforehand and opened the veil, and he now permits others to draw near (9:3, 6–14; 10:19–20). high priest. The author returns to the subject of 5:5–10.

FACT

The safety of sailors depended greatly on a ship's anchor. Without it, the likelihood of shipwreck increased dramatically. The anchor therefore became an important emblem of hope and stability for early Christians (6:19).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:1–28 This chapter discusses Melchizedek (vv. 1–10), highlighting points later applied to Jesus (vv. 11–28).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:1–2 The author summarizes the brief account of Melchizedek in Gen. 14:18–20. Elsewhere in the OT, Melchizedek is mentioned only in Ps. 110:4. translation of his name. In the OT, the meaning of a name could indicate a person's relationship to God (e.g., Gen. 17:5; 32:28). Melchizedek. The Hebrew name means "king of righteousness." Salem is Melchizedek's city (Gen. 14:18) and is from the same root as the Hebrew for peace.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:3 Some have suggested that Melchizedek was a preincarnate appearance of the Son of God. As this passage indicates, however, Melchizedek was not in fact the Son of God but someone resembling the Son of God (literally, "having been made like the Son of God"). He is without father or mother or genealogy probably means simply that this information is not given anywhere in Scripture (in contrast to the Levitical priests, whose genealogies are recorded). The next phrase (neither beginning of days nor end of life) should probably be understood in the same way. The OT mentions no end to his priesthood. In that sense he continues a priest forever. Hebrews seems to view Melchizedek as an ordinary man. He was a “type” or foreshadowing of Christ (see note on Rom. 5:14), who is truly the king of righteousness and who brings true peace.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:4 tenth of the spoils. Abraham tithed to Melchizedek, and therefore Abraham was inferior to Melchizedek (see note on vv. 9–10). patriarch. Israel traces its lineage through Abraham (see vv. 9–10).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:5–6 God commanded the Israelites to tithe to the Levitical priesthood (e.g., Num. 18:21–24), who were themselves fellow descendants of Jacob/Israel and of Abraham.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:7 The superior person, Melchizedek, blessed the inferior person, Abraham (compare v. 1). Thus Melchizedek’s priesthood is superior to Abraham and all his descendants, including the Levitical priesthood.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:8 he lives. Melchizedek is a “priest forever” (Ps. 110:4; see note on Heb. 7:3). Because the Melchizedek priesthood is eternal, it is superior to the Levitical priesthood (vv. 23–25). The author is probably not claiming that Melchizedek never died, but that he is a type of Christ in that nothing is stated in the biblical text about his death (see note on v. 3), and so Melchizedek foreshadows the risen Jesus.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:9–10 Levi himself . . . paid tithes (to Melchizedek) through Abraham. The author’s reasoning is that Abraham’s descendants, who share in Abraham’s promises, also share in Abraham’s tithe to Melchizedek. Therefore the Levitical priesthood is inferior to Melchizedek’s priesthood.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:11–12 Hebrews offers several reasons for why the Mosaic law could not bring people to perfection (vv. 18–19; 9:9; 10:1). Here, the fact that there existed a priestly order of Melchizedek (Ps. 110:4) shows that the Levitical priesthood was insufficient for the task. change in the law. The establishment of a better priesthood (Christ’s) shows Christians that there also has been a change from the Mosaic law, since that law required a succession of priests, all descended from Levi (Heb. 7:18–19). Thus, the Mosaic covenant (the “old covenant”) is no longer in effect.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:13–14 Jesus was from the tribe of Judah rather than the priestly tribe of Levi. Yet he qualifies as the eternal high priest because he is the Davidic Messiah, called both Lord and a priest after the messianic priestly order of Melchizedek (Ps. 110:1, 4).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:15–17 the power of an indestructible life. Jesus' resurrection from the dead verifies his eternal priesthood (Ps. 110:4; see Heb. 5:6). Death could not conquer him, therefore his priesthood lasts forever (see 7:23–24).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:18–19 former commandment. The institution of the Levitical priesthood is set aside and thus so is the Mosaic law (see v. 12), since it was not able to accomplish God's saving purpose (hence its weakness and uselessness). Only Jesus' work on the cross brought people to perfection (see v. 11; also 9:9; 10:1). better hope. That is, the hope of salvation and perfection through Jesus' high priesthood (7:25–28). draw near to God. Jesus' work permits true fellowship with God.

FACT

A better covenant. A key theme in the book of Hebrews is the superiority of the new covenant over the old. The words "better," "more," or "greater" to describe the new covenant appear a combined total of 25 times.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:20–21 God did not promise that the Levitical priesthood would last forever, but the priesthood of Jesus rests securely on God's promise/oath in Ps. 110:4 (see Heb. 6:13–20).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:23–25 The many Levitical priests all died. But Jesus is eternal, so he is a greater high priest (see v. 8). to the uttermost. Either completeness in time ("forever") or completeness in extent ("completely"). Perhaps the author wants readers to understand it in both senses. On draw near to God, see note on 4:16. to make intercession. To bring believers' requests to the Father (compare Rom. 8:34).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:26 fitting that we should have. Jesus' high priesthood is appropriate and is for the believers' benefit.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 7:28 made perfect. See 5:9 and note on 5:9–10.

Differences between Levitical High Priests and Jesus the High Priest

Levitical High Priests	Reference	Jesus the High Priest
many in number	7:23–24	one temporary	7:23–24	permanent and eternal sinners who had to offer sacrifices for their "own sins"	7:26–27	holy, innocent; offers sacrifice only for others had to sacrifice "daily"	7:27	sacrificed "once for all" offered sacrificial animals	7:27; 9:11–14	"offered up himself"
entered the holy places through a man-made tent and by means of the blood of goats and calves	9:11–12	entered the holy place of the presence of God and by means of his own blood

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 8:1–13 Jesus is the eternal high priest, ministering from heaven in the true tabernacle and enacting the better promises of the new covenant.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 8:1–2 Majesty. A term for God himself (see 1:3). Holy places will refer later to the "Holy Place" (9:2) and the "Most Holy Place" (9:3) in the tabernacle as well as in the temple. But here the author is speaking of something even better, the actual heavenly "holy places," that is, the area before the very throne of God himself. The true tent also refers to heaven, God's very presence. The earthly tabernacle functions as a picture of entering into God's presence in heaven.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 8:4 Jesus could not serve in the earthly tabernacle because the law requires that a priest from Levi's family do this (7:11–19).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 8:5 The earthly tabernacle (tent), in which the Levite priests served, was a lesser copy of the heavenly pattern shown to Moses (Ex. 25:40). The heavenly place is greater.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 8:6 The better promises of the new covenant are cited in vv. 8–12.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 8:7 if that first covenant had been faultless. The Mosaic covenant was not wrong. Rather, it was weak and ineffective (7:18–19) by comparison to the new covenant. God had never intended for the Mosaic covenant to bring people to perfection. Jesus was always to have that ministry.

FACT

Why didn’t the old covenant last? A covenant is an agreement between two parties. The Israelites did not keep their part of the covenant. That is why the first covenant did not work (8:7–9). But God mercifully initiated a new covenant through Christ. This covenant offers many more blessings, including the Holy Spirit’s ministry of helping believers obey God (8:10–11).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 8:8–12 he finds fault with them. God blames sinful humanity for the failure of the first covenant. Jeremiah 31:31–34 is quoted here. That passage supports several arguments in Hebrews: (1) this “second” covenant (Heb. 8:7) comes after the Mosaic covenant (the days are coming, v. 8); (2) it is established by the Lord (vv. 8, 13); (3) it is a new covenant (vv. 8, 13); (4) it is unlike the earlier covenant (vv. 9, 13); (5) the earlier covenant failed because of the people’s rebellion (for they did not continue in my covenant, v. 9; see v. 8); (6) this new covenant involves a transformation of its people’s inner lives. It writes God’s laws into their minds and hearts so that all know him (vv. 10–11; see 10:14–17); and (7) it brings true, final forgiveness of sins (8:12; see 9:15; 10:12–18).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:1–10 These verses describe the OT tabernacle, its furnishings, and its worship practices. This description of the “first covenant” lays the groundwork for the discussion of the new covenant in vv. 11–28.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:4 having the golden altar of incense. The altar of incense was not in the Most Holy Place; it was in the Holy Place, “in front of the veil” that separated it from the Most Holy Place. The author of Hebrews was quite familiar with the OT tabernacle and its sacrifices, so he would not mistakenly think this altar was inside the Most Holy Place. Thus it is better to understand “having” to mean that this altar of incense was closely tied in its function to the Most Holy Place. It “belonged to” the Most Holy Place. The text also says that a golden urn holding the manna, and Aaron’s staff that budded were in the ark of the covenant. However, the OT says the urn and the staff were placed in front of the ark (Ex. 16:32–34; Num. 17:10–11), not in it. Only the two tablets of the covenant were within the ark at that time (Ex. 25:16; Deut. 10:1–2). The two tablets contained the Ten Commandments (Ex. 34:1, 28–29). It is possible that the urn and the rod were later stored in the ark.

Or, the author of Hebrews may have been depending on information no longer available.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:6 Having described the tabernacle (These preparations having thus been made), the writer describes the worship that took place there. priests go regularly into the first section. The Levitical priests were the only ones allowed to enter the Holy Place, to perform their regular duties (see Ex. 25:30; 30:7–8; Lev. 24:4; Num. 28:7).

FACT

The mercy seat (9:5) was the place where the high priest sprinkled blood once a year to atone for the people's sins (Lev. 16:14; see Ex. 25:22). In contrast, Jesus' death redeemed our sins "once for all" (Heb. 9:12). His sacrificial death also gives us the freedom to serve God (9:14).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:7 Once a year, on the Day of Atonement, the high priest entered into the second section, the Most Holy Place (Lev. 16:2–3, 11–17). He sprinkled it with the blood of a bull and a goat as a sin offering (Lev. 16:6, 9, 15). Atonement for sins was required for the high priest himself and for all the people (Lev. 16:6, 17; see Heb. 7:27–28). unintentional sins. See note on Num. 15:22–31.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:8 By this. That is, by the system that restricted to the Levitical priests the right of access into the presence of God in the Holy Place and especially the Most Holy Place. the Holy Spirit indicates. The Mosaic covenant was the command of God, through the Holy Spirit. By the Mosaic law God revealed both the spiritual separation of man from God due to sin and the pattern for Jesus' high priestly ministry.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:9–10 These verses contrast two ages: the present age and the time of reformation. The "present age" is described as a time of separation from God. Through Christ's work, this present age is passing away (vv. 11–12, 26) and the new time of reformation has begun. It will be completed when Christ returns (see note on vv. 25–26).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:9 cannot perfect the conscience. God did not intend the Mosaic sacrificial system to do so. The Messiah was to do this (7:18–19; 10:1–2).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:10 food and drink and various washings, regulations for the body. The OT teachings about clean and unclean foods, sacrificial food and drink offerings, and ritual purification washings. These were later greatly expanded in Jewish tradition. The writer may have had in mind those who were advocating “diverse and strange teachings” about “foods” (13:9).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:11–28 When compared to Mosaic tabernacle worship (vv. 1–10), the new covenant high priesthood of Jesus provides a single superior sacrifice in a superior heavenly tabernacle. It brings complete forgiveness of sins, eternal salvation, purified consciences, and direct access to God.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:11 greater and more perfect tent. The area surrounding God’s presence in heaven (compare 8:2).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:12 entered once for all. Christ’s sacrifice of himself does not need to be repeated (vv. 25, 28; 7:27–28). He now continues in the Most Holy Place, at God’s throne (8:1; 12:2). blood of goats and calves. See 9:19. by means of his own blood. Jesus’ sacrificial death (see vv. 14, 26–28; 10:1–21) is the basis of eternal redemption. His death bought freedom for those trapped in sin (see Mark 10:45; Luke 1:68; Titus 2:14).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:13 sprinkling of defiled persons. Through OT sacrifices and purification rites. blood of goats and bulls. See vv. 12, 19. ashes of a heifer. See Num. 19:1–22. of the flesh. As opposed to the conscience in Heb. 9:14.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:14 how much more. An argument from the lesser to the greater (compare 2:1–4; 10:28–29). blood of Christ. See 9:11. This contrasts with “blood of goats and calves” (vv. 12–13). through the eternal Spirit offered himself. Jesus was both the high priest (see, e.g., 5:1; 8:3) and the sacrifice itself (see 9:25–26). Old Testament sacrifices had to be without blemish. Jesus is “holy, innocent, unstained” (see 7:26). purify our conscience. Christ’s sacrifice cleanses the innermost being (10:22), which the Mosaic sacrifices could not do (9:9). from dead works. Deeds that cannot save due to human sinfulness (see 6:1).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:15 mediator. See 8:6; 12:24; 1 Tim. 2:5. new covenant. See Heb. 8:6–13. Christ mediates the covenant by revealing it (1:2), by serving as its priest, and by offering himself in sacrifice (9:11–14). those who are called. God's electing call to salvation (compare Rom. 8:30; 2 Tim. 1:9; 1 Pet. 5:10; 2 Pet. 1:10). promised eternal inheritance. Followers of Christ inherit everlasting salvation (Heb. 1:14; 5:9; 9:12). redeems them from the transgressions. The payment of sin's penalty requires a death (see vv. 16–28). first covenant. The Mosaic covenant (see v. 1).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:16–17 will. Either the will of a person who has died (compare "inheritance" in v. 15) or an ancient Near Eastern "covenant." Making such covenants included offering an animal sacrifice. Thus both are carried out only after a death.

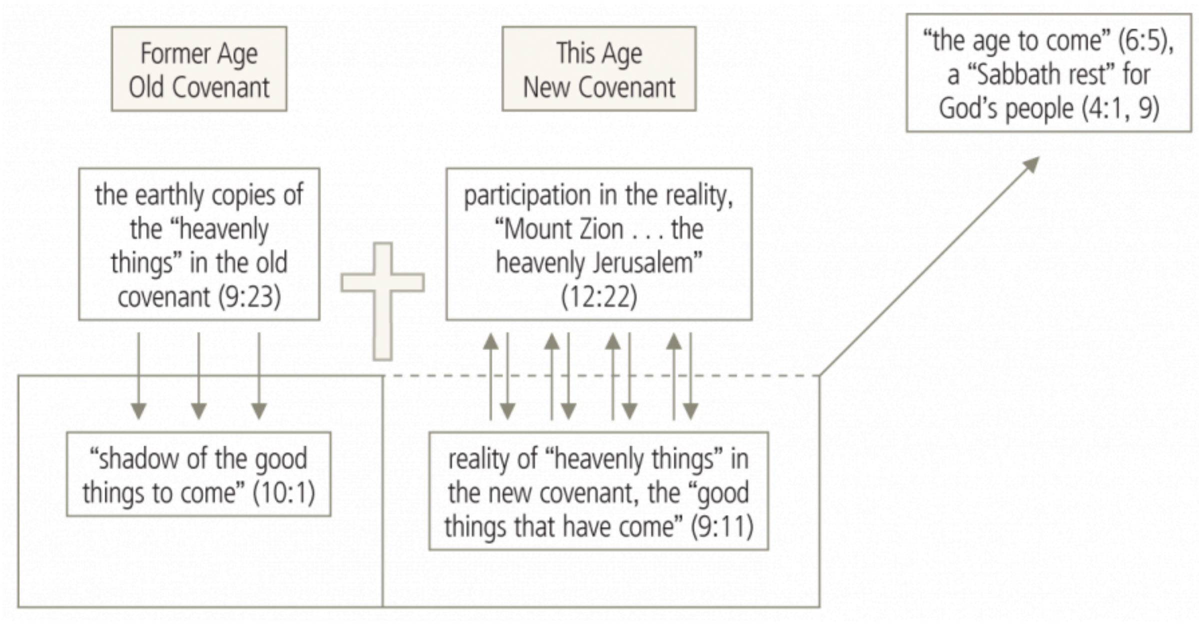
HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:18–21 Therefore. The Mosaic covenant also began with blood. The Mosaic covenant-initiation ceremony is recalled in vv. 19–20 (see Ex. 24:3–8). The author adds some specific details, such as scarlet wool and hyssop, and the sprinkling of the book itself, which are not mentioned in Exodus. While the source of the author's information is unknown, these details are not improbable, since these elements were used in other such purifying ceremonies (see ESV cross-references; also Ex. 12:22). The purification of the tabernacle and its vessels is summarized in Heb. 9:21, recalling the events of Exodus 40.

Redemptive History in the Book of Hebrews

Hebrews shows the contrast between the old covenant and the new covenant. In the old covenant, the law and its ceremonies were a shadow of the good things to come. They only reflected the reality of the "heavenly things" (depicted by arrows intruding into the old covenant). The inauguration of the new covenant is described as a change in priesthood and law that brings about a change in reality because of the cross. After the work of Christ in the new covenant, the heavenly reality (Mount Zion, the heavenly Jerusalem) not only intrudes into history but Christians actually participate in this new reality (arrows now go both ways) because the good things have come through Christ in his death, resurrection, and ascension. Christians live in a semi-heavenly age, whereas in the old covenant with its laws, rules, and regulations, people could not fully participate in the "heavenly things." Although they participate in the heavenly reality now, in the age to come God's people will fully realize their Sabbath rest.



Former Age
Old Covenant
This Age
New Covenant
“the age to come” (6:5), a “Sabbath rest” for God’s people (4:1, 9) the earthly copies of the “heavenly things” in the old covenant (9:23) participation in the reality, “Mount Zion . . . the heavenly Jerusalem” (12:22) “shadow of the good things to come” (10:1) reality of “heavenly things” in the new covenant, the “good things that have come” (9:11)

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:23 This verse focuses on the purification of the place of worship. The copies (that is, the Mosaic tabernacle and vessels) are patterned after greater heavenly realities (which represent the very presence of God). These heavenly realities require a greater purification sacrifice (the blood of Jesus).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:24 holy places made with hands. The tabernacle built by Moses and the temple built by Solomon. copies of the true things. The eternal heavens are the “true things” because they are where God is.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:25–26 Christ’s sacrifice is greater because this one offering of himself is sufficient for all his followers for all time. since the foundation of the world. A sin offering has been needed ever since the fall of humanity (Genesis 3; compare Heb. 4:3). The end of the ages began with Christ’s sacrificial death. It will be completed at Christ’s return (see 9:28).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 9:27–28 appointed . . . to die once. Every person has only one life before facing eternal judgment. This rejects the idea of reincarnation and of any second chance to believe after death. The final judgment will take place when Christ comes again to save his followers.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:1–18 In contrast to the repeated OT sacrifices, Jesus came in order to eternally sanctify his people through offering himself as a sacrifice once for all.

FACT

Jesus’ perfect sacrifice for sin. Animal sacrifices symbolized payment for sins under the first covenant (10:1). But Jesus’ death paid for sins in a way that animal sacrifices could not (10:1–18). It also made sanctification, the process of conforming into the image of Christ, possible for believers (10:14).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:4 impossible . . . to take away sins. These animal sacrifices symbolized the payment for sin, but they did not in and of themselves accomplish it. No animal was worthy of paying the price for a human’s sin before a holy God.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:5–7 The quotation is from Ps. 40:6–8, a psalm applied here to the Messiah. David and the other OT authors knew that God desired faithful hearts and lives, not mere performance of sacrificial rituals (see Hos. 6:6). The psalm prophesies the coming of one who will do God’s will, and God’s preparation of a human body for that person. a body have you prepared for me. The ESV translates the corresponding phrase in Ps. 40:6 as, “you have given me an open ear.” The translators of the Greek version of the OT (Septuagint) and the author of Hebrews understood this Hebrew metaphor to mean the physical creation of a person’s body.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:8–9 The OT sacrifices were not desired (literally, “willed”) by God because of any intrinsic value they possessed. However, it was God’s will for the messianic speaker of Ps. 40:6–8 to come to do your will. God did ordain the OT sacrifices and offerings for the time when the Mosaic covenant was in force, but not for the future time anticipated in this psalm. He does away with the first refers to the “sacrifices and offerings” (Heb. 10:8) of the old covenant. Christians no longer have to offer animal sacrifices and keep other ceremonial parts of the OT laws. In order to establish the second means in order to establish obedience to God’s “will” (v. 9).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:10 will. See vv. 8–9.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:11–13 The priest stands, showing that his work of offering sacrifices never ends. which can never take away sins. See note on v. 4. Christ's sacrificial work is complete, and now he sits at the right hand of God (see especially Ps. 110:1, cited in Heb. 1:13). The securing of full and final forgiveness of sins has been accomplished.

Psalm 110 in Hebrews

Psalm 110	Hebrews
"The LORD says to my Lord: 'Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies your footstool'" (v. 1).	Jesus "sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high" (1:3). God says to Jesus: "Sit at my right hand until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet" (1:13). Jesus is "seated at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in heaven" (8:1). Jesus "sat down at the right hand of God, waiting . . . until his enemies should be made a footstool for his feet" (10:12–13). Jesus is "seated at the right hand of the throne of God" (12:2).
"The LORD has sworn and will not change his mind, 'You are a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek'" (v. 4).	Jesus is "a priest forever, after the order of Melchizedek" (5:6). Jesus is "designated by God a high priest after the order of Melchizedek" (5:10). Jesus has "become a high priest forever after the order of Melchizedek" (6:20). Jesus is a "priest . . . after the order of Melchizedek" (7:11). Jesus is a "priest [who] arises in the likeness of Melchizedek" (7:15). Jesus is "a priest forever, after the order of Melchizedek" (7:17). Jesus was made a priest by this oath: "The Lord has sworn and will not change his mind, 'You are a priest forever'" (7:21).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:14 Perfected for all time means that Christ has fully earned salvation for his people. Thus, believers look to Christ for a cleansed conscience, full forgiveness of sins, and total flawlessness in the future. those who are being sanctified. Believers are sanctified, "set apart for God" (v. 10). Yet they are also in the process of becoming more fully like Christ (2:11; 6:10).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:15–18 Holy Spirit also bears witness. The Holy Spirit led the biblical authors to write as they did (2 Pet. 1:20–21). saying. Hebrews 10:16 cites Jer. 31:33 (see note on Jer. 31:31–34). I will remember their sins . . . no more. The new covenant's superiority to the old is shown most clearly in the full and final forgiveness of sins.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:19–12:29 Call to Faith and Endurance. The discussion of Christ's superiority concludes with calls to faith and perseverance (10:19–39; 12:1–29) and with examples of how faith endures through hope in God (11:1–40).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:19 confidence to enter. See note on 4:16.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:20 through the curtain. Christ opened the veil of the heavenly tabernacle through his death (6:19–20; 9:11–12, 24). that is, through his flesh. Jesus' flesh is identified with the tabernacle "curtain" or veil, because that was torn open just as Jesus' flesh was torn at his death (see Matt. 27:51).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:21 great priest. Jesus (see 5:5–10; 7:11–8:7). house of God. See 3:1–6.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:22 let us draw near. Christians are called to enter by the blood of Christ (v. 19) into God's presence (see 4:16; 7:25; 11:6; see 10:1). true heart. A cleansed and believing heart (in full assurance of faith) that is obedient to God (contrast v. 26; 3:8, 12; 4:12). hearts sprinkled clean. Jesus' death allows for sinners to be made pure in God's sight (see notes on 9:14; 10:15–18). bodies washed. Likely a reference to baptism (see 6:2; Acts 22:16; 1 Cor. 6:11), which employs ritually pure water (compare Num. 5:17; Ezek. 36:25).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:23 confession of our hope. The church's assent to the teachings about Christ and his work (see 3:1; 4:14). These teachings produce hope (6:18–20; 7:19).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:25 meet together. Mutual encouragement toward perseverance (v. 24) requires being together. That some were neglecting this duty may have been among the motives for the author's warnings throughout this book. the Day drawing near. The coming day of Christ's return and judgment (9:28; 10:37; see notes on Amos 5:18–20; 2 Tim. 1:12).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:26–27 after receiving. The author refers especially to people within the Christian community, who have thus heard the truth. The fact that they go on sinning deliberately even after receiving knowledge of the truth indicates that the people in view are not (and never were) genuine believers. No longer remains a sacrifice for sins could refer to the inability of willful, unrepentant sinners to be restored (see 6:4–6). More likely it means there is no place to turn for forgiveness once they have rejected Christ's sacrifice. All people face judgment (see 9:27–28), and apart from Christ's sacrifice his adversaries receive eternal damnation. These verses, then, are a means God uses to call genuine Christians to faith, obedience, and perseverance; and, if there is no evidence of fruit in one's life, to challenge such people to fearfully consider whether they are in fact genuine believers.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:28–29 These verses argue from the lesser to the greater (compare 2:1–4; 9:14). In the Mosaic law, the death penalty was given to those who blasphemed God or who worshiped other deities (e.g., Lev. 24:13–16; Deut. 17:2–7); in the superior new covenant the expectation of judgment should be even stronger. How much worse punishment . . . will be deserved by the one who . . . ? The description that follows is of a person who has consciously and persistently deserted "the living God" (compare Heb. 3:12; 10:31; 12:22), renouncing Christ and the community of faith (6:4–8). Such a person has done three specific things: trampled underfoot the Son of God, profaned the blood of the covenant, and outraged the Spirit of grace. Some have argued that the statement by which he was sanctified indicates that the person in view here was a true believer. Given the context, it seems most likely that "he was sanctified" means someone who had been "set apart" or identified as an active participant in the Christian community, but who has subsequently committed apostasy by renouncing his identification with other believers, by denying the "knowledge of the truth" that he had heard. Such a person's apostasy is thus evidence that he was not a genuine believer. Another view is that the author is confident that the grave warning in these verses will be the means by which those who are truly elect will be emboldened to persevere in faith and obedience, and thus will be saved (see note on 6:4–8).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:30–31 Using two citations from Deut. 32:35–36, the living God (see Heb. 3:12; 9:14; 12:22) is pictured as the heavenly judge. He will judge even his own people.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:32–34 recall the former days. The author reminds readers how they proved their faith through serving Christ despite suffering (see 6:9–12). enlightened. See note on 6:4. sufferings. Government persecution seems likely here, given the mention of imprisonments.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:36 what is promised. See 4:1; 6:12; 8:6; 9:15.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 10:37–38 The quotation from Hab. 2:3–4 encourages perseverance.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:1 assurance. Or "confidence" (3:14). hoped for. On hope, see 6:11, 18; 10:23. conviction of things not seen. Faith is a settled confidence that something in the future—something that God has promised—will actually happen because God will make it happen.

FACT

Even under the old covenant, faith was essential for a relationship with God. The OT saints believed God and obeyed him even though they did not see his promises fulfilled completely (ch. 11). Christians, however, have the amazing privilege of having seen God's plan fulfilled in Christ.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:3 God created the universe by his word. The wording so that what is seen was not made out of things that are visible is consistent with the doctrine of creation "from nothing." Compare Gen. 1:1; Ps. 33:6, 9; 90:2; John 1:3; Acts 14:15; Rom. 4:17.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:4 commended as righteous. The acceptance of Abel's offering (Gen. 4:4, 7) showed God's acceptance of the person (see Gen. 4:7).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:5 Enoch was taken up. Genesis 5:21–24 indicates that Enoch did not die.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:6 to please him. The Greek Septuagint translation of Genesis states that certain patriarchs "pleased God" (translating the Hebrew phrase for "walked with God"): Enoch (Gen. 5:22, 24), Noah (Gen. 6:9), Abraham (Gen. 17:1; 24:40; 48:15), and Isaac (Gen. 48:15). Each is discussed in Hebrews 11. draw near. See note on 4:16.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:7 Noah. See Gen. 6:9–9:29. events as yet unseen. See Heb. 11:1. reverent fear. See 5:7 and 12:28, where such an attitude is also commended. condemned the world. Noah's righteous obedience to God showed how sinful the world was to reject Noah's message (compare 2 Pet. 2:5) and God's moral standards. heir of the righteousness that comes by faith. Noah is called "righteous" in Gen. 7:1, after his faithful response in building the ark (Gen. 6:22).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:8–9 God called Abraham to leave Haran and go to Canaan (Gen. 12:1–4). inheritance. Compare Heb. 9:15. not knowing where he was going. See 11:1. land of promise. See Gen. 15:18–21. On God's promises, see Heb. 6:12–15. foreign land. See 11:13–16.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:11–12 Sarah. See Gen. 21:1–7. Sarah first laughed, apparently in unbelief (Gen. 18:9–15). However she later believed, as her laughter expressed joy at Isaac's birth (Gen. 21:6), whose name means "laughter." considered him faithful. See Heb. 10:23. stars . . . sand. A reference to Gen. 22:17.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:13 died in faith. They were faithful until they died. not having received. Abraham and Sarah were called to a Promised Land and promised many offspring. They believed these promises while moving from place to place in a land not wholly theirs. They believed that their family would grow over generations from one child to an immense number of people. strangers and exiles on the earth. See Gen. 23:4; Ex. 2:22; Lev. 25:23. See also 1 Chron. 29:15; Ps. 39:12; 1 Pet. 2:11.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:14–16 The people he has mentioned in vv. 1–13 were seeking a better (heavenly) country. This was their true homeland. prepared for them a city. See v. 10; 12:22–24; 13:13–14.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:17–19 Abraham, when he was tested (see Gen. 22:1–19). For "tested," see note on Heb. 4:15. Here it means testing to strengthen faith. See also 2:18 (compare James 1:2–4, 12–15; 1 Pet. 1:6–7; 4:12–14). Only son designates Isaac as Abraham's unique son. Though Abraham had other children (Gen. 16:15; 25:1–2), Isaac was the son who was "one of a kind," in the sense of being Abraham's only heir and the only bearer of covenant promises (Gen. 21:12; 22:15–18; 25:5). raise him from the dead. Abraham expressed confidence that he would return with Isaac (Gen. 22:5). Hebrews draws an analogy between resurrection and Isaac being spared.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:20 Isaac. See Gen. 27:1–45. These promised future blessings (especially Gen. 27:28–29, 39–40) show Isaac's hope for the future.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:21 Jacob. See Gen. 48:8–22. Similar to Isaac, Jacob's future hope was based on God's promises (see Gen. 48:3–6). This hope is clear in his blessing of his sons (Gen. 49:1–27) and the sons of Joseph (Ephraim and Manasseh, Gen. 48:8–22).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:22 Joseph. Joseph's future hope was that God would give his people the Promised Land. That is why Joseph wanted his bones to be moved to that land (Gen. 50:24–25).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:23 The parents of Moses preserved his life in hope. beautiful. See Ex. 2:2; Acts 7:20.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:24–26 Moses refused the privileges of Egypt, including those of being the son of Pharaoh's daughter (Ex. 2:10). Instead he identified with God's people (Ex. 2:11–12). He sought God's reward (Heb. 10:35; 11:6). fleeting pleasures of sin. Contrasted with eternal reward (compare Ps. 16:11). reproach of Christ. Moses personally suffered because he was faithful to God and the promise of the coming Christ.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:27 By faith he left Egypt could refer to Moses fleeing Egypt for Midian (but see Ex. 2:14–15) or to the exodus. It could also continue the description of Moses' decision to stand with God's people rather than the Egyptians. He "left," or "abandoned," all that Egypt represented. seeing him who is invisible. Moses could not see God, but he trusted him fully (see Heb. 11:1).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:28 By faith he kept the Passover. Moses celebrated the Passover before God delivered Israel from Egypt (Ex. 12:1–32).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:29 It took faith to walk through the Red Sea with walls of water on each side (Ex. 14:10–31). The people had to rely on God's promise (Ex. 14:1–4, 15–18).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:30 At Jericho, the Israelites followed God's commandment before receiving the promised victory (Josh. 6:1–21).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:31 Before the destruction of Jericho (v. 30; see Josh. 2:1–21), Rahab showed remarkable faith, since she was a Gentile and a sinner (prostitute).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:32 Despite their sins, Gideon (Judges 6–8), Barak (Judges 4–5), Samson (Judges 13–16), and Jephthah (Judges 11–12) demonstrated faith in the one true God at key moments in their lives. the prophets. Old Testament prophets who either wrote the OT Prophetic Books or appear in OT historical narratives (like Elijah, Elisha, Isaiah, Jeremiah, some of whom are clearly referred to in Heb. 11:33–38).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:33 enforced justice. Or "worked righteousness." This was an especially important role of the judges (see 1 Sam. 7:15–17) and the king (see 2 Sam. 8:15; compare Jer. 23:5–6). obtained promises. God kept all the promises he made to Israel's leaders (for example, Judg. 4:14; 6:12–16; 7:7), especially to David and his messianic heir (2 Sam. 7:11–14; Heb. 1:5). stopped the mouths of lions. Likely a reference to Daniel (Dan. 6:16–28).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:34 Quenched the power of fire likely refers to Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego (Dan. 2:49–3:30). escaped the edge of the sword. See 1 Kings 19:2; 2 Kings 6:31–33; Jer. 36:26; and contrast Heb. 11:37. made strong out of weakness. Perhaps providing an example to readers in their "weaknesses" (4:15).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:35 Women received back their dead by resurrection. E.g., Elijah (1 Kings 17:17–24), and Elisha (2 Kings 4:18–37). rise again to a better life. Literally, "obtain a better resurrection," a final one, to eternal life.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:36 mocking . . . imprisonment. Much like some of the first readers of Hebrews endured (10:32–34; 13:3). This would especially remind readers of Jeremiah's suffering (see Jer. 20:2; 37:4, 15–21), though others were also mistreated (see 1 Kings 22:26–27; 2 Chron. 16:7–10; 36:15–16).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:37 stoned . . . sawn in two. These probably represent the traditional accounts of the deaths of Jeremiah and Isaiah. Other prophets were also stoned (2 Chron. 24:21; Matt. 23:37; see Luke 11:49–51; 13:33–34). killed with the sword. Some believers escape death (Heb. 11:34), but others do not (see 1 Kings 19:10, 14; Jer. 2:30; 26:20–23). skins of sheep and goats. The clothing of prophets, such as Elijah (2 Kings 1:8) and other poor people (Zech. 13:4; Matt. 7:15).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:38 dens and caves. Especially associated with prophets in hiding (1 Kings 18:4, 13; 19:9).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 11:39–40 commended through their faith. See vv. 2, 4–5. did not receive what was promised. These people of faith looked for a greater future hope (v. 16). In light of chs. 1–10, something better for us refers to the new covenant realities of the sovereign Son of God. made perfect. The perfection of believers is elsewhere the goal (compare 10:14; 12:23), accomplished through the work of the perfect Son of God (2:10; 5:9; 7:28). apart from us. OT believers and all believers since then share the same future perfection.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:1 cloud of witnesses. The OT heroes of the faith in ch. 11. “Witnesses” may have a double meaning: (1) These OT heroes witnessed to their faith by their words and lives. (2) Like spectators watching an athletic contest in an arena, they may now be watching or “witnessing” believers’ lives. The imagery of being surrounded by these witnesses gives the sense that they are eagerly watching from heaven, and the image of running the race that is set before us might lead one further to think of an athletic race in a sports arena. However, nowhere else does the NT envisage saints in heaven watching saints on earth, nor does it ever encourage Christians to pray to these believers in heaven or to ask for their prayers. Christ prays for his people (Rom. 8:34; Heb. 7:25) and is the only mediator between them and God (1 Tim. 2:5). The Holy Spirit helps their prayers (Rom. 8:26–27), and all Christians are priests with the right of direct access to God (Heb. 4:16; 10:22; 1 Pet. 2:5, 9). Lay aside pictures sin as a weight to be discarded. Otherwise it limits the athlete’s movement, getting in the way of his progress in the race. let us run. A metaphor also found in Paul (1 Cor. 9:24–27; 2 Tim. 4:7–8).

FACT

Foot races were a popular sport in the Greco-Roman world. Paul uses the image of a race to illustrate the Christian life (1 Cor. 9:24; 2 Tim. 4:7). The writer of Hebrews also encourages believers to “run with endurance the race that is set before us” (Heb. 12:1).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:2 founder. See note on 2:10. perfecter. Christ’s perfection leads to the perfection of his people. This will be realized fully on the last day (see note on 11:39–40). for the joy that was set before him endured. The promise of future reward and joy gave Jesus strength to suffer on the cross. despising the shame. Crucifixion was performed in public. It caused hours of pain for the victim. The whole event was intended to cause shame, not just death (see note on Matt. 27:35). at the right hand. See Heb. 1:3, 13; 8:1; 10:12.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:3 Consider him. Jesus (v. 2). Many of the readers could identify with the hostility shown to Jesus (see 10:32–34; 13:3), though on a lesser scale (12:4). weary or fainthearted. See v. 5.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:4 Not yet resisted to the point of shedding your blood contrasts with Jesus' endurance of the cross (v. 2).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:5–8 Verses 5–6 cite Prov. 3:11–12. Discipline was a common term for raising children through instruction, training, and correction.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:12–13 Using poetic language (perhaps drawn from Isaiah and Proverbs) the author encourages his readers to endure in the race they are running (see v. 1).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:14 peace with everyone. See Rom. 12:18–21; 14:19; 2 Cor. 13:11. Holiness is part of the faithful endurance that is encouraged throughout Hebrews.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:15 root of bitterness. An echo of Deut. 29:18, which describes one who turns away from God and pursues other gods. Bitterness and resentment are like a contagious poison that spreads to others.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:16–17 Esau is called unholy, probably for rejecting his birthright (Gen. 25:33–34). sexually immoral. Perhaps refers to Gen. 26:34–35; 28:6–8. afterward, when he desired to inherit the blessing, he was rejected. Esau later wanted the inheritance he had rejected (Gen. 25:33–34; 27:34–40). His story cautions the Christian community against rejecting the inheritance offered to believers (Heb. 6:4–6; 10:26–31; 12:25; on inheritance, see 1:14; 6:12; 9:15). no chance to repent. The author is not saying that Esau longed to repent but God refused to forgive him, for it can be seen from Peter's denials and subsequent forgiveness that those who repent are always forgiven.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:18–21 Israel's experience at Mount Sinai (especially Ex. 19:12–25; 20:18–21; Deut. 18:16) shows the Mosaic covenant's greatness. Moses said, "I tremble with fear." This is from Deut. 9:19. There Moses feared God might destroy Israel after their worship of the golden calf. The author may use this account to warn against similar idolatry (compare Heb. 12:15, 25–29).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:22 you have come to Mount Zion. This phrase draws on extensive OT imagery of a new Zion/Jerusalem (Ps. 2:6; 110:2; Isa. 62:6–12; see "city" in Heb. 11:10, 16; 13:14; see also Rev. 21:1–22:5). The author claims Christians have access, in the spiritual realm, into the heavenly Jerusalem. Therefore they participate in worship with innumerable angels (see Heb. 1:7; also Deut. 33:2; Dan. 7:10) and with the great "assembly" (Heb. 12:23) of believers who have died in faith and are already in God's presence.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:23 assembly of the firstborn. "Firstborn" is plural in Greek. Jesus was previously called the firstborn Son (1:6). Here his followers are also granted an inheritance as if they were also firstborn sons (1:14; 2:10; 9:15; 12:5–8). enrolled. Refers to the book of life (Dan. 7:10; Phil. 4:3; Rev. 20:12–15) that lists Jesus' true followers. judge of all. Compare Heb. 10:30–31. Spirits of the righteous refers to the saints of the old and new covenants. Here they are portrayed as holy and as personally made perfect. This was the goal of Christ's work (10:14; 11:40), which will be completed at the final resurrection.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:24 mediator. See note on 9:15. sprinkled blood. See 9:11–14, 24–28; 10:19, 22, 29; 13:12, 20. Though Abel was innocent (Gen. 4:10–11), his blood does not remove sin. Only Jesus' innocent blood brings forgiveness and atonement.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:25 They did not escape applies especially to the exodus generation (vv. 18–21, 26), who rejected the voice of the one who spoke (3:7–19; see also 4:2; 10:28–30). much less will we escape. Most commentators believe this refers to the danger of eternal judgment upon those who reject him who warns from heaven. Some have argued that such rejection of God can be committed by true believers, since "we" in the phrase "much less will we escape" includes the believing author. It seems best to understand the "we" as a reference to current church participants, some of whom may not have possessed true faith (see notes on 10:26–27; 10:28–29). Another view is that the warnings are addressed to true believers and that the warnings are the means that God uses to keep his own from committing apostasy and to challenge believers to persevere in their faith (see note on 6:4–8).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:26–27 At that time. At Mount Sinai (v. 19).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 12:28–29 Acceptable worship includes showing reverence and awe for God's holiness. It also includes respecting God as a king and a judge to whom alone worship is due (see the context of Deut. 4:24, quoted here).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:1–25 Concluding Encouragements and Remarks. The author concludes with some specific points of application for the community (vv. 1–19), with a word of blessing (vv. 20–21), and with greetings to the community (vv. 22–25).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:2 hospitality. Hosting and caring for visitors (Rom. 12:13; 1 Tim. 3:2; Titus 1:8; 1 Pet. 4:9). This virtue was especially valued in ancient times since travel was difficult and inns could be dangerous. entertained angels. See Gen. 18:1–15; also Judg. 6:11–24; 13:3–24.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:3 Remember those . . . in prison. See Matt. 25:35–36. "Remembering" means active response to needs. In the body here probably means "in the real world of everyday life." Christians should pay attention to the needs all around them.

FACT

Roman imprisonment varied greatly, depending on the crime. Some prisoners were held in public prisons while others were kept under house arrest. The writer of Hebrews reminds his audience to "remember those who are in prison" (13:3). This included believers imprisoned for their faith (13:23; 10:32–34).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:4 Marriage is to be held in honor. Sexual faithfulness in marriage is commanded. The author warns that God will judge anyone who is sexually immoral (which means engaging in sexual conduct outside of marriage) or adulterous (which means being unfaithful to a spouse). This warning is addressed to members of the church. Thus, if they are genuine Christian believers, this judgment does not refer to eternal separation from God in hell (Rom. 8:1); it means disciplinary judgment in this life (see Heb. 12:5–11) or loss of reward at the last day, or both. However, in light of earlier warning passages (3:12–14; 6:4–8; 10:26–31; 12:14–17), it is possible that such sexual immorality indicates the people mentioned are not true believers.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:5–6 The citation from Ps. 118:6 shows that believers should trust in God for more than financial needs (especially in light of persecution, Heb. 13:3).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:7 leaders. See also v. 17. Those who spoke the word of God (likely referring to doctrinal instruction; see 6:2) are especially positive models of faith. The primary role of leaders is to preach and teach God's Word. Their lives should reflect the Word they teach.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:8 This verse appears as a transition from v. 7 (their leaders trusted in this Christ, and Jesus remains trustworthy) to v. 9 (strange teachings are departures from the Jesus who is always the same).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:9–11 led away. The author warns of false teaching. The central concern appears to be doctrines about foods (9:10; Rom. 14:17; Col. 2:16–17; 1 Tim. 4:3). The author argues against such doctrines by: (1) contrasting them with grace (which truly nourishes the heart); (2) noting that special foods are of no spiritual benefit (see 1 Cor. 8:8); and (3) observing that the Christian altar is better than the food of the tabernacle. Unlike most OT offerings, the tabernacle priests could not eat the sin offering from the Day of Atonement, since it was burned outside the camp (Lev. 16:27). However, all Christians participate in Jesus' sacrifice. Some see a reference to the Lord's Supper here. Others view this as a broader reference to the saving results of the shedding of Jesus' blood.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:12 Outside the gate refers to Calvary, which was outside the gate of Jerusalem. Jesus' sufferings and death make his people holy (sanctify; see 2:11; 10:10, 14), since his blood provides forgiveness and atonement (9:11–14).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:13–14 go to him outside the camp. A metaphor of leaving behind the love of this world and desire for its approval, and embracing the reproach of Christ. This imitates Jesus' response to his shameful sufferings (see 12:2–3). Christian endurance is based on knowing that this world is a mere temporary dwelling (no lasting city). Believers are on the way to an eternal home (see 11:14–16; 12:22–24).

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:15–16 Sacrifice of praise is a concept found repeatedly in the Psalms (Ps. 50:14, 23; 107:22; 116:17). It is not an offering of an animal, but the verbal praise of God's name (see also Heb. 12:28–29). To do good and to share what you have are also called sacrifices that are pleasing to God.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:17 Obey, submit. Here submission to leaders is directly commanded (compare v. 7). This strong statement may indicate the church was divided.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:18–19 The author requests prayer that he might be restored to those to whom he is writing. He wants to visit them.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:20–21 Following a common practice in NT letters, the author asks God's blessing on his readers. God of peace. See Rom. 16:20; Phil. 4:9; 1 Thess. 5:23. from the dead. See Heb. 5:7; 7:16. shepherd. See John 10:1–18; 1 Pet. 2:25; 5:4. blood. See note on Heb. 12:24. eternal covenant. The new covenant.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:23 Timothy. Likely Paul's fellow worker. The author and audience both knew Timothy. released. Presumably from prison.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:24 Greet. New Testament letters often end with a series of greetings. your leaders. See vv. 7, 17. saints. Or "holy ones." A common NT expression for believers (6:10). Those who come from Italy. Literally, "those from Italy." This may indicate that the author writes from Italy. More likely he is elsewhere and is passing on the greeting of Italians living at his current location. This last option has led to the suggestion that the recipients were also Italians, perhaps from the churches around Rome.

HEBREWS—NOTE ON 13:25 Compare Titus 3:15; also Eph. 6:24; Col. 4:18; 1 Tim. 6:21; 2 Tim. 4:22.

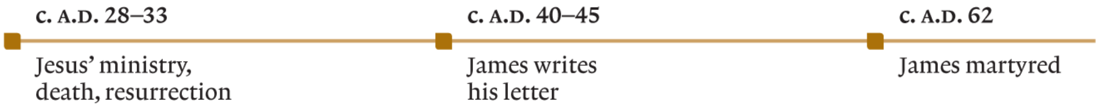
Introduction to James

Introduction to James

Timeline



Author, Date, and Recipients

This letter was written by James, the brother of Jesus (Matt. 13:55) and leader of the Jerusalem church (Acts 15). It was probably written about A.D. 40–45 to Jewish Christians living outside Palestine.

Theme

Christians must live out their faith. They should be doers, not just hearers, of God's Word.

Purpose

James's readers were suffering persecution and living in poverty. They were in social and spiritual conflict. Many believers were living in a worldly manner. James corrects them and challenges them to seek God's wisdom to work out these problems.

Key Themes

1. God is a gracious giver, the unchanging Creator, and merciful and compassionate. He is also a Judge, the one and only God, a jealous God, a gracious God, and a healing God (1:5, 17–18; 2:5, 13, 19; 4:5–6; 5:1–3, 9, 15).
2. Wisdom comes "from above." It enables believers to withstand trials and to have peace rather than divisions among themselves (1:5; 3:13, 17).

3. God allows tests and trials (1:2–4), but temptation comes from self and Satan. The required response is patient endurance (1:3, 13–14; 4:7; 5:7–8).
4. These trials include poverty and mistreatment by the rich. The poor are the special focus of God’s care. They must be cared for by his people. They must not be taken advantage of or ignored. The wealthy are condemned for pride and for stealing from the poor (1:9, 27; 2:1–5, 15–16; 4:13–17; 5:1–6).
5. There is both future judgment and future reward (1:12; 2:5, 12–13; 3:1; 4:12; 5:1–7, 9, 20).
6. What a person says has power both to destroy and to bring peace (3:1–4:12).
7. Rather than merely hearing God’s word, believers must obey it in their daily actions (1:19–27; 2:14–26).
8. Prayer is the proper response to trials, but it must not be self-seeking. It is to be central in all of life’s circumstances, good or bad. God has great power to heal physical and spiritual problems (1:5–7; 4:2–3; 5:13–18).
9. James and Paul agree that justification comes only by God’s grace through faith, and that true faith always results in good works. If no works result, there was no justification in the first place (2:14–26).

The Setting of James

c. A.D. 40–45

The letter of James was likely written to predominantly Jewish Christian house churches outside of Palestine, based on its mention of the “twelve tribes in the Dispersion” (1:1), its distinctly Jewish content, and its focus on persecution and poverty. This would mean it was sent throughout most of the ancient Mediterranean world. The author has traditionally been believed to be James, the brother of Jesus and an early leader of the church in Jerusalem.

The Global Message of James

The message of James is that those who have been truly saved through the gospel must manifest that salvation in practical ways in their lives. A transformed life of love for others should be the result of experiencing God's love.

James and Redemptive History

The grand theme of the book of James is wisdom. Much like Proverbs in the Old Testament, James should be seen as an example of Jewish wisdom literature. Wisdom in Jewish tradition and Scripture does not refer to intelligence in a strictly intellectual way but rather to upright living. A wise person exhibits a godly kind of skill in the practical matters of everyday life. To live wisely is to act with humble integrity.

The letter of James enables God's people to flourish as they journey through life in this fallen world. It is for those who, though sinners, have been redeemed by Jesus Christ. Indeed, Jesus himself is the true and ultimate embodiment of wisdom: he is the one "who became to us wisdom from God, righteousness and sanctification and redemption" (1 Cor. 1:30).

Global Exhortations from James

As with Proverbs, the main point of James is that godly wisdom works. True wisdom does not sit still. Throughout James the church is confronted with several strong exhortations as to how wisdom works, all of which speak clearly to the church today.

Trials. James begins by urging his readers to gladly receive the trials that wash into their lives, since these trials produce steadfastness (James 1:2–4). James returns to this theme at the end of the letter, and there too he links suffering with steadfastness (5:7–11). In 1:2 James refers to hardships "of various kinds." Whatever global Christians are suffering today, they must be patient and steadfast (5:7–11).

Wealth and poverty. Throughout his letter James raises the issue of wealth (James 1:9–11; 2:1–7; 5:1–6). Each time, he says just the opposite of what the world says about money. "Let the lowly brother boast in his exaltation, and the rich in his humiliation" (1:9–10). "Has not God chosen those who are poor in the world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom?” (2:5). “Come now, you rich, weep and howl for the miseries that are coming upon you” (5:1). To a contemporary world drunk with the desire for material wealth, James reminds us of the emptiness of such pursuits and the final judgment that is fast approaching.

A living faith. James is impatient with those who hear the word but do not do it (James 1:22–25) and those who profess faith but do not live it out (2:14–26). Healthy believers display “conduct . . . in step with the truth of the gospel” (Gal. 2:14). The question here is not whether we are saved by faith alone or by faith plus works. The apostle Paul and James agree that it is faith alone that saves. The question James raises is, what kind of faith saves (James 2:14)? Authentic religion, expressing authentic faith, consists of not only orthodox theology but also upright living (1:26–27).

The tongue. James mentions the use of the tongue a few times in chapters 1 and 2 (e.g., James 1:19; 2:12) then in chapter 3 he turns his full attention to this important topic. With striking imagery, he shows how the impact of what we say with the tongue is all out of proportion to the size of this small body part. Like a rudder on a ship or a bit in the mouth of a horse, the tongue is small but is able to direct the whole course of our lives. Echoing the teaching of Jesus, James reminds us that our words are simply the overflow of what is within us (3:10–12; compare Matt. 7:16; 12:37).

Worldliness. Chapter 4 of James deals with the quarrels and fights and pride that come from worldliness. James reminds us that “friendship with the world is enmity with God” (James 4:4). The global church does well to remember that we are called to be in the world but not of it (John 17:14–16).

Humility. James has much to say about the beauty of humility. Those who are truly wise are also humble (James 3:13–15). God gives special grace to the humble (4:6). Humble people understand the fragility of life and the sovereignty of God (4:13–17). James encourages the church, today as in his day, to take comfort in the small, humble life of faithfulness which, judged by the world’s standards, is insignificant. For, on the contrary, this is where God’s power lies (4:7–8). Such humble faithfulness will one day result in true glory (1:12).

Prayer. James teaches the value of prayer throughout his epistle. He encourages prayer for wisdom (James 1:5–8), rebukes prayer that is motivated by impure motives (4:2–4), and advises believers to pray in a variety of life situations, assuring them that under God prayer changes things for the better (5:13–18).

In all these matters, James calls his readers to cultivate the kind of wisdom that should characterize all those who have been truly born again through the gospel (James 1:18). Believers everywhere are summoned to receive James's words with receptive ears, living out in their own corner of the world the life of authentic faith that James describes.

Responding to James: Both Realism and Love

The church today does well to pay heed to the exhortations of James. Confronted with a host of global issues and concerns, it is not hard to find tangible ways to live out the teaching of James.

However, the summons of James must be handled with care. On the one hand, it would be easy for global Christians to feel unduly guilty for not doing more to alleviate the world's needs. We must be realistic. While concerted sacrificial efforts by a united Christian church will go a long way to reducing the tangible miseries of the world, there will always be more to do.

On the other hand, the letter of James issues a resounding call to believers around the world to engage the world around them, especially fellow believers. This is the path of love, as we have been loved. "If you really fulfill the royal law according to the Scripture, 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself,' you are doing well" (James 2:8). James rebukes those who speak peace to the needy but do not provide "the things needed for the body" (2:16; see also 1:27). Believers around the world are called by the letter of James to examine themselves, consider their actions, and adjust their lives accordingly.

Greeting

JAMES 1 [†] [a]James, a servant [1] of God and [b]of the Lord Jesus Christ,
To [c]the twelve tribes in [d]the Dispersion:
Greetings.

Testing of Your Faith

[2][†] [e]Count it all joy, my brothers, [2] when you meet trials [f]of various kinds, [3][†]for you know that [g]the testing of your faith [h]produces steadfastness. [4][†]And let steadfastness have its full effect, that you may be [i]perfect and complete, lacking in nothing.

[5][†][j]If any of you lacks wisdom, [k]let him ask God, [l]who gives generously to all without reproach, and it will be given him. [6][†]But [m]let him ask in faith, [n]with no doubting, for the one who doubts is like [o]a wave of the sea that is driven and tossed by the wind. [7][†]For that person must not suppose that he will receive anything from the Lord; [8][p]he is a double-minded man, [q]unstable in all his ways.

[9][†]Let the lowly brother boast in his exaltation, [10]and [r]the rich in his humiliation, because [s]like a flower of the grass [3] he will pass away. [11]For the sun rises with its scorching heat and [t]withers the grass; its flower falls, and its beauty perishes. So also will the rich man fade away in the midst of his pursuits.

[12][†] [u]Blessed is the man who remains steadfast under trial, for when he has stood the test he will receive [v]the crown of life, [w]which God has promised to those who love him. [13][†]Let no one say when he is tempted, “I am being tempted by God,” for God cannot be tempted with evil, and he himself tempts no one. [14][†]But each person is tempted when he is lured and enticed by his own desire. [15][†]Then desire [x]when it has conceived gives birth to sin, and [y]sin when it is fully grown brings forth death.

[16]Do not be deceived, my beloved brothers. [17][†] [z]Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from [a]the Father of lights [b]with whom there is no variation or shadow due to change. [4] [18][†] [c]Of his own will he [d]brought us forth by the word of truth, [e]that we should be a kind of [f]firstfruits of his creatures.

Hearing and Doing the Word

[19][†][g]Know this, my beloved brothers: let every person [h]be quick to hear, [i]slow to speak, [j]slow to anger; [20][†]for the anger of man does not produce the righteousness of God. [21][†]Therefore [k]put away all filthiness and rampant wickedness and receive with [l]meekness the implanted word, [m]which is able to save your souls.

[22]But be [n]doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves. [23][†]For if anyone is a hearer of the word and not a doer, he is like a man who looks intently at his natural face in a mirror. [24]For he looks at himself and goes away and at once forgets what he was like. [25][†]But the one who looks into the perfect law, [o]the law of liberty, and perseveres, being no hearer who forgets but a doer who acts, [p]he will be blessed in his doing.

[26]If anyone thinks he is religious [q]and does not bridle his tongue but deceives his heart, this person's [r]religion is worthless. [27][†]Religion that is pure and undefiled before God, the Father, is this: [s]to visit [t]orphans and widows in their affliction, and [u]to keep oneself [v]unstained from the world.

The Sin of Partiality

JAMES 2 [†]My brothers, [1] [w]show no partiality as you hold the faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, [x]the Lord of glory. [2][†]For if a man wearing a gold ring and fine clothing comes into your assembly, and a poor man in shabby clothing also comes in, [3]and if you pay attention to the one who wears the fine clothing and say, "You sit here in a good place," [y]while you say to the poor man, "You stand over there," or, "Sit down at my feet," [4]have you not then made distinctions among yourselves and become [z]judges with evil thoughts? [5][†]Listen, my beloved brothers, [a]has not God chosen those who are poor in the world to be [b]rich in faith and heirs of [c]the kingdom, [d]which he has promised to those who love him? [6][†]But you [e]have dishonored the poor man. Are not the rich the ones who oppress you, and the ones who [f]drag you [g]into court? [7]Are they not the ones who blaspheme the honorable [h]name by which you were called?

[8][†]If you really fulfill the royal law according to the Scripture, [i]“You shall love your neighbor as yourself,” you are doing well. [9][†]But if you [j]show partiality, you are committing sin and are convicted by the law as transgressors. [10][†]For whoever keeps the whole law but fails in one point [k]has become accountable for all of it. [11]For he who said, [l]“Do not commit adultery,” also said, [l]“Do not murder.” If you do not commit adultery but do murder, you have become a transgressor of the law. [12][†]So speak and so act as those who are to be judged under [m]the law of liberty. [13][†]For [n]judgment is without mercy to one who has shown no mercy. Mercy triumphs over judgment.

Faith Without Works Is Dead

[14][†]What good is it, my brothers, if someone says he has faith [o]but does not have works? Can that faith save him? [15][†][p]If a brother or sister is poorly clothed and lacking in daily food, [16][q]and one of you says to them, “Go in peace, be warmed and filled,” without giving them the things needed for the body, what good [2] is that? [17][†]So also faith by itself, if it does not have works, is dead.

[18][†]But someone will say, “You have faith and I have works.” Show me your faith [r]apart from your works, and I will show you my faith [s]by my works. [19][†][t]You believe that God is one; you do well. Even [u]the demons believe—and shudder! [20]Do you want to be shown, you foolish person, that faith apart from works is useless? [21][†][v]Was not Abraham our father justified by works when he offered up his son Isaac on the altar? [22][†]You see that [w]faith was active along with his works, and faith was completed [x]by his works; [23][†]and the Scripture was fulfilled that says, [y]“Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him as righteousness”—and he was called a [z]friend of God. [24][†]You see that a person is justified by works and not by faith alone. [25][†]And in the same way was not also [a]Rahab the prostitute justified by works [b]when she received the messengers and sent them out by another way? [26]For as the body apart from the spirit is dead, so also faith apart from works is dead.

Taming the Tongue

JAMES 3 [†] [c]Not many of you should become teachers, my brothers, for you know that we who teach will be judged with greater strictness. [2][†]For [d]we all stumble in many ways. And if anyone does not stumble in what he says, [e]he is a perfect man, [f]able also to bridle his whole body. [3][†]If we put [g]bits into the mouths of horses so that they obey us, we guide their whole bodies as well. [4]Look at the ships also: though they are so large and are driven by strong winds, they are guided by a very small rudder wherever the will of the pilot directs. [5][†]So also the tongue is a small member, yet [h]it boasts of great things.

How great a forest is set ablaze by such a small fire! [6]And [i]the tongue is a fire, a world of unrighteousness. The tongue is set among our members, [j]staining the whole body, setting on fire the entire course of life, [1] and set on fire by hell. [2] [7]For every kind of beast and bird, of reptile and sea creature, can be tamed and has been tamed by mankind, [8]but no human being can tame the tongue. It is a restless evil, [k]full of deadly poison. [9]With it we bless our Lord and Father, and with it we curse people [l]who are made in the likeness of God. [10]From the same mouth come blessing and cursing. My brothers, [3] these things ought not to be so. [11]Does a spring pour forth from the same opening both fresh and salt water? [12]Can a fig tree, my brothers, bear olives, or a grapevine produce figs? Neither can a salt pond yield fresh water.

Wisdom from Above

[13][†]Who is wise and understanding among you? [m]By his good conduct let him show his works [n]in the meekness of wisdom. [14]But if you have bitter [o]jealousy and selfish ambition in your hearts, do not boast and be false to the truth. [15]This is not [p]the wisdom that comes down from above, but is earthly, unspiritual, [q]demonic. [16][†]For where jealousy and selfish ambition exist, there will be disorder and every vile practice. [17][†]But [r]the wisdom from above is first pure, then [s]peaceable, gentle, open to reason, [t]full of mercy and good fruits, [u]impartial and [v]sincere. [18][†]And [w]a harvest of righteousness [x]is sown in peace by those who make peace.

Warning Against Worldliness

JAMES 4 [†]What causes quarrels and what causes fights among you? Is it not this, that your passions [1] are [y]at war within you? [2] [2][†]You desire and do not have, so you murder. You covet and cannot obtain, so you fight and quarrel. You do not have, because you do not ask. [3][†]You ask and do not receive, because you ask [z]wrongly, to spend it on your passions. [4][†][a]You adulterous people! [3] Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? [b]Therefore whoever wishes to be a friend of the world makes himself an enemy of God. [5][†]Or do you suppose it is to no purpose that the Scripture says, “He yearns jealously over the spirit [c]that he has made to dwell in us”? [6][†]But [d]he gives more grace. Therefore it says, [e]“God opposes the proud, but [d]gives grace to the humble.” [7][†]Submit yourselves therefore to God. [f]Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. [8][†][g]Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. [h]Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and [i]purify your hearts, [j]you double-minded. [9][k]Be wretched and mourn and weep. Let your laughter be turned to mourning and your joy to gloom. [10][†][l]Humble yourselves before the Lord, and he will exalt you.

[11][†][m]Do not speak evil against one another, brothers. [4] The one who speaks against a brother or [n]judges his brother, speaks evil against the law and judges the law. But if you judge the law, you are not a doer of the law but a judge. [12][†]There is only [o]one lawgiver and [p]judge, he who is able to save and [q]to destroy. But [r]who are you to judge your neighbor?

Boasting About Tomorrow

[13][†]Come now, you who say, [s]“Today or tomorrow we will go into such and such a town and spend a year there and trade and make a profit”— [14][†]yet you do not know what tomorrow will bring. What is your life? For [t]you are a mist that appears for a little time and then vanishes. [15][†]Instead you ought to say, [u]“If the Lord wills, we will live and do this or that.” [16]As it is, you boast in your arrogance. [v]All such boasting is evil. [17][†] [w]So whoever knows the right thing to do and fails to do it, for him it is sin.

Warning to the Rich

JAMES 5 [†]Come now, [x]you rich, weep and howl for the [y]miseries that are coming upon you. [2][†] [z]Your riches have rotted and [z]your garments are moth-eaten. [3]Your gold and silver have corroded, and their corrosion will be evidence against you and will eat your flesh like fire. [a]You have laid up treasure [b]in the last days. [4][†]Behold, [c]the wages of the laborers who mowed your fields, which you kept back by fraud, are crying out against you, and [d]the cries of the harvesters have reached the ears of [e]the Lord of hosts. [5][†] [f]You have lived on the earth in luxury and [g]in self-indulgence. You have fattened your hearts in [h]a day of slaughter. [6][†]You have condemned and [i]murdered [j]the righteous person. He does not resist you.

Patience in Suffering

[7][†]Be patient, therefore, brothers, [1] until the coming of the Lord. See how the farmer waits for the precious fruit of the earth, being patient about it, until it receives [k]the early and the late rains. [8]You also, be patient. [l]Establish your hearts, for the coming of the Lord [m]is at hand. [9]Do not grumble against one another, brothers, [n]so that you may not be judged; behold, [o]the Judge is standing [p]at the door. [10][†]As an example of suffering and patience, brothers, take [q]the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord. [11][†]Behold, we consider those blessed who remained steadfast. You have heard of [r]the steadfastness of Job, and you have seen [s]the purpose of the Lord, how [t]the Lord is compassionate and merciful.

[12][†]But above all, my brothers, [u]do not swear, either by heaven or by earth or by any other oath, but let your “yes” be yes and your “no” be no, so that you may not fall under condemnation.

The Prayer of Faith

13[†]Is anyone among you suffering? Let him pray. Is anyone cheerful? Let him [v]sing praise. 14Is anyone among you sick? Let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, [w]anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord. 15[†]And the prayer of faith will save the one who is sick, and the Lord will raise him up. And [x]if he has committed sins, he will be forgiven. 16[†]Therefore, [y]confess your sins to one another and pray for one another, [z]that you may be healed. [a]The prayer of a righteous person has great power as it is working.[2] 17[†]Elijah was a man [b]with a nature like ours, and [c]he prayed fervently that it might not rain, and for [d]three years and six months it did not rain on the earth. 18[e]Then he prayed again, and heaven gave rain, and the earth bore its fruit.

19[†]My brothers, [f]if anyone among you wanders from the truth and someone [g]brings him back, 20[†]let him know that whoever brings back a sinner from his wandering [h]will save his soul from death and [i]will cover a multitude of sins.

Study Notes for James

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:1 Greeting. Jesus chose 12 disciples to symbolize the twelve tribes of Israel. Thus he identified the church as the new Israel (see Matt. 10:1). James reminds these Jewish Christians of their spiritual heritage as God's people, gathered by Jesus the Messiah. in the Dispersion. The tribes of Israel were scattered throughout the world by the Assyrians and Babylonians. They looked forward to being regathered as a people (Jer. 31:7–14; Ezek. 37:15–28). James implies that the true Israel is also away from its heavenly homeland and oppressed, but they are assured of their final gathering to the Lord.

FACT

Up until the first century A.D., mirrors in the Near East were made of polished bronze or other metals. With the invention of glass in Lebanon, new techniques could be used to create more reflective surfaces. James compares God's Word to a mirror in which people can see themselves in the light of God's truth (1:22–25).

1:2–18 The Testing of Faith. Trials are part of God's "good gifts" (v. 17) to his people, to strengthen them in their faith.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:2 Trials are "tests" designed to strengthen one's faith (vv. 2–5). When trials occur, one should count it all joy. God is sovereign over all things, including trials.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:3 testing of your faith. Just as Jesus was "tested" in the wilderness (Matt. 4:1–13), believers are tested to make their faith "genuine" (1 Pet. 1:7).

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:4 Believers are growing in holiness but are not yet perfected in it. This perfection will come only when Jesus returns.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:5 wisdom. As in the OT, wisdom is a God-given and God-centered understanding of the practical issues in life. without reproach. God knows that his people need to grow in wisdom, and he is willing to give it.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:6 faith. A settled trust and confidence in God, based on his character and promises revealed in Scripture (see Heb. 11:1). doubting. Being torn between trusting God or trusting the world or one's own natural abilities. a wave of the sea. A picture of instability and constant change.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:7–8 A person who doubts is a double-minded man. He has "two minds," torn between God and the world (compare v. 6).

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:9–11 Given the context, James seems to be saying that the challenges of both poverty and wealth may be among the greatest "trials" for Christians (see v. 12).

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:12 James returns to the theme introduced in v. 2. crown of life. The laurel wreath given to winners in athletic games (1 Cor. 9:25) and to victorious emperors. The reward for faithful endurance is eternal life and its blessings (see Rev. 2:10).

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:13–18 James turns to the other side of trials, when testing becomes temptation.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:13 God tests his people (e.g., Abraham, Genesis 22; Israel, Ex. 16:4; Hezekiah, 2 Chron. 32:31) to strengthen their character, but he never tempts them (never lures them into sin). Tempted is the verb form of the noun translated "trial" in James 1:12, but the context shows that different senses of the word are intended (see note on Heb. 4:15).

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:14 lured and enticed. A fishing metaphor for drawing prey away from shelter.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:15 The picture changes to a birth/rebirth metaphor.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:17 Nothing in this world is truly good unless it comes from above, heaven, down from the Father of lights (see Ps. 74:16; 136:7–9). God's character never changes. He always gives good gifts. This contrasts with the variation of the night changing to day or the shifting shadow caused by the sun or moon.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:18 Brought us forth by the word of truth speaks of spiritual salvation. "Us" refers to believers. The "word of truth" is the gospel. Being "brought . . . forth" (from the womb) is a metaphor for the new birth. The firstfruits of the harvest (compare Ex. 23:16–19; Lev. 23:9–14) are the early Christians.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:19–27 Hearing and Doing the Word. This section focuses on living as a Christian directed by "the word of truth," the gospel (v. 18). Christian living includes both "hearing" and "doing" the truth. Obedience is the mark of the true child of God.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:19 James echoes Proverbs on the misuse of speech and the anger that can result (see Prov. 10:19; 11:12; 15:1; 17:28). Christians should be slow to anger, as God is (see Ex. 34:6).

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:20 Not all human anger is sinful (see Eph. 4:26). However, the quick-tempered, selfish anger of man shows a lack of trust in God and a lack of love for others. Even when directed against wrongdoing, anger cannot change another person's heart. Thus it does not produce the righteousness of God. "Righteousness" here means conducting one's life by the will of God, according to his standards (see Isa. 61:3; Matt. 5:6, 10, 20; 6:1, 33).

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:21 Put away all filthiness pictures taking off dirty clothes (compare Rom. 13:12; Eph. 4:22; Col. 3:8). The person wants nothing to do with the dirt (moral evil) ever again. In place of filthy behavior, the implanted word must take root in God's people (see Deut. 30:14; Jer. 31:33). Save your souls refers here to progressive sanctification and the completion of God's saving work on judgment day.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:23–24 It is useless for a man to look intently at his natural face in a mirror and then forget what he was like. This shows the foolishness of examining oneself in God's "mirror," the "implanted word" (v. 21), but not changing one's behavior based on what one sees there (v. 22).

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:25 the law of liberty. In James, the “law” and the “word” are two ways of describing the same thing. The “law” here refers to the OT as it has been interpreted and fulfilled in Christ. Together with the power of the Holy Spirit, it can change hearts. See note on 2:12.

JAMES—NOTE ON 1:27 Orphans and widows were particularly helpless in ancient culture, usually lacking anyone to support them (see Deut. 10:18; Isa. 1:17; Jer. 7:5–7). unstained from the world. James uses the sacrificial language of “the lamb without blemish” (Ex. 12:5; 1 Pet. 1:19) to describe the pure religious person.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:1–13 The Sin of Favoritism. The problem of the poor and the rich, already emphasized in 1:9–11, 27, now comes into focus. James warns about discriminating against the poor in favor of the wealthy in the church.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:1 Partiality refers to favoritism based on social status.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:2–4 Assembly probably refers to a Christian house church. Sit down at my feet. The place of a servant. judges with evil thoughts. Christians are not to “judge” each other harshly and unfairly (Matt. 7:1–5; Rom. 14:4). To do so can only mean one’s mind is full of evil thoughts.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:5 chosen . . . to be rich in faith. The poor have a special place in God’s “economy” of salvation. They are rich in an eternal sense because they are heirs of the kingdom (compare Matt. 5:3).

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:6–7 Oppress you reflects terrible social injustices in the first century. Merchants and landowners were taking land and possessions from the poor (see 5:1–6). drag you into court. As frequently criticized in the OT, the wealthy often used the court system to steal from the poor (Amos 4:1; Hab. 1:4; Mal. 3:5). This situation was the primary reason for the revolts in Galilee that led to the war against Rome in A.D. 66–70.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:8 Royal law refers to God’s decree in Lev. 19:18 (“love your neighbor”; compare Matt. 22:34–40) as the most important kingdom rule for ethical conduct. See Rom. 13:8–10.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:9 partiality. Favoring the rich breaks the OT commands to treat the poor fairly (Lev. 19:15; Job 34:19).

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:10–11 accountable for all of it. The law was considered an interdependent whole. Breaking any law meant breaking the whole law.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:12 the law of liberty. The law of Christ provides freedom from sin.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:13 For judgment is without mercy to one who has shown no mercy. This common saying summarizes vv. 1–12 and leads into the “faith without works” discussion in vv. 14–26. Mercy triumphs over judgment. Because they have been shown mercy, Christians show mercy to others (e.g., by caring for the poor and hurting). This marks them as believers (Mic. 6:8; Zech. 7:9–10; Matt. 5:7; 6:15; 18:32–35).

2:14–26 Faith without Works Is Dead. James continues the theme that hearing/faith must lead to doing/works. It may seem that James contradicts Paul’s “by grace you have been saved through faith . . . not a result of works” (Eph. 2:8–9). In reality there is no contradiction between faith and works. Paul and James agree that the basis of salvation is grace alone through faith. Works are not the basis of salvation but the necessary result (Eph. 2:10).

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:14 What good . . . ? Can that faith save him? Negative answers (“no good” and “no”) are expected. If someone says he has faith but he does not have works, he should question whether he has been saved.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:15–16 Go in peace, be warmed and filled. An example of faith without works. The person seems to be expressing concern for the poor, but in reality he refuses to help.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:17 dead. Useless, with no life at all. It cannot lead to salvation (v. 14). True faith will produce works.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:18 But someone will say. James anticipates questions about this teaching.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:19 God is one. This affirmation that there is only one true and living God comes from Deut. 6:4 (see Mark 12:29; Rom. 3:30). But James notes that even the demons believe this, and they shudder. Mere mental assent to the Christian faith does not save anyone. True commitment to Christ is needed.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:21 Abraham . . . justified by works. James may seem to contradict Paul here (compare Rom. 4:2–3). However, while Paul cites Gen. 15:6 to show that Abraham was justified by faith, James bases his claim on Gen. 22:9–10, where Abraham was willing to offer Isaac as a sacrifice. Thus James apparently has a different sense of the word "justify" in mind here. Paul uses "justify" to express being declared righteous by God through faith, on the basis of Jesus' atoning sacrifice (Rom. 3:24–26). James seems to use "justify" to stress the way in which works demonstrate that someone has been justified (compare Matt. 12:33–37). Paul emphasizes how one is justified; James focuses on what justification looks like in practice.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:22 faith was completed by his works. James does not disagree that faith alone saves (Rom. 3:28). "Completed" often means "bring to maturity." Full-grown and genuine faith is seen in the good deeds it produces.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:23 James uses Gen. 15:6 in a way that complements rather than contradicts Paul (Rom. 4:1–9; Gal. 3:6). James sees Gen. 15:6 as having been fulfilled (see James 2:22) in Abraham's offering of Isaac (Genesis 22). James focuses on Abraham's act of obedience, while Paul highlights God's declaration of Abraham's righteousness. See note on James 2:21.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:24 not by faith alone. James again seems at first to contradict Paul's teaching that one is justified by faith alone (Rom. 3:28), but the two are compatible. Here "faith alone" means mere intellectual agreement without genuine personal trust in Christ that bears fruit in one's life. On justified, see note on James 2:21.

JAMES—NOTE ON 2:25 Rahab the prostitute believed the stories of God's saving work for the Hebrews (Josh. 2:8–11). So, at some personal risk, she hid the Jewish spies from her own people and then helped them escape (Josh. 2:15). Thus she became a model of faith completed in works.

FACT

Rahab is a remarkable example of the fact that God can use whomever he chooses to accomplish his will (1 Cor. 1:26–31). Though a prostitute and a Gentile, Rahab is listed in the genealogy of Jesus (Matt. 1:5). She is remembered as a model of faith completed in works (James 2:25) and is listed among the heroes of faith in Hebrews 11.

JAMES—NOTE ON 3:1–4:12 The Sin of Dissension in the Community. This section is the longest in the letter. It discusses the problems people cause with their speech (3:1–12; 4:1–12) and the solution to these problems (“wisdom from above”; 3:13–18). James is concerned about division (4:1) and slander (3:9; 4:11). This trouble may have begun with the leaders/teachers (3:1), but it now involves the whole “body” of the church (3:6).

JAMES—NOTE ON 3:1 Teachers were important in the early church (Acts 2:42; Rom. 12:7; 1 Cor. 12:28; Eph. 4:11). Ambitious people wanted to be teachers for selfish reasons. Greater responsibility includes greater expectations by God (Luke 12:48; Heb. 13:17).

JAMES—NOTE ON 3:2 in what he says. A person’s words reflect his character. stumble. A metaphor for sinning. perfect man. Such perfection will be permanent only in heaven. Still, believers should always seek to grow in holiness.

JAMES—NOTE ON 3:3–4 Bits in a horse’s mouth and the small rudder on a ship are examples of very small things that control large objects.

JAMES—NOTE ON 3:5–6 The tongue, one of the smaller parts of the body, is like the bit or rudder (vv. 3–4). It has a similar control over a person. boasts of great things. Pride is a major cause of sinful talk. A great forest fire starts with a small fire. In the same way, a lot of problems begin with a proud “boast” or other careless use of the tongue. a world of unrighteousness. The tongue expresses all the wickedness of the world.

The entire course of life likely means the "ups and downs" of life. Sinful speech can damage every aspect of individual and community life. set on fire by hell. Evil speech destroys because it comes from Satan himself.

FACT

Familiar word pictures. The images James uses to describe the power of the tongue (3:1–12) were well chosen to communicate to his original readers. The Greek playwright Sophocles spoke of wild horses being tamed by a small bit in the mouth. The Jewish philosopher Philo compared one's senses to a helmsman steering a boat. And the Roman historian Plutarch compared a loose tongue to a blazing forest fire.

JAMES—NOTE ON 3:13 meekness of wisdom. Meekness (translated "gentleness" in Gal. 5:23) does not come from cowardice or passivity. It comes from trusting God. This frees a person from anxious self-promotion.

JAMES—NOTE ON 3:16 Disorder describes the chaotic frenzy of fighting in the church (see 4:1). The related adjective means "unstable" in 1:8 and "restless" in 3:8.

JAMES—NOTE ON 3:17 The answer to the "disorder" of v. 16 is to seek wisdom from above. Wisdom produces strong character (compare Gal. 5:22–23). first pure, then. Purity (blamelessness) is the primary virtue. The other qualities result from this moral purity.

JAMES—NOTE ON 3:18 harvest of righteousness. The righteous conduct that God will bless (see note on 1:20).

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:1 passions. Self-centered desires cause these people to make war against each other in the church. Here “war” is a metaphor for the traumatic effect of bitter hostility.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:2 People desire and covet (“jealousy,” 3:14), which leads to the terrible fighting in the church. You do not have, because you do not ask. Believers should ask God for what they need, rather than fighting each other. Bringing requests before God can have a purifying influence on one’s desires.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:3 you ask wrongly. They focus on satisfying self-centered passions rather than honoring God and advancing his kingdom purposes.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:4 adulterous people. Old Testament prophets used this language to describe Israel’s unfaithfulness to God (Jer. 2:20; 3:6–10; Hos. 1:2). friendship with the world. Loving this world’s beliefs and pleasures more than God.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:5 He yearns jealously over the spirit that he has made to dwell in us. God wants to protect what is rightfully his. He created mankind with a “spirit,” and he deeply desires that our spirits worship him (see John 4:23–24). He has redeemed us. He deserves our worship and friendship.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:6 God’s grace will be extended to those who are humble before him (see v. 10; also Prov. 3:34; Luke 1:52; 1 Pet. 5:5–6). God opposes means he resists and sends judgment.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:7–8a The only way to resist the devil is by submitting and drawing near to God (compare 1 Cor. 10:13).

FACT

What does it mean to submit? Submission means that one has willingly placed himself or herself under the authority of another. It means humility and obedience, rather than rebellion. Submission to God means that the believer has surrendered to God's will and embraced the Lord's rule in his or her life (4:7).

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:8b–9 Cleanse and purify are OT terms for ritual purity and ethical purity. Laughter shows how casually James's readers were treating their sin. The only proper reaction to God's coming judgment is to be wretched and mourn and weep (see Isa. 15:2; 22:4; Jer. 6:26).

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:10 See note on v. 6.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:11 James restates the basic problem behind the issues discussed in 3:1–4:10: the misuse of speech to speak evil or to slander others. Such conduct is rejected in the OT (Lev. 19:16; Jer. 6:28) and NT (Rom. 1:30; 2 Cor. 12:20; 1 Pet. 2:1). judges the law. The "law" likely refers to OT laws against slander, particularly Lev. 19:16, 18. Yet it also includes Jesus' kingdom laws regarding love for neighbor (Matt. 22:39) and for one another (John 13:34–35). See note on James 2:2–4.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:12 When a person begins to "judge the law," he rebels against the one lawgiver and judge. God alone gave the law. He alone is judge of all (Ps. 9:19; Isa. 2:4; Joel 3:12). to save and to destroy. Possibly a warning of future judgment to the divisive boasters.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:13–5:12 The Sins of the Wealthy. James condemns the sins of the wealthy (pride, 4:13–17; and robbing the poor, 5:1–6). He then calls for patience in suffering (5:7–11).

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:13 trade and make a profit. On the surface this sounds like good business sense. But it masks a secular outlook that ignores God. These people are probably Christians belonging to the wealthy merchant class.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:14 you. These business people think they control events. They fail to recognize God’s authority and the temporary nature of life. Planning and investing are not wrong, but arrogant self-confidence and boasting are.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:15 The key to vv. 13–17 is if the Lord wills. “Lord” refers to Yahweh as Creator. He sustains the universe and controls all that happens. Every business decision must be based on submission to God’s will.

JAMES—NOTE ON 4:17 Fails to do it describes the good acts that people do not do. This is as important to God as the sinful acts that they do.

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:1–6 The rich people mentioned here are probably not believers (compare 2:6–7).

Leviticus 19 in James

Leviticus 19		James
v. 12	“You shall not swear”	5:12	“do not swear”
v. 13	“The wages of a hired servant shall not remain with you all night”	5:4	“Behold, the wages of the laborers . . . which you kept back by fraud”
v. 15	“You shall not be partial”	2:1, 9	“My brothers, show no partiality”
v. 16	“You shall not go around as a slanderer”	4:11	“Do not speak evil against one another”
v. 18a	“You shall not take vengeance or bear a grudge”	5:9	“Do not grumble against one another”
v. 18b	“you shall love your neighbor as yourself”	2:8	“You shall love your neighbor as yourself”

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:1 weep and howl. Prophetic language describing the response of those God will punish on judgment day (Isa. 13:6; 15:3; Hos. 7:14; Amos 8:3). Miseries that are coming refers to final judgment, not present troubles.

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:2–3 Riches, garments, and gold summarize the materialistic lifestyle of these landowners. These possessions will be lost forever. They will also be evidence at the landowners’ final trial before God. They will feed the flames of the lake of fire where their owners will spend eternity (Rev. 20:11–15).

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:4 The Lord of hosts (“Lord of heaven’s armies”) pictures God as a warrior going into battle (1 Sam. 17:45; Rev. 17:14; 19:14).

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:5 fattened your hearts in a day of slaughter. The rich feed on luxuries and fail to realize that they are headed for death (see Jer. 12:3; Rev. 19:17–21).

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:6 Righteous person may have a double meaning. He is both “one of God’s forgiven people” and “a person who is innocent” of the death sentence that the wealthy have given him. He does not resist. The righteous person was powerless to stop the wicked. This makes the sin even worse. See Matt. 5:38–42.

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:7 The righteous are to wait until the coming of the Lord (see 1 Thess. 4:15). At that time God will make things right. the early and the late rains. Autumn rains occurred just after planting and the spring rains come just before harvest (Jer. 5:24; Joel 2:23). These two rains were the most important for the crop.

FACT

There are two rainy seasons in Palestine (5:7). The “early rains” come during the fall. Rain during this time is crucial to farmers, because it helps seeds germinate. “Late rains” come in early spring and help the seedlings turn into mature plants.

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:10 The example of the prophets is that they suffered and died (see Heb. 11:32–38) for speaking in the name of the Lord.

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:11 The theme of enduring trials recalls 1:2–4, 12.

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:12 It is not entirely clear how do not swear is connected to vv. 7–11. Above all may begin a three-part conclusion to the letter (vv. 12, 13–18, 19–20). Yet it could also refer back to the sins of the tongue and the grumbling of v. 9. Oaths were allowed in Israel, but the person was required to fulfill them. This was especially so because they often involved swearing by God’s name (see Lev. 19:12; Jer. 5:2). James’s ban on oaths builds on Jesus' in Matt. 5:33–37 (see also Matt. 23:16–22). The point in both cases is that a believer's word should be enough. This does not mean all oaths (e.g., official oaths) are prohibited.

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:13–18 The Prayer of Faith. Speaking mainly of prayer, James restates some of the letter's key themes. These include trials and misuse of the tongue. The ultimate way to "tame" one's tongue (3:8) is to "pray for one another" (5:16).

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:13–14 There is a pattern in these verses. James begins with those suffering, then addresses the cheerful, and concludes with those who are sick. As used here, "sick" probably refers to physical illness. Elders were pastors and overseers (see Acts 20:17, 28; Titus 1:5, 7; 1 Pet. 5:1–2). They were leaders in the churches. The wording here suggests that there were multiple elders in the churches to which James was writing. anointing . . . with oil. A symbol representing the healing power of the Holy Spirit to come upon the sick person. in the name of the Lord. It is God, not the oil, that heals.

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:15 the prayer of faith. Not the faith of the sick person, but the faith of those praying. James does not require the sick person to exercise faith. The sick person simply asks for the elders to pray. Will save perhaps carries a double meaning: (1) the sick person will be physically healed, and/or (2) the sick person may also experience spiritual salvation, or growth in the blessings of salvation (sins . . . forgiven). This is similar to many of Jesus' healings in the Gospels. James is not teaching that all illnesses will be healed if people would simply call on the elders, or try to make themselves have enough faith, or pray with enough conviction. Healing, when it happens, is always a gift from God. He is sovereign over all circumstances. Some interpreters suggest that James refers to the promise of the resurrection rather than physical healing. If, in the phrase "if he has committed sins," implies that not all sickness is connected to specific sins. James seems to expect, though, that some sickness is the result of sin (compare 1 Cor. 11:30).

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:16 confess your sins to one another. Sometimes confession in the community is needed before healing can take place, since sin may be the cause of the illness (compare 1 Cor. 11:29–30). Pray for one another is directed to all the readers of James's letter. He did not expect prayer for healing to be limited to the elders (James 5:14).

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:17–18 Elijah illustrates how a man with a nature like ours could have a powerful prayer life. The drought recorded in 1 Kings 17–18 was punishment on King Ahab and Israel for idolatry. The three years and six months is probably taken from "in the third year" (1 Kings 18:1) as symbolic of judgment (half of seven; see Dan. 7:25; 12:7).

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:19–20 Concluding Admonition. James's style is abrupt. There is no concluding greeting as in most NT letters. Instead, James calls the community to help those who have fallen into the moral faults described in the book. This closing section acts as a summary of various sins and their solutions.

JAMES—NOTE ON 5:20 save his soul from death. Not physical death (see 1 Cor. 11:30) but spiritual death (compare 1 John 5:16–17). Timely help from other believers (see Gal. 6:1; Heb. 3:13) will "save his soul" and bring forgiveness from God if he repents. The one who encourages repentance will cover the many sins of the one who had strayed, because God will forgive someone who repents.

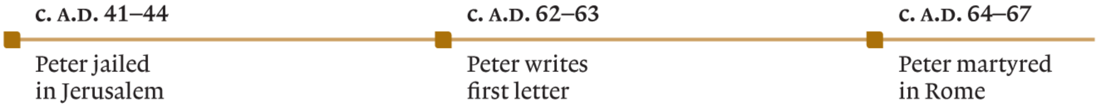
Introduction to 1 Peter

Introduction to 1 Peter

Timeline



Author, Date, and Recipients

The apostle Peter wrote this letter (1:1). He was once a fisherman but now was a disciple, a “witness of the sufferings of Christ” (5:1). He probably wrote the letter from Rome (see 5:13; “Babylon” almost certainly refers to Rome) around A.D. 62–63 during Nero’s reign. The letter is addressed to Christians scattered in “Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia” (1:1). This is an area north of the Taurus Mountains in Asia Minor (modern-day Turkey). These territories had been impacted by Greco-Roman culture and had been under Roman control from the mid-first century B.C.

Theme

Those who persevere in faith while suffering persecution should be full of hope. They will certainly enjoy end-time salvation, since they already enjoy God’s saving promises through Christ’s death and resurrection.

Purpose

Peter is writing to encourage his readers to endure suffering and persecution (1:6–7; 2:18–20; 3:9, 13–17; 4:1–4, 12–19; 5:9) by giving themselves entirely to God (4:19). They are to remain faithful in times of distress, knowing that God will vindicate them and that they will certainly enjoy the salvation that the Lord has promised. Christ’s death and resurrection are the model for believers. Just as Christ suffered and then entered into glory, so too his followers will suffer before being exalted.

Key Themes

1. Those who suffer as Christians will be proven faithful when Christ returns (1:6–9; 2:18–25; 3:13–22; 4:12–19).
2. The church is the new temple, the new Israel, the new people of God (1:1–2; 2:4–10).
3. Believers should set their hope on their end-time inheritance (1:3–9, 13–16).
4. Christ died as a substitute for sinners. His death is the basis for their new life (1:17–21; 2:24; 3:13–22).
5. Christ's suffering is an example to his disciples (2:21–23).
6. At his resurrection, Christ triumphed over his enemies (3:18–22).
7. Christians should live righteously in their homes and in society (2:11–3:7).
8. New life in Christ is the basis for a life of love and holiness (1:3; 1:13–2:3).

The Setting of 1 Peter

c. A.D. 62–63

Peter, probably writing from Rome (called "Babylon" in 5:13), addressed 1 Peter to believers in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia. These names all referred to Roman provinces in Asia Minor, north of the Taurus Mountains.

The Global Message of 1 Peter

Peter wrote this letter to encourage believers scattered around the known world to persevere through suffering. For in suffering they are following in the footsteps of their Savior, by whose death and resurrection they are saved.

First Peter and Redemptive History

Peter explicitly connects his letter to the story of redemption that has been unfolding down through history. He cites both characters and quotations from the Old Testament.

Old Testament characters. Early on in the letter Peter describes the salvation that has come through Jesus Christ and remarks that the Old Testament prophets searched with great diligence to understand the time and identity of the Messiah (1 Pet. 1:10–11). In chapter 3 Peter refers to Abraham and Sarah in discussing Christian marriage (3:6), and he later draws on the account of Noah and the flood to describe the significance of Christian baptism (3:18–22).

Old Testament quotations. Another way we see Peter connecting his letter with redemptive history is by his pervasive use of Old Testament quotations and allusions. Peter quotes from Leviticus (1 Pet. 1:16), Psalms (1 Pet. 2:7; 3:10–12), and Isaiah (1 Pet. 1:24–25; 2:6, 8). He uses the language of the Old Testament sacrificial system in referring to Christ as "a lamb without blemish or spot" (1:19) and in referring to believers as "a spiritual house . . . a holy priesthood" (2:5). The Gentile believers to whom he is writing are spoken of in the categories of the Old Testament people of God: "you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation" (2:9; compare Ex. 19:6). Chapter 2 of 1 Peter is filled with allusions to Isaiah 53 as Peter describes the redemptive suffering of Christ (1 Pet. 2:21–25).

In all this we see that Peter views the coming of Christ and especially his death and resurrection as the climax of human history. The entire Old Testament culminates in Christ. Christ "was foreknown before the foundation of the world but was made manifest in the last times for the sake of you . . ." (1 Pet. 1:20). And one day soon he will come again (1:7). While we are still awaiting the fullness of salvation with the end of the age (1:5), we also live in the knowledge that we are already in the last days due to Christ's first coming.

Universal Themes in 1 Peter

This world is not our home. Peter calls his readers "elect exiles of the Dispersion" (1 Pet. 1:1). He is drawing on the Jewish experience of being exiled from their homeland and "dispersed" in the centuries before Christ came. Peter's point is that Christians are those whose true home is heaven. In chapter 2 he underscores this, calling believers "sojourners and exiles" (2:11). We are pilgrims in this world, journeying on to our true home in the restored new earth. For this reason the theme of hope resounds through 1 Peter, as we eagerly await our inheritance and the end of all suffering (1:3–9, 13, 21; 3:15; 4:7; 5:4, 10). Wherever believers live around the globe, this fallen world is not our home. As Paul put it, "our citizenship is in heaven" (Phil. 3:20).

Christ's suffering as both exemplary and substitutionary. Throughout this letter, Peter exults in the work of Christ. He speaks of it as an example to follow (1 Pet. 2:21–23; 4:1, 13–14) as well as a saving work on our behalf (1:18–19; 2:24; 3:18). Our own suffering adds nothing to the sufficiency of Christ's suffering in paying the price for our sins. Nonetheless, we should imitate the humble and trusting way in which he suffered. If we seek to emulate Christ's example of suffering without understanding how his suffering saved us, we will experience only feelings of guilt and and our suffering will be joyless. On the other hand, receiving Christ's work on our behalf while neglecting to earnestly follow his example of suffering (Matt. 16:24) is also lopsided and unhealthy.

Holy living in society and in the home. Because of the great salvation in which Christians have been included, they are called to live accordingly. Since we are now God's children, we are to be holy as he is holy (1 Pet. 1:14–16). Peter especially highlights our conduct in the home and in our dealings with the unbelieving and often hostile society all around us. In the home, for example, wives and husbands are called to treat one another in accordance with their salvation (3:1–7). In society, believers are to be subject to the governing authorities (2:13–17). Above all, Peter urges believers to endure the suffering that comes their way due to their loyalty to Christ (2:19–21; 3:8–17; 4:12–19; 5:10).

The Global Message of 1 Peter for Today

Peter's first epistle is strong medicine for the global church today.

A royal priesthood. Peter describes the church in terms used of the single nation of Israel in the Old Testament—"a royal priesthood, a holy nation" (1 Pet. 2:9). Yet he has already said in his greeting that he is writing to Gentile believers scattered around the Roman empire, "in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia" (1:1). Christians all around the world, however different they might live or look, are part of the single family of God. As we engage the world, then, in both word and deed, we do so with a glad sense of solidarity with all other believers worldwide. And just as the nation of Israel was to be a royal priesthood, mediating the blessing of God to the nations, so we today are priests of God. We as the church mediate the blessing of the gospel to all people everywhere.

Hope amid suffering. The solidarity that binds all believers together extends to our afflictions. As we suffer, we suffer together—interceding for one another, bearing one another's burdens, advocating for one another, extending mercy and kindness to one another. As is the case for Christians today in many ways and in many places, the people to whom Peter wrote were suffering various kinds of hostility. We therefore heed Peter's call to lift our eyes to the magnificent hope to which we have been called. Our inheritance awaits us with glorious inevitability (1 Pet. 1:4). The righteous reign of Christ, so often difficult to discern amid the moral chaos of the world, will one day soon burst onto the scene with triumphant victory.

We suffer now. But only for "a little while" (1 Pet. 1:6; 5:10). The king is coming a second time—this time in open might and glory, not obscurity (Rev. 19:11–16). Justice will be executed with perfection. His saints will be vindicated. All will be set right.

Greeting

1 PETER 1 [†]Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ,

To those who are elect exiles of [a]the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, [2][†]according to [b]the foreknowledge of God the Father, [c]in the sanctification of the Spirit, for obedience to Jesus Christ and [d]for sprinkling with his blood:

May [e]grace and [f]peace be multiplied to you.

Born Again to a Living Hope

[3][†][g]Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ! [h]According to his great mercy, [i]he has caused us to be born again to a living hope [j]through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, [4][†]to [k]an inheritance that is imperishable, undefiled, and [l]unfading, [m]kept in heaven for you, [5][†]who by God’s power are being guarded [n]through faith for a salvation [o]ready to be revealed in the last time. [6][†]In this you rejoice, though now for a little while, if necessary, you have been grieved by [p]various trials, [7]so that [q]the tested genuineness of your faith—more precious than gold that perishes [r]though it is tested by [s]fire—may be found to result in [t]praise and glory and honor at the revelation of Jesus Christ. [8][u]Though you have not seen him, you love him. [v]Though you do not now see him, you believe in him and rejoice with joy that is inexpressible and filled with glory, [9]obtaining [w]the outcome of your faith, the salvation of your souls.

[10][†]Concerning this salvation, [x]the prophets who prophesied about the grace that was to be yours searched and inquired carefully, [11]inquiring [y]what person or time [z]the Spirit of Christ in them was indicating [a]when he predicted [b]the sufferings of Christ and the subsequent glories. [12][†][c]It was revealed to them that [d]they were serving not themselves but you, in the things that have now been announced to you through those who preached the good news to you [e]by the Holy Spirit sent from heaven, [f]things into which angels long to look.

Called to Be Holy

[13][†]Therefore, [g]preparing your minds for action, [1] and [h]being sober-minded, set your hope fully on the grace that will be brought to you at the revelation of Jesus Christ. [14][†]As obedient children, [i]do not be conformed to the passions [j]of your former ignorance, [15]but [k]as he who called you is holy, you also be holy [l]in all your conduct, [16]since it is written, [m]"You shall be holy, for I am holy." [17][†]And if you [n]call on him as Father who [o]judges [p]impartially according to each one's deeds, conduct yourselves [q]with fear throughout the time of your exile, [18][†]knowing that you [r]were ransomed from [s]the futile ways inherited from your forefathers, not with perishable things such as silver or gold, [19]but [t]with the precious blood of Christ, like that of [u]a lamb [v]without blemish or spot. [20][†]He was foreknown before the foundation of the world but [w]was made manifest [x]in the last times for the sake of you [21][y]who through him are believers in God, [z]who raised him from the dead and [a]gave him glory, so that your faith and hope are in God.

[22][†]Having purified your souls by your obedience to the truth for [b]a sincere brotherly love, [c]love one another earnestly from a pure heart, [23][†][d]since you have been born again, [e]not of perishable seed but of imperishable, through [f]the living and abiding word of God; [24][†]for

[g]"All flesh is like grass and all its glory like the flower of grass.
The grass withers,
  and the flower falls,
[25] [h]but the word of the Lord remains forever."

And this word [i]is the good news that was preached to you.

A Living Stone and a Holy People

1 PETER 2 [†][j]So put away all malice and all deceit and hypocrisy and envy and all slander. [2][k]Like newborn infants, long for the pure spiritual [l]milk, that by it you may grow up into salvation— [3][†]if indeed you have [m]tasted that the Lord is good.

4[†]As you come to him, a living stone [n]rejected by men but in the sight of God chosen and precious, 5[†] [o]you yourselves like living stones are being built up as [p]a spiritual house, to be [q]a holy priesthood, [r]to offer spiritual sacrifices [s]acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. 6[†]For it stands in Scripture:

> [t]“Behold, I am laying in Zion a stone, > a cornerstone chosen and precious,
> [u]and whoever believes in him will not be put to shame.”

7[†]So the honor is for you who [v]believe, but for those who [v]do not believe,

> [w]“The stone that the builders rejected > has become the cornerstone,”[1]

8[†]and

> [x]“A stone of stumbling, > and a rock of offense.”

They stumble because they disobey the word, [y]as they were destined to do.

9[†]But you are [z]a chosen race, [a]a royal [b]priesthood, [c]a holy nation, [d]a people for his own possession, that you may proclaim the excellencies of him who called you [e]out of darkness into [f]his marvelous light. 10[†] [g]Once you were not a people, but now you are God’s people; once you had not received mercy, but now you have received mercy.

11[†]Beloved, I urge you [h]as sojourners and exiles [i]to abstain from the passions of the flesh, [j]which wage war against your soul. 12[†] [k]Keep your conduct among the Gentiles honorable, so that when they speak against you as evildoers, [l]they may see your good deeds and glorify God on [m]the day of visitation.

Submission to Authority

[13][†] [n]Be subject for the Lord’s sake to every human institution, [2] whether it be to the emperor [3] as supreme, [14]or to governors as sent by him [o]to punish those who do evil and [p]to praise those who do good. [15][†]For this is the will of God, [q]that by doing good you should put to silence the ignorance of foolish people. [16][†] [r]Live as people who are free, not using your freedom as a cover-up for evil, but [s]living as servants [4] of God. [17] [t]Honor everyone. [u]Love the brotherhood. [v]Fear God. Honor the emperor.

[18][†] [w]Servants, be subject to your masters with all respect, not only to the good and gentle but also to the unjust. [19][†]For this is a gracious thing, when, [x]mindful of God, one endures sorrows while suffering unjustly. [20]For what credit is it if, when you sin and are beaten for it, you endure? But [y]if when you do good and suffer for it you endure, this is a gracious thing in the sight of God. [21]For [z]to this you have been called, [y]because Christ also suffered for you, [a]leaving you an example, so that you might follow in his steps. [22][†] [b]He committed no sin, neither was deceit found in his mouth. [23] [c]When he was reviled, he did not revile in return; when he suffered, he did not threaten, [d]but continued entrusting himself to him who judges justly. [24][†] [e]He himself bore our sins in his body on the tree, that we [f]might die to sin and [g]live to righteousness. [h]By his wounds you have been healed. [25]For [i]you were straying like sheep, but have now returned to [j]the Shepherd and Overseer of your souls.

Wives and Husbands

1 PETER 3 [†]Likewise, wives, [k]be subject to your own husbands, so that [l]even if some do not obey the word, [m]they may be won without a word by the conduct of their wives, [2]when they see your [n]respectful and pure conduct. [3][†] [o]Do not let your adorning be external—the braiding of hair and the putting on of gold jewelry, or the clothing you wear— [4]but let your adorning be [p]the hidden person of the heart with the imperishable beauty of a gentle and quiet spirit, which in God’s sight is very precious. [5]For this is how the holy women who hoped in God used to adorn themselves, by submitting to their own husbands, [6][†]as Sarah obeyed Abraham, [q]calling him lord. And you are her children, if you do good and [r]do not fear anything that is frightening.

[7][†]Likewise, [s]husbands, live with your wives in an understanding way, showing honor to the woman as the weaker [t]vessel, since they are heirs with you [1] of the grace of life, so that your prayers may not be hindered.

Suffering for Righteousness' Sake

[8][†]Finally, all of you, [u]have unity of mind, sympathy, [v]brotherly love, [w]a tender heart, and [x]a humble mind. [9][y]Do not repay evil for evil or reviling for reviling, but on the contrary, [z]bless, for [a]to this you were called, that you may obtain a blessing. [10][†]For

[b]"Whoever desires to love life and see good days, let him keep his tongue from evil and his lips from speaking deceit; [11] let him turn away from evil and do good;
    let him seek peace and pursue it.
[12] For the eyes of the Lord are on the righteous, and his ears are open to their prayer.
But the face of the Lord is against those who do evil."

[13][†]Now [c]who is there to harm you if you are zealous for what is good? [14][d]But even if you should suffer for righteousness' sake, you will be blessed. [e]Have no fear of them, [f]nor be troubled, [15][†]but [g]in your hearts honor Christ the Lord as holy, [h]always being prepared to make a defense to anyone who asks you for a reason for the hope that is in you; yet do it with gentleness and [i]respect, [16][j]having a good conscience, so that, [k]when you are slandered, those who revile your good behavior in Christ may be put to shame. [17]For [l]it is better to suffer for doing good, if that should be God's will, than for doing evil.

[18][†]For Christ also [m]suffered [2] [n]once for sins, the righteous for the unrighteous, [o]that he might bring us to God, being put to death [p]in the flesh but made alive [q] in the spirit, [19][†]in which [3] he went and [q] proclaimed [4] to the spirits in prison, [20]because [5] they formerly did not obey, [r] when God's patience waited in the days of Noah, [s] while the ark was being prepared, in which a few, that is, [t] eight persons, were brought safely through water. [21][†]Baptism, which corresponds to this, [u] now saves you, not as a removal of dirt from the body but [v] as an appeal to God for a good conscience, [w] through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, [22]who has gone into heaven and [x] is at the right hand of God, [y] with angels, authorities, and powers having been subjected to him.

Stewards of God's Grace

1 PETER 4 [†]Since therefore [z] Christ suffered in the flesh, [1] [a] arm yourselves with the same way of thinking, for [b] whoever has suffered in the flesh [c] has ceased from sin, [2] [d] so as to live for [e] the rest of the time in the flesh [f] no longer for human passions but [g] for the will of God. [3]For the time that is past [h] suffices [i] for doing what the Gentiles want to do, living in sensuality, passions, drunkenness, orgies, drinking parties, and lawless idolatry. [4]With respect to this they are surprised when you do not join them in the same flood of [j] debauchery, and [k] they malign you; [5]but they will give account to him who is ready [l] to judge the living and the dead. [6][†]For this is why [m] the gospel was preached even to those who are dead, that though judged in the flesh the way people are, they might live in the spirit the way God does.

[7][†] [n] The end of all things is at hand; therefore [o] be self-controlled and sober-minded [p] for the sake of your prayers. [8][†]Above all, keep loving one another earnestly, since [q] love covers a multitude of sins. [9] [r] Show hospitality to one another without grumbling. [10][†] [s] As each has received a gift, use it to serve one another, [t] as good stewards of God's varied grace: [11][†]whoever speaks, as one who speaks [u] oracles of God; whoever serves, as one who serves [v] by the strength that God supplies—in order that in everything [w] God may be glorified through Jesus Christ. [x] To him belong glory and [y] dominion forever and ever. Amen.

Suffering as a Christian

[12][†]Beloved, do not be surprised at [z]the fiery trial when it comes upon you to test you, as though something strange were happening to you. [13]But rejoice [a]insofar as you share Christ's sufferings, that you may also rejoice and be glad [b]when his glory is revealed. [14][†] [c]If you are insulted [d]for the name of Christ, you are blessed, because the Spirit of glory [2] and of God rests upon you. [15]But [e]let none of you suffer as a murderer or a thief or an evildoer or [f]as a meddler. [16]Yet [e]if anyone suffers as a [g]Christian, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God [d]in that name. [17][†]For it is time for judgment [h]to begin at the household of God; and [i]if it begins with us, what will be the outcome for those who [j]do not obey the gospel of God? [18]And

[k]"If the righteous is scarcely saved, what will become of the ungodly and the sinner?" [3]

[19][†]Therefore let those who suffer according to God's will [l]entrust their souls to a faithful Creator while doing good.

Shepherd the Flock of God

1 PETER 5 [†]So I exhort the elders among you, [m]as a fellow elder and [n]a witness of the sufferings of Christ, as well as a partaker in the glory that is going to be revealed: [2][†] [o]shepherd the flock of God that is among you, exercising oversight, [1] [p]not under compulsion, but willingly, as God would have you; [2] [q]not for shameful gain, but eagerly; [3]not [r]domineering over those in your charge, but [s]being examples to the flock. [4][†]And when [t]the chief Shepherd appears, you will receive the [u]unfading [v]crown of glory. [5][†]Likewise, you who are younger, be subject to the elders. [w]Clothe yourselves, all of you, with humility toward one another, for [x]"God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble."

[6][†] [x]Humble yourselves, therefore, under the mighty hand of God so that at the proper time he may exalt you, [7][†] [y]casting all your anxieties on him, because [z]he cares for you. [8][†] [a]Be sober-minded; [b]be watchful. Your

[c] adversary the devil [d] prowls around [e] like a roaring lion, seeking someone to devour. [9][†] [f] Resist him, [g] firm in your faith, knowing that [h] the same kinds of suffering are being experienced by your brotherhood throughout the world. [10][†]And [i] after you have suffered a little while, the God of all grace, [j] who has called you to his [k] eternal glory in Christ, will himself [l] restore, [m] confirm, strengthen, and establish you. [11] [n] To him be the dominion forever and ever. Amen.

Final Greetings

[12][†]By [o] Silvanus, a faithful brother as I regard him, [p] I have written briefly to you, exhorting and declaring that this is [q] the true grace of God. [r] Stand firm in it. [13][†]She who is at Babylon, who is likewise chosen, sends you greetings, and so does [s] Mark, my son. [14][†] [t] Greet one another with the kiss of love.

[u] Peace to all of you who are in Christ.

Study Notes for 1 Peter

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:1–2 Opening. Peter identifies himself as the author. The readers are identified as "elect exiles" and their salvation is credited to the work of the Father, Spirit, and Son.

FACT

The Greek phrase translated preparing your minds for action (1:13) was used to describe the action of wrapping one's robes around one's belt before beginning some physical activity. The modern equivalent would be "rolling up your sleeves." Christians should be prepared to fully engage their minds in their service for Christ.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:1 Peter calls himself an apostle, an authoritative messenger of Jesus Christ (see note on Rom. 1:1). The people receiving his letter are elect exiles of the Dispersion. Peter is not speaking of a literal exile (compare 1 Pet. 1:17; 2:11). Believers long for their true home in the new world that is coming and for their end-time inheritance. Thus, they do not conform to the values and worldviews of this present evil age. Believers, both Jews and Gentiles, are God's "elect exiles." They are his chosen people, just as Israel was God's chosen people in the OT (Deut. 7:6–8; Ps. 106:5; Isa. 45:4).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:2 Foreknowledge does not merely refer to God's knowing ahead of time that his people would belong to him. It also means that he chose them (compare Rom. 8:29). in the sanctification of the Spirit. Either conversion or gradual progress in the Christian life, or possibly both. The Spirit sets apart God's people. Believers are now holy and righteous in their standing before God. They also live in ways that show they are increasingly dedicated to God. For obedience to Jesus Christ may refer to conversion, when Christians confessed Jesus as Lord (Rom. 10:9), or to God's purpose for their lives, that they obey Christ. For sprinkling with his blood refers to Christ's atoning work on the cross. There all the believers' sins were washed away. Peter may be referring to believers' entrance into a covenant with God (similar to Ex. 24:3–8), to their growth in holiness, or possibly to both (similar to Lev. 14:6–7; compare Ps. 51:7; 1 John 1:7).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:3–2:10 Called to Salvation as Exiles. Believers must praise God for his promised salvation and live out that salvation daily.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:3 caused us to be born again. Peter may be connecting "born again" to through the resurrection of Jesus Christ. The new birth was possible because God caused believers in Christ to be united to him in his resurrection (compare Rom. 6:4; Eph. 2:5–6; Col. 3:1). Or Peter may be linking the resurrection to the living hope of believers. The hope of Christians is that Christ's resurrection is a promise of their own future resurrection.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:4 The "hope" of v. 3 is now described as an inheritance. This word often describes the Promised Land and Israel's place in it (Num. 32:19; Deut. 25:19; Josh. 11:23; Ps. 105:11). The OT inheritance points to an even greater inheritance reserved in heaven for the new covenant people.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:5 Salvation in this context is a further description of the inheritance in v. 4 and the hope in v. 3.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:6–7 Little while covers all their earthly life before they inherit future salvation. if necessary. Their sufferings are God's will. He wants their faith to be purified and shown to be real. revelation of Jesus Christ. Christ's return.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:10–11 The OT prophets did not know when their prophecies would come true, but they did foretell that Christ would suffer and then be glorified. See Overview of the Bible. The Spirit of Christ is the Holy Spirit, who was speaking through the prophets.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:12 you. That is, NT believers. Angels long to understand fully what has been accomplished. Christians have heard this good news in the gospel proclaimed to them.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:13–21 The inheritance promised to followers of Christ should motivate them to set their hope entirely on their future reward (vv. 13–16) and to live in fear of the God who redeemed them at the cost of his own Son (vv. 17–21).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:14–15 Christians are to be holy (see Lev. 18:2–4), because God is holy and has called believers to be like him.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:17 Who judges impartially may refer only to the final judgment, when believers will be judged according to their deeds (compare Rom. 2:6; 2 Cor. 5:10). More likely, Peter has in mind both this present life and the last day. fear. Of God's discipline and fatherly displeasure. exile. Compare 1 Pet. 1:1.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:18–19 you were ransomed from the futile ways inherited from your forefathers. "Ransom" recalls Israel's deliverance from Egypt (Deut. 15:15). Believers are delivered from a life of futility and meaninglessness to one of great significance. lamb without blemish or spot. This image points to the OT sacrifices. It especially refers to Christ as the Passover Lamb (Exodus 12) and the servant of the Lord (compare "lamb," Isa. 53:7). As the perfect sacrifice, Christ atoned for the sins of the unrighteous (compare John 1:29; 1 Pet. 3:18).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:20–21 God planned when he would send Christ (Christ was foreknown, compare v. 2). He chose to reveal him at the time in history when these believers lived (for the sake of you).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:22–2:10 Since Christians have been given new life by the Word of God, they are to love one another fervently (1:22–25). They are to long for God's Word so that they will continue to grow in faith (2:1–3). They are like living stones which together build up a spiritual house, with Jesus as the cornerstone (2:4–8). They are chosen by God to be his people (2:9–10).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:22 purified. See note on v. 2. truth. That is, the gospel.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:23 living and abiding word of God. All written Scripture (see v. 25), but especially the gospel.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 1:24–25 Peter cites Isa. 40:6, 8 to contrast the weakness of human flesh with the power of the word of the Lord.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:1–2 newborn infants. Peter is not saying that believers are immature in their faith. He means all Christians are to be like infants in their longing for pure spiritual milk, which likely refers to God’s Word (compare 1:23–25).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:3 Christians will continue to long for the Word if they have tasted that the Lord is good, which they did in conversion (compare Ps. 34:8). In writing this letter, Peter may well have thought about Psalm 34, which stresses how the Lord delivers the righteous in their sufferings (compare 1 Pet. 3:10–12 and Ps. 34:12–13).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:4 As you come to him indicates a daily personal relationship with Christ. living stone. Jesus is the foundation of God’s new temple. He is God’s elect (chosen) one. He is honored above all.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:5 Believers are living stones in God's new temple (spiritual house). Since the pieces that make up the house are "living," the house itself is growing: you yourselves . . . are being built up. The OT temple anticipated the new temple where God dwells (that is, in his people). But believers are not only God's temple. They are also a holy priesthood, which offers spiritual sacrifices (compare Ex. 19:5–6; see also Rom. 12:1; Phil. 4:18; Heb. 13:15–16) by the power of the Holy Spirit.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:6 Peter cites Isa. 28:16 (compare Rom. 9:33; 10:11) in support of the idea that Jesus is the cornerstone (see note on Eph. 2:20) of God's temple. Those who trust in him will be saved on judgment day.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:7 Unbelievers will find this prophecy from Ps. 118:22 fulfilled. The stone the builders rejected is Jesus, the foundation of God's temple, his new people.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:8 stumbling. Tripping over the truth of the gospel. Unbelievers fall because they do not walk with God. In doing so, unbelievers fulfill this prophecy from Isa. 8:14. There the stone God has established becomes the means of their falling. They stumble because they disobey the word, as they were destined to do. Some understand this to teach that God has not predestined who will disobey. He has only determined the result of disobedience (that is, that those who disobey will stumble). But Peter probably teaches that God directs all that will occur (see note on Eph. 1:11). In teaching this, Peter still does not deny human responsibility (they "stumble because they disobey").

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:9 a chosen race. God has elected ("chosen") some to be his people. Therefore no one can boast about being included. Peter views the church as a new Israel. He cites what is said of Israel in Ex. 19:5–6 and applies it to the church.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:10 Peter echoes texts in Hosea that refer to Israel (Hos. 1:6, 9, 10; 2:23) and says they are fulfilled in the church.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:11–4:11 Living as Strangers to Bring Glory to God in a Hostile World. Believers should live as exiles in a world that rejects their message. They bear witness to the gospel when they live in a way that pleases God.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:11 Beloved signals a major new section in the letter (compare 4:12). Believers are sojourners and exiles (compare 1:1, 17). They await their end-time inheritance. wage war against your soul. Holding on to sinful desires brings spiritual harm.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:12 Peter refers to unbelievers as Gentiles. This reflects his understanding of believers as a new Israel (see note on 1:1). glorify God. See Matt. 5:16. On the day of visitation may refer to the believer's initial conversion through the regenerating work ("visitation") of the Holy Spirit. Or it may refer to how those who become believers will glorify God on judgment day.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:13–3:12 Peter exhorts Christians to goodness as citizens (2:13–17), slaves (2:18–25), wives (3:1–6), and husbands (3:7). The section is summed up in 3:8–12: those who imitate Christ and pursue goodness will receive an eternal reward.

FACT

What is God's purpose for civil government? God has established civil governments around the world in order to punish wrongdoers and promote the good of society (Rom. 13:1–4). Peter teaches believers to "be subject for the Lord's sake to every human institution" (1 Pet. 2:13–17; see 1 Tim. 2:1–2).

---

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:13–14 Be subject. Compare Rom. 13:1–7.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:15 The godly lives of believers will put to silence false charges raised against them.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:16 Compare Gal. 5:13–14.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:18 On slavery in the Greco-Roman world, see note on 1 Cor. 7:21. Servants (bondservants) often entered into service to pay off a debt. They were not owned forever without their consent. There were laws to protect bondservants. Still, masters were often unjust. Bondservants who served faithfully in these circumstances gave a witness of Christ's suffering. This verse does not mean that servants were to endure anything the masters did to them.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:19–20 Gracious thing comes from the Greek word for "grace." Here it seems to be synonymous with credit. Both words indicate that God will reward his people if they endure suffering righteously. Compare Luke 6:34–35. "Gracious thing" could also mean that patient endurance of suffering is evidence of God's grace at work.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:22–23 This crucial verse emphasizes Christ's sinlessness (committed no sin) and his substitutionary death for sinners (compare 3:18; see also Isa. 52:13–53:12). Jesus' freedom from deceit alludes to Isa. 53:9.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 2:24 Tree was often used as a synonym for "cross" in first-century Judaism. This may have been due to Deut. 21:22–23 (see Gal. 3:13; also Acts 5:30; and see note on crucifixion at Matt. 27:35). The unique, substitutionary, sin-bearing death of Jesus is described here using allusions to Isa. 53:4, 5, 11. healed. The healing in the atonement refers to the forgiveness of sins. Jesus' death should lead to a profound change in the lives of believers. They should break all ties with evil (die to sin) and devote themselves to living in a holy way (live to righteousness).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:1–2 A husband is to be the leader in the home (compare Eph. 5:22–33; Col. 3:18–19). A wife is to be subject to (see 1 Pet. 3:5–6) and follow her husband's leadership. If a wife has an unbelieving husband who is disobedient to the word (that is, the gospel), she should not try to pressure him into converting. Instead, her godly conduct will demonstrate the truth of the gospel without a word. your own husbands. Scripture never says that women in general are to be subject to men in general. It does support male headship in the home (see also Titus 2:5) and in the church (see 1 Tim. 2:11–15; 3:2–3; and notes). Scripture also establishes the equality of man and woman as being made in the image of God (Gen. 1:27; see 1 Pet. 3:7).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:1 It was unusual for a wife to have a different religion than her husband in Roman culture. Peter calls on wives to submit to their husbands, but it was a different submission than was common. The wives' devotion was first and foremost to Christ, not their husbands.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:3–4 Do not let your adorning be external. Examples of "external . . . adorning" can be seen in portraits and sculptures from the first century. The elaborate braiding of women's hair and the wearing of attention-grabbing jewelry were common in upper-class Roman society. Peter is not literally prohibiting all braiding of hair or all wearing of gold jewelry. Instead, he warns against being more concerned about personal appearance than personal character.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:6 Sarah obeyed Abraham. Peter describes Sarah's submission in terms of obedience. This does not mean the relationship between husbands and wives is like that of parents and children. It shows that a wife is to follow her husband's leadership. calling him lord. See Gen. 18:12. do not fear. Peter calls on wives to trust God as Sarah did and not fear even the difficult things they face.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:7 Peter's advice to husbands is briefer, perhaps because they are less likely to be mistreated than bondservants and wives. The word likewise is a transition (compare v. 1; 5:5). It does not imply that husbands should submit to their wives the way that wives submit to them (see Eph. 5:21–33). To live . . . in an understanding way probably includes understanding the needs of the wife. Weaker vessel probably means that men are generally physically stronger than women and therefore they may be tempted to threaten their wives through physical or verbal abuse. heirs . . . of the grace of life. Peter does not think women are inferior to men, for both are equally made in God's image (compare Gal. 3:28). If husbands do not treat their wives in a godly way, the Lord will pay no attention to their prayers.

FACT

Husbands and wives. Peter’s statement about wives being heirs with their husbands (3:7) was revolutionary. In Roman tradition, the husband usually decided which religion his family would follow. Christian husbands, however, are to honor their wives as their equals in God’s sight (see Gal. 3:28).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:8–9 Finally, all of you begins a list of godly virtues that all believers should model at all times.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:10–12 Peter draws on Ps. 34:12–16 (see note on 1 Pet. 2:3). To love life and see good days results from God’s “blessing” (3:9). Peter continues his quotation of Psalm 34: For the eyes of the Lord are on the righteous (to observe and care for them) and his ears are open to their prayer (for various needs and concerns). This does not mean that God keeps obedient believers from suffering (compare 1 Pet. 2:19–23; 3:14, 17; 4:12–19). It means that God will provide his grace “to strengthen and establish” believers in times of suffering (5:10) and great need (compare 2 Cor. 12:9; Heb. 4:16).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:13–4:11 Believers are to endure hardship, knowing that they will receive a final reward (3:13–17). Christ suffered at his death but was raised from the dead, and thus has triumphed over all demonic powers (3:18–22). Christians are urged to give themselves wholly to God, being willing to suffer and do what is right (4:1–6). Expectation of the end times should motivate believers to live in a way that pleases God and to exercise their spiritual gifts (4:7–11).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:13–14 even if. Peter writes to Christians already suffering for their faith. Therefore he is not saying that such suffering is unlikely. His point is that no one will ultimately or finally harm Christians because no one can take Christ from them (see Rom. 8:31). Indeed, they will be blessed by God in their sufferings (compare Matt. 5:10).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:15–17 Believers should always be ready to provide a reason for their faith. They should do so kindly and engagingly. If they keep a good conscience because their behavior is correct, any accusations against them will prove false. Their accusers will be put to shame.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:18 This is a key statement on the substitutionary atonement of Christ. He suffered and died as the righteous one in place of the unrighteous, in order to bring us to God. being put to death in the flesh but made alive in the spirit. Jesus died physically but was raised from the dead by the Holy Spirit.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:19 spirits in prison. There is much debate about the identity of these spirits. The Greek term can mean either human spirits or angels, depending on the context (compare Num. 27:16; Acts 7:59; Heb. 12:23). (1) Some interpreters say that "spirits" refers to the unsaved human spirits of Noah's day. Christ, "in the spirit" (1 Pet. 3:18), preached the gospel "in the days of Noah" (v. 20) through Noah. Unbelievers who heard "did not obey . . . in the days of Noah" (v. 20). They are now suffering judgment. (2) Others believe that the spirits are fallen angels who were cast into hell to await the final judgment. In this case the message that Christ proclaimed is almost certainly one of triumph, after having been "put to death in the flesh but made alive in the spirit" (v. 18). (3) Others have advocated that Christ offered a second chance of salvation to those in hell. This interpretation, however, is in direct contradiction with other Scripture (see Luke 16:26; Heb. 9:27) and with the rest of 1 Peter and therefore must be rejected, leaving either of the first two views as the most likely interpretation.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 3:21 Peter compares salvation in the ark and baptism. In both, believers are saved through the waters of judgment, since baptism portrays salvation through judgment. Baptism saves you because it represents inward faith. Without faith, baptism does nothing more than remove dirt from the body. Faith is shown by one's appeal to God for the forgiveness of one's sins (for a good conscience). Furthermore, baptism "saves" only because it is grounded in the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. Christians have disagreed about the proper mode of water baptism from the early history of the church. Yet Christians have generally agreed that water baptism is an outward sign of the inward work of the Holy Spirit (compare John 3:5; Titus 3:5).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 4:1–2 Since therefore Christ suffered. Christ's suffering again functions as a model for readers. whoever has suffered in the flesh has ceased from sin. Two likely interpretations have been suggested: (1) This refers to the believer being dead to the power of sin, as a result of having died with Christ (compare Rom. 6:1–11). (2) More likely, it means that when believers are willing to endure suffering for the sake of Christ they show that their purpose in life is not to live for their own pleasures but according to the will of God and for his glory.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 4:6 the gospel was preached even to those who are dead. Some think that Peter offers a chance to accept Christ after death for those who rejected him while they were alive. This view contradicts both the clear teaching of Scripture (e.g., Luke 16:26; Heb. 9:27) and the immediate context. In this context, "those who are dead" are Christians to whom "the gospel was preached" when they were alive but who have since died. This fits with the meaning of "dead" in 1 Pet. 4:5. Believers will experience physical death (that is, they are judged in the flesh the way people are). But believers who have died live in the spirit the way God does. That is, they live in heaven now, and they will live at the resurrection when Christ returns.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 4:7 The end of all things is at hand does not mean Peter expected Christ to return soon. It means all the major events in God's great salvation plan were completed in the death, resurrection, and ascension of Christ and the outpouring of the Spirit at Pentecost. Therefore Christ's return could happen at any time.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 4:8–9 love covers a multitude of sins (Prov. 10:12). Where love is present, offenses are forgiven. hospitality. See note on Heb. 13:2.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 4:10 All believers have received at least one spiritual gift from God. They must use these gifts faithfully as stewards of God's grace (see 1 Corinthians 12–14).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 4:11 whoever speaks . . . whoever serves. Peter divides spiritual gifts generally into speaking and serving gifts (for more detailed lists, see Rom. 12:6–8; 1 Cor. 12:8–10, 28–30; and Eph. 4:11). Those who speak must not teach their own ideas but faithfully declare God’s words (oracles). Those who serve must not depend on their own strength but draw their strength from God, so that God alone may be glorified through Jesus Christ.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 4:12–5:11 Enduring Suffering. As the letter draws to a close, Peter reminds his readers that they should not be surprised when they suffer. God is using their suffering to purify the church. Therefore they should give themselves to God completely in their sufferings (4:12–19). Peter concludes with challenges to the leaders and the congregation to continue in the faith. They can do so knowing their final reward is certain (5:1–11).

FACT

The fiery trial. Peter warned his readers that they would soon endure a “fiery trial” (4:12). In other words, they should expect persecution. He probably wrote this letter not long before the Roman emperor Nero began a campaign of persecution against Christians in Rome.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 4:12–13 Beloved marks the beginning of a new section of the letter (compare 2:11). when his glory is revealed. When Christ returns.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 4:14 To be insulted because one belongs to Christ is to be blessed by God, because in such times the Spirit of glory, the Holy Spirit, rests upon believers in an especially powerful way.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 4:17–18 In the OT, household of God (literally, “house of God”) refers to the temple. Now God’s people are his temple (see 2:4–10). “Judgment beginning with God’s house” echoes Ezek. 9:1–6 and Mal. 3:1–4, where the Lord purifies his people. Judgment here is not punishment. It is purifying and cleansing. The suffering of God’s people makes them stronger (1 Pet. 1:6–7). what will be the outcome? If God’s people need purifying, then surely the judgment of those who do not obey the gospel will be much more severe.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 4:19 This verse summarizes the message of 1 Peter.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:1 The most common NT term for church leaders is elders (see notes on Acts 14:23; 1 Tim. 3:1). Apparently elders served as leaders in all the churches. Peter, who is an apostle (1 Pet. 1:1), also serves as a fellow elder and a witness of Christ's ministry, especially his sufferings. Peter often reminds his readers that suffering comes before glory (compare 1:6–7, 11; 2:19–20; 3:13–14; 4:13; 5:6, 10).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:2–3 Elders (v. 1) must shepherd the flock (compare John 21:16; Acts 20:28; Eph. 4:11). They must feed the people on God's word and care for their needs. They are also responsible for exercising oversight in building up the church. They must do so willingly, in obedience to God. They must serve eagerly, not for shameful gain (money). They must avoid being domineering. The goal is to be good examples to the flock.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:4 The chief Shepherd is Jesus Christ. When he comes again he will reward with glory every pastor who has served faithfully.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:5 You who are younger probably means younger members of the congregation. They are more likely to resist leadership. Peter cites Prov. 3:34 (see James 4:6).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:6 Mighty hand of God brings to mind the exodus (Ex. 32:11; Deut. 5:15; Dan. 9:15).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:7 casting all your anxieties on him. Worry is a form of pride. It takes concerns upon oneself instead of entrusting them to God, who cares for his people.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:8 Satan prowls around . . . seeking someone to devour. He hopes that believers will be terrified by hardship and persecutions, or that they will be deceived and fall into sin.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:9 Resist him. Christians need not fear the devil. The Lord has given them power to stand against him by being firm in your faith (compare Eph. 6:12–18). Suffering happens to believers everywhere (your brotherhood throughout the world).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:10 a little while (compare 1:6). This includes the period of time from Christ's ascension until his return. From God's perspective, one's time in this world is brief (see James 4:14; 2 Pet. 3:8). Four verbs (restore, confirm, strengthen, establish) remind believers that their salvation is sure in Christ.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:12–14 Concluding Words. The letter concludes with greetings and a final call to stand firm.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:12 By Silvanus . . . I have written. The sentence structure indicates that Silvanus delivered the letter. Silvanus is called "Silas" elsewhere (Acts 15:22; 16:19; 17:4; 2 Cor. 1:19; 1 Thess. 1:1). Peter describes the content of his letter as the true grace of God.

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:13 She who is at Babylon, who is . . . chosen. The Babylon of the OT was in ruins. By NT times "Babylon" symbolized a center of earthly power opposed to God (see Isaiah 13–14; Jeremiah 50–51; see also Revelation 17–18). In Peter's day that city was Rome. The OT background to "Babylon" reminds believers that they are "elect exiles" (1 Pet. 1:1) who will receive the promised inheritance. Mark is the same John Mark who traveled with Paul and Barnabas on their first missionary journey (see Acts 12:25; 13:5, 13; 15:36–39). Though he left Paul and Barnabas, Mark became a fine minister (Col. 4:10; 2 Tim. 4:11; Philem. 24). Peter would have known Mark for decades because the church met in his mother's home in Jerusalem (Acts 12:12). This verse also shows a close relationship between Peter and Mark (my son).

1 PETER—NOTE ON 5:14 kiss of love. See notes on 1 Cor. 16:20; 2 Cor. 13:12–13. Peace. See 1 Pet. 1:2 and note on John 14:27.

FACT

A kiss of love (5:14) was simply a kiss on the cheek. It was usually practiced among family members. Both Peter and Paul encouraged believers to greet one another in this fashion because it reminded them that they were brothers and sisters in Christ. Such a greeting is still common in some parts of the world today.

Author, Date, and Recipients

Peter identifies himself as an "apostle of Jesus Christ" (1:1). He specifically mentions that he was an eyewitness of the transfiguration (1:16–18; see Matt. 17:1–8). Peter probably wrote this letter from prison in Rome (see 2 Pet. 1:12–15) not too long before his death by execution, sometime during A.D. 64–67. It is impossible to identify with certainty the churches Peter addresses. He may have been writing to the churches of Asia Minor, because Peter mentions that this is his second letter to these same people (3:1; see 1 Pet. 1:1–2). (On the similarities between 2 Peter 2 and Jude, see Introduction to Jude.)

Theme

God's grace in Christ truly transforms and empowers Christians to live righteously, despite opposition. This grace, introduced in 1:2–4, serves as the foundation for the whole book. The indwelling Holy Spirit produces virtuous qualities in followers of Christ (1:8–12). This results in fruitful lives.

Purpose and Occasion

Peter writes his brief, final reminder to the churches so that his readers will, by God's grace, live in a way that is pleasing to God. In doing so, Peter must also combat the false teachers who were apparently exerting pressure on the churches to depart from the true knowledge of Christ (see esp. ch. 2). The false teaching is not only a theological challenge but also a moral one, promoting some form of sexual permissiveness as a legitimate Christian lifestyle.

While the false teaching can be described based on what Peter writes, it is historically impossible to identify who the false teachers were. For example, there is no clear historical evidence that these teachers were Gnostics.

Second Peter deals with serious issues, but it is also filled with famous proverbs and wise sayings, as well as vivid poetry and imagery.

Key Themes

1. God, through his grace in Jesus Christ, has enabled Christians to partake of the divine nature (1:2–4).
2. God's grace results in godliness (1:5–15).
3. The revelation of truth in Christ and in Scripture is sure because it is from God and not from man (1:16–21).
4. False teachers are handed over for destruction at the hand of God (2:1–10).
5. False teachers are ethically bankrupt (2:11–22).
6. Believers must endure in the face of opposition, knowing that they are living in the last days (3:1–13).
7. The Lord is patient with his creation, but someday he will suddenly return to judge it (3:8–10).
8. God rescues the righteous (2:7–9; 3:13–18).

The Global Message of 2 Peter

Peter writes his second letter to combat false teaching and to remind his readers that the grace of God truly transforms sinners, enabling them to walk in righteousness. For a contemporary world of moral chaos and false teachings of various kinds, 2 Peter has forceful relevance.

Second Peter and Redemptive History

Peter does not quote the Old Testament to the degree that he did in his first letter. Yet his second letter shows pervasive awareness of the history of redemption that God has been orchestrating on behalf of his people down through the ages.

Peter speaks, for example, of the Old Testament prophets and their hope in the coming "day of the Lord" (2 Pet. 1:19–21; 3:1–13). He also refers numerous times to the promises God has made (1:4; 3:4, 9, 13). More specifically, the way Peter speaks of Christ throughout this letter makes clear that he views Christ as the fulfillment of the Old Testament prophetic hope and the divine promises. Peter speaks, for example, of the transfiguration, where he saw with his own eyes "the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ" (1:16). There God the Father spoke his blessing over God the Son—his "beloved Son" (1:17). Peter is aware that his own life and ministry come in the immediate wake of the high point of all of human history: the coming of God's Son into the world, for the sake of the world.

A particular emphasis in 2 Peter is the second coming of the Lord. Peter seems to be dealing with those who mock the reality of Christ's return to earth in judgment. "They will say, 'Where is the promise of his coming?'" (2 Pet. 3:4). Peter explains that God is not delaying the end of history out of reluctance or slowness, but rather out of patience, desiring all people everywhere to be saved (3:9–10, 15). The great heart of God is "that all should reach repentance" (3:9).

Universal Themes in 2 Peter

Transforming grace. Peter opens and closes this letter with the theme of God's transforming grace (2 Pet. 1:3–9; 3:18): "His divine power has granted to us all things that pertain to life and godliness, through the knowledge of him who called us to his own glory and excellence” (1:3). After listing virtues that believers should cultivate in light of God’s great promises, Peter reminds his readers that the absence of these virtues indicates forgetfulness that one’s sins have been forgiven (1:9). As we remember and enjoy forgiveness of sins, we develop godly virtues. We “grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ” (3:18). Wherever believers find themselves in their Christian development, they never outgrow their dependence upon the grace of God.

The danger of false teaching. Our growth in godliness also means that we develop an ever greater appreciation for true doctrine. Indeed, in describing false teachers, Peter continually connects their error with the godlessness it produces. This is seen especially in sexual immorality. In the opening verses of chapter 2, for example, Peter says, “there will be false teachers among you, who will secretly bring in destructive heresies” (2 Pet. 2:1), then he goes on to say that “many will follow their sensuality” (2:2). Teaching and conduct, word and deed, are naturally bound together. The eternal truths of the Bible are to be cherished and guarded by all God’s people in the church today, not simply for the sake of truth but for the sake of their souls.

The Global Message of 2 Peter for Today

Peter’s second epistle engages the global church at a fundamental level. Specific issues confronting the church and the world today—issues such as racial reconciliation, human rights, the dignity of life, and conflict resolution— are not addressed at an explicit level. And yet 2 Peter treats the foundational issues that underlie current manifestations of human sinfulness. Three such fundamental issues occur throughout 2 Peter: the nature of godliness, the danger of false teaching, and the hope of Christ’s second coming.

Godly living. Godliness in 2 Peter is described as something that requires the utmost effort, the most strenuous and ardent devotion. Yet this epistle also emphasizes that the cultivation of godliness is by divine grace. Peter tells us to “make every effort” (2 Pet. 1:15), yet also that God’s “divine power has granted to us all things that pertain to life and godliness” (1:3). The church today must ever seek to hold these two together—human effort and divine provision, our work and God’s grace. For godly living is crucial to the health of the church.

False teaching. Peter addresses false teaching head-on and rebukes it in the most authoritative way possible. What is especially striking, as noted above, is the way Peter connects false teaching to immorality. False teaching does not simply encourage intellectual error; it also corrupts the soul. This reminds the global church of the importance of sound doctrine. It also reminds the church that sound doctrine is not an end in itself but is important for the sake of godly living and the protection of the church’s very life.

Christ’s second coming. Finally, Christians take refuge in the sure hope of Christ’s triumphant return. Upon his resurrection and ascension, Christ took his seat at God’s right hand and even now reigns victoriously over evil, death, hell, and Satan. Yet his righteous reign currently overlaps with “the present evil age” (Gal. 1:4). One day, however, Christ will come again and his triumph will be complete. On behalf of his people he will conquer once and for all sickness and death, anguish and dismay, sin and temptation. As the church today is embattled on countless fronts against the results of the fall—including the sin we see within us—we press on in the sure hope that Christ will come again to establish “new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells” (2 Pet. 3:13).

Greeting

2 PETER 1 [†]Simeon [1] Peter, a servant [2] and apostle of Jesus Christ,

To those who have obtained [a] a faith of equal standing with ours [b] by the righteousness of our [c] God and Savior Jesus Christ:

[2][†] [d] May grace and peace be multiplied to you [e] in the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord.

Confirm Your Calling and Election

[3][†]His divine power has granted to us all things that pertain to life and godliness, through the knowledge of him [f] who called us to [3] his own glory and excellence, [4] [4][†]by which he has granted to us his precious and very great promises, so that through them you may become [g] partakers of the divine nature, [h] having escaped from the corruption that is in the world because of sinful desire. [5][†]For this very reason, make every effort to supplement your faith [i] with virtue, [5] and virtue [j] with knowledge, [6][†]and knowledge with self-control, and self-control [k] with steadfastness, and steadfastness with godliness, [7]and godliness [l] with brotherly affection, and brotherly affection [m] with love. [8]For if these qualities [6] are yours and are increasing, they keep you from being ineffective or [n] unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. [9][†]For whoever lacks these qualities is so nearsighted that he [o] is blind, having forgotten that he was [p] cleansed from his former sins. [10][†]Therefore, brothers, [7] be all the more diligent to confirm your calling and [q] election, for if you practice these qualities [r] you will never fall. [11][†]For in this way there will be richly provided for you [s] an entrance into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

[12][†]Therefore I intend [t] always to remind you of these qualities, though you know them and are established in [u] the truth that you have. [13]I think it right, as long as I am in this [v] body, [8] [w] to stir you up by way of reminder, [14][†] [x] since I know that the putting off of my body will be soon, [y] as our Lord Jesus Christ made clear to me. [15]And I will make every effort so that after my departure you may be able at any time to recall these things.

Christ’s Glory and the Prophetic Word

[16][†]For we did not follow [z]cleverly devised [a]myths when we made known to you [b]the power and [c]coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but [d]we were eyewitnesses of his majesty. [17][†]For when he received honor and glory from God the Father, and the voice was borne to him by the Majestic Glory, [e]“This is my beloved Son, [9] with whom I am well pleased,” [18][†]we ourselves heard this very voice borne from heaven, for we were with him on [f]the holy mountain. [19][†]And [g]we have the prophetic word more fully confirmed, to which you will do well to pay attention [h]as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until [i]the day [j]dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts, [20][†]knowing this first of all, that no prophecy of Scripture comes from someone’s own interpretation. [21][†]For [k]no prophecy was ever produced by the will of man, but men spoke from God [l]as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit.

False Prophets and Teachers

2 PETER 2 [†]But [m]false prophets also arose among the people, [n]just as there will be false teachers among you, who will [o]secretly bring in destructive heresies, even denying the Master [p]who bought them, bringing upon themselves swift destruction. [2][†]And many will follow their sensuality, and because of them the way of truth [q]will be blasphemed. [3]And [r]in their greed they will exploit you [s]with false words. [t]Their condemnation from long ago is not idle, and their destruction is not asleep.

[4][†]For if God did not spare [u]angels when they sinned, but [v]cast them into hell [1] and committed them to chains [2] of gloomy darkness [w]to be kept until the judgment; [5][†]if he did not spare the ancient world, but [x]preserved Noah, a herald of righteousness, with seven others, when he brought [y]a flood upon the world of the ungodly; [6][†]if by [z]turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to ashes he condemned them to extinction, [a]making them an example of [b]what is going to happen to the ungodly; [3] [7][†]and [c]if he rescued righteous Lot, greatly distressed by the sensual conduct of the wicked [8](for as that righteous man lived among them day after day, [d]he was tormenting his righteous soul over their lawless deeds that he saw and heard); [9][†]then [e]the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trials, [4] and to keep the unrighteous under punishment until the day of judgment, [10][†]and especially [f]those who indulge [5] in the lust of defiling passion and [g]despise authority.

Bold and willful, they do not tremble [g]as they blaspheme the glorious ones, [11] [h]whereas angels, though greater in might and power, do not pronounce a blasphemous judgment against them before the Lord. [12][†] [i]But these, like irrational animals, [j]creatures of instinct, born to be caught and destroyed, blaspheming about matters of which they are ignorant, will also be destroyed in their destruction, [13]suffering wrong as [k]the wage for their wrongdoing. They count it pleasure [l]to revel in the daytime. They are blots and blemishes, reveling in their deceptions, [6] while [m]they feast with you. [14][†]They have eyes full of adultery, [n]insatiable for sin. They entice unsteady souls. They have hearts [o]trained in greed. [p]Accursed children! [15][†]Forsaking the right way, [q]they have gone astray. They have followed [r]the way of Balaam, the son of Beor, who loved [s]gain from wrongdoing, [16]but was rebuked for his own transgression; [t]a speechless donkey spoke with human voice and restrained the prophet’s madness.

[17][†] [u]These are waterless springs and mists driven by a storm. [v]For them the gloom of utter darkness has been reserved. [18][†]For, [w]speaking loud boasts of folly, they entice by sensual passions of the flesh those who are barely [x]escaping from those who live in error. [19]They promise them [y]freedom, [z]but they themselves are slaves [7] of corruption. For whatever overcomes a person, to that he is enslaved. [20][†]For if, [a]after they have escaped the defilements of the world [b]through the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they are again entangled in them and overcome, [c]the last state has become worse for them than the first. [21]For [d]it would have been better for them never to have known the way of righteousness than after knowing it to turn back from [e]the holy commandment delivered to them. [22]What the true proverb says has happened to them: “The [f]dog returns to its own vomit, and the sow, after washing herself, returns to wallow in the mire.”

The Day of the Lord Will Come

2 PETER 3 [†]This is now the second letter that I am writing to you, beloved. In both of them [g] I am stirring up your sincere mind by way of reminder, 2[†] [h] that you should remember the predictions of [i] the holy prophets and the commandment of the Lord and Savior through your apostles, 3[†]knowing this first of all, that scoffers will come [j] in the last days with scoffing, [k] following their own sinful desires. 4[†] [l] They will say, “Where is the promise of [m] his coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all things are continuing as they were from the beginning of creation.” 5For they deliberately overlook this fact, that the heavens existed long ago, and the earth [n] was formed out of water and through water [o] by the word of God, 6and that by means of these the world that then existed [p] was deluged with water and [q] perished. 7[†]But by the same word [r] the heavens and earth that now exist are stored up for fire, being kept until the day of judgment and [s] destruction of the ungodly.

8[†]But do not overlook this one fact, beloved, that with the Lord one day is as a thousand years, and [t] a thousand years as one day. 9 [u] The Lord is not slow to fulfill his promise [v] as some count slowness, but [w] is patient toward you, [1] [x] not wishing that any should perish, but [y] that all should reach repentance. 10[†]But [z] the day of the Lord will come like a thief, and then [a] the heavens will pass away with a roar, and [b] the heavenly bodies [2] will be burned up and dissolved, and the earth and the works that are done on it will be exposed. [3]

11Since all these things are thus to be dissolved, [c] what sort of people ought you to be in lives of holiness and godliness, 12[†] [d] waiting for and hastening the coming of the day of God, because of which the heavens will be set on fire and dissolved, and [e] the heavenly bodies will melt as they burn! 13[†]But according to his promise we are waiting for [f] new heavens and a new earth [g] in which righteousness dwells.

Final Words

14[†] [h] Therefore, beloved, since you are waiting for these, be diligent to be found by him [i] without spot or [j] blemish, and [k] at peace. 15[†]And count

[l]the patience of our Lord as salvation, just as [m]our beloved brother Paul also wrote to you [n]according to the wisdom given him, 16[†]as he does in all his letters when he speaks in them of these matters. [o]There are some things in them that are hard to understand, which the ignorant and unstable twist to their own destruction, [p]as they do the other Scriptures. 17[†]You therefore, beloved, [q]knowing this beforehand, [r]take care that you are not carried away with the error of lawless people and lose your own stability. 18But [s]grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. [t]To him be the glory both now and to the day of [u]eternity. Amen.

Study Notes for 2 Peter

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:1–2 Initial Greeting. Peter's greeting is short and to the point. He identifies himself and his audience, and offers a blessing.

FACT

Facing death. As Peter wrote this second letter, apparently he knew that he would die soon (1:14). He was probably martyred during the persecution of Christians following the Great Fire of Rome in A.D. 64. See also 1 Pet. 4:12.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:1 Simeon. A Hebrew spelling of Simon. Peter, as an apostle of Jesus Christ, writes to those who have a faith of equal standing. All believers share equal privileges before God. This standing was accomplished by the righteousness of our God and Savior Jesus Christ. "Righteousness" refers here to God's saving righteousness. Jesus is called "God and Savior." This is one of the clearest NT statements about Christ's deity (compare Titus 2:13; see also chart).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:2 In his initial blessing of his readers, Peter mentions a common theme in the letter: true knowledge of God and of Jesus. This verse also points to the deity of Christ (see note on v. 1).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:3–11 God's Grace in Christ Is the Source of Godly Living. In this first main section, Peter emphasizes that God's grace results in godliness.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:3 called us to his own glory and excellence. Believers are called to live in harmony with God's moral character. On God's "glory," see note on John 1:14; compare Rev. 21:23. Greek writers used the word "excellence" to describe the sum total of all desirable character qualities.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:4 partakers of the divine nature. Believers never become part of God, yet they share in his nature as they become increasingly like him. The great promises include the promises Peter identifies in his Pentecost sermon in Acts 2:14–41. The outpouring of the Holy Spirit in new power is particularly important. Other promises include likeness to God (2 Pet. 1:4; see 1 John 3:2), Christ's return (2 Pet. 3:4), and eternal life in heaven (1 Pet. 1:4).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:5 supplement your faith. Peter encourages Christians to confess faith in Christ and to live as he taught. All the virtues listed in vv. 5–7 are results of faith.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:6 Godliness means "piety, devotion to God" (also in vv. 3, 7; 3:11; see 2 Tim. 3:5).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:9 The one who lacks these qualities (vv. 5–7) is spiritually blind and has forgotten that he was cleansed from his sins. Perhaps this describes a person whose "cleansing" was merely external and did not come from a truly changed heart. It could also describe a genuine Christian who has fallen into serious sin.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:10 Christians should be diligent to confirm their calling and election. God calls believers to faith through the gospel (2 Thess. 2:14), but he has also chosen (elected) them "before the foundation of the world" (Eph. 1:4). Growing in the Christlike virtues mentioned in 2 Pet. 1:5–7 will give believers increasing confidence that God really did call them and elect them to salvation. Those who practice these qualities . . . will never fall, probably meaning apostasy (falling away from the faith). Peter's wording does not imply that true followers of Christ can ever apostatize; those who do so were never really "called," "elected," or born again (see notes on John 6:39; 6:40; 10:26–29; 1 Thess. 1:4; Heb. 6:4–8).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:11 in this way. That is, by doing the things Peter mentions in vv. 5–10. richly provided. Some interpreters think "richly" indicates degrees of blessing and reward in this life and in heaven. Others think that eternal life is the reward in view.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:12–21 Peter's Reminder to the Churches. Peter contrasts the truth about Christ and the falsehood of man-made myths. In light of this certain truth, the church should focus on living faithfully.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:14 as our Lord Jesus Christ made clear to me. It seems that Peter has recently become aware of how soon he will be martyred. He may also be thinking about what Jesus told him in John 21:18–19.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:16 cleverly devised myths. "Myth" here means "a story without basis in fact." The gospel of Christ was no myth. The apostles were eyewitnesses of his majesty at the transfiguration. Peter knew, at that point, that Christ had come in power.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:17 Majestic Glory. A name for God the Father that emphasizes the power of his presence (see Ex. 33:12–23; 34:29–35; 2 Cor. 3:12–18). beloved Son. Compare Ps. 2:7; Matt. 3:17; Mark 1:11; Luke 3:22.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:18 we ourselves heard. Peter emphasizes that he and James and John were eyewitnesses to the transfiguration (Matt. 17:1–8).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:19 the prophetic word more fully confirmed. Some have understood this to mean that Peter's experience of the Transfiguration provides confirmation of OT prophecy, making the already-sure prophecy of the OT even more sure as confirmed by the Transfiguration. Others have understood "more fully confirmed" to mean that the prophetic writings of the OT are even "more sure" than Peter's experience at the Transfiguration. The contrast between "we have" and "you will do well" seems to imply that the interpretation of the apostles ("we") is to be regarded as authoritative for the church ("you"). Day dawns and morning star both refer to the day of final judgment and salvation (Isa. 13:9; Joel 1:15; Amos 5:20). Jesus' second coming will also rise in your hearts. Christ's presence will purify the hearts of his people.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:20 No prophecy of Scripture comes from someone's own interpretation, that is, from someone's individual understanding of events, visions, or other things. Rather, "all prophecy of Scripture" came about from the Holy Spirit's leading (v. 21). Peter reassures his readers that the Holy Spirit inspired all the OT Scriptures that pointed to Christ. Therefore they should pay close attention to them (v. 19).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 1:21 No biblical prophecy was ever produced merely because someone wanted to prophesy (by the will of man). God gave the words of Scripture through men who “spoke” as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit worked within the OT prophets and through their lives and circumstances as they prophesied. This key verse shows that the Holy Spirit inspired Scripture. At the same time, men spoke God’s words, using their own personalities, knowledge, background, and literary style. The exact way this was accomplished remains a mystery. What is true of OT prophecy is true of “all Scripture” (see 2 Tim. 3:16 and note).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:1–22 Evaluation of False Teachers. In this third main section of his letter, Peter criticizes the false teachers, using biblical illustrations to do so.

FACT

What is a “heresy”? The word “heresy” refers to any doctrine that contradicts the teaching of Scripture. The heresy addressed in 2 Peter also involved sexual permissiveness, greed, and dishonesty. Wrong doctrine often leads to sinful moral choices.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:1 The false teachers will even deny the truth about the Master (Jesus Christ) who bought them. They claim to be redeemed because they were part of the church, but their beliefs and behavior show that they are not truly believers.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:2 Their false teaching results in sensuality, which means a lack of self-constraint or an abandonment to immoral behavior. Most often the word refers to sexual sin.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:4–10a Peter turns to a detailed argument proving God’s certain judgment on the false teachers. Four times he uses a lesser-to-greater method of argument (if A is true, how much more is B also true). His analogies in vv. 4–8 amount to minor premises (A’s) leading to the major premise (B) of vv. 9–10a.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:4 First minor premise: if God did not spare angels. If (A) God has eternally condemned the sinful angels, then (B) how much more certainly will he condemn the false teachers and their followers (major premise, vv. 9b–10a). (See note on Jude 6.)

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:5 Second minor premise: if (A) he did not spare the ancient world, but preserved Noah . . . with seven others, then (B) will he not even more certainly judge the false teachers (major premise, vv. 9b–10a) while at the same time preserving the godly (major premise, v. 9a). Christians may be a small minority, but God will protect them.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:6 Third minor premise: If (A) God condemned Sodom and Gomorrah, then (B) how much more certain it is that the same thing will happen to the ungodly who reject the gospel.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:7–8 Fourth minor premise: if (A) God rescued righteous Lot, who was greatly distressed and even tormented by the conduct of the wicked in Sodom (v. 6), then (B) how much more will he "rescue the godly" (major premise, v. 9a).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:9–10a Having stated his minor premises, Peter moves now to his major premise (see note on vv. 4–10a): "If" vv. 4–8 are true, then how much more true are vv. 9–10a. God indeed knows how to rescue the godly from trials and will certainly keep the unrighteous under punishment until the day of judgment. He will punish them in a partial, preliminary way before the final day of judgment (see Luke 16:23–24; Heb. 9:27). This applies especially to those who engage in defiling passion and who despise authority—probably a reference to false teachers (see 2 Pet. 2:12, 18; 3:3; Jude 8, 16, 18).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:10b–11 The false teachers blaspheme the glorious ones, probably evil angels (v. 11; compare Jude 8–9). They act as if these demonic forces have no power. They do not believe that their willful sins open them to demonic attack.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:12–13 The false teachers behave in irrational ways. They act like . . . animals. They do not use reason or truth, only instinct. Yet they behave like this while claiming to be Christians. In fact, they feast with you, probably a reference to participating in the Lord's Supper.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:14 Their eyes desire adultery with nearly every woman they meet. insatiable for sin. Their appetite for sin is never satisfied. Even worse, they entice ("lure with bait") unsteady people to sin with them. Accursed children! Peter assures his readers the false teachers will face God's judgment.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:15–16 They have followed the way of Balaam (see Numbers 22–24). They spend their lives gaining things at other people's expense. But God can use even a donkey to restrain someone who is following the way of madness.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:17 The false teachers are waterless springs and mists driven by the wind. They appear to be beneficial, but they are empty. The gloom of utter darkness has been reserved for them, as for the evil angels (v. 4) and the unrighteous (v. 9).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:18 entice by sensual passions . . . those who are barely escaping. The false teachers tell new Christians they can do whatever they wish sexually without harm.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 2:20–22 It would have been better for these false teachers never to have escaped the world in the first place. They had the knowledge of . . . Christ. They then returned to a life of sin and darkness. It is better not to have known about the holy commandment than to turn away from Christ. Those who turn away after falsely confessing the Christian faith often do not return to Christ. Their knowledge and experience of the Christian life also make them more accountable before God (compare Luke 12:47–48). It is likely that Peter refers to those who appeared to be Christians but then showed that they never truly belonged to Christ (see notes on John 15:2; 1 John 2:19; contrast John 10:27–29; Phil. 1:6). Those who thus turn back to a life of sin show their true character.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:1–13 The Day of the Lord Will Surely Come. Peter turns his attention to explaining the Lord's promised return. Apparently he is responding to a disagreement in the church concerning the timing of the return.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:1 second letter. Almost certainly 1 Peter was the earlier letter. Peter calls his readers beloved four times in this chapter (also 2 Pet. 3:8, 14, 17).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:2 remember. Peter especially has in mind the second coming.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:3 last days. Peter and the rest of the NT authors teach that the "last days" have already arrived (see note on Acts 2:17).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:4–6 Scoffers (v. 3) will question the biblical promise of the Lord's coming. Fathers refers to the OT patriarchs. But these scoffers deliberately overlook (consciously, willfully ignore) the fact that God intervenes in his creation whenever he desires. For example, he created the heavens and the earth with the word of his mouth (Gen. 1:3–31; Ps. 33:6; Heb. 11:3). He also judged the earth with water and it perished (Genesis 6–9).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:7 stored up for fire. The day of judgment is coming for scoffers.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:8–9 any should perish. See note on 1 Tim. 2:4. Christians long for Christ's return and the defeat of all evil. Yet while the present period of history lasts, people may still turn to God in faith.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:10 the day of the Lord. God's judgment will not be delayed forever. When Christ returns it will be sudden and without warning, like a thief. The heavens (the sky) will pass away (compare Ps. 102:25–26; Rev. 6:14) and the heavenly bodies (stars, etc.) will be burned up and dissolved. There will be no place to hide (compare Rev. 6:15–16). Then the earth and every person's works on the earth will be exposed to God's judgment.

FACT

Like a thief in the night. Peter says the return of Christ at the end of time will be unexpected, "like a thief" (3:10). Several other NT passages describe the Lord's return in this same way (see Matt. 24:43; 1 Thess. 5:2; Rev. 3:3). Christ's return will be a welcome surprise, however, for his true disciples.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:12 Hastening the coming of the day of God suggests that, by living holy lives, Christians can actually affect the time of the Lord's return. That does not mean, of course, that the Lord has not determined already when Jesus will return (see Matt. 24:36; Acts 17:31). But when God set that day, he also ordained that it would happen after all of his purposes in this present age had been accomplished through his human agents.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:13 The hope of Christians ultimately depends on God's promise that God will bring about a new heavens and a new earth (see Isa. 65:17; Rev. 21:1–22:5). This will be the eternal home of the righteous. "New" could mean "newly created," but it probably means "renewed, made new."

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:14–18 Concluding Encouragements. To obtain their final reward, believers must live a godly life and resist the immorality promoted by the false teachers (see 1:5–11).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:14 In light of the Lord's return, Christians must be diligent to be without spot or blemish. They must be doctrinally and morally pure. This is in strong contrast to the spiritual condition of the wicked (2:10b–22, especially v. 22).

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:15–16 The delay of Christ's return should be understood as his patience leading people to salvation (see v. 9; Rom. 2:4). The apostle Paul also wrote to these same readers earlier. Apparently the false teachers used a twisted version of Paul's gospel of freedom (see 2 Pet. 2:19; also Rom. 8:1–5; 2 Cor. 3:1–18; Gal. 5:1–6) to tempt some of them into sin.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:16 In all his letters shows awareness of some kind of collection of Paul's letters. some things . . . hard to understand. Correctly understanding some hard passages of Scripture requires much effort and God-given wisdom. The ignorant and unstable twist Paul's teachings as they do the other Scriptures. This implies that Paul's writings were considered Scripture in NT times, having the same level of divine authority as the OT Scripture. The Greek word translated "Scriptures" occurs 51 times in the NT. Almost every time it refers to the OT Scripture. Twice (here and 1 Tim. 5:18) some NT writings are also included. This indicates that NT books written or authorized by Christ's apostles were recognized to be God's Word at a very early date.

2 PETER—NOTE ON 3:17–18 knowing this beforehand. The readers have now been informed that the false teachers were distorting Paul's teaching. Paul advocates neither sin nor lawlessness, so they should not be carried away by the false teaching, even if it appeals to Paul as the authority. Instead they should grow in Christ's grace and knowledge.

Author, Date, and Recipients

John the son of Zebedee probably wrote his three NT letters no later than the 90s A.D. He wrote from Ephesus (in present-day western Turkey), perhaps to churches like those mentioned in Rev. 2:8–3:22. John also wrote the Fourth Gospel and the book of Revelation.

Theme of 1 John

First John calls readers back to the three basics of Christian life: true doctrine, obedient living, and faithful devotion. Because "God is light" (1:5), Christ's followers overcome wicked people who oppose them. God's Son lives in and among them. He is greater than the spirit of "the antichrist" now in the world (4:3–4). Those who believe in the Son of God have assurance of eternal life (5:13).

Theme of 2 John

The focus of 2 John is living in God's love according to the truth of Jesus Christ. This love extends not only to God but to others as well. It is also wise; it does not "go on ahead" of biblical revelation (v. 9). It does not aid enemies of the gospel (vv. 10–11). Instead, Christ's followers "walk according to his commandments" (v. 6). Through faith they "win a full reward" (v. 8).

Theme of 3 John

The theme of 3 John is faithfulness despite opposition. The man who received the letter, Gaius, faces a troublemaker named Diotrephes. By "walking in the truth" (vv. 3, 4), Christians can live out the message that John teaches in all his letters.

The Setting of 1 John

c. A.D. 85

John likely wrote 1 John from Ephesus, where apparently he had relocated near the time of the fall of Jerusalem to the Romans in A.D. 70. The letter was probably intended to be read by the church in Ephesus and perhaps also by other churches in the surrounding cities. Ephesus was a wealthy and highly influential port city in the Roman province of Asia, and was renowned for its temple of Artemis (Diana).

Theological Themes of 1 John

God is light (1:5; 2:8)	God is love (4:8, 16, 19)
Christians were spiritually dead: then, they “passed out of death into life” (3:14)	God loved his people and sent Jesus to die for them (3:16; 4:10, 14, 19; 5:11)

Christians have been born of God (2:29; 3:9; 4:7; 5:1, 4, 18)	God gave Christians life (3:14; 4:9; 5:11, 16)
God gave Christians the Spirit (2:20, 27; 3:24; 4:13) along with understanding (5:20)	Christians are of/from God/the truth (3:10, 19; 4:4, 6; 5:19)
God abides in Christians, and his Word abides in them (2:14, 24, 27; 3:9, 24; 4:12, 13, 15, 16)	Christians abide in God, and thus abide in the light (2:5, 6, 27, 28; 3:6, 24; 4:13, 16)
Christians know God (2:13, 14; 4:6, 7), they know the Father (2:13; 5:20), they know Jesus (1:3; 2:3), and they know the Spirit (4:2, 6)	Christians love God (2:5; 4:21; 5:2, 3)
Because they have been born again, have received the Spirit, abide in God as God abides in them, and know and love God, Christians bear observable fruit. They: • practice truth/righteousness (1:6; 2:29; 3:7, 10) • walk in the light/as he walked (1:7; 2:6) • confess sins and have forgiveness (1:9; 2:12) • keep/obey his commandments/Word (2:3, 5; 3:22, 24; 5:2, 3) • love one another/the brothers (2:10; 3:10, 11, 14, 16, 18, 23; 4:7, 11, 21) • overcome the evil one/the world (2:13, 14; 4:4; 5:4) • do the will of God/cannot keep on sinning (2:17; 3:9, 22) • confess the Son/believe in Jesus (2:23; 3:23; 4:2, 15; 5:1, 4, 13)

The Global Message of 1–3 John

The letters of John address the global church head-on with strong words that confront half-hearted Christian living and confused thinking about Christ. These letters tell us that everyone is walking in either light or darkness, love or hatred, truth or falsehood. John says that either we confess Jesus as the Son of God who has come in the flesh, or we lend our support to the antichrist, who denies this. There is no middle ground. Above all, these epistles issue a resounding call to believers to walk in love, as they have been loved.

Redemptive History and 1–3 John

The opening words of 1 John place this letter in the flow of redemptive history: "That which was from the beginning" (1 John 1:1). As in the first verse of his Gospel account (John 1:1), John is likely drawing here on Genesis 1:1, which tells us that, "In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth." John's point in opening his first epistle this way is to teach that Jesus Christ has existed eternally. He did not come into being at the incarnation.

At the same time, something decisively new did happen at the incarnation—"the life was made manifest, and we have seen it" (1 John 1:2). The second person of the Trinity came into the history of this world as a man. John therefore emphasizes in his first verse not only that Jesus was preexistent but also that he entered into world history as a real human being. God did not reveal his salvation to us through visions or dreams or subjective feelings, but through a real man in real history—that "which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we looked upon and have touched with our hands" (1:1). Indeed, confessing the humanity of Jesus is seen as one of the key marks of authentic faith throughout John's letters (1 John 4:1–3; 2 John 7).

Universal Themes in 1–3 John

John's letters bring together powerfully the three aspects of authentic Christian living, whatever its cultural expression: true doctrine (mind), selfless love (heart), and obedient action (will).

Mind. John says clearly that certain key truths must be confessed by those who claim to be true believers. If these truths are denied, it is proof that such a person does not know and love God. John therefore speaks not only broadly of the truth and of the importance of acknowledging the truth (1 John 2:21; 2 John 1–2, 9; 3 John 3–4) but also of specific truths that must be embraced. True Christians believe, for example, that they are sinners (1 John 1:8, 10), that Jesus is the Christ (2:22; 5:1), and that Jesus came in the flesh (4:1–3; 2 John 7).

Heart. Authentic Christianity is not only a matter of what we believe but also of how we love. John speaks extensively in his letters of the central significance of love. True Christians love God (1 John 4:20; 5:2, 10) and love other believers (2:10; 3:11, 14, 18; 4:7). Indeed, the two must go together, for "whoever loves God must also love his brother" (4:21). And both kinds of human love—the vertical and the horizontal, as we may describe them—are rooted in an even greater love: God's love for us (3:16; 4:7, 19).

Will. Finally, vibrant Christian living is not only a matter of what we believe and what we love but also of what we do. Indeed, authentic love must express itself outwardly. "Little children, let us not love in word or talk but in deed and in truth" (1 John 3:18). John is insistent that to confess orthodox doctrine with the lips while neglecting to obey God's commands is proof that one has not been born of God (2:3–4; 3:22–24; 5:2–3; 2 John 6).

The Global Message of 1–3 John for Today

John's three letters hold deep significance for global Christianity. Two themes in John's letters are particularly relevant—Christ, the central person of Christianity; and love, the central action of Christianity.

Christ among the world religions. In some parts of the world, especially in the West, pluralism reigns. Sincerity seems to count more than truth. In such contexts, our belief that Jesus Christ is the one true way of salvation must not be compromised. John makes clear that unyielding loyalty to the singular supremacy of Christ as the Son of God is nonnegotiable for the Christian church (1 John 2:22–23; 4:1–3; 5:1, 10, 13).

In other parts of the world, people do not have trouble believing that only one religion is the true religion, but they adhere to some worldview other than Christianity. Here, too, the biblical Christ must be lifted up and shown to be the Son of God who came into the world in flesh and blood to provide atonement for sins. In him is life itself (1 John 5:11–12). Jesus is not one great prophet among many, as Islam teaches. He is not merely a uniquely enlightened spiritual teacher, as Buddhism says. Jesus is not a wise sage or a personal form of the gods Brahman or Vishnu, as different forms of Hinduism might teach. Only in Christ is restoration and life found. “Whoever has the Son has life” (5:12).

Love above all else. The primacy of love is upheld throughout the New Testament. Yet nowhere is love described so clearly as central to Christian living as in John’s letters. Twenty percent of the New Testament references to “love” are found in 1–3 John. According to John, love is not simply a trait of Christian living; it is definitive of Christian living. “Anyone who does not love does not know God, because God is love” (1 John 4:8).

Such love is expressed in practical deeds of kindness and generosity toward fellow believers. John emphasizes that because of what Christ has done for us, we are compelled gladly to lay down our lives for others (1 John 3:16–18). We are to love not “in word or talk but in deed and in truth” (3:18).

Massive needs present themselves around the world. For example, due to poor stewardship of resources, political corruption, and other factors, water and food are often not available for those who need it most, such as young children. Christ’s disciples are called to address such needs, especially as they arise among fellow Christians. The same can be said for many other global concerns—systemic injustice, debilitating disease, job loss, poverty, various assaults on the dignity of human life, modern slavery, and so on. As the global church lifts its eyes to consider the needs confronting fellow believers around the world, neglect of such need, says John, is proof that God’s love does not abide in us (1 John 3:17).

The Word of Life

1 JOHN 1 [†] [a]That which was [b]from the beginning, [c]which we have heard, [d]which we have seen with our eyes, [e]which we looked upon and [f]have touched with our hands, concerning the word of life— [2][†] [g]the life [h]was made manifest, and we have seen it, and [i]testify to it and proclaim to you the eternal life, [a]which was with the Father and [h]was made manifest to us — [3][†] [c]that which we have seen and heard we proclaim also to you, so that you too may have fellowship with us; and indeed [j]our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ. [4][†]And we are writing these things so [k]that our [1] joy may be complete.

Walking in the Light

[5][†] [l]This is the message we have heard from him and proclaim to you, that [m]God is light, and in him is no darkness at all. [6][†] [n]If we say we have fellowship with him while we walk in darkness, we lie and [o]do not practice the truth. [7][†]But [p]if we walk in the light, [q]as he is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and [r]the blood of Jesus his Son cleanses us from all sin. [8][†] [s]If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and [t]the truth is not in us. [9][†] [u]If we confess our sins, he is [v]faithful and just to forgive us our sins and [r]to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. [10][†]If we say we have not sinned, [w]we make him a liar, and [x]his word is not in us.

Christ Our Advocate

1 JOHN 2 [†]My little children, I am writing these things to you so that you may not sin. But if anyone does sin, [y]we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. [2][†] [z]He is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only but [a]also for the sins of the whole world. [3][†]And by this we know that we have come to know him, if we [b]keep his commandments. [4]Whoever says “I know him” but does not keep his commandments [c]is a liar, and [c]the truth is not in him, [5][†]but whoever [d]keeps his word, in him truly [e]the love of God is perfected. [f]By this we may know that we are in him: [6][†]whoever says he [g]abides in him [h]ought to walk in the same way in which he walked.

The New Commandment

[7][†]Beloved, I am writing you [i]no new commandment, but [j]an old commandment [k]that you had from the beginning. The old commandment is the word that you have heard. [8][†]At the same time, it is [l]a new commandment that I am writing to you, which is true in him and in you, because [1] [m]the darkness is passing away and [n]the true light is already shining. [9][†]Whoever says he is in the light and [o]hates his brother is still in darkness. [10]Whoever loves his brother abides in the light, and in him [2] there is no [p]cause for stumbling. [11]But whoever hates his brother is in the darkness and [q]walks in the darkness, and does not know where he is going, because the darkness has blinded his eyes.

[12][†] I am writing to you, little children, because [r]your sins are forgiven for his name’s sake.
[13] I am writing to you, fathers,
because you know [s]him who is from the beginning.
I am writing to you, young men, because [t]you have overcome the evil one.
I write to you, children, because [u]you know the Father.
[14] I write to you, fathers,
because you know [s]him who is from the beginning.
I write to you, young men,
because [t]you are strong,
and the word of God abides in you, and you have overcome the evil one.

Do Not Love the World

[15][†] [v]Do not love the world or the things in the world. [w]If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him. [16][†]For all that is in the world—[x]the desires of the flesh and [y]the desires of the eyes and pride of life [3]—is not from the Father but is from the world. [17][†]And [z]the world is passing away along with its desires, but whoever does the will of God abides forever.

Warning Concerning Antichrists

[18][†]Children, [a]it is the last hour, and as you have heard that [b]antichrist is coming, so now [c]many antichrists have come. [d]Therefore we know that it is the last hour. [19][†] [e]They went out from us, but they were not of us; for [f]if they had been of us, they would have continued with us. But they went out, [g]that it might become plain that they all are not of us. [20][†]But you have been [h]anointed by [i]the Holy One, and [j]you all have knowledge. [4] [21]I write to you, not because you do not know the truth, but because you know it, and because no lie is of the truth. [22]Who is the liar but [k]he who denies that Jesus is the Christ? This is [b]the antichrist, he who denies the Father and the Son. [23][†] [l]No one who denies the Son has the Father. Whoever confesses the Son has the Father also. [24][†]Let [m]what you heard from the beginning abide in you. If what you heard from the beginning abides in you, then [n]you too will abide in the Son and in the Father. [25]And this is the promise that he made to us [5]—[o]eternal life.

[26]I write these things to you about [p]those who are trying to deceive you. [27][†]But [q]the anointing that you received from him abides in you, and [r]you have no need that anyone should teach you. But as his anointing teaches you about everything, and [s]is true, and is no lie—just as it has taught you, abide in him.

Children of God

[28][†]And now, little children, abide in him, so that [t]when he appears [u]we may have confidence and not shrink from him in shame at his [v]coming. [29][†]If you know that [w]he is righteous, you may be sure that [x]everyone who practices righteousness has been born of him.

1 JOHN 3 [†]See [y]what kind of love the Father has given to us, that we should be called [z]children of God; and so we are. The reason why [a]the world does not know us is that [b] it did not know him. [2][†]Beloved, we are [z] God’s children [c] now, and what we will be [d] has not yet appeared; but we know that [e] when he appears [1] [f] we shall be like him, because [g] we shall see him as he is. [3]And everyone who [h] thus hopes in him [i] purifies himself as he is pure.

[4]Everyone who makes a practice of sinning also practices lawlessness; [j] sin is lawlessness. [5]You know that [k] he appeared in order to [l] take away sins, and [m] in him there is no sin. [6][†]No one who abides in him keeps on sinning; [n] no one who keeps on sinning has either seen him or known him. [7]Little children, [o] let no one deceive you. [p] Whoever practices righteousness is righteous, as he is righteous. [8][†] [q] Whoever makes a practice of sinning is of the devil, for the devil has been sinning from the beginning. The reason the Son of God appeared was [r] to destroy the works of the devil. [9][†] [s] No one born of God makes a practice of sinning, for God’s [2] seed abides in him, and he cannot keep on sinning because he has been born of God. [10]By this it is evident who are the children of God, and who are the children of the devil: whoever does not practice righteousness is not of God, [t] nor is the one who [u] does not love his brother.

Love One Another

[11][†]For [v] this is the message that you have heard from the beginning, [w] that we should love one another. [12]We should not be like [x] Cain, who was of the evil one and murdered his brother. And why did he murder him? [y] Because his own deeds were evil and his brother’s righteous. [13][†]Do not be surprised, brothers, [3] [z] that the world hates you. [14]We know that [a] we have passed out of death into life, because we love the brothers. Whoever does not love abides in death. [15][†] [b] Everyone who hates his brother is a murderer, and you know that [c] no murderer has eternal life abiding in him.

[16][†]By this we know love, that [d] he laid down his life for us, and [e] we ought to lay down our lives for the brothers. [17]But [f] if anyone has the world’s goods and sees his brother in need, yet [g] closes his heart against him, [h] how does God’s love abide in him? [18]Little children, let us not [i] love in word or talk but in deed and [j] in truth.

[19]By this we shall know that we are of the truth and reassure our heart before him; [20][†]for whenever our heart condemns us, God is greater than our heart, and he knows everything. [21][†]Beloved, [k]if our heart does not condemn us, [l]we have confidence before God; [22][†]and [m]whatever we ask we receive from him, because we keep his commandments and [n]do what pleases him. [23][†]And this is his commandment, [o]that we believe in the name of his Son Jesus Christ and [p]love one another, [q]just as he has commanded us. [24][†] [r]Whoever keeps his commandments abides in God, [4] and God [5] in him. And [s]by this we know that he abides in us, by the Spirit whom he has given us.

Test the Spirits

1 JOHN 4 [†]Beloved, [t]do not believe every spirit, but [u]test the spirits to see whether they are from God, for [v]many [w]false prophets [x]have gone out into the world. [2][†]By this you know the Spirit of God: [y]every spirit that confesses that [z]Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is from God, [3][†]and every spirit [a]that does not confess Jesus is not from God. This is the spirit of the antichrist, which you heard was coming and [b]now is in the world already. [4][†]Little children, you are from God and have overcome them, for [c]he who is in you is greater than [d]he who is in the world. [5][†] [e]They are from the world; therefore they speak from the world, and [f]the world listens to them. [6][†]We are from God. [g]Whoever knows God listens to us; whoever is not from God does not listen to us. By this we know [h]the Spirit of truth and [i]the spirit of error.

God Is Love

[7][†]Beloved, [j]let us love one another, for love is from God, and [k]whoever loves has been born of God and knows God. [8][†] [l]Anyone who does not love does not know God, because [m]God is love. [9][†]In this the love of God was made manifest among us, that [n]God sent his only Son into the world, so that we might live through him. [10][†]In this is love, [o]not that we have loved God [n]but that he loved us and sent his Son to be [p]the propitiation for our sins. [11]Beloved, if God so loved us, we also ought to love one another. [12][†] [q]No one has ever seen God; if we love one another, God abides in us and [r]his love is perfected in us.

[13] [s]By this we know that we abide in him and he in us, because he has given us of his Spirit. [14][†]And [t]we have seen and testify that [u]the Father has sent his Son to be the Savior of [v]the world. [15][†] [w]Whoever confesses that Jesus is the Son of God, God abides in him, and he in God. [16][†]So [x]we have come to know and to believe the love that God has for us. [y]God is love, and [z]whoever abides in love abides in God, and God abides in him. [17][†]By this [a]is love perfected with us, so that [b]we may have confidence for the day of judgment, because [c]as he is so also are we in this world. [18][†]There is no fear in love, but [d]perfect love casts out fear. For fear has to do with punishment, and whoever fears has not [a]been perfected in love. [19][†] [e]We love because he first loved us. [20] [f]If anyone says, "I love God," and [g]hates his brother, he is a liar; for he who does not love his brother whom he has seen cannot [1] love God [h]whom he has not seen. [21]And [i]this commandment we have from him: [j]whoever loves God must also love his brother.

Overcoming the World

1 JOHN 5 [†] [k]Everyone who believes that [l]Jesus is the Christ has been born of God, and [m]everyone who loves the Father loves whoever has been born of him. [2][†] [n]By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and obey his commandments. [3][†]For [o]this is the love of God, that we [p]keep his commandments. And [q]his commandments are not burdensome. [4][†]For [r]everyone who has been born of God overcomes the world. And this is the victory that has overcome the world—[s]our faith. [5]Who is it that overcomes the world except the one who believes [t]that Jesus is the Son of God?

Testimony Concerning the Son of God

[6][†]This is he who came [u]by water and blood—Jesus Christ; not by the water only but by the water and the blood. And [v]the Spirit is the one who testifies, because [w]the Spirit is the truth. 7[†]For there are three that testify: 8the Spirit and the water and the blood; and these three agree. 9[†] [x]If we receive the testimony of men, the testimony of God is greater, for this is the testimony of God [y]that he has borne concerning his Son. 10[†]Whoever believes in the Son of God [z]has the testimony in himself. Whoever does not believe God [a]has made him a liar, [b]because he has not believed in the testimony that God has borne concerning his Son. 11[†]And this is the testimony, that God gave us [c]eternal life, and [d]this life is in his Son.

12[†] [e]Whoever has the Son has life; whoever does not have the Son of God does not have life.

That You May Know

13[†]I write [f]these things to you who [g]believe in the name of the Son of God that you may know that you have eternal life. 14[†]And this is [h]the confidence that we have toward him, that [i]if we ask anything according to his will he hears us. 15[†]And if we know that he hears us in whatever we ask, we know that we have the requests that we have asked of him.

16[†]If anyone sees his brother committing a sin not leading to death, he shall ask, and [j]God [1] will give him life—to those who commit sins that do not lead to death. [k]There is sin that leads to death; [l]I do not say that one should pray for that. 17[†] [m]All wrongdoing is sin, but there is sin that does not lead to death.

18[†]We know that [n]everyone who has been born of God does not keep on sinning, but [o]he who was born of God [p]protects him, and the evil one does not touch him.

19[†]We know that we are from God, and [q]the whole world lies in the power of the evil one.

20[†]And we know that the Son of God has come and [r]has given us understanding, so that we may know [s]him who is true; and we are in him who is true, in his Son Jesus Christ. He is the true God and [t]eternal life.
21Little children, [u]keep yourselves from idols.

Study Notes for 1 John

1:1–2:6 God Is Light and Christ Is the Way. John begins by emphasizing Christ's deity, incarnation, saving death, and continuing ministry. He also stresses God's nature as "light" (1:5) and the darkness of human sin.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 1:1–4 Several first-person plural references ("we," "our," "us") highlight the eyewitness testimony of John and other early Christians.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 1:1 From the beginning likely refers to Christ's existence before the dawn of time (see John 1:1). The Greek OT uses the same expression about the Lord and the Promised One in Hab. 1:12 and Mic. 5:1. seen . . . looked upon . . . touched. John was an eyewitness to the physical and historical reality of Jesus' life on earth.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 1:2 made manifest. Jesus was publicly seen and known. He was sent from and revealed by God. Life . . . eternal life refers to the nature and quality of life in fellowship with God (see John 5:24). It was revealed in the life of Christ and then experienced by Christians.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 1:3 proclaim. The purpose of this proclamation is not just forgiveness of people's sins. It is that you (other believers) too may have fellowship with us. Believers also have fellowship with the Father and with his Son.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 1:4 writing . . . so that. One of 1 John's goals is to promote joy. It is difficult to decide between "our joy" (ESV text) and "your joy" (ESV footnote). Very early and reliable manuscripts exist with each reading (the only difference is one letter in Greek). "Our" probably includes the readers (with the sense "all of our"; compare v. 3).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 1:5–10 "God is light" (v. 5) reflects the OT, where "light" symbolizes both knowledge and purity (see notes on John 1:4–5; 8:12).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 1:6 If we say. John may be summarizing what some were falsely claiming. If God is light (v. 5), then those who walk in darkness do not walk with God, no matter what they say.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 1:7 Walk in the light means to reflect God's perfection (see v. 5) in daily life. It includes both correct doctrine (truth) and moral purity (holiness). This phrase also implies that when Christians "walk in the light" their lives will not be characterized by hidden sins, lies, or deception.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 1:8 have no sin. See note on 3:9–10. we deceive ourselves. Some sin remains in every Christian's life ("have" is present tense).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 1:9 Christians must confess (their) sins, first to receive salvation and then to stay in fellowship with God and one another (v. 3).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 1:10 have not sinned. See note on 3:9–10. his word is not in us. Until a person recognizes sin and the need for salvation, the gospel has not changed him.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:1 My little children. This way of addressing his readers shows John's great love for them (see also vv. 12, 28; 3:7, 18; 4:4; 5:21). may not sin. See note on 3:9–10. Jesus is an advocate. He takes up the believer's cause before God the Father (see 1 Tim. 2:5). Otherwise their sin would bring judgment upon them.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:2 Propitiation means "a sacrifice that bears God's wrath and turns it to favor" (see note on Rom. 3:25). As the perfect sacrifice for sin, Jesus turns away God's wrath (see also 1 John 4:10). For the sins of the whole world does not mean every person will be saved. John clearly teaches that God forgives only those who repent and believe the gospel (see 2:4, 23; 3:10; 5:12; compare John 3:18; 5:24). But Jesus' sacrifice is available to anyone who does this.

FACT

Propitiation (2:2) is the appeasement of wrath. God's holy anger against sin needed to be appeased before sin could be forgiven. By dying on the cross, Christ bore God's wrath for all who trust in him (see also Rom. 3:25), anywhere in the world, giving us the ultimate example of love (1 John 4:10).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:3 by this we know. Assurance of salvation is possible (see note on 2 Pet. 1:10). First John mentions several tests that give assurance (see 1 John 1:7; 2:5; 3:14; 4:13; 5:2). Here the test is ethical: do professing Christians have a changed life and keep the Lord's commandments? To know him involves a personal relationship that changes one's behavior.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:5 love of God is perfected. This love is not only a feeling. It is also an ethical response (keeps his word). may know. See note on v. 3.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:6 walk in the same way. Believers can imitate Christ's faith, love, devotion, obedience, and selflessness (v. 5).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:7–17 The Unchanging Commandment in a Changing World. John emphasizes the love commandment. He then describes the challenge of living as a Christian in a dark world (vv. 8, 9, 11) dominated by "the evil one" (vv. 13, 14).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:7 Beloved. A strong term of godly affection for his readers. John uses the same word at 3:2, 21; 4:1, 7, 11. See also note on 2:1, "my little children." The old commandment is love for God and love for others (Lev. 19:18; Deut. 6:5). Jesus confirmed (Matt. 22:34–40) but also renewed these teachings. Therefore they are also a new commandment (John 13:34).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:8 the darkness is passing away. The age to come has not yet fully arrived (see 3:2), but it is getting closer.

FACT

The terms light and darkness come up often in John's writing. The light of God's truth is shining on the darkness of ignorance and sin—and the darkness is passing away (2:8–11).

---

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:9–11 hates his brother. John often uses strongly contrasting terms for emphasis (e.g., light vs. darkness, truth vs. lies).

darkness has blinded his eyes. “Darkness” and “blindness” in Scripture often symbolize rejecting God’s truth and continuing in sin (see John 3:19; 12:39–40; 2 Cor. 4:4). On love, see note on John 13:34–35.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:12–14 John knows his message is greater than the evil he describes. Some view little children, fathers, and young men as symbolizing the stages of spiritual maturity in a Christian’s life. Others think “little children” refers to all John’s readers (see note on 2:1), while “fathers” refers to older believers and “young men” to newer believers.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:15 Do not love the world warns against loving a world system that is opposed to God (compare John 12:31; James 4:4; 1 John 5:19). Love of the Father probably refers both to God’s love for his people and their love for him.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:16 all that is in the world. John does not consider the whole created order evil (see Gen. 1:31). Rather, he gives examples of what believers should avoid (desires of the flesh, etc.). Human desires are part of God’s creation. They are evil only when they are expressed in ways for which God did not create them.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:17 the world is passing away. History is speeding toward a conclusion planned by God.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:18–3:10 Overcoming the Antichrist by Confessing the Son. John describes the challenges Christians face and how these may be met.

Equivalent Expressions for the “Last Days”

The “last days” (the day of salvation, 2 Cor. 6:2) have already come but the “last day” (the day of salvation and wrath, 1 Thess. 5:1–11) has not yet arrived. The following are equivalent expressions for the “last days” (the period of time between Jesus’ death and resurrection and the final judgment).

“the last days”	Acts 2:17; 2 Tim. 3:1; Heb. 1:2; James 5:3
“the last hour”	1 John 2:18
“the last time”	Jude 18
“the last times”	1 Pet. 1:20

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:18–27 The existence of "antichrist" (v. 18) and those trying to deceive Christians (v. 26) is alarming. But John is confident that they can find the resources to abide in Christ (v. 29).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:18 The last hour began with the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. His second coming could occur at any time (see notes on 1 Cor. 7:29–31; 2 Tim. 3:1). Antichrist is mentioned with this name here and in 1 John 2:22; 4:3; 2 John 7 (compare 2 Thess. 2:1–10; see note on 2 Thess. 2:3). An "antichrist" is anyone "who denies that Jesus is the Christ" (1 John 2:22). More specifically, John considers such a person to be a representative of the "evil one" (John 17:15).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:19 Some people had recently left the church (out from us). Their leaving showed that they were not truly of us. That is, they did not have genuine faith.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:20 anointed by the Holy One. Spiritually transformed by the Holy Spirit.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:23 Whoever confesses the Son has the Father also (compare 5:13; see note on John 3:18). The world's religions do not offer many different paths to the one God. Only Christianity confesses that Jesus is God's Son (see 1 John 4:3; 4:15).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:24 what you heard from the beginning. The authentic message of Christ's death for sin and his defeat of death.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:27 anointing. See note on v. 20. This anointing abides, giving Christians the discernment to recognize doctrinal error. no need that anyone should teach you. They have no need for any instruction that differs from the gospel message.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:28–3:3 Having reaffirmed his readers' commitment to the true Son of God, not the Antichrist (vv. 18–27), John urges them to strive for the ethical integrity and sense of urgency appropriate to their spiritual identity.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:28 abide in him. See notes on John 8:31; 15:4.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 2:29 To know that he is righteous means the believer has placed his faith in Christ, not in his own moral virtue.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:1 the world does not know us. There is an ultimate division between those who know and serve Christ and those who do not.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:2 what we will be. After Christ's return, believers will have bodies that will never be sick, grow old, or die. They will be completely without sin. we shall be like him. "Like" does not mean "identical to." Believers will never be exactly like Christ, since he is both man and God, but our perfected humanity will match his.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:6–7 No one who abides . . . keeps on sinning. True followers of Christ do not make a practice of sinning. When they sin, they confess the sin to God. Thus they keep a strong relationship with him (see note on vv. 9–10). On "abides," see notes on John 8:31; 15:4.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:8 The reason the Son of God appeared restates v. 5. the works of the devil. That is, the practice of sinning.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:9–10 born of God. See John 3:3–8. God's seed. Some take this to be the Word of God that causes new birth (compare James 1:18, 22; 1 Pet. 1:23, 25). Others think it refers to the Holy Spirit's transforming presence within the believer. Both of these ideas are likely intended here. This does not mean Christians are ever completely free from sin in this life (see 1 John 1:8–10). By this it is evident. See Matt. 7:16.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:11–4:6 Overcoming Evil by Listening to the Apostle. This section describes how to avoid the "practice of sinning" and "lawlessness" (see 3:4).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:11–24 John uses Cain (Gen. 4:1–16) as an example of what Christians must avoid and what they should pursue.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:13 Do not be surprised. Abel did the right thing and was strongly opposed (v. 12). John knows this happens in every age (see John 16:2–3, 33).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:15 is a murderer. John echoes Jesus’ teaching (Matt. 5:22, 28) that even a desire to disobey God’s command (Ex. 20:13) breaks that command (see Ex. 20:17).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:16 By this we know love, that he laid down his life for us. Jesus’ willingness to die is an example of the selfless attitude his followers should have.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:20 whenever our heart condemns us. Whenever one has an inward conviction of sin. The fact that God is greater than our heart assures us that he has forgiven us through the atoning death of Christ.

FACT

Giving to those in need. Jews in the time of Christ were generous in giving to the needy. In fact, the Jewish historian Josephus remarked that no Jew ever needed to depend on the charity of outsiders. John encourages generosity among Christians as well (3:17).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:21 A clear conscience leads to boldness and confidence before God in prayer.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:22 whatever we ask we receive. See note on 5:15. Because we keep his commandments implies a direct connection between obeying God and receiving answers to prayer.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:23 his commandment, that we believe. Personal trust in Christ leads to the ethical behavior stressed in vv. 11–22.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 3:24 the Spirit. The letter’s first clear mention of the third person of the Trinity (see also 4:2, 6, 13; 5:6, 8).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:1–6 It is not only Cain’s bad example that John wants his readers to avoid (3:11–24); it is also the forces of spiritual deception. John furnishes a litmus test for detecting these evil spirits.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:1 test the spirits. One can test the spiritual influences that guide people by observing their doctrine and conduct. God has also provided the gift of spiritual discernment for this purpose (compare 1 Cor. 12:10; 14:29). False prophets actually speak by demonic influence (1 John 4:3–4).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:2 By this you know. Any spirit (or person moved to speak by such a spirit) that does not confess that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh misleads God's people. Apparently many false teachers were saying that Jesus only "appeared" to be human.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:3 every spirit that does not confess Jesus. That is, whoever refuses to admit that Jesus "has come in the flesh" (v. 2).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:4 he who is in you. The Holy Spirit (see vv. 2, 6). he who is in the world. Satan and his demons (see v. 3; 5:19).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:5 they speak from the world. Their speech is influenced by the world's viewpoint and values.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:6 does not listen to us. People who are not true believers resist sound doctrine (compare 1 Cor. 2:14).

4:7–21 The Assurance of God through the Love of God. John's teaching in these verses is like the apostle Paul's "love chapter," 1 Corinthians 13.1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:7 whoever loves has been born of God and knows God. This does not remove the need for faithful confession of Christ (2:23; 4:2) and for ethical integrity (3:16), but love completes a life in fellowship with God.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:8 does not know God, because God is love. The person who lacks love shows himself to be unchanged by the gospel message. "God is love" means that God continually gives of himself to others and seeks their benefit.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:9 might live. That is, receive eternal life.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:10 not that we have loved God. God's love sets the standard for the love Christians should show. propitiation. See note on 2:2.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:12 No one has ever seen God. See note on John 1:18.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:14 we have seen and testify. See note on 1:1.

FACT

To abide in Jesus means living in a daily, close relationship with him, characterized by trust, prayer, obedience, and joy. The Holy Spirit's presence and activity within Christians gives evidence that they are abiding in Christ (John 8:31, 6:56, 15:4; 1 John 2:6, 27–28; 3:6).

---

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:15 Jesus is the Son of God. He is unique. He is divine and shares every attribute of God (see note on John 1:14). In 1 John 4:2, John required that true teachers affirm Christ's full humanity. Here he requires that they affirm Christ's full deity.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:16 we have come to know and to believe. See note on 2:3.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:17 By this refers to the previous verse. confidence for the day of judgment. Either eternal life or eternal punishment awaits every person (see John 3:36). God's love provides a sure hope for those who have trusted in him. as he is so also are we in this world. Jesus pleased the Father while on earth; believers do so as well.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:18 God's perfect love for believers casts out the fear of wrath and eternal punishment.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 4:19 We love because. God's love was demonstrated in the cross (see Rom. 5:8). God loves humanity first, and the love Christians show is a response to that love.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:1–12 Faith in the Son as the Way to Life. So far, John has written much about love and obedience, but not so much about faith. He now shifts to the importance of believing in the Son. Of 1 John's 10 references to believing, seven are in ch. 5.

FACT

John wants his readers to know about eternal life. Whoever knows and believes in God’s Son and believes he is the Christ, no matter what their cultural or social background, has been born of God and has eternal life (5:1–12).

---

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:1 Everyone who believes that. Saving faith is a wholehearted trust in the saving work of Christ. Everyone who believes has been born of God (see 2:29; 3:9; 4:7; note on Eph. 2:5).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:2 Obeying God’s commandments in Scripture is the way to love the children of God. God’s commandments show believers the way to do good for others (see Rom. 13:9; Gal. 5:14).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:3 not burdensome. God’s love existing in his people gives them the desire to love and please him. Rightly understood and followed, God’s commandments bring believers great joy and freedom (compare Matt. 11:28–30).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:4 overcomes the world. See John 16:33. Genuine Christians do not let the world turn them away from following Christ.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:6 Water most likely refers to Jesus’ baptism by John the Baptist. Blood signifies Christ’s atoning death on the cross. the Spirit is the one who testifies. The Holy Spirit bears witness to the fact that Christ came. The Spirit works in believers’ hearts. He convicts them of sin and opens their eyes to who Christ is. He helps them understand the meaning of Christ’s atoning death for their sins (compare v. 10). He lives in believers, teaching them the truth of God’s Word (2:27; 4:13).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:7–8 The gospel is not based merely on human testimony. There are in fact three that testify. These are the witness of the Spirit (see note on v. 6), the water baptism of Jesus, with the voice from heaven (Mark 1:10–11; John 1:32–34), and the blood of Jesus (see note on 1 John 5:6). these three agree. They confirm that Jesus is the “Son of God” (v. 10). The OT taught that every charge must be confirmed by “two or three witnesses” (Deut. 19:15). This principle continued in the NT (Matt. 18:16; 2 Cor. 13:1).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:9 the testimony of God. John claims divine authority for his teaching.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:10 has the testimony in himself. Christians have the Holy Spirit’s presence and work within them.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:11 The testimony supporting faith in Christ is the message of Jesus’ incarnation, death, and resurrection. Through these, eternal life is available through faith in his Son.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:12 Has the Son implies a faith that is evident through love for others and devotion to God. Whoever does not have life faces eternal punishment (John 3:36). On Jesus as the one and only way to God, see notes on John 14:6; 1 John 2:23.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:13–21 Final Call to Faith and Understanding. “Know” occurs seven times in these verses. This indicates John’s focus on the assurance of Christian faith and salvation.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:13 that you may know. See note on 2:3.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:14 To ask God according to his will means Christians should pray in line with what the Bible teaches about God’s will for his people (compare Matt. 6:10; Eph. 5:17).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:15 we have the requests. Christians do not receive everything they ask for from God, even things that seemingly agree with his will. This verse must be understood in light of other passages of Scripture: praying according to God’s will includes the need to pray in faith (Matt. 21:22; James 1:6), with patience (Luke 18:1–8), in obedience (Ps. 66:18; 1 Pet. 3:12), and in recognition that God knows what is best in all circumstances (Luke 22:42; Rom. 8:28; 1 Pet. 4:19).

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:16 Sin not leading to death is sin for which forgiveness is possible because (1) forgiveness is sought and (2) God is willing to grant it. Death and eternal life are present spiritual states. They are also ultimate actual destinies (hell, heaven). Sin that leads to death is probably sin that is (1) unrepented of and (2) of the kind or nature that John has warned about throughout the letter. Such sin includes rejection of the true doctrine about Christ, ongoing disobedience to God's commandments, and persistent lack of love for fellow believers. These all indicate a lack of saving faith, which will not be forgiven. I do not say. John leaves open whether to pray for that situation if it arises. It would be best in such cases to pray for repentance.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:17 All wrongdoing is a matter of grave concern, in light of God's utter perfection and zealous love. However, not all sin leads to death (see note on v. 16), so Christians should pray for their own and others' forgiveness.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:18 does not keep on sinning. See notes on 3:6–7; 3:9–10. He who was born of God refers to Jesus Christ. In his physical birth, Jesus was "born of God" in that he was sent from God the Father and was conceived by the Holy Spirit (Luke 1:35). In his resurrection from the dead, Jesus was "born of God" in that God brought him back to life (Col. 1:18). The evil one does not touch believers in the sense of causing permanent spiritual loss. See 1 John 4:4.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:19 we are from God. Christians have been spiritually reborn. In that sense they are children of God. the whole world. See note on 2:15.

1 JOHN—NOTE ON 5:20 Has come points to the incarnation. given . . . understanding. Christians receive grace to help them understand biblical teaching and put it into practice.

Greeting

2 JOHN 1 [†] [a]The elder to the elect lady and her children, [b]whom I love in truth, and not only I, but also all who [c]know [d]the truth, [2][†] [e]because of the truth that abides in us and will be with us forever:

[3][f]Grace, mercy, and peace will be with us, from God the Father and from Jesus Christ the Father’s Son, in truth and love.

Walking in Truth and Love

[4][†] [g]I rejoiced greatly to find some of your children walking in the truth, just as we were commanded by the Father. [5][†]And now I ask you, dear lady—[h]not as though I were writing you a new commandment, but the one we have had from the beginning—[i]that we love one another. [6][†]And [j]this is love, that we walk according to his commandments; this is the commandment, just [k]as you have heard from the beginning, so that you should walk in it. [7][†]For [l]many deceivers [m]have gone out into the world, [n]those who do not confess the coming of Jesus Christ in the flesh. Such a one is the deceiver and the antichrist. [8][†]Watch yourselves, [o]so that you may not lose what we [1] have worked for, but [p]may win a full reward. [9][†]Everyone who goes on ahead and does not abide in the teaching of Christ, [q]does not have God. Whoever abides in the teaching [q]has both the Father and the Son. [10][†]If anyone comes to you and does not bring this teaching, [r]do not receive him into your house or give him any greeting, [11][†]for whoever greets him [s]takes part in his wicked works.

Final Greetings

[12][†] [t]Though I have much to write to you, I would rather not use paper and ink. [u]Instead I hope to come to you and talk face to face, [v]so that our joy may be complete.

[13][†]The children of your elect sister greet you.

Study Notes for 2 John

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 1–3 Greeting: The Elder's Love. Love frames the opening section, appearing in vv. 1 and 3.

FACT

The elder (v. 1) is clearly a self-description of the apostle John. "Elder" was a common term for a pastoral leader in the early church (see Titus 1:5; 1 Pet. 5:1). Although "elder" does not imply "elderly," John himself was probably quite old when he wrote this letter.

---

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 1 The elect lady and her children probably refers to a local congregation and its members. The word truth is prominent in John's greeting, perhaps because early Christians saw themselves as being in close communion with Jesus, who called himself "the truth" (see note on John 14:6) and whom they acknowledged as such, and perhaps because John knows he will also have to write about the untruth of spiritual deceivers (2 John 7–11).

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 2 abides in us. The gospel unites John and his readers. "In us" could be translated "among us."

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 4–6 The Elder's Joy and Request. John wants his readers' behavior to reflect their faith.

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 4 Apparently John had encountered members of the congregation who were, in fact, walking in the truth, i.e., living in a manner pleasing to God. Perhaps it was from them that he determined he needed to pen this letter to their church.

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 5 Love one another may suggest there was division among the readers. On love, see note on John 13:34–35.

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 6 Commandment probably refers to the love commandment introduced by Jesus (John 13:34–35).

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 7–8 The Elder's Concern. Doctrinal confusion was a threat to the congregation.

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 7 the coming of . . . Christ in the flesh. See 1 John 4:2 and note. antichrist. See 1 John 2:18 and note. many deceivers. On false teaching, see note on Matt. 7:15–20.

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 8 Watch yourselves. Compare Mark 13:5, 23. win a full reward. Eternal life with Christ.

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 9–11 The Elder's Warning. The congregation must not listen to persons who do not "abide in the teaching of Christ" (v. 9).

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 9 Goes on ahead probably refers to a "new" teaching that amounted to rejection of the apostolic faith. Does not have God, i.e., does not have eternal life in fellowship with God. Threats to church purity come not only from the outside but often from within. Similarly, Paul wrote that some at Corinth had "no knowledge of God" (1 Cor. 15:34).

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 10 If anyone comes refers to traveling teachers or preachers who rejected true Christian teaching. do not receive him into your house. Since believers gathered in homes to worship, this could give the appearance of agreeing with the false teaching. This does not prohibit showing hospitality to unbelievers (see Matt. 9:10–13; 1 Cor. 5:9–10); rather, it is false Christians who require caution and perhaps rejection (see 1 Cor. 5:11–13).

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 11 Greets means to extend approval, assistance, and full fellowship. takes part in his wicked works. To support someone who is working against the true Christian message is to share in that person's guilt.

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 12–13 Closing: The Elder's Farewell. John hopes to follow this letter with a visit.

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 12 so that our joy may be complete. See 1 John 1:4 and note.

2 JOHN—NOTE ON 13 Children of your elect sister are the believers in the congregation from which John writes.

Greeting

3 JOHN 1 [†] [a]The elder to the beloved Gaius, [b]whom I love in truth.

[2][†]Beloved, I pray that all may go well with you and that you may be in good health, as it goes well with your soul. [3][†]For [c]I rejoiced greatly when the brothers [1] came and testified to your truth, as indeed you are walking in the truth. [4][†]I have no greater joy than to hear that [d]my children are walking in the truth.

Support and Opposition

[5][†]Beloved, it is a faithful thing you do in all your efforts for [e]these brothers, [f]strangers as they are, [6][†]who testified to your love before the church. You will do well to send them on their journey in a manner [g]worthy of God. [7][†]For they have gone out for the sake of [h]the name, [i]accepting nothing from the Gentiles. [8][†]Therefore we ought to support people like these, that we may be fellow workers for the truth.

[9][†]I have written something to the church, but Diotrephes, who likes to put himself first, does not acknowledge our authority. [10][†]So if I come, I will bring up what he is doing, talking wicked nonsense against us. And not content with that, he refuses to welcome the brothers, and also stops those who want to and puts them out of the church.

[11][†]Beloved, [j]do not imitate evil but imitate good. [k]Whoever does good is from God; [l]whoever does evil has not seen God. [12][†]Demetrius [m]has received a good testimony from everyone, and from the truth itself. We also add our testimony, and [n]you know that our testimony is true.

Final Greetings

[13][†] [o]I had much to write to you, but I would rather not write with pen and ink. [14]I hope to see you soon, and we will talk face to face.

[15][†]Peace be to you. The friends greet you. Greet the friends, [p]each by name.

Study Notes for 3 John

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 1–4 Greeting: The Elder's Joy at Gaius's Faithfulness. John's opening tone is affectionate and positive.

FACT

A personal letter. John's letter to Gaius follows the pattern of personal letters of his day: greetings (v. 1), a prayer for Gaius's health (v. 2a), the main message (vv. 5–12), and a brief farewell (vv. 13–15). John departs from the standard form only in his expression of concern for his friend's spiritual well-being (vv. 2b–4).

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 1 Beloved (compare vv. 5, 11) conveys the truth that Christians are linked by the love God has shown them in Christ (compare 1 John 4:9–10). Love in truth could mean simply "truly love" as a Christian brother, or it could refer to the "truth" of the gospel, in the service of which the lives of John and Gaius are intertwined.

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 2 Wishes for good health were standard in the openings of ancient Greek letters, but John also expresses care for Gaius's soul. Though spiritual growth can come through sickness and affliction (see Ps. 119:67, 71), it is right to pray for good health, as Jesus' earthly healing ministry also demonstrated.

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 3 the brothers came. Apparently Christians from Gaius's church had visited John. They told John of Gaius's faithful Christian life. truth. Faithfulness to Christ and his commands. (See also note on John 14:6.)

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 4 joy. See 1 John 1:4 and note. my children. His readers are first of all "children of God" (compare John 1:12; 11:52; 1 John 3:1, 2, 10; 5:2). But John as their spiritual overseer could view them as his own children too (see note on 1 John 2:1). Compare Paul's use of this familial language (1 Tim. 1:2, 18; Titus 1:4; Philem. 10).

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 5–8 Praise for Gaius's Support for Traveling Christian Workers. Whereas 2 John 10 warns against supporting the wrong people, John affirms Gaius's work on the behalf of faithful laborers, even though they are "strangers" (3 John 5).

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 5 these brothers. Traveling Christian workers. The early church was centered on missionary outreach, otherwise it would not have survived and spread (see Heb. 13:2).

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 6 Send . . . on their journey carries the sense of sending with necessary financial support (see Rom. 15:24; 1 Cor. 16:6, 11; 2 Cor. 1:16; Titus 3:13). worthy of God. Those laboring for the gospel work not for themselves but for the One who sends them.

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 7 the name. The very person of God himself. John may also be referring here to Christ, highlighting his deity. Compare Acts 5:41 and Phil. 2:9. The workers accepted nothing from the Gentiles, that is, the non-Christians. Like Paul, the workers did not want to be accused of ministering for personal gain (compare 1 Cor. 9:14–15; 2 Cor. 11:8; 1 Thess. 2:9).

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 8 the truth. The gospel message (see Col. 1:5).

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 9–10 Concern about Diotrephes. John and Gaius knew people who opposed the progress of God's kingdom.

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 10 not content with that. Sinful personal ambition is never satisfied but seeks to expand. refuses to welcome the brothers. Stands in the way of the support of traveling Christian workers.

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 11–12 Advice and Commendation of Demetrius. As John ends his short letter, he introduces and commends his faithful messenger.

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 11 do not imitate evil. Probably an encouragement not to give in to Diotrephes or to behave like he does.

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 12 Normal postal service could not be entrusted with Christian correspondence like this letter, so someone like Demetrius served as courier. Phoebe probably served this function in delivering Romans (Rom. 16:1–2), and Tychicus likely hand-carried Ephesians (Eph. 6:21–22) and Colossians (Col. 4:7–8).

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 13–15 Closing: A Promise to Visit. John echoes his words in 2 John 12. Sometimes pastoral oversight requires physical presence.

3 JOHN—NOTE ON 15 friends. An unusual term for fellow believers; but see John 15:15. each by name. John's pastoral care is personal.

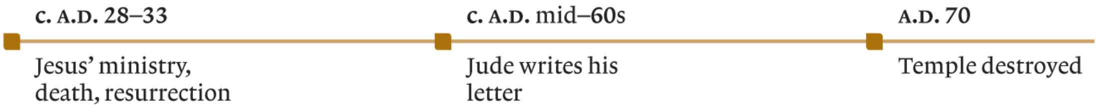
Introduction to Jude

Introduction to Jude

Timeline



Author, Date, and Recipients

The book was written by Jude, the brother of James and Jesus (see Matt. 13:55; Mark 6:3, where "Judas" is the same in Greek as "Jude"). Jude was probably written in the mid-60s A.D. Considering the letter's apparent Jewish perspective, Jude's audience was probably Jewish Christians, or a mixture of Jewish and Gentile readers where the Gentiles were familiar with Jewish traditions.

Since Jude addresses a situation similar to the one addressed by 2 Peter and exhibits a literary relationship to ch. 2 of that letter (Jude may have been a source for 2 Peter), the two letters are commonly dated in fairly close proximity, even though evidence for the date of writing within the book of Jude is sparse.

Theme

The church must defend the one true faith (v. 3). Believers must be faithful to the end by resisting false teachers and following the truth.

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

Jude warns against following false teachers who have infiltrated the church and are distorting the one true faith. Jude calls the church to defend the truth aggressively against such false teaching.

While the false teachers of Jude were profoundly libertine (morally unrestrained), it would be historically inaccurate to argue that they were Gnostics. This heretical sect (or group of sects) was influential primarily from the second century A.D. onward.

Jude accomplishes his purpose by drawing analogies with OT events, using the same principles of interpretation found in 2 Peter (and elsewhere in the NT). He also draws on Jewish apocalyptic traditions from nonbiblical literature (he refers to 1 Enoch and the Testament of Moses) in building his case. Thus, as literature, Jude has a distinctively Jewish flavor.

The format is of a NT epistle (letter), with its loose divisions of salutation, body, and closing. But the central unit of the letter (vv. 5–16) fits the style of a judgment oracle: it has an object of attack, an attack coming from several directions, a harsh tone, and an implied standard on which the attack is being conducted ("the faith that was once for all delivered to the saints"; v. 3). The description of those who left the faith (vv. 8–16) provides a picture of their character and actions. The use of images and allusions (e.g., to Sodom and Gomorrah and the archangel Michael) lends a poetic quality to the letter.

The writer displays horror over the apostasy and the false teachers who have caused it. The only NT passage that goes beyond Jude in these traits is Jesus' denunciation of the religious leaders in Matthew 23. But this letter begins with the usual soothing notes of NT epistles, and in the last two verses it becomes one of the most moving benedictions in the NT.

Key Themes

1. Christians need to defend the doctrines of the faith (v. 3).
2. False teachers may be identified by their immoral character (vv. 4, 8, 10, 12–13, 16, 18–19).
3. God will judge false teachers (vv. 4, 5–7, 11, 14–15).
4. Saints must endure to be saved (vv. 17–23).
5. As God grants mercy to those who are called, they must show mercy to others (vv. 2, 21–23).
6. God grants the grace to ensure that his people will persevere (vv. 1–2, 24–25).

Outline

I. Initial Greeting (vv. 1–2)
II. Jude’s Appeal: Contend for the Faith (vv. 3–4)
III. The Immoral Character and Resulting Judgment of the False Teachers (vv. 5–16)
IV. Concluding Exhortations (vv. 17–25)

The Global Message of Jude

The global message of Jude is that the church must work, locally all the way up to internationally, to defend the faith. For false teaching leads to immorality, but true believers will persevere, by God's grace, to the end.

Jude and Redemptive History

Despite its brevity, Jude's letter is filled with a rich awareness of the history of salvation that God has been working out through the ages. Jude speaks of the "common salvation" that "was once for all delivered to the saints" (Jude 3), reminding his readers of the faith that has been handed down through the generations. Throughout the letter Jude then refers to several figures and places in Old Testament history, such as Adam, Cain, Moses, Balaam, Enoch, Sodom and Gomorrah, and Egypt.

Jude is also aware that in his own time something decisively new has dawned. With the coming of "our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ" (Jude 4), salvation has been revealed in a clearer and more abundant way than ever before. Indeed, we are now "in the last time" (v. 18). The new age has begun. The newness of Christ's coming has strong connections, however, with the past. For Christ himself, the second Person of the Trinity, was active in Old Testament redemptive history. Jude refers to him as the one who saved Israel and brought them out of the land of Egypt, and then destroyed the rebellious (v. 5).

Universal Themes in Jude

Defending the faith. Jude opens his letter by exhorting his readers to "contend for the faith that was once for all delivered to the saints" (Jude 3). The need for such contending arises not from the world but from within the church—"certain people have crept in" (v. 4). Many of the greatest dangers to the church around the world come not from outside her walls but from inside. As Jesus said, there are wolves in the church that look like sheep (Matt. 7:15). Despite acting subversively rather than openly, false teachers can easily be identified by their godlessness. They are "grumblers, malcontents, following their own sinful desires" (Jude 16). Jude reminds his readers, and us, that the apostles predicted that such false teachers would arise (vv. 17–18). The church must not be swept into falsehood and godlessness but must persevere in the love of God (v. 21), receiving mercy from Jesus and extending mercy to others (vv. 22–23).

The nature of grace. The false teachers who have infiltrated the church “pervert the grace of our God into sensuality” (Jude 4). The gospel is so radical, justifying the ungodly (Rom. 4:5), that taking grace in this godless direction has been a perennial danger to the church. Paul seems to have combatted this error in Romans (Rom. 5:20–6:23). Yet the grace of God, when truly received and enjoyed in all its freeness by the power of the Holy Spirit, does not encourage sinning. It rather transforms sinners and gives them a distaste for sin. Jude returns to the nature of true grace at the end of his letter when he reminds his readers of “the love of God” and “the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ” (Jude 21) in the context of exhorting them toward holiness (vv. 22–23; contrast v. 16). God’s grace is not a license to sin. For grace is not only a pardon that forgives but a power that transforms. It cannot be one without the other.

The Global Message of Jude for Today

“Contend for the faith that was once for all delivered to the saints” (Jude 3). The church today does well to receive this exhortation. Amid the swirling and conflicting claims to truth in the world today, including even the claim that no one religion can claim the full truth, the church must contend for the faith. This especially includes contending for truth within the church itself, protecting believers against false doctrine. For false doctrine always brings godlessness along with it.

At the same time, we note what Jude says immediately prior to exhorting the church to contend for the faith. He begins, “Beloved, although I was very eager to write to you about our common salvation, I found it necessary to write appealing to you to contend for the faith” (Jude 3). Jude did not write the letter he wanted to write. He wished to write a letter that exulted in those things about which he and his readers agreed.

This is instructive for the church today. We must contend for the faith, yet we must avoid the word-wars and quarrels against which the New Testament warns us (1 Tim. 4:6–7; 6:3–4; 2 Tim. 2:14, 23–26; Titus 3:9; James 4:1). Our first impulse should be to exult together in our common salvation. As believers today from across the globe interact with one another—interaction that is increasingly possible in this digital age—our instincts must be those of Jude. We must not hesitate to contend for the faith when it is endangered by false teaching.

Yet there is a common salvation that all true believers share, and we should rejoice over that. Many secondary matters may distinguish us: ethnicity, political persuasion, social class, worldview assumptions, denominational affiliation. But we are one in Christ, all saved by grace into his body, the church.

Through it all, the grace that has rescued us, says Jude, will preserve us. God in his mercy will not only transform us; he himself will also keep us from stumbling and present us before his divine glory with great joy (Jude 24). “To the only God, our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, dominion, and authority, before all time and now and forever” (v. 25).

Greeting

JUDE 1 [†]Jude, a servant [1] of Jesus Christ and brother of James,

[a]To those who are called, [b]beloved in God the Father and [c]kept for [2] Jesus Christ:

2May [d]mercy, [e]peace, and love be multiplied to you.

Judgment on False Teachers

3[†]Beloved, although I was very eager to write to you about our [f]common salvation, I found it necessary to write appealing to you [g]to contend for the faith that was once for all delivered to the saints. 4[†]For [h]certain people [i]have crept in unnoticed [j]who long ago were designated for this condemnation, ungodly people, who pervert [k]the grace of our God into sensuality and [l]deny our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ.

5[†]Now I want [m]to remind you, although you once fully knew it, that [n]Jesus, who saved [3] a people out of the land of Egypt, [o]afterward destroyed those who did not believe. 6[†]And [p]the angels who did not stay within their own position of authority, but left their proper dwelling, he has kept in eternal chains under gloomy darkness until the judgment of the great day— 7[†]just as [q]Sodom and Gomorrah and [r]the surrounding cities, which likewise indulged in sexual immorality and [s]pursued unnatural desire, [4] serve as an example by undergoing a punishment of eternal fire.

8[†]Yet in like manner these people also, relying on their dreams, defile the flesh, reject authority, and [t]blaspheme the glorious ones. 9But when [u]the archangel [v]Michael, contending with the devil, was disputing [w]about the body of Moses, he did not presume to pronounce a blasphemous judgment, but said, [x]“The Lord rebuke you.” 10[†][y]But these people blaspheme all that they do not understand, and they are destroyed by all that they, like unreasoning animals, understand instinctively. 11[†]Woe to them! For they walked in [z]the way of Cain and abandoned themselves for the sake of gain [a]to Balaam’s error and [b]perished in Korah’s rebellion. 12[†]These are hidden reefs [5] [c]at your love feasts, as they feast with you without fear, [d]shepherds feeding themselves; [e]waterless clouds, [f]swept along by winds; fruitless trees in late autumn, twice dead, [g]uprooted; [13][h]wild waves of the sea, casting up the foam of [i]their own shame; [j]wandering stars, [k]for whom the gloom of utter darkness has been reserved forever.

[14][†]It was also about these that Enoch, [l]the seventh from Adam, prophesied, saying, [m]“Behold, the Lord comes with ten thousands of his holy ones, [15][n]to execute judgment on all and to convict all the ungodly of all their deeds of ungodliness that they have [o]committed in such an ungodly way, and of all [p]the harsh things that ungodly sinners have spoken against him.” [16][†]These are grumblers, malcontents, [q]following their own sinful desires; [r]they are loud-mouthed boasters, [s]showing favoritism to gain advantage.

A Call to Persevere

[17][†]But you must [t]remember, beloved, the predictions of the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ. [18]They [6] said to you, [u]“In the last time there will be scoffers, following their own ungodly passions.” [19][†]It is these who cause divisions, worldly people, [v]devoid of the Spirit. [20][†]But you, beloved, [w]building yourselves up in your most holy faith and [x]praying in the Holy Spirit, [21][†][y]keep yourselves in the love of God, [z]waiting for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ that leads to eternal life. [22]And have mercy on those who doubt; [23][†]save others by [a]snatching them out of [b]the fire; to others show mercy [c]with fear, hating even [d]the garment [7] stained by the flesh.

Doxology

[24][†][e]Now to him who is able [f]to keep you from stumbling and [g]to present you [h]blameless before the presence of his glory with great joy, [25][†]to [i]the only God, our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, [j]be glory, majesty, dominion, and authority, before all time and now and forever. Amen.

Study Notes for Jude

JUDE—NOTE ON 1–2 Initial Greeting. Although he is Jesus' brother, Jude calls himself Jesus' servant. Jesus is his Lord. He is also the brother of James, who plays a major role in the NT (Acts 12:17; 15:13; 21:18; Gal. 1:19; 2:9, 12). called. See note on Rom. 8:30. Beloved shows the close relationship between God the Father and the readers. Jude reminds the readers that even though false teachers threaten them, they will be kept by God's power from falling away.

FACT

Michael (v. 9) is the only archangel identified by name in Scripture. In the book of Daniel, he is the guardian of God's people (Dan. 10:13, 21; 12:1). He also leads the heavenly army in the fight against the dragon in Rev. 12:7.

JUDE—NOTE ON 3–4 Jude's Appeal: Contend for the Faith. Jude urges his readers to stand for the faith against the false teachers.

JUDE—NOTE ON 3 Beloved. Jude, like Peter, emphasizes his strong personal concern for his readers (see vv. 17, 20; 1 Pet. 2:11; 2 Pet. 3:1). the faith. The truth about Jesus and salvation through him. once for all delivered to the saints (that is, Christians). By this time, the content of "the faith" was established in the teaching of the early church.

JUDE—NOTE ON 4 crept in unnoticed. The false teachers seem to be Christians. Designated translates a Greek word meaning "to write about or identify beforehand." The false teachers did not take God by surprise. He predicted their coming and their condemnation long before they existed. They pervert (that is, twist and distort) God's grace (especially his free forgiveness of sin) into permission for sensuality (see note on 2 Pet. 2:2; compare Rom. 3:8; 6:1, 15; 2 Pet. 3:15–16).

JUDE—NOTE ON 5–16 The Immoral Character and Resulting Judgment of the False Teachers. Jude uses analogies from the OT and Jewish tradition to declare judgment for the false teachers (see v. 13). He also describes the immorality that characterizes this group.

JUDE—NOTE ON 5 Jude's readers once fully knew about God's judgment. Apparently their sense of its certainty has lessened. Jesus . . . saved a people out of the land of Egypt (see Exodus 1–15). This may seem puzzling, because the name "Jesus" does not appear in the OT. This is a clear example of the apostolic understanding of the OT. The Son of God has an eternal divine nature. He was active in the world from the beginning of creation (see John 1:3; 8:56–58; 12:41; Col. 1:16; Heb. 1:8–12). Jesus, then, judged and destroyed those who escaped Egypt but failed to trust God (compare 1 Cor. 10:5; Heb. 3:16–19).

JUDE—NOTE ON 6 angels who did not stay within their own position of authority. God has kept these beings in eternal chains ever since. Some scholars think this refers to the fall of angels from heaven. Others think Jude refers to the sin of angels in Gen. 6:1–4 (see note on 1 Pet. 3:19; see also Jude 14–15).

JUDE—NOTE ON 7 The people of Sodom and Gomorrah (Genesis 19) received the judgment of eternal fire. Smoke rose from the site of Sodom and Gomorrah into the first century A.D. This was taken as a physical symbol of eternal divine judgment. Pursued unnatural desire refers to the homosexual activity in Sodom (Gen. 19:5).

JUDE—NOTE ON 8–10 These people also refers to the false teachers (see chart). They are led astray by relying on their dreams. They follow experiences they claim are from God. Yet these experiences lead them to disobey God's written Word (see v. 18). the glorious ones. Probably evil angels (see note on 2 Pet. 2:10b–11). Even the archangel (chief or leader of angels) Michael did not slander or insult the devil when he disputed with him over the body of Moses. This event is not in the OT. Whatever story Jude refers to has been lost. In any case, Michael did not condemn the devil. He left that to God's authority. He simply told the devil, "The Lord rebuke you." This demonstrates the exclusive power and authority of Jesus Christ, something the false teachers deny (see Jude 4). Christ also gives believers authority over demons (see note on Acts 16:18). Jude's use of a story from nonbiblical literature does not indicate that Jude thought the book was inspired by the Holy Spirit. Elsewhere in the NT, writers quote nonbiblical sources to make a point (see notes on Acts 17:28; Titus 1:12–13).

Jude's Application of Prophecies and Events

Jude often refers to prophecies or events and then applies them to the false teachers with the word "these," thereby showing how these past events and prophecies are to be understood.

Reference	Past event	Application to false teachers	Reference
vv. 5–7	Judgment on Israel, angels, and Sodom and Gomorrah	"these people also"	v. 8
v. 9	Michael did not rebuke the devil	"But these people"	v. 10
v. 11	Cain, Balaam, Korah	"These"	v. 12
vv. 14–15	Enoch's proclamation of judgment	"These"	v. 16
vv. 17–18	Predictions of apostles	"It is these"	v. 19

JUDE—NOTE ON 10 All that they do not understand includes true biblical doctrine about God, angels, and demons, and human sin and forgiveness through Christ. What they understand instinctively, like animals, is how to follow their desires, by which they will ultimately be destroyed.

JUDE—NOTE ON 11 Cain (Gen. 4:5–8), Balaam (Num. 22:5–7; 2 Pet. 2:15), and Korah (Num. 16:1–3, 31–35) were all dissatisfied with what they had in life. They rebelled against God, greedily seeking selfish gain at any cost.

JUDE—NOTE ON 12–13 Jude compares the false teachers to hidden reefs that destroy ships without warning. These opponents of the gospel hide in the church. They share in the love feasts (including the Lord's Supper). They act as if they are Christians. Instead, they are like waterless clouds, promising rain that never falls. They promise fruit but are like fruitless trees. They are like wandering stars (probably meaning planets) that give misleading guidance to travelers.

JUDE—NOTE ON 14–15 Enoch, the seventh from Adam (Gen. 5:18–24; compare 1 Chron. 1:3). Jude describes the coming of the Lord as Enoch prophesied, and he quotes from 1 Enoch 1.9 (see note on Jude 8–10). The quote from Enoch focuses on blasphemy against God (e.g., in vv. 3–4, the opponents' denial of Jesus Christ). to convict. For punishment, not for repentance (as in John 16:8). Jude places great emphasis on the ungodliness of those judged (see note on 2 Pet. 1:6).

JUDE—NOTE ON 16 Jude applies the citation from Enoch to the false teachers, probably using this list of sins to focus on some of their more pronounced and obvious misbehaviors. Grumblers calls to mind the wilderness generation (Ex. 16:7–12; Num. 14:27; 16:41; 17:5). To gain advantage probably refers to financial gain (see Jude 11).

JUDE—NOTE ON 17–25 Concluding Exhortations. Jude stresses the proper response of believers to false teachers.

JUDE—NOTE ON 17–18 beloved. See note on v. 3. the predictions of the apostles. Warnings about false teachers (compare v. 4; Acts 20:29–30; 1 Tim. 4:1–5; 2 Tim. 3:1–5).

JUDE—NOTE ON 19 It is these indicates that the "scoffers" described in v. 18 are the false teachers Jude warns about (see chart). These worldly people . . . cause divisions within the church over many things. They especially cause trouble over morality and doctrine. Devoid of the Spirit is an indication that these opponents are really unbelievers (compare Rom. 8:9; 1 Cor. 2:14).

JUDE—NOTE ON 20 praying in the Holy Spirit. That is, praying in harmony with the leading of the Holy Spirit, rather than according to one's own agenda (see Rom. 8:26–27; Eph. 6:18). The context here is different from the speaking in tongues described in 1 Cor. 14:14–19.

FACT

While Christians wait for the Lord to return, they should be building themselves up in the faith, praying, and showing mercy to doubters and sinners—while also fearing the evil influence of such people (vv. 20–23).

JUDE—NOTE ON 21 keep (or guard) yourselves in the love of God. Christians do this by growing strong doctrinally (v. 20), persevering in prayer (v. 20), and waiting for the Lord's coming. Verses 1–2 and vv. 24–25 teach that God keeps them as well. No true believer will ever lose his or her salvation (see notes on Heb. 6:6; 2 Pet. 1:10).

JUDE—NOTE ON 23 To save some people (that is, to lead them to faith in Christ) involves snatching them out of the fire. They were close to God's judgment. Others who are caught up in immorality should also be shown mercy. This should be done with fear, so that the faithful Christian is not influenced toward evil by the person he is trying to restore. Hating even the garment stained by the flesh (compare Zech. 3:3–5) implies hating the sin and everything connected with it. The sinner, however, should be treated with mercy, not hatred.

JUDE—NOTE ON 24 God has the power to keep from stumbling those who have put their faith in him. By "stumbling" Jude means falling into sin or error. If such behavior continues it will eventually lead to falling away from the faith. God will present the Christian blameless (with no stain or sin). before the presence of his glory. The brightness that surrounds God's presence and visibly shows his holy character. The only possible response to God's work for believers is great joy.

JUDE—NOTE ON 25 the only God. There is only one God. He has acted redemptively (our Savior; see note on 2 Tim. 1:8–10) through Jesus Christ our Lord. Jesus is the mediator between people and God. The church praises God through Christ, saying, to God be glory (great honor), majesty (he is greater than all), dominion (his kingdom has no boundaries), and authority (he rules over all creation). Before all time means before the beginning of creation (Gen. 1:1).

Jesus' ministry, death, resurrection	Temple destroyed	John writes Revelation

Author and Date

Jesus Christ is the divine author of this "revelation" (1:1). He describes coming events to his servant John. John, son of Zebedee, was the "beloved disciple" who also wrote the Fourth Gospel and 1, 2 and 3 John. Most scholars believe John recorded these visions while imprisoned on the island of Patmos in the mid-90s A.D. Revelation is addressed specifically to seven first-century churches in the Roman province of Asia (now western Turkey), but the message is for all churches everywhere.

Theme

The word "Revelation" translates the Greek word apokalypsis, which means "disclosure" or "unveiling." Revelation unveils the unseen spiritual war in which the church is engaged: the cosmic conflict between God and his Christ on the one hand, and Satan and his evil allies (both demonic and human) on the other. In this conflict, Jesus the Lamb has already won the decisive victory through his sacrificial death, but his church continues to be assaulted by the dragon, in its death-throes, through persecution (the beast), deceptive heresy (the false prophet), and the allure of material affluence and cultural approval (the prostitute). By revealing the spiritual realities behind the church's trials and temptations, and by affirming the certainty of Christ's triumph in the new heaven and earth, the visions of Revelation fortify believers to endure suffering. The reader of Revelation is encouraged to stay pure from the defiling enticements of the present world order.

Key Themes

1. Through his sacrificial death, Jesus Christ has conquered Satan, the accuser. Jesus has redeemed people from every nation to become a kingdom of priests, gladly serving in God’s presence (1:5, 18; 5:5–10; 12:1–11).
2. Jesus Christ is present among his churches through his Holy Spirit. He knows their trials, triumphs, and failures (1:12–3:22).
3. World history, including its disasters, is under the control of Jesus, the victorious Lamb (5:1–8:1).
4. God is presently holding back his wrath and preventing his enemies’ efforts to destroy the church. He patiently gathers his redeemed people through their witness for Jesus (6:5–11; 7:1–3; 8:6–12; 9:4–6, 18; 11:3–7; 12:6, 13–17).
5. Present disasters are warnings of increasing judgments to come (6:3–17; 8:6–13; 11:13; 16:1–21; 20:11–15).
6. Believers will continue their faithful testimony to the death. They will conquer both the dragon and the beast. The martyrs’ victory is now hidden, but it will be obvious when Christ returns (2:10–11, 26–29; 3:11–13; 6:9–11; 7:9–17; 11:7–12, 17–18; 12:10–11; 14:1–5; 15:2–4; 20:4–6).
7. Satan attacks the church’s perseverance and purity through persecution, deceptive teaching, and the temptations of wealth and sensual pleasure (2:1–3:22; 13:1–18; 17:1–18:24).
8. At the end of the age, the church’s opponents will increase their persecution. Jesus, the triumphant Word of God, will defeat and destroy all his enemies. The old heaven and earth, marked by sin and suffering, will be replaced by the new heaven and earth. The church will be presented as a pure bride to her husband, the Lamb (16:12–16; 19:11–21; 20:7–22:5).

Outline

Revelation contains four series of seven messages or visions. These include letters to churches (chs. 2–3), seals on a scroll (4:1–8:1), trumpets (8:2–11:19), and bowls of wrath (chs. 15–16). There is a general movement from “the things that are” to “the things that are to take place after this.” Yet the visions sometimes return to subjects from the previous sections. The order in which John received the visions does not necessarily indicate the order of the events they symbolize.

- I. Prologue (1:1–8)
- II. Body (1:9–22:5)
  - A. “Things that are”: Christ’s presence with and knowledge of his churches (1:9–3:22)
  - B. “Things that shall take place after this”: Christ’s defense of his church and destruction of its enemies (4:1–22:5)
- III. Epilogue (22:6–21)

The Setting of Revelation

c. A.D. 95

John addressed the book of Revelation “to the seven churches that are in Asia,” namely Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea, although there were undoubtedly other churches elsewhere in the province of Asia (e.g., Miletus and Colossae, see Acts 20:17; Col. 1:2). John had apparently been exiled from Ephesus to the island of Patmos, southwest of Ephesus, and it was probably there that he recorded his visions.

The Global Message of Revelation

The last book of the Bible explodes with a cosmic celebration of the triumph of God's global purposes in the world.

This triumph takes place amid much suffering, suffering that is intensified as the final end draws near. Yet the resounding note of Revelation is hope, as God's promises come to full completion and the multi-ethnic family of God enters into the new heavens and the new earth.

Revelation and Redemptive History

From Genesis to Revelation. Revelation brings to a final conclusion the entire sweep of redemptive history that began in Eden. The last three chapters of Revelation sum up the history that began in the first three chapters of Genesis. Genesis 1:1 tells us that God created the heavens and the earth; Revelation 21:1 speaks of a new heaven and a new earth. Genesis 3:8 speaks of God dwelling with humanity, and Revelation 21:3 speaks of a restoration of God's dwelling presence. More connections occur—a flowing river, a tree of life, the presence of cosmic light, and more—in both the first three and the last three chapters of the Bible. Eden is being restored. The world is finally being brought to what it was intended to be.

All through Christ. In all this, Christ himself is the one who restores this world to the way it was meant to be. The history of redemption that starts in Genesis passes through Christ to get to Revelation. Indeed, just as God created a bride for the man in Genesis, so Christ himself is the true Bridegroom (Mark 2:19). The marriage of Christ to his people is the reality to which every human marriage points (Eph. 5:31–32). And in Revelation 21, John sees the new Jerusalem "coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband" (Rev. 21:2).

God's international family. Most pertinent of all as we consider the global message of Revelation is the emphasis it gives to the multinational people of God. Jesus Christ is worshiped in Revelation because he "ransomed people for God from every tribe and language and people and nation" (Rev. 5:9). Mankind's pride at Babel caused them to be scattered and given different languages and cultures, yet in his great grace God redeems this diversity and saves a people for himself from all the peoples of the world.

Universal Themes in Revelation

God’s control of world events. Revelation recounts vividly the woes and disasters that will befall the world, both throughout history as well as in an intensified way toward the end of time. Much of the anguish described is directed at God’s people, who are persecuted for their loyalty to Christ. Reading all this in Revelation would produce deep discouragement were it not for the clear teaching that the sovereign hand of God extends to every detail of history. He is the “Sovereign Lord, holy and true,” who one day will “judge and avenge” all injustice toward his people (Rev. 6:10; note also 1:7; 2:1).

God’s defeat of Satan. Through his sacrificial death and victorious resurrection, Jesus Christ has triumphed over Satan, the accuser of God’s people. Though he was slain like a helpless lamb, it was through this suffering that Jesus conquered Satan and wiped away the sins of his people (Rev. 1:5; 5:5–10). Jesus now has “the keys of Death and Hades” (1:18). The accuser has been silenced (12:1–11).

God’s restoration of the cosmos. At the end of Revelation, God’s people do not escape this earth and fly away to heaven. Rather, heaven comes down to earth. The new Jerusalem descends, and God’s people take up residence on the earth with God and the Lamb (Rev. 21:1–22:5). Sin and Satan have been vanquished. Every inch of the globe—all that was touched by the curse—will be restored to its true design and intent (22:3). “Behold, I am making all things new,” says Jesus (21:5).

God’s creation of a global people. “After this I looked, and behold, a great multitude that no one could number, from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes” (Rev. 7:9; see also 5:9). At the end of Revelation we are told that “the kings of the earth” will bring into the new Jerusalem “the glory and the honor of the nations” (21:24, 26). And just as God’s saving grace reaches to every people group on earth, so his righteous judgment and punishment will extend to “all tribes of the earth” who have rejected Jesus (1:7). An integral part of the beauty of the new earth will be the rich diversity of those redeemed by the Lamb from all around the world.

The Global Message of Revelation for Today

The central message of Revelation for the global church today is that, in the cosmic war currently being waged between the forces of good and evil, the outcome is secure. Because Jesus has paid with his life for the sins of his people, Satan’s accusations are emptied of their power. The shed blood of the Lamb means that the sovereign Lord of the universe is now fully able to act on behalf of his people while at the same time upholding his perfect justice.

Ever since his resurrection and ascension, Christ has reigned. Yet Satan’s influence still exists. Revelation depicts the day when Christ’s reign will be made visible as he once and for all conquers Satan and his evil allies. On that day Christ will descend to earth a second time, this time openly as the triumphant Son of God, with the armies of heaven at his side (Rev. 19:11–16). Injustice and misery will be permanently defeated. “He will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and death shall be no more, neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain anymore” (21:4). The Lord’s righteous reign will be established and will extend to every corner of the globe.

In all the challenges that face the global church, this certain truth of Christ’s return and the exacting of perfect justice is the rock on which we stand. Especially in times of adversity, we remember his tender care for his saints. As the church faces internal squabbles, difficult cases of church discipline, or afflicted consciences due to sin, we remember that we are under the Lordship of the one who shed his blood for us. When we are ridiculed, maligned, insulted, or excluded by the world because of our loyalty to Christ, we remember that we are guaranteed that one day we will reign on the earth and will forever share in the resplendent glory of God himself.

From every corner of the globe God’s redeemed people will sing:

> “Great and amazing are your deeds,
> O Lord God the Almighty!
> Just and true are your ways,
> O King of the nations!
> Who will not fear, O Lord,
> and glorify your name?
> For you alone are holy.
> All nations will come > and worship you, > for your righteous acts have been revealed.” (Rev. 15:3–4)

Prologue

REVELATION 1 [†]The revelation of Jesus Christ, which God [a]gave him [b]to show to his servants [1] the things that must soon take place. [c]He made it known by sending his angel to his servant [2] John, [2][d]who bore witness to the word of God and to [e]the testimony of Jesus Christ, even [f]to all that he saw. [3][†][g]Blessed is the one who reads aloud the words of this prophecy, and blessed are those who hear, and who keep what is written in it, [h]for the time is near.

Greeting to the Seven Churches

[4][†]John to the seven churches that are in Asia:

Grace to you and peace from [i]him [j]who is and [k]who was and who is to come, and from [l]the seven spirits who are before his throne, [5]and from Jesus Christ [m]the faithful witness, [n]the firstborn of the dead, and [o]the ruler of kings on earth.

To [p]him who loves us and [q]has freed us from our sins by his blood [6]and made us [r]a kingdom, [r]priests to [s]his God and Father, to him be [t]glory and [u]dominion forever and ever. Amen. [7][†]Behold, [v]he is coming with the clouds, and [w]every eye will see him, even those who pierced him, and all tribes of the earth will wail [3] on account of him. Even so. Amen.

[8][x]"I am the Alpha and the Omega," says the Lord God, [y]"who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty."

Vision of the Son of Man

[9][†]I, John, your brother and [z]partner in [a]the tribulation and [b]the kingdom and [c]the patient endurance that are in Jesus, was on the island called Patmos [d]on account of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus. [10][†][e]I was in the Spirit [f]on the Lord's day, and I heard behind me a loud voice [g]like a trumpet [11][†]saying, [h]"Write what you see in a book and send it to the seven churches, to Ephesus and to Smyrna and to Pergamum and to Thyatira and to Sardis and to Philadelphia and to Laodicea."

[12]Then I turned to see the voice that was speaking to me, and on turning I saw [i]seven golden lampstands, [13][†]and in the midst of the lampstands [j]one like [k]a son of man, [l]clothed with a long robe and [m]with a golden sash around his chest. [14][†] [n]The hairs of his head were white, like white wool, like snow. [o]His eyes were like a flame of fire, [15][†] [p]his feet were like burnished bronze, refined in a furnace, and [q]his voice was like the roar of many waters. [16][†] [r]In his right hand he held seven stars, [s]from his mouth came a sharp two-edged sword, and [t]his face was like the sun shining [u]in full strength.

[17][†] [v]When I saw him, I fell at his feet as though dead. But [v]he laid his right hand on me, [w]saying, “Fear not, [x]I am the first and the last, [18][†]and the living one. [y]I died, and behold I am alive forevermore, and [z]I have the keys of Death and Hades. [19][†] [a]Write therefore [b]the things that you have seen, those that are and those that are to take place after this. [20][†]As for the mystery of the seven stars that you saw in my right hand, and [c]the seven golden lampstands, the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and [d]the seven lampstands are the seven churches.

To the Church in Ephesus

REVELATION 2 [†]“To the angel of the church in Ephesus write: ‘The words of [e]him who holds the seven stars in his right hand, [f]who walks among the seven golden lampstands.

[2] [g]“‘I know your works, your toil and your patient endurance, and how you cannot bear with those who are evil, but [h]have tested those [i]who call themselves apostles and are not, and found them to be false. [3]I know you are enduring patiently and bearing up [j]for my name’s sake, and you [k]have not grown weary. [4][†]But I have this against you, that you have abandoned [l]the love you had at first. [5]Remember therefore from where you have fallen; repent, and do [m]the works you did at first. If not, [n]I will come to you and remove your lampstand from its place, unless you repent. [6][†]Yet this you have: you hate the works of [o]the Nicolaitans, which I also hate.
[7][†] [p]He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

[q] To the one who conquers I will grant to eat of [r] the tree of life, which is in [s] the paradise of God.’

To the Church in Smyrna

[8][†]“And to the angel of the church in Smyrna write: ‘The words of [t] the first and the last, [u] who died and came to life.

[9][†]“‘I know your tribulation and [v] your poverty ([v] but you are rich) and the slander [1] of [w] those who say that they are Jews and are not, but are a synagogue of Satan. [10][†]Do not fear what you are about to suffer. Behold, the devil is about to throw some of you into prison, [w] that you may be tested, and for [x] ten days [y] you will have tribulation. [z] Be faithful [a] unto death, and I will give you [b] the crown of life. [11] [c] He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. [c] The one who conquers will not be hurt by [d] the second death.’

To the Church in Pergamum

[12][†]“And to the angel of the church in Pergamum write: ‘The words of him who has [e] the sharp two-edged sword.

[13][†]“‘I know where you dwell, [f] where Satan’s throne is. Yet you hold fast my name, and you did not [g] deny my faith [2] even in the days of Antipas [h] my faithful witness, who was killed among you, where Satan dwells. [14][†]But I have a few things against you: you have some there who hold the teaching of [i] Balaam, who taught Balak to put a stumbling block before the sons of Israel, so that they might [j] eat food sacrificed to idols and [k] practice sexual immorality. [15]So also you have some who hold the teaching of [l] the Nicolaitans. [16][†]Therefore repent. If not, [m] I will come to you soon and [n] war against them with [e] the sword of my mouth. [17][†] [c] He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. [c] To the one who conquers I will give some of [o] the hidden manna, and I will give him a white stone, with [p] a new name written on the stone [q] that no one knows except the one who receives it.’

To the Church in Thyatira

[18][†]“And to the angel of the church in Thyatira write: ‘The words of the Son of God, [r] who has eyes like a flame of fire, and whose feet are like burnished bronze.
[19][†] [s] “‘I know your works, your love and faith and service and patient endurance, and that your latter works exceed the first. [20]But I have this against you, that you tolerate that woman [t] Jezebel, who calls herself a prophetess and is teaching and seducing my servants [3] [u] to practice sexual immorality and [u] to eat food sacrificed to idols. [21][†]I gave her time to repent, but [v] she refuses to repent of her sexual immorality. [22]Behold, I will throw her onto a sickbed, and those who commit adultery with her I will throw into great tribulation, unless they repent of her works, [23]and I will strike her children dead. And all the churches will know that I am he [w] who searches mind and heart, and [x] I will give to each of you according to your works. [24][†]But to the rest of you in Thyatira, who do not hold this teaching, who have not learned what some call [y] the deep things of Satan, to you I say, I [z] do not lay on you any other burden. [25]Only hold fast [a] what you have until I come. [26][†] [b] The one who conquers and who keeps my works [c] until the end, [d] to him I will give authority over the nations, [27]and [e] he will [f] rule them with a rod of iron, [g] as when earthen pots are broken in pieces, even as I myself have received authority from my Father. [28]And I will give him [h] the morning star. [29] [p] He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.’

To the Church in Sardis

REVELATION 3 [†]“And to the angel of the church in Sardis write: ‘The words of him [i] who has the seven spirits of God and the seven stars.
“‘I know your works. You have the reputation [j] of being alive, [k] but you are dead. [2][†]Wake up, and strengthen what remains and is about to die, for
I have not found your works [l] complete in the sight of my God.
[3] [m] Remember, then, what you received and heard. Keep it, and repent. If you will not wake up, [n] I will come [o] like a thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come against you. [4][†]Yet you have still a few names in Sardis, people who have not [p]soiled their garments, and they will walk with me [q]in white, for they are [r]worthy. [5][s]The one who conquers will be clothed thus in white garments, and I will never [t]blot his name out of [u]the book of life. [v]I will confess his name before my Father and before his angels. [6][p]He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.’

To the Church in Philadelphia

[7][†]“And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write: ‘The words of [w]the holy one, [x]the true one, [y]who has the key of David, [z]who opens and no one will shut, who shuts and no one opens.

[8][†]“‘I know your works. Behold, I have set before you [a]an open door, which no one is able to shut. I know that you have but little power, and yet you have kept my word and have not denied my name. [9][†]Behold, I will make those of [b]the synagogue of Satan who say that they are Jews and are not, but lie—behold, [c]I will make them come and bow down before your feet, and they will learn that [d]I have loved you. [10][†][e]Because you have kept my word about patient endurance, I will keep you from the hour of trial that is coming on the whole world, to try [f]those who dwell on the earth. [11][g]I am coming soon. [h]Hold fast what you have, so that no one may seize [i]your crown. [12][j]The one who conquers, I will make him [k]a pillar in the temple of my God. Never shall he go out of it, and I will write on him [l]the name of my God, and [m]the name of the city of my God, [m]the new Jerusalem, [n]which comes down from my God out of heaven, and my own [o]new name. [13][p]He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.’

To the Church in Laodicea

[14][†]“And to the angel of the church in Laodicea write: ‘The words of the [p]Amen, [q]the faithful and true witness, [r]the beginning of God’s creation.

[15][†]“‘I know your works: you are neither cold nor hot. [s]Would that you were either cold or hot! [16]So, because you are lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will spit you out of my mouth. [17][†][t]For you say, I am rich, I have prospered, and I need nothing, not realizing that you are wretched, pitiable, poor, [u] blind, and naked. 18I counsel you [v] to buy from me gold refined by fire, so that you may be rich, and [w] white garments so that you may clothe yourself and [x] the shame of your nakedness may not be seen, and salve to anoint your eyes, [u] so that you may see. 19[†] [y] Those whom I love, I reprove and discipline, so be zealous and repent. 20Behold, I stand at the door and [z] knock. [a] If anyone hears my voice and opens the door, [b] I will come in to him and eat with him, and he with me. 21[†] [c] The one who conquers, [d] I will grant him to sit with me on my throne, as [e] I also conquered and sat down with my Father on his throne. 22 [p] He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.'"

The Throne in Heaven

REVELATION 4 [†]After this I looked, and behold, a door standing open in heaven! And the first voice, which I had heard speaking to me [f] like a trumpet, said, [g] "Come up here, and [h] I will show you what must take place after this." 2At once [i] I was in the Spirit, and behold, [j] a throne stood in heaven, with one seated on the throne. 3[†]And he who sat there had the appearance of [k] jasper and carnelian, and around the throne was [l] a rainbow that had the appearance of an emerald. 4[†]Around the throne were [m] twenty-four thrones, and seated on the thrones were twenty-four elders, [n] clothed in white garments, with [o] golden crowns on their heads. 5[†]From the throne came [p] flashes of lightning, and rumblings [1] and peals of thunder, and before the throne were burning [q] seven torches of fire, [r] which are the seven spirits of God, 6[†]and before the throne there was [s] as it were a sea of glass, like crystal.

And around the throne, on each side of the throne, are [t] four living creatures, [u] full of eyes in front and behind: 7 [v] the first living creature like a lion, the second living creature like an ox, the third living creature with the face of a man, and the fourth living creature like an eagle in flight. 8And the four living creatures, [w] each of them with six wings, are [x] full of eyes all around and within, and [y] day and night they never cease to say,

[z]“Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord God Almighty,
[a]who was and is and is to come!”

[9][†]And whenever the living creatures give glory and honor and thanks to him who is seated on the throne, [b]who lives forever and ever, [10]the twenty-four elders [c]fall down before him who is seated on the throne and worship him who lives forever and ever. They cast [d]their crowns before the throne, saying,

[11] [e]“Worthy are you, our Lord and God, to receive glory and honor and power,
for [f]you created all things, and [g]by your will they existed and were created.”

The Scroll and the Lamb

REVELATION 5 [†]Then I saw in the right hand of him who was seated on the throne [h]a scroll written within and on the back, [i]sealed with seven seals. [2]And [j]I saw a mighty angel proclaiming with a loud voice, “Who is worthy to open the scroll and break its seals?” [3]And no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth was able to open the scroll or to look into it, [4]and I began to weep loudly because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or to look into it. [5][†]And one of the elders said to me, “Weep no more; behold, [k]the Lion [l]of the tribe of Judah, [m]the Root of David, has conquered, so that he can open the scroll and its seven seals.”

[6][†]And between the throne and the four living creatures and among the elders I saw [n]a Lamb standing, as though it had been slain, with seven horns and with [o]seven eyes, which are [p]the seven spirits of God sent out into all the earth. [7]And he went and took the scroll from the right hand of him who was seated on the throne. [8][†]And when he had taken the scroll, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders [q]fell down before the Lamb, [r]each holding a harp, and [s]golden bowls full of incense, [t]which are the prayers of the saints. [9][†]And they sang [u]a new song, saying,

“Worthy are you to take the scroll and to open its seals, for [v]you were slain, and by your blood [w]you ransomed people for God from [x]every tribe and language and people and nation, 10[†] and you have made them [y]a kingdom and priests to our God, and they shall reign on the earth."

11[†]Then I looked, and I heard around the throne and the living creatures and the elders the voice of many angels, numbering [z]myriads of myriads and thousands of thousands, 12saying with a loud voice,

[a]"Worthy is the Lamb who was slain, to receive power and wealth and wisdom and might and honor and glory and blessing!"

13[†]And I heard [b]every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth and in the sea, and all that is in them, saying,

"To him who sits on the throne and to the Lamb be blessing and honor and glory and might forever and ever!"

14And the four living creatures [c]said, "Amen!" and the elders [d]fell down and worshiped.

The Seven Seals

REVELATION 6 [†]Now I watched when the Lamb opened one of [e]the seven seals, and I heard [f]one of the four living creatures say [g]with a voice like thunder, [h]"Come!" 2And I looked, and behold, [i]a white horse! And [j]its rider had a bow, and [k]a crown was given to him, and he came out [l]conquering, and to conquer.

3[†]When he opened the second seal, I heard [m]the second living creature say, "Come!" 4And out came another horse, [n]bright red. Its rider was permitted [o]to take peace from the earth, so that people should slay one another, and he was given a great sword.

5[†]When he opened the third seal, I heard the [m]third living creature say, "Come!" And I looked, and behold, [p]a black horse! And its rider had a pair of scales in his hand. [6]And I heard what seemed to be a voice in the midst of the four living creatures, saying, [q]“A quart [1] of wheat for a denarius, [2] and three quarts of barley for a denarius, and [r]do not harm the oil and wine!”

[7][†]When he opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of [m]the fourth living creature say, “Come!” [8]And I looked, and behold, [s]a pale horse! And its rider’s name was Death, and Hades followed him. And they were given authority over a fourth of the earth, to kill [t]with sword and with famine and with pestilence and [u]by wild beasts of the earth.

[9][†]When he opened the fifth seal, I saw under [v]the altar [w]the souls of those who had been slain [x]for the word of God and for [y]the witness they had borne. [10]They cried out with a loud voice, “O Sovereign Lord, [z]holy and true, [a]how long [b]before you will judge and [c]avenge our blood on [d]those who dwell on the earth?” [11]Then they were each given [e]a white robe and [f]told to rest a little longer, [g]until the number of their fellow servants [3] and their brothers [4] [h]should be complete, who were to be killed as they themselves had been.

[12][†]When he opened the sixth seal, I looked, and behold, [i]there was a great earthquake, and [j]the sun became black as [k]sackcloth, the full moon became like blood, [13][†]and [l]the stars of the sky fell to the earth [m]as the fig tree sheds its winter fruit when shaken by a gale. [14][n]The sky vanished [m]like a scroll that is being rolled up, and [o]every mountain and island was removed from its place. [15]Then the kings of the earth and the great ones and the generals and the rich and the powerful, and everyone, slave [5] and free, [p]hid themselves in the caves and among the rocks of the mountains, [16][q]calling to the mountains and rocks, “Fall on us and hide us from the face of [r]him who is seated on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb, [17]for [s]the great day of their wrath has come, and [t]who can stand?”

The 144,000 of Israel Sealed

REVELATION 7 [†]After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back [u] the four winds of the earth, [v] that no wind might blow on earth or sea or against any tree. [2]Then I saw another angel ascending [w] from the rising of the sun, with [x] the seal of the living God, and he called with a loud voice to the four angels who had been given power to harm earth and sea, [3]saying, [y] “Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees, until we have sealed the servants [1] of our God [z] on their foreheads.” [4][†]And [a] I heard the number of the sealed, 144,000, sealed from every tribe of the sons of Israel:

[5] 12,000 from the tribe of Judah were sealed,
12,000 from the tribe of Reuben,
12,000 from the tribe of Gad,
[6] 12,000 from the tribe of Asher,
12,000 from the tribe of Naphtali,
12,000 from the tribe of Manasseh,
[7] 12,000 from the tribe of Simeon,
12,000 from the tribe of Levi,
12,000 from the tribe of Issachar,
[8] 12,000 from the tribe of Zebulun,
12,000 from the tribe of Joseph,
12,000 from the tribe of Benjamin were sealed.

A Great Multitude from Every Nation

[9][†]After this I looked, and behold, [b] a great multitude that no one could number, [c] from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, [d] clothed in white robes, with [e] palm branches in their hands, [10]and crying out with a loud voice, [f] “Salvation belongs to our God who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb!” [11]And all the angels were standing around the throne and around the elders and [g] the four living creatures, and they [h] fell on their faces before the throne and worshiped God, [12] [i] saying, “Amen! Blessing and glory and wisdom and thanksgiving and honor and power and might be to our God forever and ever! Amen.”

[13][†]Then one of the elders addressed me, saying, “Who are these, [d]clothed in white robes, and from where have they come?” [14]I said to him, “Sir, you know.” And he said to me, “These are the ones coming out of [j]the great tribulation. [k]They have washed their robes and [l]made them white [m]in the blood of the Lamb.

[15][†] “Therefore they are before the throne of God, and [n]serve him day and night in his temple;
and he who sits on the throne [o]will shelter them with his presence.
[16] [p]They shall hunger no more, neither thirst anymore;
[q]the sun shall not strike them, nor any scorching heat.
[17] For the Lamb in the midst of the throne [r]will be their shepherd, and he will guide them to springs of [s]living water, and [t]God will wipe away every tear from their eyes.”

The Seventh Seal and the Golden Censer

REVELATION 8 [†]When the Lamb opened [u]the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for about half an hour. [2][†]Then I saw the seven angels [v]who stand before God, and seven trumpets were given to them. [3][†]And another angel came and stood [w]at the altar with a golden censer, and he was given much incense to offer with [x]the prayers of all the saints on [y]the golden altar before the throne, [4]and [z]the smoke of the incense, with the prayers of the saints, rose before God from the hand of the angel. [5]Then the angel took the censer and [a]filled it with fire from the altar and threw it on the earth, and [b]there were peals of [c]thunder, rumblings, [1] flashes of lightning, and an earthquake.

The Seven Trumpets

[6][†]Now the seven angels who had the seven trumpets prepared to blow them.

[7]The first angel blew his trumpet, and there followed [d]hail and [e]fire, mixed with blood, and these were thrown upon the earth. And a [f]third of the earth was burned up, and a third of [g]the trees were burned up, and all green grass was burned up.

[8][†]The second angel blew his trumpet, and something like [h]a great mountain, burning with fire, was thrown into the sea, and a third of the sea [i]became blood. [9]A third of the living creatures in the sea died, and a third of [j]the ships were destroyed.

[10][†]The third angel blew his trumpet, and [k]a great star fell from heaven, blazing like a torch, and it fell on a third of the rivers and on [l]the springs of water. [11]The name of the star is Wormwood. [2] A third of the waters [m]became wormwood, and many people died from the water, [n]because it had been made bitter.

[12][†]The fourth angel blew his trumpet, and a third of [o]the sun was struck, and a third of the moon, and a third of the stars, so that a third of their light might be darkened, and a third of the day might be kept from shining, and likewise a third of the night.

[13][†]Then I looked, and I heard an eagle crying with a loud voice as it flew directly overhead, [p]"Woe, woe, woe to those who dwell on the earth, at the blasts of the other trumpets that the three angels are about to blow!"

REVELATION 9 [†]And the fifth angel blew his trumpet, and [q]I saw a star fallen from heaven to earth, and he was given [r]the key to the shaft of [s]the bottomless pit. [1] [2][†]He opened the shaft of the bottomless pit, and from the shaft [t]rose smoke like the smoke of a great furnace, and [u]the sun and the air were darkened with the smoke from the shaft. [3]Then from the smoke came [v]locusts on the earth, and they were given power like the power of scorpions of the earth. [4][†]They were told [w]not to harm [x]the grass of the earth or any green plant or any tree, but only those people who do not have [y]the seal of God on their foreheads. [5]They were allowed to torment them [z]for five months, but not to kill them, and their torment was like the torment of a scorpion when it stings someone. [6]And in those days [a]people will seek death and will not find it. They will long to die, but death will flee from them.

7 [b]In appearance the locusts were like horses prepared for battle: [c]on their heads were what looked like crowns of gold; their faces were [d]like human faces, 8their hair like women’s hair, and [e]their teeth like lions’ teeth; 9they had breastplates like breastplates of iron, and the noise of their wings was [f]like the noise of many chariots with [g]horses rushing into battle. 10They have tails and stings like scorpions, and their power to hurt people [h]for five months is in their tails. 11[†]They have [i]as king over them the angel of the bottomless pit. His name in Hebrew is [j]Abaddon, and in Greek he is called Apollyon. [2]

12 [k]The first woe has passed; behold, two woes are still to come.

13[†]Then the sixth angel blew his trumpet, and I heard a voice from [l]the four horns of the golden altar before God, 14saying to the sixth angel who had the trumpet, “Release [m]the four angels who are bound at [n]the great river Euphrates.” 15So the four angels, who had been prepared for the hour, the day, the month, and the year, were released [o]to kill a third of mankind. 16[†]The number of [p]mounted troops was [q]twice ten thousand times ten thousand; [r]I heard their number. 17And this is how I saw the horses in my vision and those who rode them: they wore breastplates the color of fire and of sapphire [3] and of sulfur, and the heads of the horses were [s]like lions’ heads, and fire and smoke and sulfur came out of their mouths. 18By these three plagues a third of mankind was killed, by the fire and smoke and sulfur coming out of their mouths. 19For the power of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails, for their tails are like serpents with heads, and by means of them they wound.

20[†]The rest of mankind, who were not killed by these plagues, [t]did not repent of [u]the works of their hands nor give up worshiping [v]demons [w]and idols of gold and silver and bronze and stone and wood, which cannot see or hear or walk, 21nor did they repent of their murders or their [x]sorceries or their sexual immorality or their thefts.

The Angel and the Little Scroll

REVELATION 10 [†]Then I saw another mighty angel coming down from heaven, wrapped in a cloud, with [y]a rainbow over his head, and [z]his face was like the sun, and [a]his legs like pillars of fire. [2][†] [b]He had a little scroll open in his hand. And he set his right foot on the sea, and his left foot on the land, [3]and called out with a loud voice, [c]like a lion roaring. When he called out, the seven thunders sounded. [4]And when the seven thunders had sounded, I was about to write, but I heard a voice from heaven saying, [d]"Seal up what the seven thunders have said, and do not write it down." [5][†]And the angel whom I saw standing on the sea and on the land [e]raised his right hand to heaven [6]and swore by [f]him who lives forever and ever, [g]who created heaven and what is in it, the earth and what is in it, and the sea and what is in it, that there would be no more delay, [7]but that [h]in the days of the trumpet call to be sounded by the seventh angel, the mystery of God would be fulfilled, [i]just as he announced to his servants [1] the prophets.

[8][†]Then the voice that I had heard from heaven spoke to me again, saying, "Go, take the scroll that is open in the hand of the angel who is standing on the sea and on the land." [9]So I went to the angel and told him to give me the little scroll. And he said to me, [j]"Take and [k]eat it; it will make your stomach bitter, but in your mouth it will be sweet as honey." [10]And I took the little scroll from the hand of the angel and ate it. It was sweet as honey in my mouth, but when I had eaten it my stomach was made bitter. [11]And I was told, [l]"You must again prophesy about many peoples and nations and languages and kings."

The Two Witnesses

REVELATION 11 [†]Then I was given [m]a measuring rod like a staff, and I was told, "Rise and measure the temple of God and the altar and those who worship there, [2]but do not measure [n]the court outside the temple; leave that out, for [o]it is given over to the nations, and they will trample the holy city for [p]forty-two months. [3][†]And I will grant authority to my two witnesses, and they will prophesy for [p]1,260 days, [q]clothed in sackcloth."

[4][†]These are [r]the two olive trees and the two lampstands that stand before the Lord of the earth. [5][†]And if anyone would harm them, [s]fire pours from their mouth and consumes their foes. If anyone would harm them, [t]this is how he is doomed to be killed. [6]They have the power [u]to shut the sky, that no rain may fall during the days of their prophesying, and they have power over the waters to turn them into blood and [v] to strike the earth with every kind of plague, as often as they desire. [7][†]And when they have finished their testimony, [w] the beast that rises from [x] the bottomless pit [1] [y] will make war on them and conquer them and kill them, [8]and their dead bodies will lie in the street of the great city that symbolically [2] is called [z] Sodom and [a] Egypt, where their Lord was crucified. [9]For three and a half days some from the peoples and tribes and languages and nations will gaze at their dead bodies and [b] refuse to let them be placed in a tomb, [10]and [c] those who dwell on the earth will rejoice over them and make merry and [d] exchange presents, because these two prophets [e] had been a torment to those who dwell on the earth. [11][†]But after the three and a half days [f] a breath of life from God entered them, and they stood up on their feet, and great fear fell on those who saw them. [12]Then they heard a loud voice from heaven saying to them, [g] "Come up here!" And [h] they went up to heaven [i] in a cloud, and their enemies watched them. [13]And at that hour there was [j] a great earthquake, and [k] a tenth of the city fell. Seven thousand people were killed in the earthquake, and the rest were terrified and [l] gave glory to [m] the God of heaven.

[14] [n] The second woe has passed; behold, the third woe is soon to come.

The Seventh Trumpet

[15][†]Then [o] the seventh angel blew his trumpet, and [p] there were loud voices in heaven, saying, [q] "The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of [r] his Christ, and [s] he shall reign forever and ever." [16]And the twenty-four elders [t] who sit on their thrones before God [u] fell on their faces and worshiped God, [17]saying,

"We give thanks to you, Lord God Almighty, [v] who is and who was,
for you have taken your great power and [w] begun to reign.
[18] The nations raged, but [x] your wrath came,

and [y] the time for the dead to be judged, and for rewarding your servants, [3] the prophets and saints, and [z] those who fear your name,
both small and great,
and [a] for destroying the destroyers of the earth.”

[19][†]Then [b] God’s temple in heaven was opened, and [c] the ark of his covenant was seen within his temple. There were flashes of lightning, rumblings, [4] peals of thunder, an earthquake, and [d] heavy hail.

The Woman and the Dragon

REVELATION 12 [†]And a great sign appeared in heaven: a woman [e] clothed with [f] the sun, with [f] the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars. [2]She was pregnant and [g] was crying out in birth pains and the agony of giving birth. [3][†]And another sign appeared in heaven: behold, a great [h] red dragon, [i] with seven heads and [j] ten horns, and on his heads [k] seven diadems. [4][†]His tail swept down [l] a third of the stars of heaven and [m] cast them to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman who was about to give birth, so that when she bore her child [n] he might devour it. [5][†]She gave birth to a male child, [o] one who is to rule all the nations with a rod of iron, but her child was [p] caught up to God and to his throne, [6][†]and the woman fled into the wilderness, where she has a place prepared by God, in which she is to be nourished for [q] 1,260 days.

Satan Thrown Down to Earth

[7][†]Now war arose in heaven, [r] Michael and [s] his angels fighting against the dragon. And the dragon and his angels fought back, [8][†]but he was defeated, and there was no longer any place for them in heaven. [9]And [t] the great dragon was thrown down, [u] that ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, [v] the deceiver of the whole world—[w] he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him. [10]And I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying, “Now [x] the salvation and the power and the kingdom of our God and the authority of his Christ have come, for the accuser of our brothers [1] has been thrown down, [y] who accuses them day and night before our God. 11And [z] they have conquered him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony, for [a] they loved not their lives [b] even unto death. 12[†]Therefore, [c] rejoice, O heavens and you who dwell in them! But [d] woe to you, O earth and sea, for the devil has come down to you in great wrath, because [e] he knows that his time is short!”

13And when the dragon saw that he had been thrown down to the earth, he pursued [f] the woman who had given birth to the male child. 14[†]But the woman was given the two [g] wings of the great eagle so that she might fly from the serpent [h] into the wilderness, to the place where she is to be nourished [i] for a time, and times, and half a time. 15[†]The serpent poured water [j] like a river out of his mouth after the woman, to sweep her away with a flood. 16But the earth came to the help of the woman, and the earth opened its mouth and swallowed the river that the dragon had poured from his mouth. 17[†]Then the dragon became furious with the woman and went off [k] to make war on the rest of [l] her offspring, [m] on those who keep the commandments of God and hold to [n] the testimony of Jesus. And he stood [2] on the sand of the sea.

The First Beast

REVELATION 13 [†]And I saw a beast rising out of the sea, [o] with ten horns and seven heads, with ten diadems on its horns and [p] blasphemous names on its heads. 2And the beast that I saw was [q] like a leopard; its feet were like [r] a bear’s, and its mouth was like [s] a lion’s mouth. And to it [t] the dragon gave his power and [u] his throne and great authority. 3[†]One of its heads seemed to have a mortal wound, but its mortal wound was healed, and [v] the whole earth marveled as they followed the beast. 4[†]And they worshiped the dragon, for he had given his authority to the beast, and they worshiped the beast, saying, [w] “Who is like the beast, and who can fight against it?”

5[†]And the beast was given [x] a mouth uttering haughty and blasphemous words, and it was allowed to exercise authority for [y] forty-two months. 6[†]It opened its mouth to utter blasphemies against God, blaspheming his name and his dwelling, [1] that is, those who dwell in heaven. 7Also it was allowed [z] to make war on the saints and to conquer them. [2] And authority was given it over every tribe and people and language and nation, 8[†]and all [a] who dwell on earth will worship it, everyone whose name has not been written before the foundation of the world in [b] the book of life of [c] the Lamb [d] who was slain. 9[†] [e] If anyone has an ear, let him hear:

10 [f] If anyone is to be taken captive, to captivity he goes;
[g] if anyone is to be slain with the sword, with the sword must he be slain.

[h] Here is a call for the endurance and faith of the saints.

The Second Beast

11[†]Then [i] I saw another beast rising out of the earth. It had two horns like a lamb and it spoke like a dragon. 12It exercises all the authority of the first beast in its presence, [3] and makes the earth and its inhabitants worship the first beast, [j] whose mortal wound was healed. 13[†] [k] It performs great signs, even [l] making fire come down from heaven to earth in front of people, 14[†]and by the signs that it is allowed to work in the presence of [4] the beast [m] it deceives those who dwell on earth, telling them to make an image for the beast [n] that was wounded by the sword and yet lived. 15And it was allowed to give breath to the image of the beast, so that the image of the beast might even speak and might cause those who would not [o] worship the image of the beast [p] to be slain. 16[†]Also it causes all, both small and great, both rich and poor, both free and slave, [5] [q] to be marked on the right hand or the forehead, 17so that no one can buy or sell unless he has the mark, that is, [r] the name of the beast or [s] the number of its name. 18[†] [t] This calls for wisdom: let the one who has understanding calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number [u] of a man, and his number is 666. [6]

The Lamb and the 144,000

REVELATION 14 [†]Then I looked, and behold, on [v]Mount Zion [w]stood the Lamb, and with him [x]144,000 who [y]had his name and his Father’s name written [z]on their foreheads. [2]And I heard a voice from heaven [a]like the roar of many waters and [b]like the sound of loud thunder. The voice I heard was like the sound of [c]harpists playing on their harps, [3][†]and they were singing [d]a new song before the throne and before the four living creatures and before the elders. [e]No one could learn that song except the 144,000 who had been redeemed from the earth. [4][†]It is these who have not defiled themselves with women, for [f]they are virgins. It is these [g]who follow the Lamb wherever he goes. These have been redeemed from mankind as [h]firstfruits for God and the Lamb, [5]and [i]in their mouth no lie was found, for they are [j]blameless.

The Messages of the Three Angels

[6]Then I saw another angel [k]flying directly overhead, with an eternal gospel to proclaim to [l]those who dwell on earth, to every nation and tribe and language and people. [7]And he said with a loud voice, [m]“Fear God and [n]give him glory, because the hour of his judgment has come, and [o]worship him who made heaven and earth, the sea and the [p]springs of water.”

[8][†]Another angel, a second, followed, saying, [q]“Fallen, fallen is [r]Babylon the great, [s]she who made all nations drink [t]the wine of the passion [1] of her sexual immorality.”

[9][†]And another angel, a third, followed them, saying with a loud voice, “If anyone [u]worships the beast and its image and receives [v]a mark on his forehead or on his hand, [10]he also will drink [w]the wine of God’s wrath, [x]poured full strength into the cup of his anger, and [y]he will be tormented with fire and sulfur in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. [11]And [z]the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever, and [a]they have no rest, day or night, these [u]worshipers of the beast and its image, and whoever receives the mark of its name.”

[12] [b]Here is a call for the endurance of the saints, those who [c]keep the commandments of God and their faith in Jesus. [2]

[13]And I heard a voice from heaven saying, “Write this: [d]Blessed are the dead [e]who die in the Lord from now on.” “Blessed indeed,” says the Spirit, [f]“that they may rest from their labors, for their deeds follow them!”

The Harvest of the Earth

[14][†]Then I looked, and behold, a white cloud, and seated on the cloud one [g]like a son of man, [h]with a golden crown on his head, and a sharp sickle in his hand. [15][†]And another angel [i]came out of the temple, calling with a loud voice to him who sat on the cloud, [j]“Put in your sickle, and reap, for the hour to reap has come, for [k]the harvest of the earth is fully ripe.” [16]So he who sat on the cloud swung his sickle across the earth, and the earth was reaped.

[17][†]Then another angel came out of the temple in heaven, and he too had a sharp sickle. [18]And another angel came out from the altar, [l]the angel who has authority over the fire, and he called with a loud voice to the one who had the sharp sickle, “Put in your sickle and gather the clusters from the vine of the earth, [m]for its grapes are ripe.” [19]So the angel swung his sickle across the earth and gathered the grape harvest of the earth and threw it into the great [n]winepress of the wrath of God. [20]And [o]the winepress was trodden [p]outside the city, and blood flowed from the winepress, as high as [q]a horse’s bridle, for 1,600 stadia. [3]

The Seven Angels with Seven Plagues

REVELATION 15 [†]Then [r]I saw another sign in heaven, great and amazing, [s]seven angels with seven plagues, which are the last, for with them the wrath of God is finished.

[2][†]And I saw [t]what appeared to be a sea of glass mingled with fire—and also those [u]who had conquered the beast and its image and [v]the number of its name, standing beside the sea of glass [w]with harps of God in their hands. [3][†]And they sing [x]the song of Moses, [y]the servant [1] of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying,

[z]“Great and amazing are your deeds,
O Lord God the Almighty!
[a]Just and true are your ways,
O King of the nations! [2]
4 [b]Who will not fear, O Lord,
and glorify your name?
For you alone are [c]holy.
[d]All nations will come and worship you,
for your righteous acts have been revealed.”

[5][†]After this I looked, and [e]the sanctuary of [f]the tent [3] of witness in heaven was opened, [6][†]and out of the sanctuary came [g]the seven angels with the seven plagues, clothed in pure, bright [i]linen, [j]with golden sashes around their chests. [7]And one of [k]the four living creatures gave to the seven angels seven [l]golden bowls full of the wrath of God [m]who lives forever and ever, [8][†]and [n]the sanctuary was filled with smoke from the glory of God and from his power, and [o]no one could enter the sanctuary until the seven plagues of the seven angels were finished.

The Seven Bowls of God’s Wrath

REVELATION 16 [†]Then I heard a loud voice from the temple telling [p]the seven angels, “Go and [q]pour out on the earth [r]the seven bowls of the wrath of God."

[2][†]So the first angel went and poured out his bowl on the earth, and harmful and painful [s] sores came upon the people who bore [t] the mark of the beast and worshiped its image.

[3][†]The second angel poured out his bowl into the sea, and [u] it became like the blood of a corpse, and [v] every living thing died that was in the sea.

[4][†]The third angel poured out his bowl into [w] the rivers and the springs of water, and [x] they became blood. [5]And I heard the angel in charge of the waters [1] say,

[y] "Just are you, [z] O Holy One, [a] who is and who was,
for you brought these judgments.
[6] For [b] they have shed the blood of [c] saints and prophets, and [d] you have given them blood to drink.
It is what they deserve!"

[7]And I heard [e] the altar saying,

"Yes, Lord God the Almighty, [f] true and just are your judgments!"

[8][†]The fourth angel poured out his bowl on the sun, and it was allowed to scorch people [g] with fire. [9]They were scorched by the fierce heat, and [h] they cursed [2] the name of God who had power over these plagues. [i] They did not repent [j] and give him glory.

[10][†]The fifth angel poured out his bowl on [k] the throne of the beast, and [l] its kingdom was plunged into darkness. People gnawed their tongues in anguish [11]and cursed [m] the God of heaven for their pain and [n] sores. [o] They did not repent of their deeds.

[12][†]The sixth angel poured out his bowl on [p] the great river Euphrates, and [q] its water was dried up, [r] to prepare the way for the kings [s] from the east. [13]And I saw, coming out of the mouth of [t] the dragon and out of the mouth of [u] the beast and out of the mouth of [v] the false prophet, three [w] unclean spirits like [x] frogs. [14]For they are [y] demonic spirits, [z] performing signs, who go abroad to the kings of the whole world, [a] to assemble them for battle on [b] the great day of God the Almighty. 15[†](“Behold, [c] I am coming like a thief! [d] Blessed is the one who stays awake, keeping his garments on, [e] that he may not go about naked and be seen exposed!”) 16[†]And [f] they assembled them at the place that in Hebrew is called [g] Armageddon.

The Seventh Bowl

17[†]The seventh angel poured out his bowl into [h] the air, and a loud voice came out of the temple, from the throne, saying, [i] “It is done!” 18And there were [j] flashes of lightning, rumblings, [3] peals of thunder, and [k] a great earthquake [l] such as there had never been since man was on the earth, so great was that earthquake. 19 [m] The great city [n] was split into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell, and God [o] remembered [p] Babylon the great, [q] to make her drain the cup of the wine of the fury of his wrath. 20And [r] every island fled away, and no mountains were to be found. 21And [s] great hailstones, about one hundred pounds [4] each, fell from heaven on people; and [t] they cursed God for [u] the plague of the hail, because the plague was so severe.

The Great Prostitute and the Beast

REVELATION 17 [†]Then [v] one of the seven angels who had [w] the seven bowls came and said to me, “Come, I will show you the judgment of [x] the great prostitute [y] who is seated on many waters, 2[†] [z] with whom the kings of the earth have committed sexual immorality, and [a] with the wine of whose sexual immorality [b] the dwellers on earth have become drunk.” 3[†]And [c] he carried me away in the Spirit [d] into a wilderness, and I saw a woman sitting on [e] a scarlet beast that was full of [f] blasphemous names, and [g] it had seven heads and ten horns. 4[†]The woman [h] was arrayed in purple and scarlet, and adorned [i] with gold and jewels and pearls, holding in her hand [j] a golden cup full of abominations and the impurities of her sexual immorality. 5And on her forehead was written a name of [k] mystery: [l] “Babylon the great, mother of prostitutes and of earth’s abominations.”

6[†]And I saw the woman, drunk [m]with the blood of the saints, the blood of [n]the martyrs of Jesus. [1]

When I saw her, I marveled greatly. 7But the angel said to me, “Why do you marvel? I will tell you [o]the mystery of the woman, and of the beast with seven heads and ten horns that carries her. 8[†]The beast that you saw [p]was, and is not, and [q]is about to rise from [r]the bottomless pit [2] and [s]go to destruction. And [t]the dwellers on earth whose names have not been written in [u]the book of life from the foundation of the world will marvel to see the beast, because [p]it was and is not and is to come. 9[†] [v]This calls for a mind with wisdom: the seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman is seated; 10they are also seven kings, five of whom have fallen, one is, the other has not yet come, and when he does come he must remain only a little while. 11As for the beast [w]that was and is not, it is an eighth but it belongs to the seven, and it goes to destruction. 12[†]And [x]the ten horns that you saw are ten kings who have not yet received royal power, but they are to receive authority as kings [y]for one hour, together with the beast. 13These are of one mind, and they hand over their power and authority to the beast. 14They [z]will make war on the Lamb, and [a]the Lamb will conquer them, for he is [b]Lord of lords and [b]King of kings, and those with him are [c]called and chosen and faithful.”

15And the angel [3] said to me, [d]“The waters that you saw, where the prostitute is seated, are peoples and multitudes and nations and languages. 16[†]And [e]the ten horns that you saw, they and the beast [f]will hate the prostitute. They will make her [g]desolate and [h]naked, and [i]devour her flesh and [j]burn her up with fire, 17for [k]God has put it into their hearts to carry out his purpose by being of one mind and [l]handing over their royal power to the beast, until the words of God are fulfilled. 18[†]And the woman that you saw is [m]the great city that has dominion over the kings of the earth.”

The Fall of Babylon

REVELATION 18 [†]After this I saw [n]another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority, and [o]the earth was made bright with his glory. 2And he called out with a mighty voice, [p]“Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great!

She has become [q] a dwelling place for demons,
a haunt [r] for every unclean spirit,
a haunt [s] for every unclean bird,
a haunt for every unclean and detestable beast.
3 For all nations have drunk [1]
[t] the wine of the passion of her sexual immorality, and [u] the kings of the earth have committed immorality with her, and [v] the merchants of the earth have grown rich from the power of her luxurious living.”

4[†]Then I heard another voice from heaven saying,

[w]“Come out of her, my people, lest you take part in her sins,
lest you share in her plagues;
5 for [x] her sins are heaped high as heaven, and [y] God has remembered her iniquities.
6[†] [z] Pay her back as she herself has paid back others, and repay her [a] double for her deeds;
mix a double portion for her [b] in the cup she mixed.
7[†] [c] As she glorified herself and lived in luxury, so give her a like measure of torment and mourning, since in her heart she says,
[d]‘I sit as a queen,
I am no widow,
and mourning I shall never see.’
8 For this reason her plagues will come [e] in a single day, death and mourning and famine, and [f] she will be burned up with fire;
for [g] mighty is the Lord God who has judged her.”

9[†]And [h] the kings of the earth, who committed sexual immorality and lived in luxury with her, [i] will weep and wail over her [j] when they see the smoke of her burning. 10 [k] They will stand far off, in fear of her torment, and say, “Alas! Alas! [l] You great city, you mighty city, Babylon!

For [m] in a single hour your judgment has come.”

11 And [n] the merchants of the earth weep and mourn for her, since no one buys their cargo anymore, 12 [†] cargo of gold, silver, jewels, pearls, fine linen, purple cloth, silk, scarlet cloth, all kinds of scented wood, all kinds of articles of ivory, all kinds of articles of costly wood, bronze, iron and marble, 13 cinnamon, spice, incense, myrrh, frankincense, wine, oil, fine flour, wheat, cattle and sheep, horses and chariots, and slaves, that is, human souls. [2]

14 “The fruit for which your soul longed has gone from you, and all your delicacies and your splendors are lost to you, never to be found again!”

15 [o] The merchants of these wares, who gained wealth from her, [p] will stand far off, in fear of her torment, weeping and mourning aloud,

16 “Alas, alas, for the great city
  [q] that was clothed in fine linen, in purple and scarlet,
  adorned with gold,
    with jewels, and with pearls!
17 For [r] in a single hour all this wealth [s] has been laid waste.”

And [t] all shipmasters and seafaring men, sailors and all whose trade is on the sea, stood far off 18 and [u] cried out [v] as they saw the smoke of her burning,

[w] “What city was like the great city?”

[19]And they threw [x]dust on their heads as they wept and mourned, crying out,

“Alas, alas, for the great city
[y]where all who had ships at sea grew rich by her wealth!
For [z]in a single hour she has been laid waste.
[20][†] [a]Rejoice over her, O heaven, and you saints and [b]apostles and prophets, for [c]God has given judgment for you against her!”

[21][†]Then [d]a mighty angel [e]took up a stone like a great millstone and threw it into the sea, saying,

“So will Babylon [f]the great city be thrown down with violence, and will be found no more;
[22] and [g]the sound of harpists and musicians, of flute players and trumpeters, will be heard in you no more,
and a craftsman of any craft will be found in you no more, and [h]the sound of the mill
will be heard in you no more, [23] and the light of a lamp will shine in you no more, and [i]the voice of bridegroom and bride
will be heard in you no more,
for [j]your merchants were the great ones of the earth, and all nations were deceived [k]by your sorcery.
[24][†] And [l]in her was found the blood of prophets and of saints, and of [m]all who have been slain on earth.”

Rejoicing in Heaven

REVELATION 19 [†]After this I heard [n]what seemed to be the loud voice of a great multitude in heaven, crying out, “Hallelujah!

[o] Salvation and glory and power belong to our God,
[2] for [p] his judgments are true and just;
for he has judged [q] the great prostitute who corrupted the earth with her immorality, and [r] has avenged on her the blood of his servants.” [1]

[3][†]Once more they cried out,

“Hallelujah!
[s] The smoke from her goes up forever and ever.”

[4][†]And [t] the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshiped God who was seated on the throne, saying, “Amen. Hallelujah!” [5][†]And from the throne came a voice saying, [u] “Praise our God,

all you his servants,
[v] you who fear him,
small and great.”

The Marriage Supper of the Lamb

[6][†]Then I heard what seemed to be [w] the voice of a great multitude, like [x] the roar of many waters and [y] like the sound of mighty peals of thunder, crying out, “Hallelujah!

For the Lord our God
the Almighty [z] reigns.
[7][†] Let us rejoice and exult and give him the glory, for [a] the marriage of the Lamb has come,
and [b] his Bride has made herself ready;
[8] [c] it was granted her to clothe herself with fine linen, bright and pure”— for the fine linen is [d]the righteous deeds of the saints.

[9][†]And the angel said [2] to me, “Write this: [e]Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.” And he said to me, [f]“These are the true words of God.” [10]Then [g]I fell down at his feet to worship him, [h]but he said to me, “You must not do that! I am a fellow servant [3] with you and your brothers who hold to [i]the testimony of Jesus. Worship God.” For the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy.

The Rider on a White Horse

[11][†]Then I saw [j]heaven opened, and behold, [k]a white horse! The one sitting on it is called [l]Faithful and True, and [m]in righteousness he judges and makes war. [12][†][n]His eyes are like a flame of fire, and on his head are [o]many diadems, and he has [p]a name written that no one knows but himself. [13]He is clothed in [q]a robe dipped in [4] blood, and the name by which he is called is [r]The Word of God. [14][†]And the armies of heaven, [s]arrayed in fine linen, white and pure, [t]were following him on white horses. [15][†][u]From his mouth comes a sharp sword [v]with which to strike down the nations, and [w]he will rule them with a rod of iron. [x]He will tread the winepress of the fury of the wrath of God the Almighty. [16]On his robe and on his thigh [y]he has a name written, [z]King of kings and Lord of lords.

[17][†]Then I saw an angel standing in the sun, and with a loud voice he called to [a]all the birds that fly directly overhead, [b]“Come, gather for [c]the great supper of God, [18][d]to eat the flesh of kings, the flesh of captains, the flesh of mighty men, the flesh of horses and their riders, and the flesh of all men, both free and slave, [5] both small and great.” [19]And I saw [e]the beast and the kings of the earth with their armies [f]gathered to make war against him who was sitting on the horse and against his army. [20][†]And the beast was captured, and with it [g]the false prophet [h]who in its presence [6] had done the signs by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who [i]worshiped its image. These two were [j]thrown alive into the lake of [k]fire that burns with sulfur. [21][†]And the rest were slain by the sword [l]that came from the mouth of him who was sitting on the horse, and [m]all the birds were gorged with their flesh.

The Thousand Years

REVELATION 20 [†]Then I saw an angel coming down from heaven, [n]holding in his hand the key to [o]the bottomless pit [1] and a great chain. [2]And he seized [p]the dragon, that ancient serpent, who is the devil and Satan, and [q]bound him for a thousand years, [3]and threw him into [o]the pit, and shut it and [r]sealed it over him, so that [s]he might not deceive the nations any longer, until the thousand years were ended. After that he must be released for a little while.

[4][†]Then I saw [t]thrones, and [u]seated on them were those to whom the authority to judge was committed. Also I saw [v]the souls of those who had been beheaded for the testimony of Jesus and for the word of God, and those [w]who had not worshiped the beast or its image and had not received its mark on their foreheads or their hands. [x]They came to life and [y]reigned with Christ for a thousand years. [5]The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were ended. This is the first resurrection. [6][†][z]Blessed and holy is the one who shares in the first resurrection! Over such [a]the second death has no power, but they will be [b]priests of God and of Christ, and they [c]will reign with him for a thousand years.

The Defeat of Satan

[7][†]And when the thousand years are ended, [d]Satan will be released from his prison [8]and will come out [e]to deceive the nations that are at the four corners of the earth, [f]Gog and Magog, [g]to gather them for battle; their number is like the sand of the sea. [9]And [h]they marched up over the broad plain of the earth and surrounded [i]the camp of the saints and [j]the beloved city, but [k]fire came down from heaven [2] and consumed them, [10]and the devil [l]who had deceived them was [m]thrown into the lake of fire and sulfur where [n]the beast and the false prophet were, and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever.

Judgment Before the Great White Throne

[11][†]Then I saw a great white throne and him who was seated on it. From his presence [o]earth and sky fled away, and [p]no place was found for them.

[12][†]And I saw the dead, great and small, standing before the throne, and [q]books were opened. Then another book was opened, which is [r]the book of life. And [s]the dead were judged by what was written in the books, [t]according to what they had done. [13][†]And the sea gave up the dead who were in it, [u]Death and Hades gave up the dead who were in them, and they were judged, each one of them, [t]according to what they had done. [14][†]Then [u]Death and Hades [v]were thrown into the lake of fire. This is [w]the second death, the lake of fire. [15]And if anyone's name was not found written in the book of life, [x]he was thrown into the lake of fire.

The New Heaven and the New Earth

REVELATION 21 [†]Then I saw [y]a new heaven and a new earth, for [z]the first heaven and the first earth had passed away, and the sea was no more. [2][†]And I saw [a]the holy city, [b]new Jerusalem, [c]coming down out of heaven from God, [d]prepared [e]as a bride adorned for her husband. [3][†]And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying, "Behold, [f]the dwelling place [1] of God is with man. He will [g]dwell with them, and they will be his people, [2] and God himself will be with them as their God. [3] [4][†] [h]He will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and [i]death shall be no more, [j]neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain anymore, for the former things have passed away."

[5]And [k]he who was seated on the throne said, "Behold, I [l]am making all things new." Also he said, "Write this down, for [m]these words are trustworthy and true." [6][†]And he said to me, [n]"It is done! [o]I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. [p]To the thirsty I will give from the spring of the water of life without payment. [7][†] [q]The one who conquers will have this heritage, and [r]I will be his God and [s]he will be my son. [8][†] [t]But as for the cowardly, the faithless, the detestable, as for murderers, the sexually immoral, sorcerers, idolaters, and all liars, [u]their portion will be in [v]the lake that burns with fire and sulfur, which is [w]the second death."

The New Jerusalem

[9][†]Then came [x]one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls full of [y]the seven last plagues and spoke to me, saying, “Come, I will show you [z]the Bride, the wife of the Lamb.” [10]And [a]he carried me away in the Spirit to [b]a great, high mountain, and showed me the holy city Jerusalem coming down out of heaven from God, [11][c]having the glory of God, [d]its radiance [e]like a most rare jewel, like a jasper, clear as crystal. [12][†]It had a great, high wall, [f]with twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and on the gates the names of the twelve tribes of the sons of Israel were inscribed—[13]on the east three gates, on the north three gates, on the south three gates, and on the west three gates. [14]And the wall of the city had twelve [g]foundations, and [h]on them were the twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

[15][†]And the one who spoke with me [i]had a measuring rod of gold to measure the city and its gates and walls. [16]The city lies foursquare, its length the same as its width. And he measured the city with his rod, 12,000 stadia. [4] Its length and width and height are equal. [17]He also measured its wall, 144 cubits [5] by [j]human measurement, which is also [k]an angel’s measurement. [18][†]The wall was built of [l]jasper, while the city was pure gold, like [l]clear glass. [19][†][m]The foundations of the wall of the city were adorned with every kind of jewel. The first was jasper, the second sapphire, the third agate, the fourth emerald, [20]the fifth onyx, the sixth carnelian, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh jacinth, the twelfth amethyst. [21]And the twelve gates were twelve pearls, each of the gates made of a single pearl, and [n]the street of the city was pure gold, like transparent glass.

[22][†]And [o]I saw no temple in the city, for its temple is the Lord God the Almighty and the Lamb. [23][†]And the city [p]has no need of sun or moon to shine on it, for [q]the glory of God gives it light, and its lamp is the Lamb.
[24][†]By its light [r]will the nations walk, and the kings of the earth [s]will bring their glory into it, [25]and [t]its gates will never be shut by day—and [u]there will be no night there. [26]They will bring into it the glory and the honor of the nations. [27]But [v]nothing unclean will ever enter it, nor anyone who does what is detestable or false, but only those who are written in the Lamb’s [w]book of life.

The River of Life

REVELATION 22 [†]Then the angel [1] showed me [x]the river of [y]the water of life, bright as crystal, flowing from the throne of God and of the Lamb [2]through the middle of [z]the street of the city; [a]also, on either side of the river, [b]the tree of life [2] with its twelve kinds of fruit, yielding its fruit each month. The leaves of the tree were [c]for the healing of the nations. [3][†] [d]No longer will there be anything accursed, but [e]the throne of God and of the Lamb will be in it, and [f]his servants [3] will worship him. [4][†] [g]They will see his face, and [h]his name will be on their foreheads. [5][†]And [i]night will be no more. They will need no light of lamp [j]or sun, for [k]the Lord God will be their light, and [l]they will reign forever and ever.

Jesus Is Coming

[6][†]And he said to me, [m]“These words are trustworthy and true. And the Lord, the God of [n]the spirits of the prophets, [o]has sent his angel to show his servants what must soon take place.”

[7]“And behold, [p]I am coming soon. [q]Blessed is the one who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book.”

[8][†]I, [r]John, am the one who heard and saw these things. And when I heard and saw them, [s]I fell down to worship at the feet of the angel who showed them to me, [9] [s]but he said to me, “You must not do that! I am a fellow servant [4] with you and your brothers the prophets, and with those [m]who keep the words of this book. Worship God.”

[10][†]And he said to me, [t]“Do not seal up the words of the prophecy of this book, for the time is near. [11][†] [u]Let the evildoer still do evil, and the filthy still be filthy, and the righteous still do right, and the holy still be holy.”

[12][†]“Behold, [v]I am coming soon, [w]bringing my recompense with me, [x]to repay each one for what he has done. [13][†] [y]I am the Alpha and the Omega, [z]the first and the last, [a]the beginning and the end.”

14[†]Blessed are those who [b]wash their robes, [5] so that they may have the right to [c]the tree of life and that [d]they may enter the city by the gates. 15[e]Outside are [f]the dogs [g]and sorcerers and the sexually immoral and murderers and idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices falsehood.

16[†][h]"I, Jesus, have sent my angel to testify to you about these things [i]for the churches. I am [j]the root and [k]the descendant of David, [l]the bright morning star."

17[†]The Spirit and [m]the Bride say, "Come." And let the one who hears say, "Come." And [n]let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who desires take the [o]water of life without price.

18[†]I warn everyone who hears the words of the prophecy of this book: [p]if anyone adds to them, God will add to him the plagues described in this book, 19and if anyone takes away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God will take away his share in [q]the tree of life and in [r]the holy city, which are described in this book.

20He who testifies to these things says, "Surely [s]I am coming soon." Amen. [t]Come, Lord Jesus!

21The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all. [6] Amen.

Study Notes for Revelation

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:1–8 Prologue. The terms “revelation,” “show,” “made it known,” and “he saw” prepare readers for symbolic visions.

FACT

Patmos (1:9) is a tiny, volcanic island in the Aegean Sea, 40 miles (64 km) off the coat of Asia Minor. The Roman Empire sent its political prisoners there to live in exile.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:1 revelation of Jesus Christ. Jesus is both the One revealed (referred to as Son of Man, Lion of Judah, Lamb, Word of God) and the Revealer. God gives the unveiled truth to Jesus (5:7). His angel gives it to John (10:9) for God’s servants in the churches. The prophecy must . . . take place because it is secured by God’s sovereign purpose and power.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:3 Blessed. The first of seven blessings (or benedictions; see chart) is given to those who hear and keep (or obey) God’s Word. In the early church one would read aloud while others listened. the time is near. See notes on 1 Thess. 5:2–3; 5:4.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:4–6 This greeting identifies the author and recipients. the seven churches that are in Asia. Churches existed in other cities of Roman Asia (e.g., Colossae, Troas). Thus Christ’s selection of “seven” (symbolizing completeness) implies that he addresses the whole church through them. him who is and who was and who is to come. God is eternal. In Christ he will come at the end of history to judge and save. the seven spirits. Revelation teaches that the Holy Spirit is one person (3:6, 13; see Eph. 4:4), but he also appears here as “seven spirits” (compare Rev. 3:1; 4:5), representing perfection. He is also pictured as “seven torches of fire” (4:5) and “seven eyes” (5:6). These descriptions show him as all-powerful and all-knowing. from him who is . . . from the seven spirits . . . and from Jesus Christ. John’s greeting comes “from” all three persons of the Trinity.

the faithful witness. Jesus was a faithful witness even to death (1 Tim. 6:13). His followers must be the same (Rev. 2:13; 12:11; 20:4). John comforts his persecuted readers with the truth that Jesus has triumphed over death (the firstborn of the dead). He is the ruler of kings on earth, even Caesar. made us a kingdom, priests. Israel's roles now belong to all who are freed from sins by Jesus' blood (5:10; see Ex. 19:6).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:7–8 coming with the clouds. See note on 1 Thess. 4:16–17. Jesus is the Son of Man. He will have a universal kingdom (see Dan. 7:13–14). His subjects pierced him (Zech. 12:10). wail. A reaction to judgment. The coming one is the Lord God, Alpha and Omega (first and last letters of the Greek alphabet; compare Rev. 22:13). Jesus is both the beginning (the Creator) and the goal of all history.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:9–22:5 Body. John begins the main part of his letter with a vision of "one like a son of man." This person praises and corrects his seven churches.

1:9–3:22 "Things that are": Christ's presence with and knowledge of his churches. John's first vision, of the glorious Son of Man who is spiritually present with his struggling churches (1:9–20), leads to a cycle of seven letters or edicts. Jesus describes each church's condition and commands appropriate responses of repentance, faith, and continuing faithfulness (2:1–3:22).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:9 Patmos. An island where Rome exiled political criminals. John's confinement there shows that he is a partner with the churches' tribulation and patient endurance. Patmos is approximately 24 square miles (62 sq. km) in area. It is about 40 miles (64 km) from the mainland of Asia Minor.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:10 in the Spirit. John was surrounded by the active presence of the Holy Spirit. the Lord's day. Sunday, the first day of the week, the day Christ rose.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:11 The order in which the churches are listed follows the route a courier would have taken from Patmos.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:13 Jesus often calls himself son of man in the Gospels (see Mark 14:61–62). See notes on Dan. 7:13–14; John 1:51.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:14 Hairs . . . like white wool represent divine wisdom (Dan. 7:9; compare Lev. 19:32; Prov. 16:31; 20:29). Jesus' eyes like a flame of fire see everything clearly. He can truly say to each church, "I know all about you" (e.g., Rev. 2:18–19).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:15 Christ's feet, like burnished bronze (compare 2:18), are strong and stable. They will crush all enemies. roar of many waters. Compare Ezek. 1:24.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:16 two-edged sword. God's Word, which searches hearts and judges rebels (compare Eph. 6:17; Heb. 4:12; Rev. 19:15).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:17 the first and the last. The Son of Man affirms his eternal existence, echoing the Lord's boast over idols (Isa. 44:6).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:18 I died . . . I am alive forevermore. John and the churches must "fear not" (v. 17), because Jesus has conquered death forever. On Christ's resurrection, see 1 Cor. 15:42–57.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:19 Jesus' command to write introduces the book's main divisions. The letters (royal edicts) to the churches (chs. 2–3) address the things that are. John's visions then turn mainly to things that are to take place after this (see 4:1).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 1:20 angels of the seven churches. Perhaps human messengers, human pastors, or literal angels sent as messengers. They are probably symbols of each church's character.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:1–3:22 Revelation 2–3 consists of seven "letters" or royal edicts. Each follows a pattern: (1) The royal author describes himself in terms from ch. 1. (2) "I know" introduces the church's condition, both positive (except for Sardis and Laodicea) and negative (except for Smyrna and Philadelphia). (3) Comfort and commands come from the diagnosis. (4) The churches are commanded to hear and obey all of the letters. (5) A blessing is promised to “the one who conquers.”

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:1–7 The church in Ephesus is praised for doctrinal purity and endurance but is rebuked for its loss of love. Ephesus was a port city on the west coast of Asia. The city’s landmark was the temple of Artemis.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:1 The words of reflects the OT expression “thus says.” In the OT this phrase introduces either a word from God (e.g., Amos 1:6) or a royal declaration (e.g., 2 Chron. 36:23).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:4–5 the love you had at first. Either the church’s early love for Christ or the believers’ love for one another. Both meanings may be intended (compare Mark 12:29–31; 1 John 4:20). This lack of love resulted in a need to revive the compassionate works you did at first. remove your lampstand. In the near future and/or when Christ returns, they will lose their status as a church.

Christ’s Edict-Letters to His Seven Churches

Church	Description of Christ	Commendation	Rebuke	Solution	Consequence of Disobedience	Promise for Conquerors
Ephesus (2:1–7)	holds the seven stars in his right hand; walks among the seven golden lampstands	doctrinal vigilance and endurance	loss of first love	remember, repent, and do the works done at first	removal of their lampstand	will be given the tree of life in paradise to eat
Smyrna (2:8–11)	the first and the last, who died and came to life	spiritually rich, enduring persecution	—	be faithful unto death	—	will be given the crown of life and will not be hurt by the second death
Pergamum (2:12–17)	has the sharp two-edged sword	holding fast Christ’s name, not denying their faith	false teaching	repent	war against them with the sword of Christ’s mouth	will be given hidden manna and a white stone with a new name on it
Thyatira (2:18–29)	has eyes like a flame of fire, feet like burnished bronze	growing love, evidenced in deeds of service	lack of discernment; toleration of heresy	hold fast and keep Christ’s works till the end	each given as their works deserve	will be given the morning star and authority over the nations
Sardis (3:1–6)	has the seven spirits of God and the seven stars	a few remain pure and loyal	dead works	keep the Word and repent	Christ will come like a thief	will be clothed in white garments; name never blotted out of the book of life; name confessed before God and angels
Philadelphia (3:7–13)	the holy one, the true one, who has the keys of David	patiently enduring, keeping God’s word	—	hold fast what you have	—	will be made a pillar in the temple of God, inscribed with the

		and not denying his name				names of God, the new Jerusalem, and Christ
Laodicea (3:14–22)	the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of God’s creation	—	spiritually blind, bankrupt, naked, lukewarm	buy gold, white garments, and salve from Christ; be zealous and repent	will be spit out of Christ’s mouth	will dine with Christ; will be granted to sit with Christ on his throne

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:6 Nicolaitans. An otherwise unknown heretical group. They seduced God’s people to participate in idolatry and sexual immorality (vv. 14–15). They may have presented immorality as freedom in Christ (compare 1 Cor. 6:12–20; 8:1–11:1).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:7 tree of life. A tree in the garden of Eden. It offered eternal life to the pure. Access to it was banned after humanity’s fall (Gen. 3:22–24). It reappears in the new Jerusalem (Rev. 22:1–2).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:8–11 The church in Smyrna is encouraged to remain faithful as they endure persecution. Roman Smyrna (modern Izmir) was a harbor city. It was known for its temple to the Mother Goddess and its imperial cult temple to Tiberius.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:9 your poverty (but you are rich). Materially poor, the Smyrnan believers were spiritually rich (compare James 2:5).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:10–11 The crown of life (that is, eternal life) is an image based on the laurel wreath given to victorious athletes. God promises it to those who love him (1 Cor. 9:25; 2 Tim. 4:6–8; James 1:12). second death. See Rev. 20:4–6.

FACT

Pergamum was an important city in western Asia Minor. Between 150,000 and 200,000 lived there. Located atop a high hill overlooking the Caicus River, it boasted a theater, an impressive library, many temples, and a race track.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:12–17 Believers at Pergamum remained faithful during persecution, but they allowed false teaching. Pergamum was an important center for pagan and imperial religion.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:12 Christ will use the sharp two-edged sword coming from his mouth (compare 1:16) to discipline false teachers (2:16).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:13 Pergamum had temples dedicated to “the divine Augustus and the goddess Roma” and to Asklepios (the god of healing, symbolized by serpents). It also had a large altar dedicated to Zeus. Emperor worship was also strongly emphasized, even required, in the province of Asia. All this idol worship is why Pergamum is called the site of Satan’s throne. A believer named Antipas was killed for his faith. Jesus shares with Antipas his own title, faithful witness (see 1:5).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:14–16 Balaam. A prophet who advised Moab’s king to tempt Israel into sexual and spiritual adultery (Num. 25:1–2; 31:16). Likewise the Nicolaitans were spreading sexual and spiritual unfaithfulness at Pergamum (see Rev. 2:6).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:16 If not, I will come to you soon. Jesus’ threat refers to his disciplinary action against the church, as at Corinth (1 Cor. 11:30–32).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:17 As God fed Israel in the wilderness, Christ supplies hidden manna to the one who conquers. A white stone was given to winners of athletic contests to gain entrance to banquets. White stones were also used by jurors to vote for acquittal. The manna and the white stone suggest different kinds of eternal blessings and rewards. The new name may refer to the Holy Spirit conforming believers to Christ’s holiness (Rom. 8:29).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:18–29 Thyatira is praised for its growing love but is criticized for its lack of discernment and for allowing false teaching. The city was a commercial center. Its main industries were metals and fabric (Acts 16:14).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:18 eyes like a flame of fire, feet . . . like burnished bronze. Compare 1:14–15. Such images were familiar to Thyatiran metalworkers. They also echoed OT visions of God’s glory (Ezek. 1:27). With fiery eyes, Jesus “searches mind and heart” (Rev. 2:23). His feet will crush his enemies.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:19–20 Thyatira’s strengths and weaknesses are the opposite of those at Ephesus. This church is strong in love evidenced in works, but it lacks discernment and tolerates false teaching. The self-proclaimed prophetess who encourages idolatry and immorality resembles Jezebel of Tyre. Jezebel married Israel’s King Ahab and imposed Baal-worship in the kingdom (1 Kings 16:30–33; 19:1–2).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:21–23 The “prophetess” has many lovers and children. These are spiritual children whom she influences.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:24–25 the deep things of Satan. Deceptive promises of secret spiritual knowledge through false religions.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 2:26–28 The morning star is Christ (see 22:16). He is Israel’s ruler and rescuer. Balaam predicted his rise (Num. 24:17).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:1–6 The church in Sardis has a few who remain faithful, but their faith does not result in good works. Most of the impressive Roman-era remains now visible at Sardis were constructed by the emperor Tiberius after the tragic earthquake of A.D. 17. The emperor Tiberius helped sponsor reconstruction efforts, earning greater local renown for himself. In John’s day the structures included a theater, a stadium, a central marble road, and many temples.

FACT

Sardis was the capital of the ancient kingdom of Lydia and the place where coin minting was invented. After being taken over by Rome, it functioned as the capital of its province and continued to exist until the fifteenth century.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:1 the seven spirits of God. See note on 1:4–6.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:2–3 The church in Sardis is near death, but not beyond Christ’s ability to wake them up. Twice in its history Sardis had been conquered when its watchmen failed to see the enemy climbing its cliffs and walls, so the people knew the importance of alertness. like a thief. A frequent NT image (Luke 12:39–40; 1 Thess. 5:2–4; 2 Pet. 3:10; Rev. 16:15). Humans cannot predict the timing of Christ's return.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:4–5 There is hope for a few names, alert and faithful believers. Christ promises them the conqueror's reward. They will have communion with him (walk with me) and the white clothing of victory (see note on 6:9–11). Their name is secure in his book of life (20:15).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:7–13 Philadelphia is praised for enduring in faith. In recognition for the aid after an earthquake in A.D. 17, the city was briefly renamed Neocaesarea ("Caesar's New City"). Jesus promises his suffering church an infinitely greater name, "the city of my God, the new Jerusalem" (v. 12). Philadelphia lies near a fertile valley known for growing wine grapes.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:7 Jesus holds the key of David. He has absolute authority to admit to or exclude from God's kingdom (compare Isa. 22:22; Matt. 16:19).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:8 an open door. Paul used the phrase "open doors" to describe opportunities for ministry (see 1 Cor. 16:9). That sense is possible here. More likely, Jesus is offering them an open door into God's heavenly sanctuary (see Rev. 3:12; 4:1). little power. Christians in Philadelphia were weak yet were holding onto Jesus' word (3:10–11).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:9 Members of the synagogue of Satan (compare 2:9) say that they are Jews but they serve God's enemy, for they persecute Christians.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:10 hour of trial. This trial is coming on the whole world. It will happen before the day of judgment. Revelation envisions a brief future period of intense persecution for the church (see 19:19; 20:7–9). This time will include ever more intense manifestations of God's wrath against rebellious humanity (6:10; 8:13; 11:10; 13:8, 12, 14; 17:2, 8). Some believe this verse means Christ will take believers out of the world before a literal “great tribulation” period begins (the “pretribulation rapture” view). Other interpreters, however, see this as God’s promise to protect and remain faithful to believers who endure patiently during this difficult time.

Promises to Overcomers

The following images depict ways in which God will “be . . . God” to those who conquer (Rev. 21:7).

Promise	What Will Happen	Fulfillment
2:7	will eat from the tree of life	22:2
2:11	will not be hurt by the second death	20:6; 21:7–8
2:17	will be given a white stone	21:11, 18–21
2:26–27; 3:21	will reign with Christ on his throne	20:4
2:28	will be given the morning star	21:23; 22:5, 16
3:5	will be clothed in bright garments	19:7–8; 21:2, 9–10
3:5	name will be in the book of life	21:27
3:12	will be made a pillar in God’s temple	21:22–23
3:12	will participate in the new Jerusalem	21:10
3:12	will have God’s name written on them	22:4

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:14–22 Laodicea is criticized for its spiritual immaturity. The city was a commercial center. It had thriving medical and textile industries. It was so wealthy that it declined imperial disaster relief after an earthquake in A.D. 60. The city did not see itself as “poor, blind, and naked” (v. 17), but Jesus does not find anything in its church to praise. Laodicea was famous for its worship of Zeus.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:14 Jesus contradicts the church’s boast, “I am rich, I have prospered, and I need nothing” (v. 17). the beginning of God’s creation. This does not mean that Jesus is God’s first creation (see Col. 1:15–17 and notes). It means that he is the one who began God’s creation (see note on John 1:3). This phrase signifies Christ’s sovereign rule over the created order (see Rev. 21:6; 22:13).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:15–16 The church’s lukewarm indifference was disgusting to Jesus. Cold and hot water both represent something positive, for cold water refreshes in the heat and hot water gives warmth in the cold.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:17–18 The Laodiceans were spiritually blind, bankrupt, and naked. They had no resources to buy from Jesus gold or garments or salve for their eyes. They could “purchase” these necessities only by his grace (see Isa. 55:1–4).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:19–20 Like a loving father, Christ will reprove those whom he loves (compare Prov. 3:12). I stand at the door and knock. Jesus is the master of the house. He expects alert servants to respond immediately to his signal and welcome his entrance (Luke 12:35–36). eat with him. A picture of close personal fellowship.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 3:21 I will grant him to sit with me on my throne implies that Christ will give some of his ruling authority to his people (compare 20:4; 22:6; Luke 19:17; 1 Cor. 6:3; 2 Tim. 2:12).

4:1–22:5 “Things that shall take place after this”: Christ’s defense of his church and destruction of its enemies. Having identified the strengths and weaknesses of the seven Asian churches, which represent “all the churches” (2:23), Jesus speaks again. He summons John “in the Spirit” to heaven, to receive visions that portray the future working out of his victory on the cross. The ultimate victory will come in the new heaven and earth at the end of history.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 4:1–8:1 John receives a heavenly vision of God on his throne and of the slain Lamb, whose triumph qualifies him to open a scroll and execute God’s future purposes for history. As the Lamb opens the scroll’s seals, John sees images of God’s instruments of judgment and of the saints who will receive salvation.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 4:1–5:14 These visions begin with a door standing open in heaven, leading to a vision of God on his throne receiving ceaseless worship, and of the Lamb, who receives from him a mysterious sealed scroll.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 4:1–2 the first voice . . . like a trumpet. Compare 1:10. In heaven, John sees a throne, with one seated on it, adored by his heavenly attendants as “our Lord and God” (4:11; compare Isa. 6:1–5; Ezek. 1:26–28).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 4:3 John describes God's glory in bright colors—jasper, carnelian, rainbow, emerald. The jewels mentioned in Revelation (compare 21:19–20) are not meant to be interpreted individually but together represent God's splendor and majesty. John does not precisely describe the Almighty's visible features (compare Isa. 6:1–6; Ezek. 1:26–28). Perhaps he had no words to describe what he saw.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 4:4 On twenty-four thrones sat twenty-four elders. Their number may reflect the orders of priests serving in the OT temple (see 1 Chron. 24:7–19). More likely they symbolize the unity of God's people. This includes OT Israel (led by the heads of the 12 tribes) and the NT church (led by the 12 apostles). Their thrones look like the ones in God's heavenly court in Dan. 7:9–10 (compare Rev. 20:4). Some interpreters believe that these elders are angels, and that therefore they do not include themselves among the redeemed in 5:8–10.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 4:5 Lightning, rumblings, and thunder display the terrifying splendor of God's glory, as at Mount Sinai (Ex. 19:16).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 4:6–8 The peaceful sea of glass often appears in prophetic visions of God's throne room (Ex. 24:10; Ezek. 1:22; Rev. 15:2). It is the "floor" of heaven and the "ceiling" of the created universe. Four living creatures have the features of cherubim (full of eyes; lion; ox; man; eagle) and seraphim (six wings; "Holy, holy, holy"). Previous prophets also saw these creatures (Isa. 6:2–3; Ezek. 1:10, 18).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 4:9–11 God's receiving of power does not suggest that an omnipotent being can become stronger. Rather, the strength of his creatures is used to honor him.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 5:1 A scroll written within and on the back is like the scroll given to Ezekiel (Ezek. 2:9–3:3). This scroll resembles a Roman will or contract deed. The contents of such documents were written in detail on the inside and summarized briefly on the outside; they were then sealed with seven seals. The scroll John sees could symbolize a will to be opened so that its directions could be carried out, or it could symbolize God's covenant with mankind. If so, the covenant curses that will happen are because of mankind's covenant breaking. In a broader sense, the scroll contains God’s purposes for history, but its seven seals prevent the full disclosure and enactment of its contents.

FACT

The sea of glass (4:6) is the transparent pavement surrounding God’s throne. Separating heaven above from the earth below, its transparent tranquility shows heaven’s peace in contrast to earthly turmoil.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 5:5 The Lion of the tribe of Judah echoes Jacob’s blessing on Judah (Gen. 49:8–12). In the OT, the Messiah was the branch that would grow from Jesse’s root to restore David’s dynasty (Isa. 11:1, 10). Now he is also called the Root of David. Jesus is not only David’s royal descendant (Rev. 22:16); he is also the source of David’s rule (Mark 12:35–37).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 5:6–7 The conquering Lion now appears as a Lamb standing, as . . . slain. Jesus, God’s servant, was led like a lamb to slaughter. He took on himself the sins of others and achieved their healing (Isa. 53:4–7; John 1:29; 1 Pet. 1:19). The Lamb’s seven horns symbolize complete power (Ps. 18:2; compare Dan. 7:24; Zech. 1:18–21). His seven eyes, identified with God’s “seven spirits” (see note on Rev. 1:4–6; also Zech. 4:10), show that the Lamb’s knowledge extends throughout all the earth.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 5:8–10 Incense symbolizes the prayers of the saints. It shows that God hears their cries for relief and will answer through judgment (8:3–5).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 5:9 Paradoxically, the Lion's victory is his being slain as the Lamb, ransoming a multiethnic multitude (7:9) by his blood (1:5–6). Likewise, his martyrs' faithfulness even to death is their victory (12:11).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 5:10 kingdom and priests. See 1:6; Ex. 19:6; 1 Pet. 2:9. reign on the earth. The first creation was damaged by human sin. It will be replaced by a new (or fully renewed) heaven and earth (Rev. 21:1, 4). There Christ's saints will rule in righteousness (2 Pet. 3:13).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 5:11–12 The worship of the Lamb in this chapter testifies to his deity.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 5:13–14 every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth and in the sea. Compare Ps. 146:6; Phil. 2:11.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 6:1–8:1 The vision of the Lamb receiving the scroll (4:1–5:14) introduces a series of seven visions as the scroll's seals are broken. These visions show several ways in which the Lamb will bring his enemies to justice (seals 1–4). They also give the reason for his righteous wrath (seals 5 and 7) and describe the final judgment at history's end (seal 6).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 6:1–8 As the Lamb opens each of the first four seals, one of the living creatures shouts, "Come!" Then a horse with its rider (or riders) responds. The horses' colors are like those in Zech. 1:8–10; 6:1–8. They symbolize representatives sent by God to patrol the earth. Only by the Lamb's permission can the horses and their riders inflict death.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 6:1–2 the Lamb opened one of the seven seals. Some think this is the beginning of the great tribulation (see Matt. 24:21). This rider on a white horse probably symbolizes the desire of political and military leaders to make their kingdoms larger. This leads to war (red horse), famine (black horse), and epidemic disease (pale horse).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 6:3–4 The next horse is red, the color of blood. Its rider is given a great sword. This symbolizes permission to take peace from the earth. The result is that warring armies kill each other.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 6:5–6 The rider on the black horse carries scales for measuring grains and their prices. A voice reveals inflated grain prices (8 to 10 times normal). War and disruption of commercial routes will produce scarcity. This will drive prices up (see Deut. 28:49–57; 2 Kings 6:24–25; 7:1–2). The command not to harm the oil and wine may have a social significance, because the rich were the primary consumers of oil and wine.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 6:7–8 Death and Hades (the realm of the dead) ride the pale horse (the color of corpses). Their authority to kill is limited to a fourth of the earth. Sword, famine, and pestilence (here meaning epidemic disease, such as bubonic plague) sum up the disasters the red, black, and pale horses symbolize. They also echo covenant punishments given to Jerusalem in the exile (Ezek. 14:12–21).

FACT

“Do not harm the oil and wine” suggests that during this time of famine these two basic essentials are still available, although grain is scarce and prices are greatly inflated (6:6). Such a situation would necessarily hurt the poor more than the rich.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 6:9–11 The fifth seal reveals the Lamb’s reason for devastating the earth. John sees the souls of believers slain for bearing witness about Jesus (compare 20:4). They are under the altar, like a sacrifice would be. Their lament, how long? echoes the psalmists (Ps. 13:1; 89:46). white robe. A symbol of victory and purity (compare Rev. 3:4–5; 7:9, 14).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 6:12–17 The sixth seal previews the destruction of the first heaven and earth (20:11; 21:1). earthquake. See Ex. 19:18; Ezek. 38:19–20; Hag. 2:6; Heb. 12:26–27. Most of the seven cities mentioned in Revelation 2–3 had experienced devastating earthquakes during the century before Revelation was written. Rebellious humanity—from kings to everyone, slave and free—will seek protection from God and the Lamb (compare Isa. 2:20–21; Hos. 10:8). Their desperate question, "Who can stand?" (Nah. 1:5–6; Mal. 3:2), assumes none can.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 6:13 the stars of the sky fell to the earth. Those who do not think the sixth seal (vv. 12–17) predicts the destruction of the first heaven and earth believe this may refer to a massive meteor shower.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 7:1–17 There are three "interludes" in Revelation (vv. 1–17; 10:1–11:14; 20:1–6) that explain the place of the saints in the events of the book. (The seals, trumpets, and bowls relate only to sinners.) There are various proposals for interpreting the vision of the "144,000, sealed from every tribe of the sons of Israel" (7:4) and its relation to the next vision of a countless crowd "from every nation" (v. 9). Many think the 144,000 represents Jewish believers. They are brought to faith immediately after Jesus returns and removes the church from the earth before (or during) a seven-year tribulation (this is a "pretribulation rapture" view; see note on 3:10). Others understand "Israel" as the church, the new covenant people of God. Thus the 144,000 are believers from every nation, including ethnic Israel.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 7:1–3 The terrors released by the sixth seal (6:12–17) lead God's fearful enemies to ask, "Who can stand?" (6:17). The answer is, those "sealed" (7:4) with the seal of the living God (see note on John 6:27; compare Ezek. 9:4–6). This seal is promised to all who conquer by faith (Rev. 3:12). Circumcision functioned as such a seal under the old covenant (Rom. 4:11), and God's Holy Spirit seals God's people as his property under the new (Eph. 1:13–14).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 7:4–8 The selection and order of the 12 tribes suggest that the 144,000, sealed from every tribe of the sons of Israel represent the church (see note on vv. 1–17 for a different view). These are not Jacob's sons, because Dan is left out and Manasseh is included. They are also not the tribes that inherited land in Canaan, for Dan is left out, Levi (the priestly tribe) is included, and Joseph is listed instead of his son Ephraim. Judah, the tribe of the Messiah (5:5), appears first rather than Reuben, the firstborn. The promotion of tribes descended from concubines

Bilhah and Zilpah (Gad, Asher, Naphtali) over the sons of Leah and Rachel suggests that those once excluded from privilege are now included.

FACT

Kings authenticated documents and marked ownership of an item with their royal signet ring. Similarly, the seal of the living God proves God's ownership and protection of his people (7:2; see 14:1). It is the opposite of the mark of the beast (13:16).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 7:9 John hears (v. 4) the names of the sealed sons of Israel and then sees the NT fulfillment. He sees a countless multitude from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages. God has rescued them from wrath through the blood of the Lamb (v. 14). They wear the white robes of victorious martyrs (see note on 6:9–11). Many who hold to a pretribulation rapture of the church think that the two groups of 7:1–8 and vv. 9–17 are different. They see converted Jewish people still suffering on earth in vv. 1–8, and the raptured church rejoicing in heaven in vv. 9–17. Those who do not hold to a pretribulation rapture usually see vv. 1–8 and vv. 9–17 as the same group.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 7:13–14 An elder identifies the great crowd as the ones coming out of the great tribulation. Some understand "the" to refer to one great final period of suffering. Others take this to represent the sufferings of the church throughout history.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 7:15–17 The people mentioned in vv. 13–14 no longer suffer. As priests, they serve God in his temple. There he will feed them and shelter them from sun and scorching heat (compare Isa. 49:10). Under the protective care of the Lamb, their shepherd, they find refreshment in springs of living water (compare Rev. 22:1). God dries their every tear (Isa. 25:8; Rev. 21:4).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 8:1 silence . . . for about half an hour. In anticipation of the Lord's coming judgment (Zeph. 1:7–10; Zech. 2:13).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 8:2–11:18 A brief vision of God's heavenly temple, focusing on a golden incense altar, opens a new cycle of seven visions, each of which is introduced by an angelic trumpet blast.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 8:2 Seven angels stand ready to sound seven trumpets. This begins limited judgments that warn of coming destruction (compare Ezek. 33:1–6; Joel 2:1).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 8:3–5 The earthly OT sanctuary had two altars. One was for sacrifice in the courtyard. The other was for incense near the Most Holy Place (Ex. 27:1–8; 30:1–10). John sees only one altar in heaven fulfilling both functions (Rev. 6:9; 8:3). Incense represented the prayers of the saints in the earthly sanctuary (see 5:8; also Ps. 141:2; Luke 1:9–11). Fire from the altar will be flung to earth in judgment in answer to the saints' prayers.

FACT

In OT times, the altar of incense (8:3–4) stood in the Holy Place of the tabernacle and the temple next to the veil concealing the Most Holy Place. Each morning and evening, the high priest burned incense on the altar (Ex. 30:1–10).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 8:6–11:18 Revelation's third vision series (with a second interlude in 10:1–11:14) pictures judgments sent from heaven in response to the saints' prayers. The first four trumpets announce harm on the earth, sea, rivers and springs, and sky. The damage done with the trumpets is limited to "a third." The "woes" introduced by the last three trumpets are increasingly severe (8:13; 9:12; 11:14). See chart.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 8:6–7 hail and fire, mixed with blood. This is like the seventh plague on Egypt (Ex. 9:24).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 8:8–9 a great mountain, burning with fire, thrown into the sea. The imagery echoes Jer. 51:25, 42.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 8:10–11 Wormwood is a bitter-tasting plant with a poisonous extract. A star with these qualities makes a third of the rivers and springs undrinkable just like the Nile's bloodied waters (Ex. 7:24).

Cities under attack often surrendered when their water supply was polluted or cut off (see 2 Kings 20:20; 2 Chron. 32:30; Ps. 46:4).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 8:12 The darkening of a third of the sun, moon, and stars resembles the ninth plague on Egypt (Ex. 10:21–23). Since stars are still in the sky, this judgment apparently precedes the shaking of heaven and earth portrayed with the sixth seal (Rev. 6:12–14; but see note on 6:13 for another view). This darkness may occur due to smoke from burning cities.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 8:13 Woe, woe, woe. The last three trumpets signify increasing judgments on rebellious humanity as the end approaches.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 9:1–12 The star fallen from heaven to earth (v. 1) when the fifth trumpet sounds is Satan. He is the angel of the bottomless pit, whose names mean "Destroyer" (see note on v. 11). This vision shows an increase of demonic activity. This will make rebellious humans more desperate, as God's patient restraint of evil comes to an end.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 9:1 star fallen from heaven to earth. Jesus saw Satan fall like lightning (Luke 10:18). John will later see the "dragon," whom he identifies as Satan, thrown from heaven to earth (Rev. 12:9). The fact that the key to the shaft of the Abyss was given to him shows that Satan can do nothing without God's permission.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 9:2–3 Locusts recalls the eighth plague on Egypt (Ex. 10:14–15) and Joel 2:31.

The Seven Trumpets of 8:7–11:19

Restrained judgments from heaven are sent in response to the saints' prayers.

Trumpet	Reference	Result
Trumpet 1	8:7	hail, fire, and blood cast on land—one-third burned
Trumpet 2	8:8–9	burning mountain cast into sea—one-third bloodied
Trumpet 3	8:10–11	burning stars fall on rivers and springs—one-third embittered
Trumpet 4	8:12	sun, moon, and stars—one-third darkened
Trumpet 5 (1st Woe)	9:1–11	demons from the Abyss
Trumpet 6 (2nd Woe)	9:13–21	invasion from the east—one-third of mankind killed
Trumpet 7 (3rd Woe)	11:15–19	kingdom of world becomes kingdom of God

REVELATION—NOTE ON 9:4–11 These locusts are no threat to earth's vegetation (grass, green plant, or tree), and they do not look like locusts (vv. 7–9). It seems that these invaders are not literal insects but demonic spirits. Others think they represent military forces. Still others think they are actual locusts whose destructive power is described symbolically.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 9:11 Abaddon, Apollyon. In Hebrew and Greek, respectively, these words refer to "destruction" and the "one who destroys." Satan's demons war against his own human subjects.

FACT

About a dozen varieties of scorpions exist in Israel. The Lord protected Israel from scorpions during their time in the wilderness (Deut. 8:15). Revelation 9:1–6 compares the demons tormenting the people of earth with scorpions.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 9:13–21 This is the last limited judgment and warning blast. When the seventh and last trumpet sound, "the mystery of God will be fulfilled" (10:7; compare 1 Cor. 15:52; 1 Thess. 4:16). The opportunity to repent will be past (Rev. 9:20–21).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 9:13–14 The golden altar before God answers the saints' prayers (8:4–5). Ancient Israel's conquerors, Assyria and Babylon, came from the great river Euphrates. In John's day this river also marked the eastern boundary of Rome's influence. Beyond it, barbarian powers such as Parthia threatened the empire. This river represents what holds back chaos and violence. The release of the four destructive angels allows unprecedented bloodshed and suffering.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 9:16–19 twice ten thousand times ten thousand. Two hundred million is an incredibly large army. But it is not as large as the number of those who worship the Lamb (7:9). These mounted troops are demons, though some think they represent an actual human army.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 9:20–21 did not repent. Those rebelling against God have been tortured by the very demons they worshiped. Yet they take no warning from these final trumpet blasts. idols . . . cannot see or hear or walk. Compare Dan. 5:23; Ps. 115:4–8; Isa. 44:12–20.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 10:1–11:14 This interlude represents God's patient delay in inflicting his full and final wrath. It assures believers that God will protect his people during the coming terrible times. The angel with the scroll (10:1–11) reveals John's authority to prophesy and God's perfect timing in bringing history to a conclusion. On the "interludes" in Revelation, see note on 7:1–17.

Four Series of Seven Messages or Visions

Seven Letters to Churches	chs. 2–3
Seven Seals on a Scroll	5:1–8:1
Seven Trumpets	8:2–11:19
Seven Bowls of Wrath	chs. 15–16

REVELATION—NOTE ON 10:1–3 Like God on his throne, this mighty angel is surrounded by a rainbow (see 4:3). Like the Son of Man, he comes with a cloud, and his face shines like the sun (see 1:7, 16). His legs like pillars of fire recall the glory of God's presence in the wilderness (Ex. 13:21–22). His voice like a lion roaring could belong to the Lion of Judah (Rev. 5:5). Some interpreters think this is Jesus himself. However, since 1:1 describes an angel sent by Christ to deliver God's revelation to John, many think this as simply another great angel.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 10:2 The scroll is open because the Lamb has broken its seals. The scroll is little compared to the angel, whose stride spans sea and land. The scroll will be given to John to eat and proclaim (vv. 10–11).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 10:5–7 The angel's stance—one foot on sea, one on land, and right hand raised to heaven—unites the created order (see 5:13; Gen. 1:6–10). The divine Creator is asked to witness the angel's oath (compare Dan. 12:7; also Gen. 14:22; Deut. 32:40). The angel swears that the time of God's patience, which entailed delay of his martyrs' vindication (Rev. 6:10), will end when the last trumpet sounds. The mystery of God to be fulfilled is his plan to unite all things in heaven and earth under Christ's headship (Eph. 1:10, 20–22). This “mystery” includes the full expression of God’s wrath toward all who resist his reign.

FACT

When a lion roars, it can mean that it has caught, or is about to catch, its prey. In 10:3, the lion’s roar probably symbolizes God’s judgment against the wicked (see Amos 3:8).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 10:8–11 Ezekiel ate a scroll and found it sweet as honey in his mouth. John must do the same. He must receive God’s words before he speaks them (compare Ezek. 3:1–3, 10).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 11:1–14 The visions of the temple and the witnesses reassure believers of God's protection. However, spiritual protection still allows physical suffering.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 11:1–2 John was given a measuring rod and instructed to measure the temple of God. Some think this implies that during the great tribulation the Jewish temple will be rebuilt in Jerusalem. Jewish worship will be restored there. At this midpoint of the tribulation, the Antichrist will take "his seat in the temple of God, proclaiming himself to be God" (2 Thess. 2:4). Others see the "temple" in Revelation 11 as a symbol for believers (1 Cor. 3:16–17; 1 Pet. 2:4–10; see Rev. 3:12; 21:22). They note that John must measure the sanctuary, its altar (compare Ezek. 40:2–3), and those who worship there. This "measuring" of persons also shows God's protection and ownership. John must not measure the court outside, because the holy city will be given over to the nations. This language echoes Jesus' prediction of Jerusalem's destruction (Luke 21:24; compare Dan. 8:13). Thus some believe that Revelation was written before A.D. 70 and predicted that disaster. Others think that "the holy city" refers to the true church. Forty-two months (see also Rev. 13:5) is equivalent to "1,260 days" (counting 30 days to a month; see 11:3; 12:6) and "a time, and times, and half a time" (three and a half years; 12:14). This symbolizes the shortness of the church's suffering, which lasts until Christ comes. These calculations of time echo Dan. 7:25; 12:7.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 11:3–14 Scripture requires two witnesses to confirm testimony (Deut. 19:15; Matt. 18:16). The two witnesses of Revelation may represent the saints, as the parallel between Rev. 11:7 and 13:7 suggests. They wear the sackcloth of repentance (compare Isa. 37:1–2; Jonah 3:5; Matt. 11:21) to symbolize their message. Some scholars believe these are two actual individuals who will appear at the end of history.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 11:4 two olive trees. In Zechariah's vision, the "two olive trees" symbolized "two anointed ones" (Zech. 4:11, 14). One was a royal leader to rebuild God's temple (Zech. 4:6–10) and the other was a high priest to lead worship in it (Zech. 3:1–5). Thus the witnesses of Rev. 11:3 represent everyone the Lamb has redeemed to serve as priests and rule as kings (1:6; 5:10).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 11:5–6 The witnesses especially fulfill the church's prophetic role. They pour out God's word as fiery judgment from their mouth. They announce drought as Elijah did (1 Kings 17:1). They turn waters . . . into blood as Moses did (Ex. 7:14–25).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 11:7–10 The great city that symbolically is called Sodom and Egypt is the site of the martyrs' death and their Lord's crucifixion. See also references to "the great city" in 16:19; 17:18; and five times in 18:10–21. In these instances "the great city" is called "Babylon," which stands for Rome. In 11:8, however, the "great city" is Jerusalem. It is likely that John has merged Rome and Jerusalem here into one combined symbol. "The great city" is further identified symbolically (or "spiritually"; see ESV footnote) as "Sodom," a place known for its sinfulness and rebellion against God. It is also called "Egypt," which was known for persecuting God's people. "The great city" symbolizes every empire that rejects God and harms his church.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 11:11–14 they stood up on their feet. . . . they went up to heaven in a cloud. The two witnesses (v. 3) may symbolize the church. If so, then these verses promise resurrection (see Ezek. 37:10) and enthronement with God (see Dan. 7:13). If the witnesses are two actual individuals, then they are miraculously resurrected at this point. As in Acts 1:9, the "cloud" symbolizes the mysterious active presence of God.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 11:15–18 the seventh angel blew his trumpet. Many believe this trumpet signals Christ's second coming. has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ. The elders celebrate a future day when God and his Christ have begun their reign by judging the dead (20:11–13), rewarding their servants (21:1–7; 22:1–5), and destroying the destroyers of the earth (20:14–15).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 11:19–14:20 This vision reveals the heart of the conflict the church faces. Through his sacrificial blood, Christ (the seed of the woman) has defeated Satan (the accuser of his people). Believers' sufferings result from Satan's desperation because "he knows that his time is short" (12:12).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 11:19 A deeper opening of God's temple in heaven brings the ark of his covenant into view as John peers into the Most Holy Place itself, prepared to receive visions that explain the church's spiritual conflict.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:1–17 Two signs appear in heaven—a woman who gives birth, and a dragon intent on destroying her offspring. Twice John sees the dragon defeated. Both descriptions of what happens afterward describe the woman being protected in the wilderness (vv. 6, 13–17). The first vision (vv. 1–6) portrays a decisive battle at the turning point of history. Christ's incarnation, obedience, sacrifice, and exaltation forever disqualify Satan from accusing believers (see v. 10). Some interpreters think the second vision (vv. 7–17) represents the same series of events, while others think it portrays events at the beginning of the great tribulation.

FACT

The OT in Revelation. Roughly one-seventh of the book of Revelation consists of quotations from the OT. It is a reminder of just how important it is to read and understand the OT as foundational for the New.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:1–2 The woman is a great sign in heaven. Her clothing is the sun, moon, and twelve stars. She symbolizes Israel (compare Joseph's dream, Gen. 37:9).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:3 The great red dragon is "that ancient serpent, the devil and Satan" (v. 9; compare 20:2; Gen. 3:1–15). Its seven heads with seven diadems and ten horns symbolize great power (compare Dan. 7:6–7; Rev. 13:1).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:4 His tail swept down a third of the stars of heaven. Evil spirits (demons) who are Satan's allies share his defeat by God's forces (vv. 7–9). Some interpreters think this refers to the original fall of Satan. They think one-third of the angels rebelled with him (see 2 Pet. 2:4; Jude 6). The dragon's desire to devour the woman's child at birth recalls Gen. 3:15.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:5 The rod of iron (also 2:27; 19:15) is a shepherd's club, used to shatter the nations like pottery (compare Ps. 2:9).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:6 The child's mother fled into the wilderness. This symbolizes the church's complete dependence on God. He protects them from the dragon's rage (vv. 13–14; compare Ex. 16:13–18; 1 Kings 19:5–8). Some scholars think the time period symbolized as 1,260 days (or “a time, and times, and half a time”; see note on Rev. 11:1–2) began with Christ’s ascension. It will end when God allows the dragon to deceive the nations and gather them against the church (20:7–10). Others understand the “1,260 days” (three and a half years) to represent the second half of the great tribulation. They consider this the same period as the second half of Daniel’s seventieth week (Dan. 9:27). On this view, the woman’s fleeing indicates that during the great tribulation Jewish believers will be persecuted by the Antichrist and will flee into the wilderness (see note on Rev. 11:1–2).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:7 Michael is the archangel and guardian of God’s people (Dan. 10:13; 12:1; Jude 9). Some interpreters think Michael’s battle with the dragon marks the beginning of the “time of trouble” (Dan. 12:1), the great tribulation.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:8–9 The victory of Michael and the holy angels over the dragon and his allies may symbolize Jesus’ triumph on the cross (compare Col. 2:15). It may also reflect the defeat of demonic forces because of Christ’s victory at the cross. Or it may describe the original casting out of Satan and his demons from heaven (see note on Rev. 12:4). The devil (Greek) and Satan (Hebrew) describe a legal opponent, an accuser at law (see vv. 10–11). Some think he was thrown down to the earth indicates increased demonic activity on earth during the great tribulation.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:12 his time is short. Jesus’ death, resurrection, and ascension began “the kingdom of our God” (v. 10). These events guaranteed the end of Satan’s power.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:14 two wings of the great eagle. A metaphor of the exodus (see Ex. 19:4) becomes an image of God’s care for his church. a time, and times, and half a time. See note on Rev. 11:1–2.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:15 water like a river out of his mouth. The serpent tries to destroy the people of God (sweep her away) by lies and false teaching (compare Gen. 3:13).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 12:17 The dragon fails to destroy the Messiah (see vv. 4–5) and his mother (that is, Israel; see note on vv. 1–2). So he makes war on the rest of her offspring. Some thinks this refers to the church throughout the ages. Others think it refers to believing Israel (or the remnant in ch. 7). These include all who hold to the testimony of Jesus, all who endure in faithfulness and obedience to the gospel. The dragon's weapon is the "beast" that emerges from the sea to wage war on the saints (13:2, 7).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:1–10 As the dragon stands on the seashore (12:17), a beast emerges from the sea. This beast is sometimes identified with the Antichrist (see 1 John 2:18, 22; 4:3; 2 John 7) or the man of lawlessness (2 Thess. 2:3–12). Yet the imagery of Daniel 7 that appears in the description of the beast shows that it represents not only a future individual but also present world powers that wage Satan's war against the Lamb and his church.

FACT

A call for endurance. The churches were facing many threats, including persecution, false teaching, and idolatry, as is true today around the world. Revelation urges believers to continue (or persevere) in the faith despite difficulties. Christ's victory is secure, and God will richly reward those who suffer for his sake.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:1–2 The beast resembles all four beasts that Daniel saw emerge from the sea before the Son of Man appeared (Dan. 7:1–8, 21). Those beasts symbolized kingdoms (Dan. 7:17, 23). This beast represents every oppressive human empire that demands absolute allegiance and enforces its demand. This includes Egypt, Assyria, Babylon, Persia, Greece, Rome, and their successors. Its 10 horns and seven heads mirror those of the dragon (Rev. 12:3), who gives the beast its great authority.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:3 seemed to have a mortal wound. Literally, "as slain to death." Rome represented the beast in John's day. It seemed to have been mortally wounded by Nero's suicide (A.D. 68) and the civil chaos that followed. It experienced a "resurrection" in the reigns of Vespasian and his sons Titus and Domitian. During Domitian's reign (A.D. 81–96), Nero's persecution of the church also revived. Many interpreters think this verse also predicts a future remarkable recovery of the Antichrist from a deadly wound.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:4 Who is like the beast? The worshipers' question echoes Israel's praise of the Lord after the exodus (Ex. 15:11). This reinforces the beast's claim to divine honors.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:5 was given . . . was allowed. See note on 9:1. The beast speaks haughty and blasphemous words, like the horn (king) on the fourth beast in Daniel's vision (Dan. 7:20, 25). forty-two months. See note on Rev. 11:1–2; also 12:6, 14.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:6 The identification of God's dwelling as those who dwell in heaven confirms that the sanctuary in 11:1 symbolized the worshipers in it. Likewise, the "holy city" is the Lamb's church-bride (21:2, 9–27).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:8 written before the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who was slain. Before creation and by grace alone, God chose individuals to be redeemed by Christ's death (see Eph. 1:4–14; and note on Eph. 1:11). God's book of life appears in Ex. 32:32–33; Dan. 12:1; Luke 10:20; Rev. 3:5; 17:8; 20:15. The parallel expression in 17:8 shows that "before the foundation of the world" refers to "written" rather than to "slain."

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:9–10 endurance. Perseverance is a major theme in Revelation (12:17; 14:12; 16:15; 17:14; 21:7–8; 22:7, 10, 12, 14; see also "overcoming" in chs. 2–3).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:11–18 A second beast rises out of the earth to recruit worshipers for the first beast. He gathers people using lying words and miracles. In John's day, the imperial cult in the Roman province of Asia encouraged worship of the emperor as divine savior and lawgiver.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:11 The second beast resembles the Lamb, but his lying words expose his real nature. He is like a dragon (see 12:15; 16:13–14; 19:20).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:13 making fire come down from heaven. The false prophet (the second beast) does a miracle similar to Elijah's to make people believe the first beast is divine (see 1 Kings 18:38; 2 Kings 1:10; Rev. 8:7; 11:5).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:14–15 Idols "have mouths but cannot speak" (Ps. 115:5). Thus the impression that the first beast's image has breath and might even speak is likely some kind of miracle worked by demonic power yet still subject to God's sovereign control (it is allowed).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:16–17 marked on the right hand or the forehead. The Israelites wore God's law on their hands and foreheads. They did this to show God's authority over their thoughts and actions (Deut. 6:8). The beast's mark and the seal of God on believers' foreheads (see Rev. 7:3; 14:1; compare also Ex. 28:36–38; Ezek. 9:4) do not have to be physical features, though they may be that. Both symbolize spiritual control.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 13:18 The number of the beast is 666. This number of a man may contrast with divine completeness (symbolized by seven).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 14:1–15:8 The vision sequence leading to the seven last plagues (which will be described as "bowls" of God's wrath, 16:1–21) opens and closes with scenes of a heavenly choir singing praise to God (14:1–5; 15:2–4). Between these anthems, John sees three angels who announce impending judgment (14:6–13) and three who order and execute harvests (14:15–20). At the center, between the three announcing angels and the three harvesting angels, John sees a seventh figure, "one like a son of man," gathering his grain from the earth (14:14). Despite the beast's cruel persecution (ch. 13), these visions (like those in chs. 7 and 10–11) provide reassurance that God and the Lamb rule, and that martyrs are already celebrating victory.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 14:1 Mount Zion. Fulfilling Ps. 2:6, the Lamb stands on God's holy hill in heaven. name. A token of possession and protection by God, promised to every conqueror in the spiritual war (Rev. 3:12). 144,000. See notes on 7:1–17; 7:4–8; 7:9.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 14:3 The new song celebrates God's triumph over sin through the Lamb (5:9; 15:3). God's prior victories were also celebrated in new songs (Ps. 98:1). The song belongs only to those who have experienced the Lamb's redemption (Ps. 107:1–3). This is another indication that 144,000 represents those who have been redeemed rather than an actual number (see notes on Rev. 7:1–17; 7:4–8; 7:9).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 14:4–5 have not defiled themselves with women, for they are virgins. Soldiers often avoided having sex during the wars God commanded (see Deut. 23:9–11; 1 Sam. 21:5). The 144,000 (Rev. 14:3) represent believers of both sexes who die in faith and are gathered as firstfruits for God, foreshadowing a greater harvest.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 14:8 Another angel announces that Babylon is fallen (echoing Isa. 21:9). Babylon was the greatest power of its day. Babylon conquered Judah. In John's day, Rome was the nation with "dominion over the kings of the earth" (Rev. 17:18) that oppressed Christ's people (17:6). Yet Revelation's "Babylon" transcends Rome, since its fall comes at the end of history (15:1; 16:17–19). the passion of her sexual immorality. Babylon the prostitute represents the temptations of material wealth and pleasure. These things tempt the people into serving something other than the Lord.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 14:9–11 the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever. Hell is eternal. The wicked do not cease to exist when they die.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 14:14–20 Two reapers appear in heaven, sharp sickles in hand. Angels emerge from the temple with God's order to "Put in your sickle, and reap." First "one like a son of man" gathers the grain of the earth. Then an angel gathers grapes from the earth's vine. These will be crushed in the "winepress of the wrath of God."

REVELATION—NOTE ON 14:14 One like a son of man, seated on the cloud and wearing a golden crown (compare Dan. 7:13–14; Rev. 1:7, 13) is Jesus, the Lord of the harvest. He sowed the gospel (Matt. 13:37) and will return to harvest it.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 14:15–16 The harvest of the earth probably is the Son of Man gathering believers (compare Matt. 13:30).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 14:17–20 The second harvest involves cutting grape clusters from the vine and crushing them in God's winepress. This pictures the destruction of the wicked (compare Joel 3:12–13). trodden. The Lord will trample nations that have trampled God's holy city, just as Isaiah promised (Isa. 63:1–6). Their blood is shed outside the city (probably Jerusalem), where all unclean things belong (see Rev. 21:27).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 15:1–16:21 The seven "last" plagues, envisioned as "bowls full of the wrath of God" are poured out on earth. Some believe these bowls represent future global judgments. They will occur at the end of the great tribulation period and end in the battle of Armageddon (16:14–16).

The Seven Benedictions

Blessed is the one who reads aloud, hears, and keeps the words of this prophecy	1:3
Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord	14:13
Blessed is the one who stays awake, keeping his garments on	16:15
Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb	19:9
Blessed and holy is the one who shares in the first resurrection	20:6
Blessed is the one who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book	22:7
Blessed are those who wash their robes	22:14

REVELATION—NOTE ON 15:1–8 Believers celebrate God’s victory (vv. 1–4). Then God completes his judgment of rebellious people (vv. 5–8).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 15:1 another sign in heaven. These angels begin the completion of God’s triumph in the destruction of his enemies.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 15:2–4 The harps of God and the song of the Lamb is music created by God’s redeemed people. They conquered the beast by holding fast to their faith even when threatened with death (12:11). sea of glass. See note on 4:6–8.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 15:3–4 The song of Moses celebrated Israel’s exodus from Egypt (Ex. 15:1–18). Now the song of the Lamb tells of a greater redemption of a new kingdom of priests (Rev. 5:9–10). A later “song of Moses” praised the Lord whose ways are just (Deut. 32:1–43; especially v. 4). The King of the nations will be feared, glorified, and worshiped by all nations (Ps. 86:9) for his righteous acts of judgment (Ps. 98:2).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 15:5 the tent of witness in heaven. See note on Heb. 8:1–2.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 15:6 pure, bright linen. A preview of the holy beauty of Christ’s bride (19:7–8).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 15:8 God’s glory was so intense that no one could enter the sanctuary. No one can until the seven plagues . . . were finished (see v. 1).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 16:1–21 The first four bowls inflict plagues on the earth, sea, rivers and springs, and sun (compare 8:7–12). The destruction poured out from the bowls is total (contrast 9:4–5, 18). The end has come.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 16:2 When the first bowl is poured out on the earth, it afflicts the earth's inhabitants, who bear the beast's mark, with painful sores. This is like the sixth plague on Egypt (compare Ex. 9:8–12; Deut. 28:27, 35).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 16:3 The second bowl turns the waters of the sea into blood (compare Ex. 7:21). All sea life will die.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 16:4–7 With the third bowl, rivers and springs (sources of drinking water) will be turned to blood. "It is what they deserve," declares the angel . . . of the waters. The angel refers to those who shed the blood of saints and prophets (see 17:6). altar. See 6:9.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 16:8–9 Instead of darkening the sun (see 8:12), the fourth bowl will intensify its heat.

The Seven Bowls of Wrath (16:2–21)

The complete, unrestrained expression of God's wrath

Bowl	Area Affected	Reference	Result
Bowl 1	earth	16:2	sores on the beast's worshipers
Bowl 2	sea	16:3	blood and death
Bowl 3	rivers and springs	16:4–7	blood to drink
Bowl 4	sun	16:8–9	burning heat
Bowl 5	beast's throne	16:10–11	palpable darkness
Bowl 6	Euphrates River	16:12–16	gathering for the battle
Bowl 7	air	16:17–21	earthquake shattering the great city

REVELATION—NOTE ON 16:10–11 Darkness was the ninth plague on Egypt (Ex. 10:21–29). The refusal to repent (compare Rev. 9:20–21; 16:9) shows the depth of human sinfulness. It also shows the justice of eternal punishment (20:3–15).

FACT

The vision of the fifth bowl (16:10–11) shows that even the very throne of the beast is not immune to God's just wrath. It is appropriate that a regime founded on deceit should be plunged into darkness (see 13:13–14).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 16:12–14 The drying up of the great river Euphrates allows Satan's armies to gather. Unclean spirits emerge as frogs (compare Ex. 8:2–11).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 16:15 Jesus calls for spiritual vigilance. This echoes his challenge to the satisfied churches of Sardis and Laodicea (ch. 3).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 16:16 Armageddon means “Mount Megiddo” in Hebrew. In ancient Israel, Megiddo was a plain, not a mountain. It was also the site of some key battles (Judg. 5:19; 2 Kings 23:29). In the symbolic geography of John’s visions it represents the global combat zone (see Rev. 20:9). The final conflict between Christ and Satan will be fought there.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 16:17–21 “It is done!” This declaration affirms that God has completed his plan (10:7). His wrath against evil is finished (15:1, 8). His kingdom is fully come (11:15). A great earthquake will shatter the great city, where Jesus was crucified and his martyrs were murdered (11:7–10). It is Babylon the great, which rules the “kings of the earth” (17:18). Human civilization will end when the Lord comes with lightning, rumblings, and peals of thunder (11:19). This is the earthquake predicted in the sixth seal (6:12–17).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:1–19:10 An extended vision describes the fall of Babylon. This event was announced by an angel (14:8) and portrayed in the seventh bowl (16:18–19). The city appears as a female prostitute (17:1–6). Then an angel explains the meaning of the woman and the beast on which she sits (17:7–18). Finally, a series of voices comment on her fall (18:1–19:10). The “great prostitute” and “Babylon the great” (chs. 17 and 18) are the same. Both portray the beast’s empire.

FACT

Symbolism is very important in Revelation. Instead of portraying characters and events directly, the author often uses symbols. For example, Jesus is portrayed as a lamb, churches are portrayed as lamps on lampstands, and Satan is portrayed as a dragon with seven heads and ten horns.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:1–15 Babylon’s expensive clothing and jewelry symbolize her wealth. Her name, “mother of prostitutes and of earth’s abominations” (v. 5), represents the desire of godless societies for sensual pleasure. Her becoming drunk on the blood of the saints, and the beast on which she sits, symbolize the pursuit of wealth, pleasure, and power.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:1 Many waters symbolizes the many peoples and nations Babylon rules (vv. 15, 18).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:2 Sexual immorality and spiritual infidelity are connected (2:20–23; Ezek. 16:15–43).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:3 carried me away in the Spirit. The Holy Spirit gave John a prophetic vision like Ezekiel experienced (Ezek. 3:12; 11:24). wilderness. A place of spiritual protection (see Rev. 12:6, 14) and physical difficulty. The beast of ch. 13 is now a scarlet beast on which the woman sits. Some understand this to be the Antichrist, who supports Babylon.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:4 Both prostitute and bride are adorned in gold, jewels, pearls, and fine linen (compare 18:16; 19:8; 21:18–21). Babylon's clothing is expensive purple and scarlet. The bride's is bright, pure white. The prostitute symbolizes the appeal of a worldly economic system driven by wealth and pleasure (18:11–19). golden cup. Compare Jer. 51:7.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:6 drunk with the blood of the . . . martyrs of Jesus. The wealthy and powerful rulers kill Jesus' followers (13:15–17).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:8 beast . . . was and is not and is to come. It had received a terrible wound yet came back to life (13:12–14). about to rise from the bottomless pit (see 11:7) and go to destruction. The beast's power to persecute Christians is limited. His future violence will also be limited (see 19:19–21; 20:7–10).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:9–11 The city of Rome rests on seven mountains (or seven hills). In prophetic imagery, mountains symbolize the place of power (Jer. 51:24–25; Dan. 2:35, 44–45). The beast's seven heads symbolize both mountains and kings. This shows his power over people whose names are not in the book of life. The dragon and beast's "time is short" (Rev. 12:12), for the beast goes to destruction.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:12–14 The beast's ten horns, symbolizing ten kings, probably represent all of the earth's kings. They are deceived and gathered by the dragon and the beast for a final rebellion against the Lamb and an assault on his called and chosen and faithful followers (see 16:14; 19:19–21; 20:7–10).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:16–19:10 The military power that supports Babylon's pursuit of pleasure will destroy its wealth and social order. This will distress those who idolized and profited from its wealth. But this will delight believers, who have suffered its violent attacks.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:16–17 The partnership of prostitute and beast will end. Armies will destroy the economic system it once supported. The beast and its allies strip the prostitute naked. They devour her flesh and burn her up with fire (compare Ezek. 16:39–41). God uses his enemies to carry out his purpose.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 17:18 The great city is Rome, which had dominion over the kings of the earth.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 18:1–19:10 Several speakers explain how the beast and the kings desert the prostitute.

FACT

In the Bible, Babylon symbolizes humanity's ambition to dethrone God and rule the earth. "Babel," the Hebrew word for Babylon, first appears in the story of the Tower of Babel (Genesis 11). Chapters 17–18 of Revelation describe Babylon's final defeat.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 18:1–3 Fallen, fallen. Compare Isa. 21:9. Babylon's fall will turn the great city into a wilderness inhabited by every unclean spirit, bird, and beast.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 18:4 The prophets often asked the OT Israelites to come out of (be different than) the cultures where they were exiled (Isa. 52:11; Jer. 51:6–9, 45). Such separation was equally relevant to the NT church and it remains so today (2 Cor. 6:14–18; 1 Pet. 2:11–12).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 18:6 God is just. He will pay (Babylon) back as she herself has paid back (see Ex. 21:23–25). The double portion (see Isa. 40:2; Jer. 16:18) of punishment is for the violence she inflicted on the saints (Rev. 19:2).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 18:7–8 Babylon's boast, I sit as a queen, I am no widow will be silenced in a single day (compare Isa. 47:7–9).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 18:9–20 Laments come from kings, merchants, and sailors who profited from Babylon's power and wealth.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 18:12–13 The prostitute symbolizes all corrupt economic systems. Even human souls are reduced to cargo. They are traded as slaves to provide cheap labor for greedy merchants.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 18:20 Everyone in heaven (saints and apostles and prophets) rejoice in God's judgment of Babylon (compare 12:12).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 18:21 Compare Jer. 51:63–64.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 18:24 God will judge Babylon and the beast for shedding the blood of his prophets and saints (see 6:10; 11:8; 17:6).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:1–2 A great multitude from every nation (see 7:9–10) praises God for his just judgment of the prostitute who murdered the saints. Hallelujah comes from a Hebrew term for "praise Yahweh."

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:3 smoke . . . goes up forever and ever. Symbolizes permanent judgment. The heavenly praise of God (Hallelujah!) for this judgment reflects the evil done by "the great prostitute" (v. 2).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:4 The worship offered by the elders and living creatures links this celebration with the vision of God and the Lamb in 5:8–10. Amen expresses confident certainty (John 10:7) or strong agreement (1 Cor. 14:16).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:5 Praise our God. See note on vv. 1–2.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:6 The next voice is like that of a great multitude, many waters, and mighty peals of thunder. It comes from a great crowd in heaven (compare 14:2). The Almighty is praised for establishing his unchallenged reign at Christ's return (see 1 Cor. 15:24).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:7–8 The prostitute has been destroyed. Now the Lamb's pure Bride is announced. it was granted. Her gown of righteous deeds is her groom's gift (compare Isa. 61:10; Rev. 6:11; 7:14). On the church as bride of Christ, see 21:2, 9; 22:17; 2 Cor. 11:2; Eph. 5:25–27.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:9–10 Those invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb are believers who belong to his beloved bride, the church. This "marriage supper of the Lamb" was predicted in Isa. 25:6–9; Matt. 22:1–14; 25:10; 26:29. John is twice corrected ("You must not do that!") for trying to worship the angel (see Rev. 22:8–9). John is commanded to worship God alone. This confirms the deity of Jesus, the Lamb who is rightly worshiped (see 5:8–14).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:11–20:15 An opening up of heaven (compare 4:1; 11:19; 15:5) introduces visions that symbolize the last battle between Christ and the forces of evil. This passage fulfills the promise of Christ's return to reign on earth.

FACT

The rider on the white horse. Because the color white was associated with victory, military or political leaders often chose white horses. In 19:11, the victorious Jesus rides a white horse.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:11–21 The climactic battle for which the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet gathered the earth's kings (16:13–16) is introduced with a description of Christ the victor (19:11–16), then with a grim "dinner invitation" forecasting the battle's outcome (vv. 17–18). Finally, the conflict occurs (vv. 19–21).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:11 The rider of the white horse is already victorious. White is the color of victory (see note on 3:4–5). The rider's titles, Faithful and True, identify him as Jesus, the faithful and true witness (1:5; 3:14).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:12–16 The horse's rider (v. 11) is the Son of Man. He has eyes . . . like a flame of fire and a sharp sword (see notes on 1:14; 1:16). His many diadems (crowns signifying royalty) show his supremacy as King of kings and Lord of lords. He is named the Word of God, for he is the greatest revelation of the Father (John 1:1, 14; Heb. 1:1–2). He also has a name written that no one knows but himself. The greatness of the Son of God can never be fully known (on "name," see note on John 1:12–13).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:14 The armies of heaven ride white horses, sharing the victory of the Lamb (see 12:11; 15:2).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:15 with a rod of iron. See note on 12:5. Because he operates the winepress of God's wrath, Jesus' robe is covered in his enemies' blood (compare Isa. 63:1–6).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:17–18 The angel's invitation for birds to pick corpses clean at the great supper of God reflects an OT covenant judgment (Deut. 28:26). It also echoes Ezekiel's prophetic word against Gog and Magog, who oppressed his people (Ezek. 39:17–20; see Rev. 20:8).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:20 The beast and the false prophet, like the great prostitute, represent corrupt individuals and institutions.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 19:21 The rest are "the kings of the earth and their armies" (v. 19). Only the Lamb and his army will survive this battle.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 20:1–6 These verses, the last of three "interludes" in Revelation (see note on 7:1–17), are among the most controversial in the book. Scholars disagree about the meaning of the "thousand years." The three main views are: (1) Premillennialists believe Christ will return "pre" [before] the millennium. They think this thousand years (or millennium) is a future time of great peace and justice. They usually consider this to be a literal 1,000-year period that will begin when Christ returns to reign on earth. He will be King, and resurrected believers will reign with him. (2) Postmillennialists believe that Christ will return "post" [after] the millennial period. They think that before Christ returns to earth the gospel will spread and triumph. Societies will be transformed. Peace and justice will reign on earth for a thousand years (or for a long period of time). After this, Christ will return for the final judgment. (3) Amillennialists hold an "a" [non-literal] millennial view. They think this thousand years is the same period as this present church age. They believe there will be no future "millennium" before Christ returns for the final judgment. Each of these views is within the framework of historic Christian orthodoxy.

The "Bookends" of Biblical Theology

God's ultimate purpose in redemptive history is to create a people to dwell in his presence, glorifying him through numerous varied activities and enjoying him forever. The story begins with God in eternal glory, and it ends with God and his people in eternal glory. At the center stands the cross, where God revealed his glory through his Son.

The biblical story of redemption must be understood within the larger story of creation. First Adam, and later Israel, was placed in God's sanctuary (the garden and the Promised Land, respectively), but both Adam and Israel failed to be a faithful, obedient steward, and both were expelled from the sanctuary God had created for them. But Jesus Christ—the second Adam, the son of Abraham, the son of David—was faithful and obedient to God. Though the world killed him, God raised him to life, which meant that death was defeated. Through his Spirit, God pours into sinners the resurrection life of his Son, creating a new humanity "in Christ." Those who are "in Christ" move through death into new, re-embodied life and exaltation in God's sanctuary, there to enjoy his presence forever.

The "bookends" concept of biblical theology illustrates that in the third-to-last chapter of the Bible (Revelation 20) God removes his enemies—Satan, death, and evil—that entered the story line in the third chapter of the Bible (Genesis 3), thus completing the story of redemption. The last two chapters (Revelation 21–22) don't simply restore the first two chapters (Genesis 1–2); they go beyond them to a world that is fully ordered and holy, in which God is fully present with his people, completing the story of creation. (Chapter divisions in the Bible are, of course, human contributions, not divinely inspired.)

FACT

Revelation contains seven benedictions, or blessings (see chart). Some other memorable benedictions include Aaron's blessing on Israel (Num. 6:24–26), 2 Corinthians 13:14, and Jude 24–25. These and other blessings are often used in Christian worship.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 20:1–3 The dragon will be bound with a great chain and thrown into the bottomless pit, which will be shut and sealed. This symbolizes God's restriction of Satan's ability to inflict harm for a long but set period. The nature of this binding of Satan is important to the three millennial views. Premillennialists read this as predicting a complete removal of Satan from the earth during a millennium of social righteousness, international peace, and physical well-being. Christ will reign on earth during this time. Postmillennialists also think this will be a future peaceful millennium, but that Christ will not return until the end of that time. Amillennialists argue that this refers to the gospel's spread among all nations during the present age. They also think it symbolizes God restraining the church's enemies until just before Christ's return (see 2 Thess. 2:3–8).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 20:4–5 I saw thrones, and seated on them were those to whom the authority to judge was committed. Premillennialists argue that "coming down from heaven" (v. 1) and the reference to "the nations" (v. 3) show that these "thrones" are on earth (during Christ's millennial reign). Amillennialists argue that the echoes in these verses from Daniel's vision (compare Dan. 7:9, 22) indicate the thrones are in heaven. John sees the souls of those who had been beheaded . . . and those who had not worshiped the beast. These are the faithful believers who came to life. Premillennialists think deceased believers will experience bodily resurrection at the beginning of the millennium, and that is what is meant by this is the first resurrection. Amillennialists think "they came to life" and "the first resurrection" means their souls entered into the presence of God in heaven after they died. Their deaths were their victory over the dragon and beast (Rev. 12:11; 15:2). They will be given new bodies at the final resurrection (20:12–15). Some postmillennialists agree with the amillennial view of "the first resurrection." Other postmillennialists think it refers to the future victory of Christianity in the world after its earlier persecution. and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. Premillennialists think this means that these resurrected believers will assist with Christ's thousand-year reign as righteous King over the whole earth. Amillennialists think this means deceased believers are "reigning" with Christ from heaven now. Postmillennialists see it as a future triumph of Christianity in the world.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 20:6 second death. The wicked are returned to bodily existence and condemned for their evil deeds. They will be cast into the lake of fire forever (vv. 12–15).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 20:7–10 Satan's release after the thousand years will free him to deceive the nations and to gather them for the last battle. Amillennialists see this as the same battle as the one described in 16:13–16 and 19:17–21. Premillennialists see this as a separate, later battle. The gathered armies are called Gog and Magog, titles of Israel's pagan oppressors, who would be destroyed by fire . . . from heaven (Ezek. 38:22; 39:6) and eaten by birds (Ezek. 39:1–6, 17–20; Rev. 19:17–18, 21). The saints are attacked by enemies as countless as the sand of the sea (see 12:17), but God will protect them.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 20:11–15 All the dead will be raised from the grave and the sea, to be judged either by their deeds recorded in "the books" (v. 12) or by God's gracious registration of their names in the Lamb's "book of life" (v. 12; see note on v. 13). This judgment was announced in 11:18.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 20:11 The great white throne reflects the purity and wisdom of God, the Ancient of Days (see Dan. 7:9). earth and sky fled away. This removal of the first heaven and earth (promised in Hag. 2:6; Heb. 12:26–28; and described in Rev. 6:12–14; 16:18–21) prepares the way for the new heaven and earth (21:1, 4–5; Isa. 65:17; 66:22; 2 Pet. 3:10–13).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 20:12 The dead, great and small include God's saints (11:18; 19:5) and the beast's worshipers (13:16; 19:18). Books recording their deeds will be opened (Dan. 7:10). The books will provide the evidence on which each is judged (Rom. 2:6–11). another book, the book of life. See note on Rev. 20:13; see 3:5; 13:8; 17:8; 20:15; 21:27.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 20:13 The sea, Death, and Hades (the realm of the dead; 6:8) will give up their dead as all people return to bodily existence to be judged. they were judged . . . according to what they had done. Unbelievers will be rightly condemned for their sins (20:15). Believers, whose names are in the "book of life" (vv. 12, 15), will enter into "a new heaven and a new earth" (21:1) because they are redeemed by "the Lamb who was slain" for their sins (1:5; 13:8). Their recorded deeds give evidence of their trust in Christ and are the basis for determining their rewards (see notes on 1 Cor. 3:14–15; 2 Cor. 5:10; Rev. 22:12–16).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 20:14 Death, the last enemy, will be destroyed when Christ returns and resurrects believers (1 Cor. 15:23–26).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:1–22:5 The destruction of death will lead to the renewal of the entire created order. It will become the perfect home in which the Lamb will live forever with his bride, the people he has redeemed through his atoning death.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:1 Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth. The removal of the first heaven and earth eliminates evil. Sin and suffering and death will not exist. This fulfills Isa. 65:17; 66:22. Scholars differ, however, as to how much and in what way the "first heaven and the first earth" will pass away and be changed into something new. They discuss whether this represents an entirely new creation or a "renewed" creation that has some continuity with the old order. It seems that "new" is best understood here as something that has been transformed in a fundamental way, rather than as a fresh creation. By comparison to what is coming to an end, the new cosmic order is radically different. It is a place where "righteousness will dwell" (2 Pet. 3:13). There God "will wipe away every tear from their eyes" (Rev. 21:4; compare Isa. 25:8 and Rev. 7:17) and "death shall be no more" (21:4; compare Isa. 25:8 and 1 Cor. 15:26). There "the creation itself will be set free from its bondage to decay" (Rom. 8:21) and all that is "perishable" will be raised and transformed into a glorious new "imperishable" reality (1 Cor. 15:42–43). There the redeemed will rejoice in the eternal presence of "God and the Lamb" (Rev. 14:4; 22:1–5). The sea was no more refers to the source of earthly rebellion (13:1; Dan. 7:3).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:2 the holy city, new Jerusalem (compare Heb. 12:22–24). The church redeemed by Jesus Christ will be adorned as a bride.

FACT

Revelation refers to the church as the Bride of Christ (19:7; 21:2, 9; 22:17). Similarly, Paul uses the relationship between Christ and the church as an example of how husbands and wives should treat each other (Eph. 5:25–27).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:3 He will dwell with them. The greatest blessing of heaven will be constant fellowship with God himself. The goal of God's covenant, "God with us" (Isa. 7:14, ESV footnote; Matt. 1:23), will be achieved. his people . . . their God. See Lev. 26:11–12; Ezek. 37:27.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:4 God will wipe away every tear and put an end to death, mourning, and pain (see Isa. 25:8; 65:19–20). He will reverse the curse that entered the world through human sin (Gen. 3:14–19).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:6 It is done! The destruction of God's enemies (16:17) and the salvation of his saints are both completed. the Alpha and the Omega. First and last letters of the Greek alphabet (see 1:8; 22:13). The Lord is the one who "begins" and "ends" all things (Isa. 41:4; 44:6). The spring of the water of life flows from the throne of God and the Lamb (Rev. 22:1). This is a throne of grace (Heb. 4:16) because here the thirsty drink without payment, by God's free gift (Isa. 55:1).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:7 The one who conquers. God has made promises to conquerors (2:7, 11, 17). These are summed up in this assurance that the new heaven and earth are their heritage as God's children. he will be my son. This promise was made to David's descendants (2 Sam. 7:14). It was fulfilled in Jesus (Heb. 1:5). It also includes those who belong to him (Gal. 3:26). On "son," see note on Gal. 3:26.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:8 second death. Judgment awaits those who renounce their faith in Christ. sorcerers. On ancient magic, see note on Acts 13:6.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:9–22:5 An angel with one of the seven bowls helps John see the bride, the wife of the Lamb. She is the holy city Jerusalem. Some take this as a literal description of this new city. Others understand it as symbolic of life in heaven.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:12–14 The city's high wall and twelve gates symbolize absolute protection. The gates bear the names of Israel's twelve tribes, and the Lamb's twelve apostles are named on the wall's foundations (Eph. 2:20), signifying the unity of OT and NT believers.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:15–17 measuring rod of gold. See Ezek. 40:3. The city's length and width and height are equal, having a cubic shape like the Most Holy Place in the OT sanctuary (1 Kings 6:20; Ezek. 41:4). Since the entire city is the Most Holy Place (the place of God's presence), there is no temple in it (Rev. 21:22). The length, width, and height of the city (12,000 stadia, or 1,380 miles [2,221 km]) and the width of the city wall (144 cubits) are multiples of 12. This may indicate the literal dimensions of the city or it may symbolize the city's perfection.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:18 Pure gold may be literal gold that shows the bride's priceless value and purity, or it may simply be symbolic.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:19–21 The 12 jewels correspond to those engraved with the names of Israelite tribes on the high priest's breastplate (Ex. 28:17–20). They also resemble stones associated with Eden (Ezek. 28:13–14).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:22 its temple is the Lord God . . . and the Lamb. Jesus himself is the tent and temple in which God lives among his people (John 1:14; 2:19–21).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:23 God the Father is the source and Christ is the mediator of the bride's radiant light (her truth and purity). See Isa. 60:19–20.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 21:24–27 bring their glory into it. Compare Isa. 60:3–5. The city's gates will never be shut because there are no opponents left to threaten it.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:1–2 The river of the water of life and the tree of life recall Eden before the fall into sin (Gen. 2:8–10; 3:22–24; see Rev. 2:7). It also echoes Ezekiel's vision of a future glorious temple (Ezek. 47:1–12; see Zech. 14:8). Refreshment and life flow from the throne of God and of the Lamb, carried by the Holy Spirit, as Jesus promised (John 4:10–14; 7:38–39; see also Isa. 44:3; Ezek. 36:25–27). Believers have this life-giving water even now (Rev. 7:17; 22:17), but its fullness awaits the new heaven and earth. This ever-flowing river portrays an unending stream of abundant blessings and joy. The healing of the nations occurs through the destruction of death (20:14; see Ezek. 47:12).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:3 anything accursed. Earth was cursed for Adam's sin (Gen. 3:17). Guilt, strife, struggle for survival, sickness, sorrow, and death resulted. In the new creation, these will not remain (Rev. 21:4). God's throne will make the entire city a temple (21:22). There his servants will worship him as his priests.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:4 Moses could not see the Lord's face and live (Ex. 33:20–23; 34:29–35). Yet God's redeemed people will see his face. His name . . . on their foreheads sealed them as his protected property through history's turmoil and trials (Rev. 3:11–12; 7:2–8; 14:1).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:5 Since night has been banished (see 21:25), God's servants will bask in light from God's radiant glory and truth (see 21:23–24). In union with Jesus their king, believers will worship as priests and reign as kings over the new earth forever and ever (5:10).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:6–21 Epilogue. John reaffirms the truthfulness of the revelation he received. He pronounces blessing on those who keep its words, and promises that Jesus will soon return.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:6–7 These words are trustworthy and true. The truthfulness of God's word is affirmed seven times in the last two chapters of Revelation (21:5; 22:6, 7, 9, 10, 18, 19). Blessed is the one who keeps the words of . . . this book. See 1:3 and note.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:8–9 Human beings must not worship even the angels who inflict the last plagues (15:1; 21:9). Angels are fellow servants. God alone must be worshiped. Since the Lamb is rightly worshiped (5:8–14), he is God.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:10–15 John must not "seal" his prophecy as Daniel did his (Dan. 12:4, 9). Unlike Daniel's prophecy, the fulfillment of John's visions was "near" to his first-century readers. It remains near today.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:11 Let the evildoer still do evil . . . and the righteous still do right. Patterns of behavior, whether controlled by unbelief or by faith, will eventually be irreversible (compare Dan. 12:10).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:12–16 Christ will come to repay each one for what he has done. He will reward each faithful servant and punish each unbeliever. Recompense ("wages," "reward") indicates degrees of reward and punishment (see Luke 12:47–48).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:13 the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last. See note on 21:6.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:14–15 Blessed. The final of the seven benedictions of Revelation (see chart) is for those who wash their robes in the conscience-cleansing blood of the Lamb (7:14; Heb. 9:14). They have access to the tree of life within God's city. Outside the gates in eternal torment will be everyone who loves Satanic falsehood, sensuality, and murder (compare Rev. 21:8, 27).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:16–17 As promised in 1:1, Jesus has given his revelation through his angel and through John to his churches for their comfort and warning.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:16 the root and the descendant of David. Jesus is both David's "son" and his Lord (5:5; Isa. 11:1, 10; Mark 12:35–37). bright morning star. See note on Rev. 2:26–28.

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:17 God invites the spiritually thirsty to take the water of life without price. It is freely provided by God's grace (21:6; Isa. 55:1).

REVELATION—NOTE ON 22:18–21 I warn is the same verb as testifies in v. 20. No human may add to or take away from God's words. Doing so brings the plagues described in this book (compare Deut. 4:2; 12:32; also Deut. 18:20–22). When Jesus testifies once more, Surely I am coming soon, his church responds, Come, Lord Jesus! (compare 1 Cor. 16:22).

The Hebrew Calendar

The Hebrew calendar was composed of 12 lunar months, each of which began when the thin crescent moon was first visible at sunset. They were composed of approximately 29/30 days and were built around the agricultural seasons. Apparently some of the names of the months were changed after the time of Israel’s exile in Babylon (e.g., the first month of Abib changed to Nisan; for dates of the exile, see p. 31). The months of the Hebrew calendar (left column) are compared to the corresponding months of the modern (Gregorian) calendar shown in the center column. Biblical references (in the third column) indicate references to the Hebrew calendar cited in the Bible.

3rd return of exiles to Jerusalem under Nehemiah	445

*The dates for the period of the Patriarchs to Judges follow the common view among many scholars that the exodus occurred c. 1446 B.C. Many other scholars would date the exodus c. 1260 B.C. (See Introduction to Exodus).

Possible dates for the beginning of Saul's reign are calculated based on other data in the OT: e.g., David's age at accession and length of reign (2 Sam. 5:4–5); Ish-bosheth's age when he became king (2 Sam. 2:10); and Jonathan's probable age in relation to both Ish-bosheth and David, presuming that Jonathan was Saul's firstborn son (1 Sam. 14:49; 31:2) and was at least 20 when referred to as a commander of troops early in Saul's reign (1 Sam. 13:2).

Structure of Psalms

The standard Hebrew text divides the Psalms into five "books," perhaps in imitation of the five books of the Pentateuch.

Book 1	Psalms 1–41	Psalms 1–2 provide an introduction to the Psalms as a whole. Except for Psalms 10 and 33, the remaining psalms of Book 1 are psalms of David. Most of them are prayers of distress. Others are statements of confidence in the God who alone can save (e.g., 9; 11; 16; 18), striking the note that concludes the book (40–41). Reflections on ethics and worship are found in Psalms 1; 14–15; 19; 24; and 26.
Book 2	Psalms 42–72	Book 2 introduces the first group of psalms by the "sons of Korah" (42; 44–49; 50). There are also more psalms of David (51–65; 68–69), including most of the "historical" psalms (51–52; 54; 56–57; 59–60; 63). Once again, lament and distress dominate these prayers, which now also include a communal voice (e.g., 44; compare 67; 68). The lone psalm attributed to Solomon concludes Book 2 with a look at God's ideal for Israel's kings—ultimately pointing to Christ as the final great King of God's people.
Book 3	Psalms 73–89	The tone darkens further in Book 3. The opening Psalm 73 starkly questions the justice of God before seeing light in God's presence. That light has almost escaped the psalmist in Psalm 88, the bleakest of all psalms. Book 2 ended with the high point of royal aspirations; Book 3 concludes in Psalm 89 with these expectations badly threatened. Sharp rays of hope occasionally pierce the darkness (e.g., 75; 85; 87). The brief third book contains most of the psalms of Asaph (73–83), as well as another set of Korah psalms (84–85; 87–88).
Book 4	Psalms 90–106	Psalm 90 opens the fourth book of the psalms. It may be seen as the first response to the problems raised by Book 3. Psalm 90, attributed to Moses, reminds the worshiper that God was active on Israel's behalf long before David. This theme is taken up in Psalms 103–106, which summarize God's dealings with his people before any kings reigned. In between there is a group of psalms (93–100) characterized by the refrain "The LORD reigns." This truth refutes the doubts of Psalm 89.
Book 5	Psalms 107–150	The structure of Book 5 reflects the closing petition of Book 4 in 106:47. It declares that God does answer prayer (107) and concludes with five Hallelujah psalms (146–150). In between there are several psalms affirming the validity of the promises to David (110; 132; 144), two collections of Davidic psalms (108–110; 138–145); the longest psalm, celebrating the value of God's law (119); and 15 psalms of ascent for use by pilgrims to Jerusalem (120–134).

Joel is not displayed as the dates are uncertain and estimates range from the 9th to the 4th centuries B.C.

Micah’s prophecy was likely directed toward both Judah and Israel.

The LORD of Hosts: Frequency and Use in the OT

Why does the title “LORD of hosts” appear more frequently in Malachi than in any other OT book, and in the time of prophetic books more than during other time periods? In the period of Isaiah, the northern kingdom was overrun and destroyed and the southern kingdom almost destroyed by the “hosts” (armies) of Assyria. God’s people had so few troops that the Assyrian King Sennacherib could mockingly challenge King Hezekiah with the offer of a gift of 2,000 horses if Hezekiah could find enough soldiers to ride them (Isa. 36:8). Similarly, in the period of Jeremiah, the southern kingdom was wiped out by the hosts (armies) of Babylon.

In the postexilic period of Malachi, the postage-stamp-sized Judah, as a tiny province within the vast Persian Empire, had no army of its own. It is precisely in such times, when God’s people are painfully aware of how limited their own resources are, that there is no greater comfort than the fact that the Lord has his invincible heavenly armies standing at the ready. It is like the comfort that Elisha prayed for his servant at Dothan when they were surrounded by the Syrian armies: “‘O LORD, please open his eyes that he may see.’ So the LORD opened the eyes of the young man, and he saw, and behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire all around Elisha” (2 Kings 6:17). Perhaps it is like the comfort felt by Jesus before the cross: “Do you think that I cannot appeal to my Father, and he will at once send me more than twelve legions of angels?” (Matt. 26:53).

The following chart shows the percentages of verses in a book containing at least one occurrence of the phrase, “LORD of hosts” (or related variation):

The Near East at the Time of Genesis

c. 2000 B.C.

The book of Genesis describes events in the ancient Near East from the beginnings of civilization to the relocation of Jacob's (Israel's) family in Egypt. The stories of Genesis are set among some of the oldest nations in the world, including Egypt, Assyria, Babylonia, and Elam.

The Setting of Leviticus

c. 1446 B.C.

The book of Exodus finishes with Moses and Israel having constructed and assembled the tabernacle at the base of Mount Sinai. The book of Leviticus primarily records the instructions the Lord gives to Moses from the tent of meeting, but also includes narratives of a few events related to the tabernacle. (Regarding the date of the exodus, see Introduction to Exodus, and note on 1 Kings 6:1.)

Journeys in the Wilderness

c. 1446 B.C.

The book of Numbers details the Israelites' experience in the wilderness as they journeyed from Mount Sinai to Canaan. As with the exodus, it is difficult to establish the exact route that the Israelites took, but it is generally believed that they headed east from Mount Sinai until they reached the Red Sea, where they turned northward to the top of the gulf and on to Kadesh-barnea.

The Setting of 2 Samuel

c. 1000 B.C.

The book of 2 Samuel recounts David’s reign over Israel and his battles to establish Israel as the dominant power in Syria and Palestine. David expanded Israel’s borders from Saul’s smaller territory. By the end of his reign, David controlled all of Israel, Edom, Moab, Ammon, Syria, and Zobah. Other kingdoms, such as Tyre and Hamath, established treaties with him.

The Extent of Solomon's Kingdom

c. 971–931 B.C.

Solomon's reign marked the high point of Israel's power and wealth in biblical times. Solomon's father, David, had given him a kingdom that included Edom, Moab, Ammon, Syria, and Zobah. Solomon would later rule over the kingdom of Hamath as well, and his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter resulted in an alliance with Egypt. Solomon controlled important trade routes between several major world powers, including Egypt, Arabia, Mesopotamia, and Anatolia (Asia Minor).

The Persian Empire at the Time of Ezra

c. 458 B.C.

During the time of Ezra the Persian Empire had reached its greatest extent, engulfing nearly the entire Near East. In 539 B.C. the Persians under Cyrus the Great defeated the Babylonians and absorbed their territory into the empire, including the lands of Israel and Judah (known as Beyond the River). The next year Cyrus allowed the people of Judah to return home under the leadership of Zerubbabel and rebuild the temple of the Lord. Later, around 458 B.C., another group of Judean exiles returned under Ezra's leadership.

The Persian Empire at the Time of Nehemiah

c. 450 B.C.

During the time of Nehemiah, the Persian Empire had reached its greatest extent, engulfing nearly the entire Near East. In 539 B.C. the Persians under Cyrus the Great defeated the Babylonians and absorbed the lands of Israel and Judah (which they called "Beyond the River") into their empire. The next year Cyrus allowed the people of Judah (now called Jews) to return home and rebuild the temple of the Lord. Several waves of returning Jews resettled in Judea. In about 445 B.C., Nehemiah was granted permission to rebuild Jerusalem's ruined walls.

The Persian Empire at the Time of Esther

c. 479 B.C.

Long before Esther's time, the people of Israel and Judah (later called Jews) had been dispersed throughout the Near East by the Assyrians and the Babylonians. Eventually the Persians absorbed nearly all of these lands into their empire, which reached its greatest extent during the time of Esther. Thus Haman's plot to exterminate all Jews throughout the Persian Empire would have annihilated virtually all of the Jewish people, and Esther's daring actions saved the whole nation from complete destruction.

Israel and Judah at the Time of Jeremiah

c. 597 B.C.

The book of Jeremiah is set during the politically tumultuous times following the fall of the Assyrians and the rise of the Babylonians. During Jeremiah's life, several groups of Judeans were deported to Babylon and the temple was destroyed. Though the precise boundaries of Judea and the surrounding regions during this period are difficult to determine, they likely resembled those that previously existed under Assyrian rule, with the exception that Edom (Idumea) was now the area formerly belonging to southern Judah.

The Near East at the Time of Ezekiel

c. 593 B.C.

Ezekiel recorded his visions and prophecies while living near Babylon, where he had been exiled years earlier. By Ezekiel's time, the Babylonian Empire had conquered almost all of the area along the eastern coast of the Mediterranean Sea. It would eventually conquer even the land of Egypt, where many other Judeans had fled.

The Setting of Daniel: The Babylonian Empire

c. 605–536 B.C.

Though their empire was short-lived by comparison with the Assyrians before them and the Persians after them, the Babylonians dominated the Near East during the early days of Daniel, and they were responsible for his initial exile to Babylon. Daniel himself, however, outlived the Babylonian Empire, which fell to the Persians in 538 B.C. (See also the map on p. 1163, "The Empires of Daniel's Visions: The Persians.")

The Setting of Obadiah

c. 570 B.C.

Though various dates have been given for the prophecy of Obadiah, it was most likely written sometime after the fall of Jerusalem to the Babylonians in 586 B.C. but prior to the fall of Edom in 553. Obadiah condemned the Edomites, who were descendants of Jacob's brother Esau, for attacking the Judeans during the Babylonian crisis rather than assisting them.

The Setting of Jonah

c. 760 B.C.

Jonah prophesied during the prosperous time of King Jeroboam II of Israel (2 Kings 14:23–28). During this time the Assyrians were occupied with matters elsewhere in the empire, allowing Jeroboam II to capture much of Syria for Israel. The Lord called Jonah to go to the great Assyrian city of Nineveh to pronounce judgment upon it. Jonah attempted to escape the Lord's calling by sailing to Tarshish, which was probably in the western Mediterranean. Eventually he obeyed the Lord and went to Nineveh, at the heart of the Assyrian Empire.

c. 660–614 B.C.

Nahum likely prophesied sometime between the high point of Assyria's power around 664 B.C. and the fall of Nineveh in 612. During this time the Assyrian Empire was in decline. Meanwhile Egypt, Judah, and Babylonia regained autonomy and eroded the power of Assyria. Nahum foretold of the fall of Nineveh, the capital of the mighty Assyrian Empire.

Jerusalem at the Time of Haggai

c. 520 B.C.

Haggai prophesied to the people of Jerusalem after they had returned from Babylon in 538 B.C. The walls and temple of Jerusalem had been destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 B.C. Within a year after returning from Babylon, the people had laid the foundation for the new temple, but by Haggai's time they had still not completed it. Haggai, together with Zechariah, called upon the people to stop focusing on their own economic well-being and complete the temple.

The Near East at the Time of Zechariah

c. 520 B.C.

Zechariah prophesied to the people of Judah soon after they had returned from exile in Babylon. Several years earlier, in 539 B.C., Cyrus the Great had conquered Babylon and absorbed its territory into his empire. A year later he permitted the people of Judah to return to their homeland and rebuild the temple. Cyrus and his son Cambyses extended the Persian Empire until it stretched from Egypt and Lydia to the borders of India.

The Setting of Malachi

c. 460 B.C.

Malachi likely prophesied several decades after the first Jewish exiles had returned from Babylon to Judea and had rebuilt the temple. Edomites had migrated northwest from their traditional homeland just south of Moab into the area immediately south of Judea, which was now called Idumea. Territory that once belonged to the northern kingdom of Israel had been divided into several minor provinces, including Samaria.

New Testament Timeline

The following chart provides a detailed New Testament timeline. Most of the dates can be determined precisely by correlating biblical events with extensive historical documents and archaeological evidence. Dates with an asterisk denote approximate or alternative dates. The extensive external confirmation of New Testament dates and events encourages great confidence in the truth and historicity of both the Old and New Testaments.

5 B.C.*	Jesus is born in Bethlehem.
4 B.C.	Jesus' family flees to Egypt to escape from Herod's plan to kill Jesus (Matt. 2:13–18); Herod dies; Judas (of Sepphoris) and others rebel, requiring the Syrian Governor Varus to intervene throughout Palestine; Sepphoris, a city four miles from Nazareth, is destroyed by Roman soldiers; Judea, Samaria, and Idumea are given to Herod's son, Archelaus; Galilee and Perea are given to his son Antipas; Jesus' family, after returning from Egypt, resides in Nazareth (Matt. 2:19–23), a small village in southern Galilee.

Jesus ascends to the Father's right hand (Acts 1). Jesus' first followers receive the Holy Spirit at Pentecost and begin to proclaim the gospel (Acts 2).

46–48	Roman procurator Tiberius Alexander crucifies two sons (Jacob and Simon) of Judas the Galilean.
48*	Paul writes Galatians, perhaps from Antioch (see Acts 14:26–28).
48–49*	Paul and Peter return to Jerusalem for the Apostolic Council, which, with the assistance of James, frees Gentile believers from the requirement of circumcision in opposition to Pharisaic believers (Acts 15:1–29); Paul and Barnabas return to Antioch (Acts 15:30) but split over a dispute about John Mark (Acts 15:36–40).

49–51*	Paul writes 1–2 Thessalonians from Corinth (Acts 18:1, 11; also compare Acts 18:5 with 1 Thess. 1:8).
51	Paul appears before Gallio, proconsul of Achaia (Acts 18:12–17).
50–54*	Peter comes to Rome.
52–57*	Paul's Third Missionary Journey from Antioch to Galatia, Phrygia, Ephesus, Macedonia, Greece (Acts 18:23–21:17).
52–55	Paul ministers in Ephesus (Acts 19:1–20).

The Authentication of Paul’s Letters

In 2:2 Paul warns against letters that claim to come from him but do not. In 11 places in his letters Paul either identifies himself or gives his signature. This supports the conclusion that all of the NT letters attributed to Paul are in fact authentic, rather than having been written by someone else in Paul’s name.

1 Cor. 16:21	I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand
2 Cor. 10:1	I, Paul, myself entreat you
Gal. 5:2	Look: I, Paul, say to you
Gal. 6:11	See with what large letters I am writing to you with my own hand
Eph. 3:1	I, Paul, a prisoner for Christ Jesus
Col. 1:23	of which I, Paul, became a minister
Col. 4:18	I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand
1 Thess. 2:18	we wanted to come to you—I, Paul, again and again
2 Thess. 2:2	not to be . . . alarmed . . . by . . . a letter seeming to be from us
2 Thess. 3:17	I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand. This is the sign of genuineness in every letter of mine; it is the way I write
Philem. 19	I, Paul, write this with my own hand

The Setting of Matthew

The events in the book of Matthew take place almost entirely within the vicinity of Palestine, an area extending roughly from Caesarea Philippi in the north to Beersheba in the south. During this time it was ruled by the Roman Empire. The opening chapters describe events surrounding Jesus' birth in Judea, where Herod had been appointed king by the Romans. The closing chapters end with Jesus' death, resurrection, and ascension during the rule of Pontius Pilate and the tetrarchs Antipas and Philip.

Paul's First Missionary Journey (Acts 13:4–14:26)

c. A.D. 46–47

Barnabas and Paul first visited Barnabas's home region of Cyprus before sailing to the southern region of Asia Minor. When they reached Perga in Pamphylia, John Mark left the group and returned to Jerusalem. Making their way to Antioch (in Pisidia), Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe, Paul and Barnabas were driven out of each city by jealous Jewish religious leaders. Later they returned by the same route, strengthening the new churches as they went. From Attalia they set sail for their home in Antioch of Syria.

Paul’s Second Missionary Journey (Acts 15:36–18:22)

c. A.D. 49–51

Paul and Silas revisited the places in Asia Minor where Paul had preached on his first journey (see map), while Barnabas took John Mark and sailed to Cyprus. Paul and Silas visited Derbe, Lystra, and Antioch in Pisidia. From there Paul and Silas traveled to Troas, where Paul received a vision of a man from Macedonia calling to them. Crossing into Europe, they passed through several towns along the Egnatian Way and traveled to the cities of Athens and Corinth in southern Greece. Then, sailing to Ephesus and Caesarea, they visited the church in Jerusalem before returning to Antioch of Syria.

Paul's Third Missionary Journey (Acts 18:22–21:17)

c. A.D. 52–57

Paul's third missionary journey traversed much the same ground as his second (see map). Passing through Galatia and Phrygia, he proceeded directly to the great port city of Ephesus. After three years of preaching and teaching there, Paul traveled again through Macedonia and Achaia, strengthening the believers, and then finished with a visit to Jerusalem.

The Setting of Romans

c. A.D. 57

Paul probably wrote Romans from Corinth during his third missionary journey (Acts 20:2–3). Rome was the epicenter of the powerful Roman Empire, ruling over many of the great ancient centers of Western civilization. Paul had established the church at Corinth during his second missionary journey (Acts 18:1–11).

The Setting of 1 Corinthians

c. A.D. 53–55

Paul wrote 1 Corinthians during his third missionary journey, near the end of his three-year ministry in Ephesus (Acts 19:21–22). Both Corinth and Ephesus were wealthy port cities steeped in pagan idolatry and philosophy. Corinth benefited both militarily and economically from its strategic location at one end of the isthmus that connected the southern Greek peninsula to the mainland.

The Setting of 2 Corinthians

c. A.D. 55–56

Paul wrote 2 Corinthians from Macedonia a year or so after writing 1 Corinthians, during his third missionary journey. He had just finished his three-year ministry in Ephesus and was visiting the churches in Macedonia as he made his way to Corinth. In Macedonia he met Titus, who had returned from Corinth with news about the church there.

The Setting of Galatians

c. A.D. 48

Paul’s letter to the Galatians was likely written to the churches he had established during his first missionary journey (Acts 13:1–14:28). He probably wrote the letter from his home church in Antioch in Syria, sometime before the Jerusalem council (Acts 15:1–31).

The Setting of Philippians

c. A.D. 62

Paul wrote his letter to the Philippians while in prison, probably in Rome. Philippi was the site of a key military victory by Augustus Caesar, and as a result it was made a Roman colony. Philippi was the first city in present-day Europe where Paul established a church.

The Setting of Colossians

c. A.D. 62

Paul wrote his letter to the Colossians while in prison, probably in Rome. The church at Colossae was likely established during Paul's third missionary journey as he ministered for three years in Ephesus. It appears that Paul did not personally plant the church there, but instead a Colossian named Epaphras traveled to Ephesus, responded to Paul's gospel message, and returned to share the good news in Colossae.

The Setting of 1 Thessalonians

c. A.D. 49–51

Paul wrote 1 Thessalonians from Corinth near the end of his second missionary journey. Paul and his companions had established the church in Thessalonica but were forced to leave by opponents of the gospel. Later, Paul sent Timothy back to Thessalonica to check on the church there, and Timothy's report led Paul to write this letter. Thessalonica enjoyed privileged status as the capital of Macedonia and was located on a natural harbor along the busy east-west Egnatian Way.

The Setting of 1 Timothy

c. A.D. 62–64

Paul likely wrote 1 Timothy during a fourth missionary journey not recorded in the book of Acts. Writing from an unknown location, Paul wrote to Timothy at Ephesus to instruct him on how to lead the church there. Ephesus was a wealthy and highly influential port city in the Roman province of Asia, renowned for its temple of Artemis (Diana).

The Setting of 2 Timothy

c. A.D. 64–67

Paul probably wrote 2 Timothy during a second imprisonment in Rome following a fourth missionary journey that is not recorded in Acts. Expecting that death would come soon, Paul wrote this "farewell" letter to Timothy, who was at Ephesus, urging him to stand firm and asking him to come for one final visit.

The Setting of James

c. A.D. 40–45

The letter of James was likely written to predominantly Jewish Christian house churches outside of Palestine, based on its mention of the “twelve tribes in the Dispersion” (1:1), its distinctly Jewish content, and its focus on persecution and poverty. This would mean it was sent throughout most of the ancient Mediterranean world. The author has traditionally been believed to be James, the brother of Jesus and an early leader of the church in Jerusalem.

The Setting of 1 John

c. A.D. 85

John likely wrote 1 John from Ephesus, where apparently he had relocated near the time of the fall of Jerusalem to the Romans in A.D. 70. The letter was probably intended to be read by the church in Ephesus and perhaps also by other churches in the surrounding cities. Ephesus was a wealthy and highly influential port city in the Roman province of Asia, and was renowned for its temple of Artemis (Diana).

The Setting of Revelation

c. A.D. 95

John addressed the book of Revelation “to the seven churches that are in Asia,” namely Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea, although there were undoubtedly other churches elsewhere in the province of Asia (e.g., Miletus and Colossae, see Acts 20:17; Col. 1:2). John had apparently been exiled from Ephesus to the island of Patmos, southwest of Ephesus, and it was probably there that he recorded his visions.

New Testament

Theology and Key Dates

Already—but Not Yet

Like John the Baptist before him, Jesus announced the imminent arrival of the kingdom of God (Mark 1:15), which was another way of saying that the saving promises found in the Old Testament were about to be realized. The kingdom of God, however, came in a most unexpected way. The kingdom did not come with apocalyptic power but in a small and almost imperceptible form. It was as small as a mustard seed, and yet it would grow into a great tree that would tower over the entire earth. It was as undetectable as leaven mixed into flour, but the leaven would eventually transform the entire batch of dough (Matt. 13:31–33). In other words, the kingdom was already present in Jesus and his ministry, but it was not yet present in its entirety. It was "already—but not yet." The day of judgment was still to come in the future, even though there would be an interval between God's beginning to fulfill his promises in Jesus (the kingdom inaugurated) and the final realization of his promises (the kingdom consummated). The already-but-not-yet theme dominates the entire New Testament and functions as a key to grasping the whole story.

Who Is Jesus?

The New Testament highlights the fulfillment of God's saving promises in the Old Testament, but it particularly stresses that those promises and covenants are realized through his Son, Jesus the Christ.

Who is Jesus? According to the New Testament, he is the new and better Moses, declaring God's word as the sovereign interpreter of the Mosaic law (Matt. 5:17–48; Heb. 3:1–6). Jesus is the new Joshua who gives final rest to his people (Heb. 3:7–4:13). He is the true wisdom of God, fulfilling and transcending wisdom themes from the Old Testament (Col. 2:1–3). Jesus is the final prophet predicted by Moses (Deut. 18:15; Acts 3:22–23; 7:37). Jesus' miracles, healings, and authority over demons indicate that the promises of the kingdom are fulfilled in him (Matt. 12:28). His miracles also indicate that he shares God's authority and is himself divine, for only the Creator-Lord can walk on water and calm the sea (Matt. 8:23–27; compare Ps. 107:29). Jesus is the Messiah, who brings to realization the promise that One would sit on David's throne forever.

Jesus is the Son of Man who will receive the kingdom from the Ancient of Days (Dan. 7:13–14) and will reign forever. His reign, however, has been realized through suffering, for he is also the servant of the Lord who has atoned for the sins of his people (Isa. 52:13–53:12; Mark 14:24; Rom. 4:25; 1 Pet. 2:21–25).

Jesus is the image of God (Col. 1:15; see Heb. 1:3), is in the very form of God, and is equal to God, though he temporarily surrendered some of the privileges of deity by being clothed with humanity so that human beings could be saved (Phil. 2:6–8). Jesus as the Son of God enjoys a unique and eternal relationship with God (see Matt. 28:18; John 20:31; Rom. 8:32), and he is worshiped just as the Father is (see Revelation 4–5). His majestic stature is memorialized by a meal celebrated in his memory (Mark 14:22–25) and by people being baptized in his name (Acts 2:38; 10:48). In a number of texts, Jesus is specifically called "God" (e.g., John 1:1, 18; 20:28; Rom. 9:5; Titus 2:13; Heb. 1:8; 2 Pet. 1:1).

Christ's Work on the Cross

The New Testament particularly focuses on Jesus' work on the cross, by which he redeemed and saved his people. The narrative of Jesus' suffering and death consumes a significant amount of space in the Gospels. It is the culmination of each of their story lines, indicating that the cross and resurrection are the main point of the story. In Acts we see the growth of the church and the expansion of the mission, as the apostles and others proclaim the crucified and resurrected Lord. The Epistles explain the significance of Jesus' work on the cross and his resurrection, so that believers are enabled to grasp the height, depth, breadth, and width of the love of God (Rom. 8:39). Various themes woven together—creation, adoption, forgiveness of sins, justification, reconciliation, redemption, sanctification, and propitiation—teach that salvation comes from the Lord, and that Jesus as the Christ has redeemed his people from the guilt and bondage of sin.

The Promise of the Holy Spirit

Jesus promised to send the Spirit to those who are truly his disciples (John 14:16–17, 26; 15:26), and he poured out the Spirit on his people at Pentecost (Acts 2:1–4, 33) after he had been exalted to the right hand of the Father. The Spirit was given to bring glory to Jesus Christ (John 16:14), so that Christ would be magnified as the great Savior and Redeemer. The Spirit empowers the church to bear witness to Jesus Christ. At the same time, having the Spirit within is the mark of a person belonging to the people of God (Acts 10:44–48; 15:7–9; Rom. 8:9; Gal. 3:1–5). Transformation into Christlikeness is the Spirit's work (Rom. 8:2, 4, 13–14; 2 Cor. 3:18; Gal. 5:16, 18).

Sin, Faith, and Repentance

Sin and death are twin powers that rule over all people, so that they stand in need of the redemption Christ brings (see Rom. 1:18–3:20; 5:1–7:25). Sin does not merely constitute failure to keep the law of God. It represents personal rebellion against God's lordship (1 John 3:4). The essence of sin is idolatry, in which people refuse to give thanks and praise to the one and only God, and worship the creature rather than the Creator (Rom. 1:18–25).

But sin is not the last word, since Jesus Christ came to save sinners, thereby highlighting the mercy and grace of God. The response called for by God's grace is faith and repentance (Mark 1:15; Acts 2:38). Indeed, the whole of the New Testament can be understood as a call to repentance and faith (see Hebrews 11). Those who desire to be part of Jesus' new community (the church) and part of the kingdom of God (God's rule in people's hearts and lives) must forsake false gods, renounce self-worship and evil, and turn to Jesus as Lord and Master. The call to repentance is nothing less than a summons to abandonment of sin and to personal faith. People are called to trust in the saving work of the Lord on their behalf instead of thinking that they can save themselves. Even those who are already believers are to press on in faith and repentance as long as life lasts, for this is the mark of Christ's true disciples.

The Church as the People of God

The saving promises of God have begun to be fulfilled in a new community, the church of Jesus Christ. The church is composed of believers in Jesus Christ, both Jews and Gentiles. The laws in the Old Testament that separated Jews from Gentiles (e.g., circumcision, purity laws, special festivals) are no longer in force. The church is God’s new temple, indwelt by the Holy Spirit. Christians are called to live out the beauty of the gospel by showing the supreme mark of Christ’s disciples: love for one another (John 13:34–35).

The church eagerly awaits the return of Jesus Christ and the consummation of all of God’s purposes. Meanwhile, the church is to live out her life in holiness as the radiant bride of Christ, and to herald the good news of salvation to the ends of the earth, so that others may be transferred from Satan’s kingdom to the kingdom of the Lord. The church longs for the day when she will behold God face-to-face and worship Jesus Christ forever. The new creation will be a full reality, all things will be new, and the Lord will be praised forever for his love and mercy and grace—for New Testament theology is ultimately about glorifying and praising God.

New Testament Timeline

The following chart provides a detailed New Testament timeline. Most of the dates can be determined precisely by correlating biblical events with extensive historical documents and archaeological evidence. God’s Global Plan of Salvation

Philemon Yong | Cameroon

Christianity is a message of salvation for all people groups around the world. The heart of the Christian gospel is rescue, for all peoples at all times. Yet this is often not understood. For example, a common objection to Christianity in some parts of the world is that it is a “white man’s religion”—it is the religion of the missionaries, and therefore irrelevant. Some have raised the question of how an African, for example, can relate to Jesus when Jesus is not from his own tribe. Yet the same cultures seek answers to the questions that Christianity addresses. Everyone wants to know how man, who is a sinner, can relate to God, who is holy.

Common to all mankind is the awareness that something is wrong with the world and in our personal lives that cuts us off us from our Creator. The Bible explains that we are objects of God’s wrath (Eph. 2:1–3). Our greatest need is salvation from this just wrath (Col. 3:6). In his mercy, God has set in place a plan to save us from his wrath. Through this plan of grace, God is restoring the world to the way it was originally intended to be.

We will seek to understand God’s global plan of salvation from two perspectives: horizontally and vertically. We will first consider the Bible horizontally, as an unfolding narrative down through history. This will involve viewing God’s plan of salvation in terms of creation, fall, redemption, and consummation. Then we will consider God’s plan of salvation vertically, looking down on the Bible from above. This will be done by centering upon God, man, Christ, and repentance and faith, in that order.

Understanding God’s Plan of Salvation Horizontally

Creation.

God made the world and all that is in it (Gen. 1:1). He created Adam and Eve, the first man and the first woman, in his own image (Gen. 1:26–28), giving them the task of populating the world and subduing it (Gen. 1:28).

All of God’s creation was “very good” (Gen. 1:31). The world is neither a haphazard collection of atoms, nor is it inherently bad. God created the world and it was good.

Fall.

Adam and Eve rejected God’s good rule, determining to be their own lords (Gen. 3:1–7). This rebellion plunged all of humanity into sin, darkness, misery, and death, for Adam represented, and thus involved, the entire human race in his actions (Rom. 5:12; 1 Cor. 15:21–22). Since the fall, human history has been ravaged with the carnage of sickness, selfishness, strife, and other manifestations of Adam’s horrific rebellion—and we are unable, in ourselves, to set things right.

Redemption.

Even in Eden, God began to promise that sin and Satan would not get the last word (Gen. 3:15). And indeed, in the fullness of time, God sent his own Son to deliver his people from bondage to sin and death (Gal. 4:4–5). Through the Son’s atoning death on the cross and resurrection from the grave, redemption was accomplished and the decisive fulfillment of all the Old Testament promises has been launched (Mark 1:14–15; 2 Cor. 1:20). Through the work of the Holy Spirit, opening the eyes of the spiritually blind and bringing life, redemption is applied (Rom. 8:1–11; 1 Cor. 2:10–16).

Consummation.

One day God’s Son will come to earth again, this time openly and without any question as to who he is (Phil 2:10–11; Rev. 19:11–16). He will come in final judgment and restore the earth to what it was always meant to be, only this time without any threat of Satan, sin, and death (Rev. 21:1–22:5). What God intended according to the first two chapters of the Bible appears as his final and glorious achievement in the last two chapters of the Bible. Christ will establish what the Bible calls the new heavens and the new earth (e.g., Isa. 65:17), where the original goodness and perfection of Eden will be restored and humanity will flourish in a renewed creation that has been set free from its bondage to decay (Rom. 8:21).

Understanding God’s Plan of Salvation Vertically

God.

God created human beings to bring him glory (Isa. 43:6–7; 1 Cor. 10:31). Anyone who seeks his own glory, as Adam did, sins against God and is subject to God’s judgment (Acts 12:20–23). All things happen according to God’s plan and serve to glorify him (Eph. 1:11–12). Every culture has a view of its god or gods that affects how people conduct their lives, but the Bible says that there is only one true God (Deut. 6:4; Jer. 14:22). It is idolatry to worship any other god (Ex. 20:3–6). God is the absolutely transcendent governor of the universe.

God is also holy, meaning that he is utterly pure and incapable of sin or evil (Isa. 6:1–5). He likewise calls his people be holy (1 Pet. 1:15–16). God is just, meaning that he is unswerving in doing what is morally right. The Bible expresses this absolute moral purity and righteousness by saying that “God is light” (1 John 1:5).

The Bible also teaches that “God is love”—lovingkindness is the very heart of who God is (Ex. 34:6–7; Matt. 11:29). He is “the God of all grace” (1 Pet. 5:10). God is not only supremely other in purity but also supremely merciful in impulse.

Recognizing who God is, we realize that there is a massive problem facing mankind. We can understand the nature of this problem by looking at who man is in relation to who God is.

Man.

Having been created in God’s image and yet having chosen to break free from trusting submission to him, Adam rebelled, and through him sin entered the world (Rom. 5:12–14). All human beings continue to bear the image of God in some sense (Gen. 9:5–6), though we are now marred by sin. As God-resisting sinners we are born with an inherent spiritual blindness and hostility to God (Rom. 3:9–19). We are his settled enemies,

We need, therefore, to be reconciled to him. We require a mediator to bridge the humanly unbridgeable gap between our sinfulness and God’s holiness (1 Tim. 2:5–6). We are unable to glorify God as he created us to do (Rom. 3:23). God is rightly angry with us, and we cannot save ourselves from his wrath—that is, his judicial retribution (John 3:18; Eph. 2:1–3). If we are to be saved at all, it will have to be by the work of someone else, someone who is qualified to save us. Sacrificing to spirits, appeasing ancestors, and cultural rituals to ward off evil spirits cannot save us from the coming wrath.

Jesus Christ.

In his great mercy, God sent his Son to bear the wrath that must fall on human sin (John 3:16; 1 John 4:10). How is it that Jesus saves us from the wrath of God? Here we consider who Jesus is (his person) and what he did (his work).

Jesus is fully God, equal with the Father. To see him is to see God the Father (John 10:30). It is necessary that Jesus, if he is to save us, be fully divine because the payment for sin is one that mere mortals cannot pay—for their sin is against an infinitely beautiful and glorious God, and so they are infinitely guilty. As God, however, Jesus is qualified to pay the penalty for sins committed against God. Yet Jesus is also fully man (Gal. 4:4). He became like us in every way, yet without sinning (Heb. 2:16–18). Jesus is therefore uniquely fitted to pay the penalty we owe. This is who Jesus is.

What did Jesus do? As the second Adam, he succeeded where Adam failed (Rom. 5:12–19). This is supremely seen in Jesus' death and resurrection. On the cross, Jesus took our place, suffering and dying for us, so that we might be restored to our Creator (Isa. 53:4–6; 1 Pet. 2:24; 3:18; 1 Cor. 15:3–4). God poured out all his holy wrath on his beloved Son and judged him in our place so that we can be set free (2 Cor. 5:21; Gal. 3:13). United with him not only in his death but also in his resurrection, we are given new life (Rom. 6:4; 1 Pet. 1:3). Jesus' bodily resurrection means that the final resurrection has, in him, already begun (1 Cor. 15:20–22). Jesus' earthly life, too, is relevant to our salvation. For Jesus obeyed God perfectly in our place (Heb. 4:15), so that God sees his obedience as our own. Because of Jesus' perfect righteousness, those who are in Christ stand righteous before God (1 Cor. 1:30; 2 Cor. 5:21).

Jesus is the Savior we need to rescue us from God's wrath. How then does his saving work become reality for any one of us?

Repentance and faith.

The proper response to the work of Christ on our behalf is repentance and faith (Mark 1:15; Acts 2:37–38; 20:21). These twin heart-responses together form the healthy, biblical, Spirit-led activity of those who have understood God, their sin, and Jesus as Savior.

Repentance is a turning from sin and idolatry to serve the true and living God (Ezek. 14:6; 1 Thess. 1:9). This does not mean that believers will not struggle with sin anymore but rather that sin no longer has dominion over us (Rom. 6:12). Sin no longer sits on the throne of the believer's heart.

If repentance is a turning from, faith is a turning to—from sin, to Christ. Faith is trusting Christ as our Savior and confessing him as Lord (Rom. 10:9–10). It is believing that God exists and is near to those who seek him wholeheartedly (Heb. 11:6). Faith is our glad receiving and resting in the work of Christ. It means that we cast ourselves on Christ alone for the forgiveness of our sins and the fulfillment of all God's promises for us in Christ (Titus 3:4–7). Everyone must exercise faith in Christ to be saved. Even faith, however, is a gift from God (Eph. 2:8–9; Phil. 1:29). True faith results in a life of loving obedience (Eph. 2:8–10; James 2:14–26) as the Holy Spirit produces Christlike fruit in the believer (Gal. 5:22–25). This obedience never earns God's approval, for Christ has already earned God's approval for us. At the same time, the Bible is clear that while obedience does not win our salvation, the absence of grateful obedience indicates the absence of salvation (Eph. 5:1–2; Col. 3:1).

Conclusion

In the end, God himself is supremely glorified in his great plan of salvation. One day every knee will bow and every tongue will confess Jesus as Lord to the glory of God the Father (Phil. 2:10–11). When the plan of God is complete, we will surely see God as he is and will be like him (1 John 3:2). We will join with millions of believers from all over the world, "from every tribe and language and people and nation" (Rev. 5:9), who have put their faith in Christ for salvation. We will all worship God forever, with the angels saying "Amen" to our worship (Rev. 7:9–12). On that day, the glory of the Lord will fill the earth as the waters fill the sea (Hab. 2:14).

The Importance of the Global Church

How Chuang Chua | Singapore

Introduction

The church is the worldwide people of God, the community of those who have been redeemed by the work of Jesus Christ. The church transcends ethnic, cultural, and racial lines, being comprised of all those who have repented of their sin and trusted in Christ alone for their salvation. The church is the single most important institution on earth, the organism through which God advances his kingdom.

The Origin of the Church

The church derives its being and identity from Jesus Christ. Indeed, Jesus himself declared that he would be the builder of his church and that the gates of hell would not overcome it (Matt. 16:18). The apostle Paul underscores the centrality of Christ to the church when he describes the church as being built "on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ Jesus himself being the cornerstone" (Eph. 2:20). While the apostles define the church as a distinctly New Testament reality, the prophetic dimension mentioned here by Paul points to its continuity with the covenant people of God in the Old Testament. This continuity between the church and Israel is affirmed by Peter when he identifies the church as "a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for his own possession" (1 Pet. 2:9; compare Rom. 11:17–24; Gal. 6:16).

The church as the new worldwide community of God's chosen people is constituted by means of a new covenant in which God, in his great love and on his own initiative, declares to them, "you shall be my people, and I will be your God" (Ezek. 36:28; compare Jer. 31:31–34; Ex. 6:7). The new covenant, foretold by the Old Testament prophets, was established through the atoning death of Christ (see Mark 14:24; 1 Cor. 11:25). The work of Christ has the effect of fulfilling the sacrificial system of the Old Testament once and for all (Heb. 7:23–28). Moreover, the new covenant transcends all ethnic and social boundaries. Every person who trusts in Christ—Jew and Gentile, male and female, slave and free—is granted the privilege of becoming Abraham's descendant and thus a member of the people of God, the church (Gal. 3:28–29; Col. 3:11; 1 Pet. 2:4–10).

The Trinitarian Nature of the Church

As a people gathered by God, established in and through Christ, the church is also endowed with the gift of the Holy Spirit (Acts 2:38; 1 Cor. 3:16; Eph. 2:22). The church thus reflects the image of the triune God, who exists eternally as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. Indeed, the essential identity of the church as communal and relational is rooted in the eternal and blessed community of the Godhead.

Christ, having ascended into heaven, did not leave the world without a continuing witness (John 14:15–17, 25–26). As the body of Christ in the world, the church continues to embody the abiding presence of the risen Christ through the indwelling Spirit. In short, the church is providentially orchestrated by the Father, decisively created by the Son, and continually sustained by the Spirit.

It should be clarified that the kingdom of God and the church of God are overlapping yet distinct entities in the New Testament. The kingdom is somewhat distinct from the church, for the church is specifically the saints, the redeemed people of God, while the kingdom of God is his reign or rule. Nevertheless the church is the outpost of the kingdom, the institution from which the kingdom extends its influence.

The Marks of the Church

While the church is created through the redemptive work of the triune God, it finds diverse expression in different contexts in the form of local congregations. Such diversity of expression on a human level does not, however, bring into question the core unity of the church. This unity is held together by three marks of the true church of Christ: Word, sacrament, and discipline.

The faithful preaching of the authoritative Word of God forms and instructs the community as it grows into Christ's fullness and likeness (2 Tim. 4:1–2). The sacrament of baptism marks believers' entrance, by grace, into the community of God's people, and the sacrament of the Lord's Table provides ongoing spiritual nourishment as members of the church testify to their common union with Christ and enjoy communion with him, and in him, with each other. Church discipline, finally, maintains the purity of the church by restoring penitent sinners and removing impenitent sinners whose continued presence would impair the overall health of the church.

While the above three marks of the church are observable actions that belong to every healthy expression of the body of Christ, four more characteristics of the church are identified by Scripture. These characteristics have less to do with what the church does and more to do with what the church is. First, the church is one (Eph. 4:1–5). It is called to express the given unity of all believers in Christ by its common faith and mission despite the multiplicity of local churches and denominational polities. Second, the church is holy (Eph. 5:27). It is set apart by and to God, which in turn places a moral demand on every Christian to live a godly life. Third, the church is catholic (Gal. 3:28; Rev. 7:9). It is worldwide geographically and inclusive theologically, assuming faithful adherence to the whole counsel of God as revealed in Scripture. Fourth, the church is apostolic (Matt. 16:18; Acts 1:2–3). It is founded on the authoritative teaching of the apostles and is faithful to the apostolic mission of being sent into the world with the gospel.

One other nonnegotiable mark of the church should be mentioned: suffering. In light of the truth that the church derives its identity and calling from Christ, it is not surprising that the church should suffer opposition and persecution, as did its Lord (John 15:18–20). Jesus made it inescapably clear that suffering, even to the point of death, is a hallmark of authentic discipleship (Mark 8:34–37). Yet while the church presently shares in Christ's humiliation, the biblical promise is that it will also share in his glory hereafter (Rom. 8:17, 23–25). The destiny of the church is to be presented as a pure and radiant bride to Christ himself (Eph. 5:27; Rev. 21:2).

The Purpose of the Church

Through the indwelling Spirit, members of the one, holy, catholic, and apostolic church are enabled to worship God, practice fellowship with one another, and reach out to others. The threefold purpose of God's new community can be discerned here: doxological (as a worshiping community), familial (as a nurturing community where members love and serve each other), and missional (as a community that witnesses and reaches out to the world with the gospel). Let us consider each of these in turn.

Doxological.

First, the church is called to be what Israel was called to be—that is, a worshiping and praying community (Rom. 15:5–7). The church ascribes to God the glory he rightly deserves and points the world to the beauty and majesty of its Creator. Every time a local church engages in worship, it is in effect joining in the eschatological worship that is ever being offered up by those saints who have gone ahead of us into the glorious presence of God (Heb. 12:22–24; Rev. 5:9–14; 7:9–12). Hence the church that fails to worship fails at its most fundamental point.

Familial.

Besides being a worshiping community, the church is also God's household, the family of which he is father (Eph. 2:18–19). Here is where authentic relationships characterized by love and service can be nurtured. In a fallen world where the image of God in humanity has been grossly defaced by sin, the gathered church becomes an important context of grace; it is the divinely sanctioned arena in which men and women recover their authentic personhood. The Pauline image of the church as the body of Christ is instructive (Rom. 12:3–5; 1 Cor. 12:12–27; Eph. 1:22–23; 5:29–30). Through the indwelling Spirit, Christ as the head of the church gives his body life and direction. At the same time, for the body to function and grow, the different parts of the body need to relate to each other in appropriate submission, serving one another in love, forgiving one another, encouraging one another, and building up one another (Gal. 5:13; Eph. 4:1–2; 5:21; Col. 3:13; 1 Thess. 5:11). The diversity of members and their gifts within the core unity of the church provides yet another testimony to the Trinitarian nature of the one God.

Missional.

The mission of the church should be understood in terms of preaching the good news and making disciples of all nations (Matt. 28:18–20). The church does this by holding to the Word of God firmly, obeying it faithfully, and proclaiming it fervently (Phil. 2:16; 1 Pet. 1:22; 2 Tim. 4:2). The church is sent into the world as God's workmanship and witness (Eph. 2:10; 1 Pet. 2:9). By being salt and light, the church provides a beacon of light to an otherwise dark and hostile world as they bring the gospel to all humanity (Matt. 5:13–16; Phil. 2:15–16). The mission of the church, then, can be understood as the extension of the ministry of the risen Christ "to proclaim good news to the poor . . . to proclaim liberty to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those who are oppressed, to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor" (Luke 4:18–19). The aim of this redemption is the unreserved cosmic worship of God by "a great multitude that no one could number, from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages" (Rev. 7:9). Thus the ultimate goal of the church is nothing less than the glory of God, expressed from every corner of the globe. Indeed, the church is an agent of reconciliation through which not only humanity but also the entire creation is redeemed and brought under the kingly rule of Christ (Rom. 8:19–22; Col. 1:20).

Conclusion

The New Testament expects every Christian to participate in the life of the local church, meeting with others for worship and fellowship (Heb. 10:25; Eph. 2:14–22; 4:15–16), sharing in its mission and service (Acts 1:8; Rom. 12:3–10), and submitting to its discipline (Matt. 18:15–20). The church on earth is very much a work in progress, being composed of redeemed sinners still in the process of being sanctified. The hope of its perfection is guaranteed, however. The church prepares the believer for eternal life in the new heavens and the new earth, where life with God is restored to joyous worship and fellowship.

How to Read and Understand the Bible

Conrad Mbewe | Zambia

As God’s Word to his people, the Bible exists to be read and understood. This is not to say such reading and understanding are easy. Indeed, some people have spent a lifetime studying the Bible and so are uniquely qualified to teach it to others. Yet anyone can, in God’s mercy, cultivate a deep and ever-deepening knowledge of the Bible, as long as they pursue such knowledge wisely.

This article identifies six keys to reading and understanding the Bible. Our Bible reading must be Spiritual, contextual, Christ-centered, reverent, communal, and repeated. Let us consider each of these in turn.

Spiritual

The Bible is a book written in many ways like any other, and can therefore be understood by anyone who is able to read. Yet the Bible is also unique, different from every other book, because it is inspired by God. The Bible is “breathed out by God” (2 Tim. 3:16). Its writers “spoke from God as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit” (2 Pet. 1:21). To understand what is written, therefore, we must have our eyes opened by that same Holy Spirit.

The Bible says, “The natural person does not accept the things of the Spirit of God, for they are folly to him, and he is not able to understand them because they are spiritually discerned” (1 Cor. 2:14). A person can be intellectually qualified and educationally equipped to read and understand the Bible, but if his heart is not spiritually alive then he will fail to truly benefit from reading the Bible. Left to ourselves, the Bible’s contradiction of sinful living only evokes enmity from us. This is because “the mind that is set on the flesh is hostile to God” (Rom. 8:7). It is prejudiced against his Word and thus incompetent to read it in the way it was intended to be read. In order to read and understand the Bible, then, we must be regenerated (born again) by the Spirit of God. The Bible can certainly be read and understood at some level by those who have not been born again—indeed, the reading of the Bible may be the very means God uses to bring sinners to new life in Christ. Yet experiencing salvation produces in us both the ability to see spiritual truths in the Bible that we did not see before, as well as a new desire to submit to and follow its teaching.

Along with being spiritually alive, we must also be dependent upon God himself as we turn to the Bible to read and study it. It is vital that we pray for light from heaven to understand its teachings, and also for God's grace to apply what we learn (Ps. 119:18).

Contextual

In order to read and understand the Bible we also need to have a growing knowledge of the Bible text and the times in which it was written. Remember that it is a book, and so there are aspects of understanding it that belong to the general principles of understanding any piece of literature. This includes reading any text in both its literary context and its historical context.

First, consider the Bible as a piece of literature. It is important, when we come to read any section of the Bible, to be aware of the different kinds of writing that are found in it. The Bible consists of narrative, poetry, prophecy, and so on. Just as we would read a historical novel today in a different way than we would poetry, so it is with the Bible. We must read with a sensitivity to what kind of writing it is. Sensitivity to literary context also includes reading every text in the flow of the book as a whole, remembering the broad purposes for which that biblical author wrote.

Second, we must be aware of historical context. The fact that various sections of the Bible were written during certain periods in history in and around the land of Palestine means that a growing knowledge of events in those periods in history, and of the land of Palestine, will enrich our understanding of the Bible. Much of what the Old Testament prophets wrote lands lightly on us if we are unaware of the might of Assyria, or Israel's longstanding friction with Edom. The parable of the good Samaritan means little if we do not understand who Samaritans were and why Jews despised them. Due to the historical distance between us and the authors of the Bible, readers of the Bible today will do well to sit under sound preaching and to consult various scholarly resources that help them in their personal study, such as commentaries and Bible dictionaries.

Christ-centered

Next, we must never forget the Bible's "big story." Specifically, it is crucial to understand that the whole Bible is about Jesus Christ—who he is and what he came to do. The Old Testament anticipates Jesus and the New Testament reveals Jesus. Every book somehow contributes to the Bible's message of a holy God's saving mercy in Jesus Christ.

While not every Old Testament passage explicitly anticipates Christ, every text does move the story forward, a story that climaxes in Jesus. Jesus rebuked the Pharisees, devoted students of Scripture, for their failure to see him throughout the Old Testament: "You search the Scriptures," Jesus said, "because you think that in them you have eternal life; and it is they that bear witness about me" (John 5:39). Later, when Jesus was on the road to Emmaus after his resurrection, he began with Moses and all the Prophets and interpreted to two bewildered and depressed disciples everything that was said about him in the Old Testament (Luke 24:27). He reminded all the disciples later that night that "everything written about me in the Law of Moses and the Prophets and the Psalms" (that is, the whole Old Testament) would be fulfilled (Luke 24:44).

As you read the Bible from Genesis to Revelation, you will notice that there is a coherent story line that holds it all together: the themes of this story line are creation, the fall, redemption, and restoration. These are not equal themes in the way the Bible treats them. Most of the Bible is given to unfolding the third of these, the great drama of redemption through Jesus Christ. But this redemption is set against the backdrop of creation and the fall, and this redemption will find its final completion in restoration and final judgment, when the original creation is restored to what it was originally intended to be. The Old Testament develops this story line, preparing for Jesus, and the New Testament fulfills this story line, portraying Jesus. The person and work of Christ, therefore, is what unites the entire Bible. As we read both Old and New Testaments through the lens of redemption in Christ, we will understand the whole Bible the way God wants us to understand it.

Reverent

We must also read the Bible reverently if we are to understand it properly. The Bible is God's Word to humankind, revealing heaven's great plan of salvation. Scripture therefore comes to us from above, calling for reverence.

While human authors were graciously used in the writing of God’s revelation, the Bible is not ultimately a book written by humans. It is a book from heaven. We are to follow in the footsteps of the Thessalonians, who, Paul says, “received the word of God, . . . not as the word of men but as what it really is, the word of God” (1 Thess. 2:13).

As we read, then, we are to sit under the Word of God, not stand over it. We must “receive with meekness the implanted word” (James 1:21; compare John 12:48). When the commands of God contradict our own desires, we must submit to what God has revealed to us. This requires a deliberate humility to receive the Bible in its entirety, whatever it says. Such is the reverence called for by the sacred nature of Scripture.

Communal

The Bible is not meant to be read in isolation. To be sure, God has given each of his people an ability to read and understand the Bible individually. Indeed, the Christian who does not set aside time to regularly study Scripture alone will be greatly impoverished. Yet spiritual nourishment through Scripture is received not only in individual study but also through corporate study.

The main way in which the Bible is received corporately is through the preaching of Scripture by those called and equipped to serve God’s people in this way (Eph. 4:11; 2 Tim. 4:1–2). The Bible is also to be read and understood in other contexts, however, in which believers can discuss the text with one another in a mutually illuminating and sharpening way (Acts 13:15; 17:11; Heb. 4:11–12; 10:24–25).

Repeated

Finally, it should be emphasized that in order truly to understand the Bible with increasing depth over a lifetime, we must read the Scriptures repeatedly. The Bible is not a book to be read once and then placed on the shelf. As God’s life-giving Word, it must be read and meditated on with great care over and over again (Ps. 119:15, 48). As we grow in our knowledge of the full landscape of Scripture, every verse within that landscape becomes clearer and more meaningful.

Unlike other books, which we read and “finish,” believers never truly “finish” reading the Bible. Just as we must eat physical food each day if we are to be physically healthy, so we must eat spiritual food each day if we are to be spiritually healthy. As the psalmist prayed, “My eyes are awake before the watches of the night, that I may meditate on your promise” (Ps. 119:148). Portions of the Bible should be committed to memory, so that even when we are without our Bibles we can draw forth God’s Word and commune with him through it.

Conclusion

As we read the Bible under the illumination of the Spirit, with sensitivity to its literary and historical contexts, seeing Jesus as the point of the whole Bible, in sacred reverence, in a community of faith, and with meditative repetition, we will grow as faithful readers of God’s Holy Word.

How to Apply the Bible in Daily Life

Conrad Mbewe | Zambia

The Christian life is not just about getting to heaven in the future. It is also, in the present, about growing more and more into the likeness of Jesus Christ. A crucial means of this growth is regularly reading the Bible with a view to living out what it says—that is, applying it.

How can such a book, written so long ago, be applicable and relevant to us today? The Bible becomes relevant as the Holy Spirit, who dwells in all Christians, uses the words of Scripture to sanctify us (John 17:17)—just as an artisan uses various tools to build a beautiful house. Down through human history, moreover, God remains the same—as do God's call to holiness, the reality of sin, and the need for redemption. While our outward circumstances vary greatly, the Bible deals with issues that never change. It is a book that remains ever relevant to our lives today.

How God's Word Comes to Us

The Word of God will come to us in many ways. It may come to us through the ministry of a pastor or teacher, or as we engage in Bible study with other Christians. The primary way, however, in which the Word of God comes to us is simply by reading it for ourselves. As we prayerfully and meditatively read the Bible, the Holy Spirit uses what we are reading to provoke our conscience, calm our fears, and stir our minds to ways we can walk more faithfully with God.

David wrote in the first psalm, "Blessed is the man . . . [whose] delight is in the law of the LORD, and on his law he meditates day and night. He is like a tree planted by streams of water that yields its fruit in its season, and its leaf does not wither. In all that he does, he prospers" (Ps. 1:1–3). This is a picture of fruitful application of the Bible to one's life. What we will be spiritually twenty or thirty years from now depends largely on whether we maintain a habit of prayerfully meditating on the Word of God as part of our daily walk with him.

The Basics of Personal Meditation

Whether through reading the Bible personally, hearing it preached, or studying it corporately, believers are called to apply its teaching to all dimensions of life. This comes largely through careful and prayerful meditation on what we have heard or read. As we reverently consider what God is saying in a particular text, we ask the Lord to illumine our minds, bend our wills, and strengthen holy desire, all to the end of the sincere practice of godliness.

To help us in our application of a particular passage of Scripture, we can ask the following questions:

Is there any truth about the Triune God for me to know? Remember that the Bible is primarily a book in which God reveals who he is through his saving acts on behalf of his people. So, we should discern what characteristics (or attributes) of God are evident in the passage.

Is there any example for me to follow? Most of the Bible is narrative, so there will be men and women whose lives of faith we should seek to emulate (or not emulate!) as we go about our own lives. Observing these examples, we can seek, by the grace of God and the leading of the Spirit, to "imitate their faith" (Heb. 13:7).

Is there any command for me to obey? Often in our Bible reading we will find very clear commands—for example, "love one another" (John 13:34); "whatever you wish that others would do to you, do also to them" (Matt. 7:12). We should think about how to apply such instructions in our present relationships in the home, church, and society.

Is there any doctrinal adjustment for me to make? We should always be open to doctrinal correction. Right thinking is closely connected to fruitful living. As we read our Bible, we should carefully review our beliefs so that, with time, they may become more biblical.

Is there any sin for me to forsake? We all have sinful baggage that God wants us to abandon. This often manifests itself in community, as we relate to people at home, at church, at work, and so on. We must let God's Word diagnose sin in our lives, and forsake it.

Is there any promise for me to claim? Ultimately, in the Bible, God comes to us in our situations of life and invites us to trust him. What adversity are we presently going through? In our Bible reading, is there any promise from God that addresses that situation?

How does this passage relate to Jesus? The Lord Jesus himself said that the whole Old Testament was ultimately about him (Luke 24:25–27, 44; John 5:39; 2 Cor. 1:20). How does the text I am reading contribute to God's saving message in Christ? We will return to this below.

The Importance of Fellow Believers

While we are individually saved, we are also saved into a living fellowship of the saints, the body of Christ. This corporate dimension of the Christian life is crucial for rightly applying the Bible. The church provides a context not only for living out our new life in Christ, practicing the "one another's" of the New Testament, but also for studying the Bible communally for mutual sharpening (Prov. 27:17).

We should share what we are learning in the Bible with other Christians in the context of the local church. This enhances our fellowship with them and is a safeguard for our own mind and soul. When our conclusions are wrong, our fellow Christians will help us to see this. An African proverb says, "He who has a mouth can never get lost." In other words, although some things in the Bible may be hard to understand, we can ask mature Christians or church leaders to help us understand and apply the Bible correctly.

The Centrality of Christ

In our meditation on and application of Scripture, we must never lose sight of Jesus Christ—his life, death, and resurrection. The Old Testament points us to the coming Savior, while the New Testament tells us about the Savior who came. Any truths about God are truths about our Savior (see John 14:9). Many of these truths are anticipated in the Old Testament. See how they bring out aspects of Christ's person and work.

One way we can be mindful of Christ is by remembering the example he has left us. As we read a text exhorting us to love one another, we can consider Christ's great love for us and for others. A second and even deeper way we can be mindful of Christ is to remember his atoning death on our behalf. As we seek to apply the Bible, we must never forget that our frequent failures to apply the Bible faithfully are covered by his work as our substitute. It is only by his shed blood on the cross and his resurrection that we are able to forsake sin and obey his commands. Through meditating on his work on our behalf, our hearts are transformed in love. We must not come away from reading the Bible with a legalistic list of dos and don'ts but rather with a renewed appreciation of our great and glorious Savior.

Two Words of Warning

Finally, two errors should be consciously avoided as we read the Bible and seek to apply it.

First, avoid the danger of overly simplistic application. Many Christians go to the Bible every day to "get a word from the Lord" in the same way that some people in Africa go to witch doctors to be told (for example) who killed a loved one. We should be careful not to use the Bible in that way. For example, we should not read the passage where Jesus tells the rich young ruler to sell everything he has and follow him (Mark 10:21) and conclude that God wants us to sell all our possessions. Rather, learn the general principles from the specific situation in the narrative. In this account, we are to see the idolatry that controlled the young man's heart and ask whether there are any such idols in our hearts. This then prompts us to flee to Christ, asking for forgiveness and for grace to root out such idols so that all we are and have may be surrendered to God and his kingdom.

We must recognize that because God has revealed himself to us through specific people in a specific culture, much of the application made in the text is closely bound up with that culture. For example, Paul frequently tells his readers to "greet one another with a holy kiss" (e.g., Rom. 16:16), yet few cultures in the twenty-first century would feel comfortable carrying out this command. Is such discomfort disobedience? No; Paul is encouraging his readers to express warm affection toward one another—in his culture, this would often be expressed with a "holy kiss," but not so in many of our cultures today. In applying such a text today, we should extract the substance of the command while leaving behind the form. We too should greet one another with warm affection—perhaps through a firm handshake, or a hug, or a bow.

Second, avoid the danger of unconfessed sin. One thing that will suffocate our desire to apply the Bible in daily life is unconfessed sin. Sin grieves the Holy Spirit, who then withdraws his felt presence from us (Eph. 4:26–31). As it has been said, either the Bible will keep us from sin, or sin will keep us from the Bible. If we are harboring bitterness toward someone or stealing from our employers or defiling our conscience by secret immoral living, intimate communion with God will be greatly inhibited. Such harbored sin will, moreover, weaken our efforts at applying the Bible.

If we discover unconfessed sin in our life, we are free, as God's children, to confess that sin to God. We can ask him to wash our sin away by the blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. He will gladly do so. We must then plead with him for grace to enable us to kill that stubborn sin before it ruins us (Rom. 8:13). We must ask him to restore the satisfying sweetness of his presence once again (Ps. 51:8–12), for spiritual numbness hinders heart-searching application of Scripture.

Conclusion

"The word of God is living and active," declared the writer to the Hebrews (Heb. 4:12). So it was then; so it is now. Through the Bible God speaks, and therefore through the Bible every generation is confronted with the very word of God. While God was pleased to entrust his saving message to the prophets and the apostles, who communicated this message in specific, time-bound ways, the Bible remains as alive as ever to the needs of the human condition. As we reverently seek to apply its teaching, under the leading of God's Spirit and to the praise of God's grace, we will enjoy a life of rich fellowship with our creator and redeemer.

The Reliability and Authority of the Bible

In Whan Kim | South Korea

The Bible is the written Word of God, his utterly unique revelation. The word of God expresses who he is, what he has done, and what he is doing down through world history in both judgment and salvation. God has given this Word to his people as the only authoritative standard for their faith and life. The Bible is necessary because God's people do not know how to glorify God due to their depravity, as well as their subjective and culturally bound limitations. The Bible is also necessary in order that his people, knowing what God requires and their failure to do it, can learn of God's great provision of salvation in his Son, Jesus Christ.

The reliability and authority of the Bible may be handled by considering Scripture's (1) inspiration, (2) inerrancy and infallibility, and (3) clarity and sufficiency. As we consider these marks of God's Word, we are reminded that the Bible is both utterly reliable and completely authoritative; believers can depend on it, and believers must yield to it.

The Inspired Word

Throughout history God has been acting in mighty deeds on behalf of his people. As this redemptive history has developed, God has spoken through human authors in human language to communicate exactly what he wants his people to know about themselves and about him as their Creator, Judge, and Savior. These divinely inspired writings have been given to his people and collected into a book, the Bible, to become the unified message of redemption for God's people. When we speak of the Bible as "inspired" we mean that God the Holy Spirit supernaturally influenced and oversaw the writing down of Scripture such that these writings became unfailingly reliable and authoritative, a perfect guide to any who would trust and submit to them. For these writings are from God himself.

The doctrine of inspiration comes from biblical texts which speak of God “breathing out” his word (2 Tim. 3:16; 2 Pet. 1:20–21). Hence the Bible is the inspired or God-breathed Word of God. God did this by the Holy Spirit through the writings of the prophets and apostles. This does not mean, however, that the Bible is a dictation of his words. We can easily see the unique personality and perspective of each human author in the various books of the Bible. Nevertheless, the Spirit of God worked through the human authors—prompting, guiding, and illuminating them as they recorded the very words of God. Therefore, while the authorship of the Bible is both divine and human, these are not in competition with each other. Rather, “men spoke from God as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit” (2 Pet. 1:21).

To read the Bible, then, is to hear the very voice of God. Scripture is God’s own witness to himself for the sake of his people and for the sake of his own glory.

The Inerrant and Infallible Word

As the Bible is the inspired word of God, presenting us with God’s words as mediated through human language, it is likewise inerrant and infallible. Indeed, it would be impossible to conceive of the Bible as divinely inspired and yet untruthful at the same time, for God is utterly truthful (Titus 1:2; Heb. 6:18). Error comes from either deceit or ignorance. Yet God does not lie, and he is not ignorant. Rather, he is always utterly truthful, able to speak no falsehood, and exhaustively omniscient, able to speak all truth. This is what we mean by speaking of the Bible as inerrant—it is unswervingly truthful in all that it teaches. This perfect truthfulness extends not only to matters of doctrine but also to matters of historical reliability. Anything less would call into question the very character of God. In short, just as God is absolutely free from all error, so is his Word, the Bible.

“Infallibility” is similar to inerrancy, though infallibility alludes specifically to Protestantism’s difference with Roman Catholicism. Roman Catholics have historically spoken of the pope as “infallible.” Protestants wish to reserve the term “infallible”—that is, unable to utter anything wrong or to mislead—to Scripture alone. Infallibility strengthens and comforts believers by communicating that they can come to the Bible with absolute confidence that it will not lead them astray.

There are some places in the Bible that may seem at first glance to betray a lack of accuracy and precision, which would appear to undermine inerrancy and infallibility. Examples include imprecise quotations, rounded numbers, unrefined grammar, different accounts of the same events, or unscientific descriptions. Yet whether the Bible is erroneous or not depends upon the definition of the nature of the Bible. If the Bible is a scientific reference book of some kind, requiring the same kind of precision that such texts require, the Bible might be regarded as erroneous. The Bible is not, however, that kind of book. It is rather a book recounting the mighty acts of God on behalf of his people. And while inspired by God, the Bible's human authors wrote in the ordinary language of the people, communicating in a way that would be accessible to all. Moreover, the oversight of the Holy Spirit does not mean that the unique temperament, language proficiencies, and education of each biblical author was somehow suspended when they wrote Scripture.

While the Bible does, then, come to us in all the earthiness one would expect of a book written by human beings in specific historical times and contexts, it is utterly trustworthy and without any error of any kind. This extends to both those parts of the Bible that have to do directly with faith and practice as well as to the historical dimensions of the text. Scripture is flawless, sacred, and divine—a perfect word from a perfect God.

The Clear and Sufficient Word

The question of the clarity (sometimes called the perspicuity) of the Bible must be approached from two perspectives: the authorship and the readership. From the point of view of authorship, the Bible has been given to us in perfect clarity. The Bible as the divinely breathed word of God reflects God's perfection, and this perfection includes clarity. As God is coherent, rational, and articulate, so is the Bible. When he addresses his words to human beings, his words communicate with unfailing clarity. The Bible is therefore understandable to the degree that one understands the meaning of the divine author; it is not accessible only to an elite and specially favored few. That the books of the Bible were written by many human writers from diverse places over many centuries does not undermine its clarity, for the singularity of the divine authorship guarantees the continuity and organic unity of its contents and message.

The Bible is, however, often difficult to understand—as the biblical authors themselves attest (2 Pet. 3:15–16; compare 2 Tim. 2:7)! Yet it is crucial to point out that any perceived obscurity on the part of the Bible arises fundamentally from the readers' own finitude or fallenness. Obscurity in understanding is the fault of the reader, not the author. Yet while the Bible is in places hard to understand, this is not because of any elitism on the part of the biblical authors. The Bible is written for ordinary people, not using some kind of heavenly language or mysterious code words but ordinary, plain language, which the Bible's first readers could readily interpret. Consequently, those who today earnestly seek to understand the Bible can be confident of success in their endeavor.

Four clarifying points, however, must be made. First, Scripture is not equally clear to everybody. Because God was pleased to communicate his saving message in particular historical contexts, readers from later times or other cultures must familiarize themselves with the original context if they are to correctly interpret the Bible. Yet this is not to say, second, that uneducated believers are unable to read and benefit from the Bible—on the contrary, the central teachings of the Bible are clear to all its readers, regardless of their level of theological training. Third, the Bible itself teaches that there is a spiritual perception that is available only to those who have been born again—the wisdom of the gospel is meaningfully received only by Spirit-illumined readers of the Bible (1 Cor. 2:6–16). Like a pair of glasses to a man with poor vision, the Spirit makes the Bible's pages become clear. Fourth, the difficult parts of the Bible can and should be understood in the light of the clearer parts.

The Bible is also sufficient for God's people. It provides all that they need to know to live life well, in glad fellowship with their Creator, walking happily with him. The Bible attests that: "All Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete, equipped for every good work" (2 Tim. 3:16–17). The Bible further attests that it is truth and light to obedient readers, making them "wise for salvation" (2 Tim. 3:15). Therefore, neither addition to nor deletion from the all-sufficient word of God is permissible (Deut. 4:2; Rev. 22:18–19). We should read and study the Bible humbly, and yet we can also do so with strong confidence, asking the Holy Spirit to guide us into all truth, and expecting that he will do this.

Conclusion

In conclusion, the Bible is the only book containing the very words of the God who created all things, showing his creatures his perfect character while also explaining his way of salvation in Jesus Christ. The Bible is the only inspired, inerrant, infallible, clear, and sufficient standard for their faith and life. It carries absolute authority and is unflinchingly reliable.

The Bible is the greatest earthly treasure that could possibly be placed in the hands of mankind. It is life-giving wisdom, leading to salvation and maturity. It is the unique source of delight and joy in Christ. Through the Bible, God addresses his saving message to us today. We must read and study it obediently and diligently in communion with its living divine author and by the help of his Spirit. In this way we shall understand, serve, worship, and glorify him properly.

The Great Truths of the Bible

Matthew Ebenezer | India

Central to the Bible are the truths it teaches. In this essay we will consider the biblical teaching of some of the core doctrines of the Christian faith—revelation, Scripture, God, Christ, the Holy Spirit, humanity, salvation, the church, and the end times.

Revelation

Any discussion of religion normally deals with the matter of revelation. How does God make himself known? If God did not reveal himself to humanity, we would be left with mere speculation about him. It is only when God says something about himself that we come to know who he truly is. There are different understandings about God. Atheists deny the existence of God, and agnostics are indifferent as to whether he exists or not, or believe such knowledge one way or the other cannot be achieved. Deists believe that God is so transcendent that he is uninterested in the affairs of the world. Polytheists worship many gods. Pantheists say that "all is God."

Over against these worldviews, the Bible teaches that there is one triune God who is known partially though inadequately through nature or general revelation, and who makes himself adequately known to humanity through "special revelation"—which refers mainly to the Word of God inscripturated (the Bible) and the Word of God incarnated (Jesus Christ).

General revelation.

God's general revelation is his disclosure of what he is like to all peoples at all times. This revelation is both external to humans and internal to them. Externally, first, the Bible says that God's creation shows forth his glory continuously (Ps. 19:1–2). While creation does not speak audibly, nevertheless "their voice goes out through all the earth" (Ps. 19:4). Second, God reveals himself not only through what humans observe outside themselves in the created world but also through what they find inside themselves. Humanity is conscious of the existence of a Creator. This includes moral conscience, which all humans possess. But this consciousness of God or "awareness of divinity," taken together with the external dimension of general revelation, is insufficient to supply full saving knowledge of God (note Acts 4:12).

General revelation cannot, by itself, give humans a clear understanding of God's nature, attributes, purposes, and will. While conveying some of God's wisdom, goodness, and power, general revelation cannot give humanity hope of deliverance from sin. Moreover, humanity's sinful constitution and depravity reacts negatively to this partial knowledge of God by suppression of the truth of God's existence (Rom. 1:18–19), by ingratitude (Rom. 1:20–21), and by idolatry (Rom. 1:25; 2:22–23). General revelation does, however, have value. First, along with the doctrines of common grace and the image of God, it explains the commendable qualities of non-Christian faiths. Second, it accounts for humankind's general consciousness of God (Acts 17:27–28). Third, it reveals God's power and divinity (Rom. 1:19–20). Fourth, it forms the backdrop of special revelation, which in turn helps us to understand the general revelation of God more fully.

Special revelation.

Against a backdrop of general revelation, which comes to all people at all times, God also reveals himself to particular people at particular times. God has communicated this special revelation in three ways—through his Scripture, through his Son, and through other extraordinary divine interventions.

First, God reveals himself through the Bible. The Bible is God's very Word. It is the holy and inerrant account of a saving message from heaven, telling us who God is, who we are, and what God has done through history for us and for our salvation. Second, God reveals himself through Jesus Christ. Jesus is God's incarnate Word. He is God-in-the-flesh, the utterly unique God-man, fully divine and fully human. In and through Jesus we see what God is like (Col. 1:15; Heb. 1:3), yet we also see what humanity was created to be like—and, for the regenerate, what they are destined one day to become (1 Cor. 15:20–23; 1 John 3:2). Third, God has revealed himself down through history in other particularized ways, including: miracles, such as the parting of the Red Sea (Ex. 14:1–31) or the calming of a storm (Mark 4:35–41); visions, such as those of Daniel (Dan. 7–8) or Peter (Acts 10:9–23); theophanies, in which God manifests himself to a person or people at a particular time and in a particular place, such as to Moses (Ex. 33:17–34:8) or Elijah (1 Kings 19:9–18); and direct words, such as were spoken to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob throughout Genesis, or to Paul (Acts 16:9).

Special revelation can be compared to eyeglasses, helping us see more clearly the meaning of general revelation. While general revelation gives us a true but hazy understanding of God, special revelation brings this vision into focus, showing us in a clearly defined way God's character, purposes, and saving plans for his people. With general revelation, all humanity is aware of God and has enough knowledge to be rightly judged by him. With special revelation, humanity is given a clear message of salvation in the gospel of Jesus Christ, handed down to us through the inspired and inerrant Word of God.

Scripture

The sixty-six books of the Bible make up the Christian "canon"—the specially demarcated, unique Holy Scriptures which give us God's very Word. The Protestant Bible is comprised of the Jewish Scriptures as its Old Testament, and the apostolic writings recognized by the early church as its New Testament. The church did not endow any authority on the New Testament writings; it rather acknowledged and received these books as what they were—the Word of God. Faithful Christians around the world receive the Bible today as the inspired, inerrant, infallible, and clear Word of God. Let us consider each of these in turn briefly. Because the reliability and authority of the Bible is dealt with more fully in another essay, we will give only a brief description here of Scripture's inspiration, inerrancy, infallibility, and clarity.

The "inspiration" of the Bible refers to its being "breathed out" by God himself (2 Tim. 3:16). The men who wrote the Bible were inspired in the sense that they were crucially influenced by the Holy Spirit as they wrote, such that their writings, so influenced, became sacred and authoritative. The doctrine of the Bible's inspiration arises from the Bible itself. Old Testament writers were frequently asked to write what the Lord commanded them (Ex. 17:14; 34:27; Num. 33:2; Isa. 8:1; 30:8; Jer. 25:13; 30:2; Ezek. 24:1–2; Dan. 12:4; Hab. 2:2). The formula "Thus says the Lord" or "the word of the Lord came to me" indicates the prophetic consciousness of the divine origin of prophecy (e.g., Ex. 5:1; Jer. 36:27, 30; Ezek. 26:7, 15, 19; 27:1; 28:1, 11, 20; 29:1). In the New Testament, Paul speaks explicitly of all Scripture being "God-breathed" (2 Tim. 3:16; note also 1 Cor. 2:13; 2 Cor. 13:3). Hebrews cites Old Testament quotations as words of God or the Holy Spirit (Heb. 1:5; 3:7; 4:3; 5:6; 7:21). Peter equates Paul's writings with Scripture (2 Pet. 3:15–16).

Another word that describes Scripture is "inerrant." This means that the Bible is completely true; it is utterly "without error" in its original writings, whether the Bible is speaking about matters of faith and practice or, more broadly, describing the world in which we live (Matt. 5:17–18; Luke 16:17; John 10:35). While the word "inerrant" was not widely used until recent centuries, the conviction it expresses has been that of orthodox Christians down through the history of the church. Because it is inspired and thus is from God himself, "who never lies" (Titus 1:2), the obvious corollary is that the Bible is exhaustively true. The word "inerrant" can be honestly, confidently, and truthfully applied to the Bible as we have it today, as the Bible's own witness to itself makes inescapable.

Scripture is often referred to as "infallible," which is close in meaning to "inerrant" (indeed, the two are often used interchangeably). Infallible means "not capable of making a mistake or an error." Infallibility has a longer historical pedigree than inerrancy, however, and has been taken to refer to the Bible as opposed to the Roman Catholic teaching of the infallibility of the pope. Both inerrancy and infallibility underscore the absolute authority of the Bible in all it says. The Bible is from God; it is his own Word to us; it must be reverently received as such.

Finally, the Bible is clear. This is not to say a child will understand it as easily as an adult, for clarity here does not negate the need for learning, growth, and maturation in understanding. Moreover, because the Bible is written by the Holy Spirit, the Holy Spirit is necessary for healthy understanding and reception of what the Bible says (1 Cor. 2:10–16). Yet when the Bible is not understood, this is the fault of the human reader, not the divine author. Although the Bible does contain things hard to understand (2 Pet. 3:15–16), it is written in a manner that is readily understood by any believer who approaches it in a spirit of healthy submission, prayerful reverence, and glad obedience to its authority.

God

Who God is.

Genesis 1:1 affirms the fact of God’s existence. Through the course of the history of redemption we learn more and more of who God is. God is one (Deut. 6:4). God is triune, one in essence existing in three distinct persons: the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit (Rom. 15:30; 2 Cor. 13:14). The three persons are equal in power and glory, yet perform distinct roles in redemption—the Father orchestrating, the Son accomplishing, and the Spirit applying salvation. The three persons of the Trinity exist in perfect harmony and they delight to carry out their mutually commissioned tasks, eager to love and glorify one another.

The doctrine of the Trinity slowly unfolds down through the history of redemption and thus in Scripture, which records that history. The full revelation of the Trinity comes in the New Testament. The demonstration in the New Testament writings of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit working together, team-style, for our salvation clarifies what was always true in the Old Testament era but seen only in a shadowy way. The Trinitarian revelation of God reaches its climax in the prophesied incarnation, life, ministry, death, resurrection, and ascension of Jesus Christ, who on his ascension sent the Holy Spirit to indwell all believers (John 14:15–31; Acts 2:32–33; compare Ezek. 36:26–27).

What God is like.

While the Scriptures, in order to accommodate our limited understanding, often describe God in human terms as having eyes (Gen. 6:8; 2 Chron. 16:9), ears (1 Sam. 8:21), or hands (Ps. 8:6), God is Spirit (John 4:24). Similarly, when we read of God being grieved or that he regretted his actions (Gen. 6:6; compare 1 Sam. 15:11, 29), it is language used to accommodate God’s revelation to our human finitude. This language shows that he is a personal, living God, who thus speaks (Ex. 6:2; 20:1), hears (Gen. 21:17; Ex. 2:24), answers (Ps. 65:5; 99:6), delivers (Gen. 32:11; Ex. 3:8), disciplines (Lev. 26:18, 41–43), and stands in covenantal (promise-bound) relationship with his people (Gen. 9:9; 15:18; Jer. 31:31; Luke 22:20; 2 Cor. 3:6).

God has attributes or qualities that we classify as either incommunicable (unique to him) or communicable (shared by humans). God’s incommunicable attributes include his independence or aseity (Ps. 33:11; Isa. 40–48; John 5:26), immutability (Ps. 102:27; Mal. 3:6; Heb. 13:8), infinitude (Ex. 3:14; Job 11:7–10; Ps. 145:3), eternality (Ps. 90:2; 102:12), and omnipresence (1 Kings 8:27; Ps. 139:7–10). His communicable attributes (those he shares with us) include wisdom (Rom. 11:33; 1 Cor. 2:7), goodness (Ps. 36:6; 104:21; Matt. 5:45), love (1 John 4:7–12), holiness (Ex. 15:11; Isa. 57:15), righteousness (Ps. 99:4; Isa. 45:21), and mercy (Ex. 34:6–7). No absolute distinction should be drawn between God's incommunicable and communicable attributes. While even God's incommunicable attributes are to some degree shared by humans, and even God's communicable attributes are only imperfectly shared by people, the distinction is a useful one. For the distinction reminds us of the great distance and difference between God the Creator and creaturely humanity, as well as of the unique likeness between God and humanity by virtue of humans being created in his image and glory.

How God has acted.

After creating a perfect world, in which humanity rebelled and rejected their maker, God started over with Noah. Then, after the human race had been scattered due to their own prideful folly, God chose Abraham and his descendants to be the family through whom he would bless the world. Even this chosen family, however, knew failure more frequently than success. After spending four hundred years in Egyptian slavery, Israel was led by Moses to the land God had promised to Abraham. Yet God's people proved hard-hearted time and again—idolatrous, fickle, untrusting of the Lord, and far too ready to mingle with foreign peoples and worship their gods. After warning the people repeatedly through the prophets, God exiled Israel, though with promises of bringing them back—which he did toward the close of the Old Testament age.

Down through history, then, God continued to show both judgment and mercy, yet all along his mission was to restore his world to the way it was meant to be. This was brought to climactic achievement when he sent his own dear Son into the world (John 3:16–21; Gal. 4:4–5). Jesus Christ succeeded where both Adam and then Israel had failed (Matt. 3:13–4:11; 1 Cor. 15:21–22). Jesus brought the kingdom of God to earth, inaugurating the new age longed for by the Old Testament saints (Mark 1:14–15). Through his death and resurrection he freely provides forgiveness from, right standing with, and adoption by God, as well as a new heart and the presence of the indwelling Spirit, to all who are united to him through trusting faith (Rom. 4:1–8; 6:1–4; 8:9–11). And one day Jesus will return to earth to bring a final eradication of evil, judgment of all, resurrection from the dead, and true restoration of this world (1 Cor. 15:12–57; 1 Thess. 4:13–18; 2 Thess. 1:7–10).

Christ

Jesus Christ is the Son of God, the second person of the Trinity, the Savior of all who believe in him, the Lord of history, the Judge of all humanity, and the most precious gift the world has ever known. After looking at various names the Bible uses of him, we will consider his person, his offices, and then his life. (We will focus on his work when we come to "Salvation" below.)

His names.

Several names of Jesus carry special weight and significance. The name "Jesus" itself is the Greek form of the Hebrew "Joshua," meaning "God saves" (Josh. 1:1; Zech. 3:1). "Christ" is the Greek form of the Hebrew word "Messiah," which means "the anointed one." As kings and prophets in the Old Testament were anointed with oil, Christ too was anointed for the offices of prophet, priest, and king by the Spirit's visible presence at his baptism, where the Father audibly attested him as his Son (Matt. 3:16–17; Mark 1:10–11). The term "Son of Man," by which Jesus most often referred to himself, comes from Daniel 7. It refers to a heavenly figure who is given "dominion and glory and a kingdom" (Dan. 7:14; note Matt. 26:64). The phrase "Son of God" regularly refers to Jesus' kingly status as the long-awaited Son of David, the Messiah (Matt. 1:1; 9:27; John 1:49; 11:27). It is also used on occasion, however, to speak of Jesus' deity (Matt. 14:33; John 5:19–26). Finally, while the ascription "Lord" (kurios) can at times be used in the New Testament simply as a respectful form of address (thus its rendering as "Sir" in Matt. 27:63), it is also used as a term of the highest possible exaltation of Jesus (John 20:28; Rom. 10:9). Indeed, at times, in calling Jesus "Lord" the New Testament draws on the very passages in the Greek version of the Old Testament in which kurios describes Yahweh (e.g., Deut. 6:4 in 1 Cor. 8:6). It is not surprising, then, that the New Testament sometimes explicitly calls Jesus "God" (Rom. 9:5; Titus 2:13).

His person.

The first few centuries of the church saw many doctrinal challenges. Preeminent among these was the relationship between Jesus' humanity and his deity, both of which are fully upheld in the Bible. Already in apostolic times, false teachers were saying that Jesus was only pure spirit and not a real man. John's reply was that Jesus was indeed a real person and not a ghost or a spirit (1 John 1:2–3; compare John 20:24–29). Later they taught that Jesus was only a man on whom the Spirit came at baptism and left him before the crucifixion. When a faction in the church taught that Christ was a created being, the matter was settled at the Council of Nicea (A.D. 325), which declared, on Scriptural basis, that Jesus was fully God, of one substance (i.e., one single being) with the Father. The question regarding his natures was finally decided by the Council of Chalcedon (A.D. 451), which declared Christ "to be acknowledged in two natures, unconfusedly, unchangeably, indivisibly, inseparably, the distinction of natures being . . . preserved, and concurring in one person."

His offices.

We now consider Jesus from another angle—that of his threefold ministry role. Jesus Christ is the perfect fulfillment of the three Old Testament offices of prophet, priest, and king. Christ is the promised prophet of Israel (Deut. 18:15; Acts 3:23); people recognized him as a prophet (Matt. 21:11, 46; Luke 7:16), and he spoke of himself as one (Luke 13:33). He displayed the qualities of a prophet: bringing messages from God (John 8:26–28; 12:49–50), foretelling future events (Matt. 24:3–35; Luke 19:41–44), and exercising unique authority (Matt. 7:29). His prophetic ministry continues through the preaching of the Word today, through which he himself by the Spirit speaks to his people's heads and hearts. As priest, Christ is not only the final priest (Heb. 4:14–16; 5:5; 7:23–8:7), he is also the final sacrifice (1 Cor. 5:7) and even the temple itself (John 2:19–22). Christ sums up the entire priestly system—the who, the what, and the where. As our priest, Christ also makes intercession for us (1 John 2:1; see John 17:9, 20). Finally, Christ is king over his people (Luke 19:38; Eph. 5:5), as well as over the universe (Matt. 28:18; 1 Cor. 15:27).

His life.

Christ's coming was prophesied immediately after humanity's fall into sin (Gen. 3:15), and then throughout the Old Testament—including, for example, the virgin birth (Isa. 7:14), the place of his birth (Mic. 5:2), and his sufferings and death (Isa. 52:13–53:12). And “when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son, born of woman, born under the law, to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as sons” (Gal. 4:4–5). Jesus grew in favour with God and with men (Luke 2:52), and upon reaching the age of thirty or so he began his public ministry, which lasted three years. This ministry was marked by the preaching of the kingdom of God and by miraculous signs and wonders that heralded it (Matt. 4:23; Mark 1:14–15). Yet Jesus also revealed to his disciples his impending suffering, death, and subsequent resurrection (Matt. 16:21; Mark 10:32–34). In Jerusalem he was arrested, tried, and found guilty of blasphemy (by the Jews) and sedition (by the Romans). He died the death of a common criminal on a Roman cross. On the third day, as he had prophesied, he arose from the grave. He ascended into heaven in full view of eyewitnesses (Acts 1:6–11). The church awaits his second coming with eager anticipation (Rev. 1:7; 22:20).

The Holy Spirit

The Holy Spirit is the third person of the Trinity, who is of one substance with the Father and the Son, and thus equal with them in power and glory. Some names for the Holy Spirit are the “Spirit of God” (1 Cor. 2:11), the “Holy Spirit of God” (Eph. 4:30), the “Spirit of his Son” (Gal. 4:6), and, the “Spirit of Christ” (Rom. 8:9). These all reinforce the intimate triune relationship of the Spirit with the Father and the Son. The Spirit is tasked with applying in and to the cosmos the accomplished work of the Son, as orchestrated by the Father, especially with respect to our salvation (Rom. 1:4; Heb. 9:14).

The Spirit in the Old Testament.

At creation, the Spirit hovered “over . . . the waters” (Gen. 1:2) and fashioned the heavens (Job 26:13). In the Old Testament, the Spirit repeatedly came upon people chosen by God for particular tasks such as prophecy (Num. 24:2–3; 2 Chron. 15:1–2; 20:14–17), protection and deliverance of other believers (Num. 11:17; 27:18; Judg. 3:10; 6:34; 1 Sam. 16:1–3; Isa. 11:1–5), carrying out skillful work (Ex. 28:3; 31:1–5), and producing purity in the faithful (Psalm 51; 139). The presence of the Holy Spirit will mark the coming Messiah (Isa. 11:2–9; 42:1–4; 61:1–2; compare Luke 4:18) and will be poured out on God’s covenant people (Ezek. 36:26–27; Joel 2:28–32).

The Spirit in the New Testament.

The New Testament gives a fuller understanding of the Holy Spirit. He is mentioned in every book except 2 and 3 John. The Spirit is closely associated with events prior to Jesus’ incarnation (Luke 1:15, 41), as well as his conception and birth (Luke 1:35; 2:25–27), baptism (Matt. 3:13–17), temptation (Matt. 4:1–11), the beginning of his ministry (Luke 4:14–21), his ministry itself (Matt. 12:28), and the post-resurrection empowering of his disciples (Matt. 28:19; compare John 20:22–23; Acts 1:8). In John’s Gospel, which is richly Trinitarian from start to finish, Jesus calls the Spirit the Paraclete—that is, “Counsellor,” “Comforter,” or “Helper” (John 14:16, 26; 15:26; 16:7). The Holy Spirit delights to call attention to Christ (John 15:26; 1 Cor. 12:3).

The Spirit’s activity in the church.

Jesus’ departure from this world inaugurated the Spirit’s coming (John 16:7). The Spirit plays a crucial role in convicting the world (John 16:8–11), granting new birth to sinners (John 3:1–8; Titus 3:5–6), giving the Scriptures to the church (2 Tim. 3:16–17; 2 Pet. 1:21; Heb. 10:15–17), illuminating the minds of believers (John 16:12–15; 1 Cor. 2:9–13; 2 Cor. 3:12–18), empowering believers for authentic obedience (Ezek. 36:26–27; Gal. 5:16–25), assuring believers of their adoption (Rom. 8:15–16; Gal. 4:6), assisting believers in prayer (Rom. 8:26–27; Eph. 6:18), and guaranteeing their future redemption and resurrection (2 Cor. 1:22; 5:5; Eph. 1:13–14).

The Holy Spirit mediates Christ’s presence in the church (Gal. 4:6; 1 Pet. 1:10–11). Acts records the prophesied outpouring of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost (Acts 2:1–4; compare Joel 2:28–32). The visible signs (Acts 2:2–3) and the miraculous enabling of the disciples to speak in other known languages (Acts 2:4, 7–11) marked the establishment of the New Testament church with the promised gift of the Spirit (Acts 2:38–39). The Spirit is the source of the gifts of ministry enjoyed by the church (1 Cor. 12:4–13; Heb. 2:4). On a corporate level, the Spirit also is instrumental in bringing about the renewing and revival of the church.

In short, the work of salvation accomplished by Christ (John 19:30), is carried out by the Holy Spirit. The Spirit is the end-time gift long anticipated by the Old Testament prophets (Isa. 44:3; Joel 2:28–29). He applies the Savior's redemptive work by bringing people to repentance and faith through the preaching of the gospel (Rom. 10:12–17), softening and renewing the wills of otherwise hardened sinners to receive God's free grace (Titus 3:5–6). These rescued ones will subsequently cooperate with the Spirit in the life-long work of growth in godliness (2 Pet. 1:3–11).

Humanity

The story line of the Bible follows the pattern of creation, fall, and redemption. We will allow these three categories to inform our account of humanity.

The creation of humanity.

The Bible teaches that God created humanity in his own image (imago dei). The image of God is crucial to understanding who we are. Precisely what it means to be made in God's image has been debated historically, but it can be said confidently from Genesis 1–2 that it consists at least in personality (exercising the mind), moral responsibility and conscience (exercising the will), and creational governance (exercising rule). Thus to be made in the image of God refers both to what we are and to what we do.

Humanity is set off from the rest of creation because "the LORD God formed the man of dust from the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and the man became a living creature" (Gen. 2:7). The name "Adam" (Gen. 2:20) is Hebrew for "man" and can be used by the biblical writers as a proper noun for a person, a common noun for a male, or as a generic term for male and female human beings. The creation of man (the male) is followed by the creation of woman, whom Adam names "Eve," meaning "life-giver" (Gen. 3:20). The unique act of God breathing into humanity the breath of life ensures that all humans have "an awareness of divinity," though some vainly and foolishly suppress this truth (Rom. 1:18–21).

The fall of humanity.

The sin of our first parents in eating the forbidden fruit in the garden of Eden resulted in both "spiritual death," an immediate separation from God and loss of fellowship, and "physical death," a degeneration of the body leading to cessation of bodily life. The fall did not eradicate the image of God in humanity (note Gen. 9:6); it did, however, corrupt the image of God, affecting not only Adam and Eve but all those descended from them, for whom they acted representatively (Rom. 5:12–19). Adam and Eve are banished from the Garden. In cursing the serpent, God, in his sovereign grace and mercy, announces the ongoing battle between “the seed of the serpent” and “the seed of the woman” (Christ), and declares the coming victory of the seed of the woman (Gen. 3:15).

Sin is seen spreading like wildfire throughout subsequent chapters of Genesis, as Cain murders Abel and Lamech boasts of his polygamy (Genesis 4). Yet God’s grace appears in Seth’s birth, after Abel’s death. Despite the spread of sin, the Bible clearly indicates a godly line, the line of Abel and Seth (Gen. 4:25–26; 1 Chron. 1:1–4; Luke 3:36–38) alongside the ungodly line, the line of Cain. Genesis 5–6 introduce righteous Noah. Genesis 6:5 describes the pathetic condition of the world: “The LORD saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and every intention of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually.” God punished this wicked generation with the great flood, saving Noah and his family (2 Pet. 2:5). The post-flood rainbow (Gen 8:21; 9:13) is a promise that God will never again destroy the earth by a flood. God’s covenant with Noah includes enhanced provision for man’s sustenance, and protection for God’s creation (Gen. 9:3–5). After the flood, man’s relationship with God continued to deteriorate (Gen. 9:20–22), culminating in the pride-fueled building of the Tower of Babel (Gen. 11:1–9). Soon Abram (later Abraham), from the godly line of Shem (Gen. 11:10–32), appears. God’s redemptive purposes will be fulfilled through his seed, the promised Savior, Jesus Christ (Gal. 3:16).

Sin and redemption.

The sin of our first parents, Adam and Eve, introduced sin into the human race. This is known as “original sin.” With the exception of Jesus Christ, who was conceived supernaturally and lived his entire life in full dependence on the Holy Spirit (Acts 10:38), no human being has been unstained by original sin. Sin affects the entire human person—thought, will, intentions, body. Humanity’s nature is fully depraved; this does not mean that all humans are as bad as they can be, but that sin has corrupted their nature to such an extent that they are incapable of doing anything truly good. Humanity’s good works are prompted from selfish reasons and not done in obedience to, or love for, God (Isa. 64:6; Rom. 7:18; 8:5). Sin causes us to rebel against God (Rom. 3:23), estranging us from him (Isa. 59:1–2) and plunging us into darkness and death, out of which we cannot extract ourselves, so that we stand in desperate need of God's sovereign grace (Eph. 2:1–10). We are sinful subjectively (sin renders us defiled) and objectively (sin renders us guilty). The Bible describes and portrays sin in many ways, but at heart sin is always the desire to be God, worshiping oneself and being worshiped by others.

Despite continued rebellion, God in his great mercy reaches out to humanity with the gracious salvation of the gospel. While we will address salvation below, it is worthwhile to note here the relation of redemption to the image of God. The New Testament speaks of believers in Christ as having "put on the new self, which is being renewed in knowledge after the image of its creator" (Col. 3:10; compare Eph. 4:22–24). One aspect of Christian salvation is therefore restoration into the image of God, the image in which Adam was created in Eden but which has become defaced in us through sin.

Salvation

The message of the Christian gospel is, at heart, a message of salvation. We will briefly consider here the necessity, basis, results, and process of this salvation.

The necessity of salvation.

Salvation is necessary because of sin. The weight and horror of sin has ineradicably separated humanity from God, placing us under his righteous wrath. Because of the sin of Adam and Eve, human beings lack the original righteousness that their first parents possessed at creation, and are born with a corrupted nature. Further, this sinful principle resides in the heart of all human beings and pollutes their whole being (Prov. 4:23; Matt. 15:19–20; Luke 6:45). All human beings, descending from Adam, have inherited this sin, and along with it we are also guilty of actual transgressions. That is, we are sinful by heredity and we are sinful by choice. The human predicament is of the utmost seriousness and cannot be fixed by way of any self-generated resources. Deliverance from the outside is necessary.

The basis of salvation.

The center of all of human history is the atoning work of Jesus Christ. The Bible teaches that, through Jesus' death and resurrection, sinners can be restored to a right relationship with God. Scripture draws from many walks of life to speak of this atoning work. The sacrificial system of the Old Testament, along with the ritual of the tabernacle and the priestly service, prepared the way for the atoning work of Jesus Christ in his sacrificial death and triumphant resurrection. On the cross, Jesus propitiated (turned away) the Father's righteous wrath. The sacrificial system had taught the seriousness of sin and the need of reconciliation with a perfectly holy God. These rituals found their fulfillment in Christ—the perfect prophet, the final high priest, and the sufficient sacrifice (Heb. 3:1–6; 4:14–9:10; 9:11–10:18). The Passover took on new significance, becoming the Lord's Supper that symbolized the perfect sacrifice of the lamb of God who provides spiritual deliverance.

God in his sovereign will decreed in eternity the salvation of humanity through the work of his Son (Rev. 13:8). This will has been and is being fulfilled through the incarnation, life, mission, death, and resurrection, ascension, and current intercession of Jesus Christ. The atonement through Christ was motivated by God's own good pleasure (Isa. 53:10; Luke 2:14; Eph. 1:6–9), his love for the world he had made (John 3:16), and his justice that ensured that his righteous demands are met (Rom 3:24–26). The atonement of Christ was substitutionary, meaning that he was a substitute for his people, meeting the demands of the law that sinful man could not meet. He took our sins (Isa. 53:6; John 1:29; Heb. 9:28) and gave his life on our behalf (Mark 10:45; Gal. 1:4).

The results of salvation.

The New Testament uses a variety of metaphors, drawn from various spheres of life, to describe the glorious blessings of the gospel. Justification is the law court metaphor and describes being acquitted and counted righteous before God (Rom. 5:1; Titus 3:7). Sanctification is drawn from the ritual side of Judaism and refers to being made holy (1 Cor. 1:2; 1 Thess. 4:3). Redemption is the slave market metaphor, describing being bought by God and set free (Eph. 1:7; Rev. 14:3–4). Reconciliation is the relational metaphor, teaching that believers are no longer estranged from God but have become his friends (Rom. 5:11; 2 Cor. 5:18–19). Other images of salvation are adoption, the familial metaphor (Rom. 8:15; 1 John 3:1–2); washing, the physical cleansing metaphor (1 Cor. 6:11; Titus 3:4–7); purchase, the financial transaction metaphor (1 Cor. 6:20; 2 Pet. 2:1); liberation, the imprisonment metaphor (Gal. 5:1; Rev. 1:5); and new birth, the physical generation metaphor (John 3:3–7; 1 Pet. 1:3).

Each of these must be understood in terms of the Bible's "already" and "not yet" framework. That is, by virtue of Christ's first coming and atoning work, believers already, by faith, enjoy each of the blessings just listed. Yet while Christ has decisively inaugurated the long awaited new age, this new age has not come in finality, perfection, and open manifestation—that awaits his second coming. For this reason the New Testament can speak of the blessings of salvation as being ours now and yet also something for which we wait. For example, we have been adopted (Rom. 8:15), yet we also eagerly await adoption (Rom. 8:23).

The process of salvation.

The Bible teaches that believers are elected in eternity (Eph. 1:4; 2 Thess. 2:13; 1 Pet. 2:9), but called in time (Rom. 10:14–17), through the work of the Holy Spirit. The Spirit enables the believer to respond to the gospel in faith and repentance (John 3:6–8; 6:63; Acts 13:48; 1 Cor. 1:23–24; Rom 8:30). The Spirit convicts them of their sinful condition, illuminates their minds in the knowledge of Christ, and renews their wills to receive Christ. They are thereby enabled to enjoy the blessings of forgiveness of sins and eternal life offered freely in the gospel (Ezek. 36:26–27; 2 Tim. 1:9; Acts 2:37–39; 26:18; 1 Cor. 2:12–14; John 6:44–45). The process of salvation should remind believers of what they were (Eph. 2:1–3), what they are (2 Cor. 4:16), and what they shall be (Rom. 8:18; 1 Cor. 15:52; 1 John 3:2; Rev. 21:3).

The Church

The church is the community of Christian believers. The Greek word ekklesia, translated "church" in the New Testament, means "called out" and thus by inference "called out people" and so "assembly." It is commonly used for Christian believers (never for a building). The word is used to describe (1) all true believers, whether in heaven or on earth (Eph. 1:22; 3:10, 21; 5:23; Col. 1:18, 24); (2) a local church or churches (Acts 5:11; 11:26; Rev. 22:16); (3) a house church (Rom. 16:5, 23: 1 Cor. 16:19); and, (4) the Old Testament assembly of the people of God (Acts 7:38; and more than 100 times in the Greek translation of the Old Testament). True believers constitute the church of God. The church is therefore primarily an organism, and secondarily an organization with discernible administrative structures. The mission of the church is to fulfill the Great Commission by preaching the gospel and making disciples of all nations (Matt. 28:16–20).

The image of the church as "the body of Christ" is a powerful reminder of the identity of the church. It is an organism in which true believers are organically related to each other. When one member suffers, the whole body suffers (1 Cor. 12:26). The idea of "communion" or "participation" in the Lord's Supper further illustrates the church's identity: we enjoy intimate fellowship with Christ when, focusing on him in faith, we partake of the elements (1 Cor. 10:14–17; compare John 6:51–54). A further implication of the church as the body of Christ is that when the church suffers, Christ suffers (see Acts 9:4).

Sacraments.

A "sacrament" (from the Latin sacramentum, meaning "mystery") is a Christian ceremony instituted by Christ as a special sign of believers' union and communion with him. The Protestant church recognizes two sacraments: baptism and the Lord's Supper. While some churches have several sacraments, only these two practices (1) were instituted by Christ, (2) were commanded by him to be continued, and (3) have unique spiritual significance as divinely ordained means of grace (Matt 28:19–20; Luke 22:14–20; 1 Cor. 11:23–29). The sacraments are visible signs through which our faith is strengthened as we "see" the gospel. They are also provisions for the benefits of the gospel to be secured to the believer (Acts 2:41–42; 1 Cor. 10:1–4). Both practices have Old Testament antecedents; baptism was foreshadowed by circumcision (Col. 2:11–12; compare Genesis 17), and the Lord's Supper was preceded by the Passover (Matt. 26:26–28; compare Ex. 12:1–13). Both baptism and the Lord's Supper thus remind believers of the great deliverance granted to them by the Lord (1 Pet. 3:20–21; compare 1 Cor. 10:1–4). The efficacy of the sacraments depends on their faithful use; they should be accompanied by the Word, which explains the signs.

Organization of the church.

Christ is the head of the church and gives it its authority (Matt. 23:10; Eph. 1:15–23; 2:20; 5:23–24). The church, according to Ephesians, is made up of apostles, prophets, evangelists, shepherds, and teachers (Eph. 4:11–12; compare 2:20). Some of these offices were temporary and others permanent. The ordinary offices of the church seem to be elders (1 Tim. 3:2–7; Titus 1:6–8) and deacons (1 Tim. 3:8–13), for whom there were stringent qualifications. Paul appointed "elders" in the churches he established (Acts 14:23). A related word is "overseer," which refers to what this person does: ruling, superintending, or overseeing. In Acts 20:17–28 the words "elder" and "overseer" are used interchangeably, with the admonition that these leaders are to "care for" or "feed" (from which we get the word "pastor") the church of God (Acts 20:17–28). Protestant churches exercise roughly three forms of church government: churches governed by bishops (Episcopal); churches governed by representative elders (Presbyterian); and churches led by entire congregations (Congregational).

The End Times

The Bible not only describes the past and makes sense of the present but also prepares us for the future, what theologians refer to as "eschatology," meaning "last things." Specifically, we are taught that at some point God will bring history to a close with a series of climactic events such as judgment, resurrection, and restoration of the natural order. While on the one hand we today are already living in what the Old Testament called "the end of the ages" (1 Cor. 10:11), it is also true that the Bible teaches us much about the very end of human history.

Old Testament teaching.

The Old Testament uses different words to describe the last days, such as the day of "the LORD of hosts" (Isa. 2:12), "the day of the LORD" (Isa. 13:6; Ezek. 13:5; Joel 2:1; Amos 5:18), "the day of his coming" (Mal. 3:2; see 4:5), and "that day" (Amos 8:9). This day was viewed as a day of salvation for Israel and punishment for their enemies (Isa. 13:11). The prophets often reinterpreted popular expectations, saying that Israel would be punished along with its enemies (Jer. 9:25; 46:28; Amos 2:1–8). This punishment will take place in history (Amos 5:18; Joel 1:15) and in a final event (Joel 3:14, 18; Zeph. 3:11, 16; Zech. 14:9) in which God will establish his kingdom (Isa. 2:2–4; Hos. 3:5). The Old Testament hope consisted of various expectations, such as the arising of a final Davidic king (Isa. 9:6–7; 11:1–5; Jer. 23:5–6), the coming of a heavenly "Son of Man" (Dan. 7:13–14), and the suffering of a chosen servant (Isa. 52:13–53:12). At the same time, however, it is ultimately God himself who will come to save his people (Isa.

26:21; Joel 3:16; Zech. 14:5; Mal. 3:1–2). These tensions are not resolved until the New Testament and the coming of Christ.

New Testament teaching.

The New Testament describes the last days in terms of Jesus' second coming. This return of Christ was (1) predicted by the Lord himself (Matt. 16:27–28; Mark 13:26; 14:62; Luke 21:27), (2) announced by the angels after the ascension (Acts 1:11), and (3) recorded by the New Testament writers (1 Thess. 4:15; James 5:7–8). The certainty of Christ's second coming is not doubted by true believers, even though it is scoffed at by unbelievers (2 Pet. 3:3–4, 9–10). This coming will be in person (Acts 1:11; 1 Thess. 4:13–18), and it will draw believers, both the dead and living, to him (1 Cor. 15:52; 1 Thess. 4:16–17; 1 John 3:2). At Christ's return all the dead will be raised, some to everlasting torment and some to everlasting life (Matt. 25:31–46; 2 Thess. 1:7–10). Knowing about the second coming should make us vigilant in holiness (2 Pet. 3:11), productive in activity (Matt. 25:14–28), earnest in fellowship (Heb. 10:25), and confident in hope (1 Thess. 4:16–18).

Jesus teaches us that, while several things must take place before he comes again (Matt. 24:4–14), believers should also be ready because he may come at any time (Matt. 24:43–44; James 5:9; 1 Pet. 4:5). Also, no one knows when Jesus will return, so it is futile to speculate, and those who claim to know when he will return are giving false testimony and should not be heeded (Matt. 24:36). Christ's second coming will (1) vindicate decisively and openly his kingship and lordship (1 Cor. 1:7; Titus 2:13; 1 Pet. 1:7, 13; 5:1); (2) complete the gathering and glorification of the church (Rom. 9:19, 23; 11:25–32); (3) bring a judgment of the believers with regard to stewardship and faithfulness (Rom. 14:10–12; 1 Cor. 3:9–15; 4:5) and a judgment of unbelievers with regard to eternal punishment (Matt. 13:41–42, 49–50; 2 Thess. 1:7–9; Rev. 20:11–15); (4) destroy evil once and for all (1 Cor. 15:23–28; 2 Thess. 2:3–10); and (5) establish the new heavens and the new earth (Rev. 21:1–22:5). The return of Christ is a source of great hope for believers, fueling resolution and faithfulness in the difficulties of life in this fallen world.

Mission and Evangelism

Ajith Fernando | Sri Lanka

"Mission" and "evangelism" express the outward impulse of Christianity. The gospel of Jesus Christ, by its very nature, refuses to be bottled up. It must be shared. Mission and evangelism are closely related; mission is generally the broader term, within which evangelism is included. We will therefore consider mission first, then evangelism.

Mission

Mission is at the heart of the message of the Bible, though the actual word "mission" occurs sparingly in English Bibles. The word comes from the Latin verb mitto (noun missio), which parallels the Greek word apostellō, meaning "to send." It refers to God sending people to announce his work of judgment and redemption on earth. Though God sometimes intervenes directly, his usual method of working in the world is to use people he has chosen to carry out his will.

Mission in the Old Testament.

In the Old Testament, God sent deliverers such as judges, kings, prophets, and priests specifically to the people of Israel. When God first called Abraham, however, God told him that through his descendants "all the families of the earth shall be blessed" (Gen. 12:3). God told Israel in the wilderness that its obedience to God's laws would be a testimony to the nations of God's greatness (Deut. 4:6–8). David urged, "Declare his glory among the nations, his marvelous works among all the peoples!" (1 Chron. 16:24; see Ps. 96:3). Psalm 22:27 looks forward to the day when all the nations turn to God and worship before him. Isaiah sees Israel becoming "a light for the nations," so that "salvation may reach to the end of the earth" (Isa. 49:6). Micah foresaw a day when many nations desire to come to Zion to learn God's ways (Mic. 4:2). But the Israelites were not entirely open to the idea of God extending his grace to Gentiles, as the attitude of Jonah shows (Jonah 4). Mission, to them, generally meant just serving their own fellow Israelites.

Mission in the New Testament.

In the New Testament, the blessing of God truly floods out to the nations. The New Testament focus on mission consistently includes all the world rather than only the community of God's people. Jesus sent his disciples into the world just as he had been sent by God (John 17:18; 20:21). Thereafter, mission became associated primarily with those who are outside the church. Believers are the salt and light of the world (Matt. 5:13–16).

Mission is now not primarily done by specialists, such as prophets and priests. While some are specially trained (Eph. 4:11–12), it is the joyful responsibility of all believers. As representatives of the Servant Lord, believers are called to a life of humble service (Mark 10:42–45; 2 Cor. 4:5; Phil. 2:5–11). Vocation is one of the key arenas in which Christians can be salt and light to the world (Matt. 5:13–16). Old Testament history shows that even in totally pagan environments, God's people—such as Daniel and his friends, Esther, and Ezekiel—can fulfill a God-given mandate, bringing glory to God and blessing to people through their vocations. This remains true today.

After the resurrection, the heart of Jesus' teaching on mission has been called the Great Commission, which in various forms appears at least four times in the Gospels (Matt. 28:18–20; Luke 24:45–49; John 17:18; 20:21) and twice in Acts (1:8; 10:42). Here the focus is on proclaiming the gospel of salvation through Christ to the nations.

What does mission include?

Different Christians claiming the authority of Scripture have arrived at different understandings of what constitutes biblical mission. Some confine the term to evangelism and activities related to it. Others, while viewing evangelism as the primary task, include other activities such as social responsibility in their understanding of mission. They often describe this as "holistic mission." Still others include the different aspects of Christian involvement and service, including evangelism, as equally important parts of the church's mission. To be sure, Christians must fully obey the call of Christ to service, whatever activities one includes under the term "mission." As we realize, however, that every person's greatest need is to be reconciled to God through Christ, and that without this people are eternally lost, evangelism must assume a high level of urgency and be viewed as the top priority.

“Mission” is sometimes distinguished from “missions.” Many today use the term “missions” to refer to ministry that crosses cultures. Those who cross cultures in obedience to the call of God are thus described as missionaries. According to this understanding, missions is one part of the total mission of the church.

Evangelism

The word “evangelism” derives from the Greek word euangelizō, which means “to announce good news.” The verb and the noun form of this word (usually translated “gospel”) appear 125 times in the New Testament. Another word for evangelism, kērussō (translated “proclaim” or “preach”), appears 59 times. All this indicates that evangelism involves verbal proclamation of the good news. While one may include other forms of service such as social concern under mission, one cannot equate such acts of service with evangelism. Social concern may aid in evangelism by cultivating receptivity to the gospel, but it is not itself evangelism.

Another Greek word that means “to persuade” (peithō) is often used in Acts to describe Paul’s evangelistic efforts (Acts 17:4; 18:4; 19:8). It shows that evangelism seeks to work with people until their minds are changed and they accept the gospel. Today there is a tendency to shy away from such focused evangelism, as it is associated with religious or cultural arrogance. To be sure, arrogance is incompatible with the gospel, for the gospel declares that we cannot save ourselves and it thus takes away any grounds for boasting (Eph. 2:8–9). Moreover, the lifestyle of a follower of the Servant Lord must be one of servanthood—the antithesis of arrogance (see 2 Cor. 4:5). Yet bold gospel proclamation should not be confused with arrogance.

The perspective of the biblical gospel differs from that of contemporary religious pluralism. The Bible holds that the God who is Creator and Lord of the universe has spoken a definite message to humanity, which reached its climax in the coming of Jesus, God incarnate (Heb. 1:1–3). The gospel of Jesus is therefore so true, so important, and so vital to the welfare of humans that everyone everywhere must respond to it (Acts 17:30). Religious pluralism denies the existence of absolute truth. It says that all religions are more or less equal as they all have elements of the truth, which they have discovered through their unique cultural and historical experiences. Such pluralism frowns at the idea of conversion as an aim in proclamation, whereas biblical evangelism views it as the primary goal.

The rationale for evangelism.

In his letter to the Romans, Paul explains why evangelism is necessary. He describes himself as being “under obligation both to Greeks and to barbarians”—that is, non-Greeks (Rom. 1:14). That sense of obligation made him “eager to preach the gospel . . . in Rome” (v. 15). Fueling this eagerness was a conviction of the power of the gospel to save all those who believe (vv. 16–17). Paul proceeds to explain what necessitated the gospel. He says people in their natural state are under “the wrath of God” because of “ungodliness and unrighteousness” (v. 18). He describes the human condition as suppressing the truth (v. 18), rejecting the revelation of God in creation (vv. 19–20), and refusing to honor and acknowledge God (vv. 21, 28).

Paul argues that this rebellion against God merits judgment, and that no human being is able to avoid condemnation at the judgment (Rom. 2:1–3:20). Then he describes how Jesus is the answer to this condemnation because he absorbed God’s wrath over our sin (3:25). This atoning work unleashed “grace as a gift, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus,” resulting in sinners being “justified” or acquitted of their guilt and counted righteous (3:24). Our part in all this is simply to believe in Christ (3:22, 25, 26, 28); that is, to turn from self-trust and instead trust God and what he has done in Christ for our salvation.

Romans 10:14 shows how proclaiming the gospel is essential if people are to have saving faith: “How then will they call on him in whom they have not believed? And how are they to believe in him of whom they have never heard? And how are they to hear without someone preaching?” This shows that the idea that people will be saved without hearing the gospel has no biblical basis. People will not be judged for rejecting a gospel they never heard, but for rejecting the light they already had (Romans 1–2). There are degrees of responsibility and degrees of punishment, depending on how much people knew (Matt. 11:21–24; Luke 12:47–49). But believing in Christ is the only way to salvation, and all who do not trust in him will go to eternal destruction in hell.

Ingredients and methods of evangelism.
From the Great Commission we can identify some key ingredients of evangelism. Evangelism springs from the authority of Jesus (Matt. 28:18), who has sent us out as his messengers (John 20:21). The aim of evangelism is to make obedient disciples who will be incorporated into the church through baptism (Matt. 28:19–20). Its activities involve being witnesses (Acts 1:8), preaching the gospel (Mark 16:15), and proclaiming repentance and forgiveness of sins (Luke 24:47). Its scope extends to all nations (Mark 16:15; Matt. 28:19; Luke 24:47; Acts 1:8). And it is energized by the presence of Christ (Matt. 28:20) through the power of the Holy Spirit (Acts 1:8).

Acts shows that, although the content of the gospel does not change, the methods of evangelism vary according to audience. The evangelistic messages recorded in Acts were all faithful proclamations of the gospel, but those before Jewish audiences quoted Scriptures extensively (e.g., 2:12–40; 13:16–41), whereas when Paul addressed the philosophers in Athens, his message adopted a more “academic” style and did not include any explicit quotations from Scripture (17:22–31; see 1 Cor. 9:19–23). Evangelists such as Peter and Paul spoke to large audiences; ordinary laypersons “went about preaching the word” (Acts 8:4), presumably to small groups and individuals; and Philip led the Ethiopian eunuch to Christ through a personal conversation (8:26–38).

Different styles of personal witness are found in the New Testament. The woman of Samaria invited people to come and hear Christ (John 4:29–30). Matthew had a meal for his friends with Jesus as guest (Matt. 9:10). The blind man shared his testimony (John 9:25). Far from teaching that only a select few have the gift of evangelism, the Bible shows in various ways that all Christians can use opportunities that come their way to witness for Christ.

Conclusion

While methods and strategies will vary, the timeless call of God to his people to bring his saving message to a lost and dying world does not vary. The church must press on in its vital mission of bringing the mercy of God to the world, the most crucial aspect of which is bringing the greatest news the world has ever known, the gospel of Christ, to the ends of the earth—for the joy of the church, the salvation of the nations, and the glory of the Triune God.

Major World Religions

Harold A. Netland and Marvin R. Wilson | USA

Although often regarded as a Western religion, Christianity, which had its birth in Asia, has always been much broader than its European expression and is today a genuinely global religion. During the first two centuries of the Christian era, the centers of Christianity were in Syria, Egypt, and Mesopotamia. The faith spread rapidly, so that by the second century A.D. Christians were in India and in major centers of the Persian Empire. Christian communities were in Ethiopia by the fourth century and in China by the seventh century. It was only after about the fourteenth century that Europe, and later North America, became the heartland of Christianity. Over the past two or three generations Christianity has experienced a dramatic shift in demographics, so that today over two-thirds of all Christians are located in Asia, Latin America, and Africa. The Christian church has experienced explosive growth in places such as China, South Korea, Guatemala, El Salvador, Brazil, Nigeria, Kenya, and Ghana.

All this has brought Christianity into greater contact than ever before with the major religions of the world. Although the Bible nowhere discusses "other religions" as such, much in the Bible is relevant to the subject. The Old Testament includes repeated references to the deities and religious practices of the Egyptians, Canaanites, Philistines, and Babylonians. The New Testament world was populated with "many 'gods' and many 'lords'" (1 Cor. 8:5) and characterized by religious syncretism (blending various religions together). But the religions of the ancient world have been replaced today by the so-called major world religions. This article will briefly examine Judaism, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, and Confucianism, concluding by noting important differences between their teachings and Christian faith.

Judaism

Beginning with Abraham, the founding "rock" of the Jewish people, and continuing to the modern era, Judaism has maintained continuity and passed down a remarkable legacy. Judaism has also been a religion of innovation, adaptability, and change. God progressively revealed his will and teachings to Abraham and his descendants (see Rom. 4:11–18; Gal. 3:29). The cataclysmic events leading to the exodus, and the revelation at Sinai, gave the nation of Israel its foundational spiritual identity. The religion of Moses, David, and the prophets was shaped and reshaped by social expansion, cultural interaction, and critical events such as the destruction of the temple, the exile, and restoration. All this was recorded in the Hebrew Scriptures.

Unlike any other world religion, Judaism shares common roots with Christianity through its inspired Scriptures, the Hebrew Bible. Jesus himself, moreover, and the first disciples, were themselves Jews. While many Jews reject Jesus as the Messiah, this does not negate the shared history recorded in the Christian Old Testament.

Today, Judaism is comprised of several branches or movements, each with certain distinguishing features. Orthodox Judaism is strongly committed to halakhah, the legal tradition of the Talmud and other law codes. In Orthodoxy, God is personal. The Torah (Scripture) and its mitswot, or "commandments," are unchanging, a focal point for study and living. Orthodox Jews usually hold to a more literal interpretation of Scripture, including a distinctive dress code, dietary laws, and strict Sabbath observance.

Reform Judaism, by contrast, does not view halakhah as binding. Reform Judaism seeks to adapt to modern times by encouraging innovation, diversity, and egalitarianism. In Reform Judaism, the basis for decision making is not a legal system but individual autonomy, informed by reason and experience. Consistent with that approach, Reform Judaism adopts a modern, higher-critical approach to the Hebrew Scriptures and mainly deems the Scriptures to be a product of human reflection, not a result of divine inspiration.

Conservative Judaism, a third major branch, falls theologically between Orthodox and Reform. Conservative Jews accept tradition but with an openness to change. Halakhah is not "frozen" but is a dynamic entity, subject to modification or adjustment in order to make it more relevant in light of current cultural concerns. Conservative Jews understand the Scriptures to be the words of God but would also see God’s revelation as an ongoing process, not confined to the ancient Hebrew Scriptures alone.

Two additional groups are the Hasidic Jews and the Messianic Jews. Hasidism is the mystical movement in Judaism. Hasidic Jews are very “Torah-centric,” and they are traditional in their lifestyle. God, who is present everywhere, is celebrated by dancing, spontaneity, joy, and great intensity. Messianic Jews are culturally Jewish people who believe Jesus is the Messiah. As a means of affirming their Jewish identity, many messianic believers attend messianic Jewish congregations. Services are structured along the lines of synagogue worship, in music and liturgy. The theology of many messianic Jews is closely linked to that of the evangelical Christian community, from which it has generally found support. Many within the Jewish community, however, have tended to question the messianic movement, skeptical about how it can combine features of both Judaism and Christianity and yet remain a legitimate expression of Jewish religious life.

Islam

Islam, the second largest religion in the world after Christianity, is found not only in the Middle East but throughout the world. Although historically discussion of Islam begins with Muhammad (c. A.D. 570–632), Muslims insist that Islam is God’s eternal religion for all humankind and that Muhammad was simply the last and greatest in a long line of prophets.

Born and raised in Mecca, an important trading center in Arabia, Muhammad was troubled by the polytheism and superstition all around him. Around the year 610 he began to have experiences that he took to be revelations from Allah, the one true God. Convinced that he had been called to be a “Messenger of God,” Muhammad continued to receive revelations supposedly dictated by the angel Gabriel over a 20-year period. The revelations were memorized by Muhammad’s followers and were eventually written and codified in the Qur’an, which is understood to be the Word of God. Muhammad regarded himself as being in continuity with prophets of the Old Testament and Jesus. He claimed to be restoring the original revelation of God that Jews and Christians had corrupted. Muhammad met stiff resistance to his message in Mecca, and in 622 he and his followers moved to Medina (in western Saudi Arabia). But in 630

Muhammad returned to Mecca, captured it, and began transforming the city. He died two years later.

Questions about the legitimate successors to Muhammad resulted in the two major divisions within Islam. Sunni Islam, comprising roughly 85 percent of Muslims today, recognized caliphs (Islamic leaders) not necessarily related to Muhammad as his legitimate successors. Shi'a Islam, comprising about 15 percent of Muslims, insisted that legitimate successors must descend directly from Muhammad and that Ali (Muhammad's son-in-law, who was martyred) and his sons were the rightful heirs to leadership. Both branches of Islam embrace a strict monotheism and total submission to Allah's sovereign will in all of life. Allah, they believe, is the eternal creator who sovereignly rules over nature and the affairs of humankind.

The religious, intellectual, and social life of devout Muslims is structured around the "Five Pillars": (1) the Shahada, or "witness" of the basic creed of Islam ("I bear witness that there is no god but Allah, and that Muhammad is the prophet of Allah"); (2) prayer; (3) fasting; (4) almsgiving; and (5) the pilgrimage to Mecca.

Islam teaches that the present world will one day be destroyed by Allah and that all humankind, past and present, will face divine judgment. Humans have a weakness of will and a tendency toward sin. Though tempted by Iblis (the devil), it is within their power to resist and remain faithful to the will of Allah. In the judgment, each person's deeds will be impartially weighed in the balance. Salvation is by works, based strictly on submission to Allah and faithful adherence to the teachings of Islam (sura 36:54 in the Qur'an). Accordingly, some will be admitted to Paradise, others consigned to Hell.

Jesus is mentioned frequently in the Qur'an. He is portrayed as one of the greatest of the prophets. While the virgin conception of Jesus is affirmed, the Qur'an denies Jesus' divinity (5:109–119), as well as his death on a cross. The incarnation and the Trinity are explicitly denied (see 4:171; 5:17; 9:30–31).

Hinduism

Hinduism is a family of diverse religious traditions that are the product of some 4,000 years of development in India. There is no single founder of Hinduism, and it does not have a carefully defined creed. A Hindu may believe in one god, many gods, or no god. Some Hindus think of the religious “ultimate” as a personal being; others regard it as a nonpersonal reality. Any unity that exists within Hinduism is found in the common acceptance of the authority of the Vedas (composed between 1400 and 400 B.C.) as sacred literature, belief in reincarnation of the soul in accordance with karma, and the importance of caste.

According to the doctrine of reincarnation, persons are continually being reborn as the atman (the soul) passes from one life to another. A person’s present life is one in an unimaginably long series of past and future lives. Rebirths are regulated by karma, a universal principle that determines current and future states on the basis of past actions and dispositions. The repeated cycle of birth, death, and rebirth is samsara (lit., “wandering”), and the traditional soteriological goal of Hinduism is moksha, or liberation from rebirths through breaking the causal conditions of karma.

Traditionally there are three ways to attain moksha: (1) right action (karma marga), in which one lives in accordance with one’s duty as determined by gender, caste, and stage in life; (2) liberating knowledge (jnana marga), as one realizes one’s essential identity with Brahman; and (3) devotion (bhakti marga), consisting of love, reverence, and worship of a particular deity.

Most Hindus accept the idea of Brahman as the supreme being and sustaining power of the cosmos. But there is disagreement over the nature of Brahman and its relation to the human person. The idea that the religious ultimate can be understood and experienced in many different ways is central to Hinduism.

Buddhism

The founder of Buddhism, Siddhartha Gautama (traditionally, 563–483 B.C.; also known as “the Buddha”), was born into a wealthy chieftain’s family in northern India. Determined to find the cause of suffering and pain, he rejected his luxurious lifestyle and became a wandering ascetic. After much meditation and ascetic discipline, Gautama experienced “enlightenment,” and for the next 40 years he traveled throughout India preaching the dharma (truth) and attracting a large following.

The heart of the teaching of the Buddha (lit., “awakened one”) is the Four Noble Truths. The First Truth states that all existence is characterized by dukkha (“suffering,” “pain,” or “discontent”). The Second Truth holds that the root cause of suffering is tanha (lit., “thirst” but often translated “desire”). It is not simply wrong desires but desire itself that results in suffering. The Third Truth says that when desire ceases, then suffering ceases as well. The Fourth Truth introduces the Noble Eightfold Path, which sets out ideals in moral self-discipline, meditation, and wisdom that provide the way to eliminate desire and suffering.

The Buddha held that everything that exists is characterized by anitya, or impermanence, and is continually coming into being and passing out of being as a result of certain interrelated causal conditions. At death, what passes from this life to the next is not a soul but simply the cumulative karmic effects of actions, which then produce in the next life the (mistaken) perception of an enduring person. Only nirvana is permanent, unconditioned, and ultimately real. Nirvana is not heaven. Rather, it is a state that is realized when the fires of desire and the conditions producing rebirth are eliminated. Since it is the absence of suffering in any form, it is a state of utter bliss.

Buddhism today is divided into two major groups. Theravada Buddhism, found in Sri Lanka, Burma, Thailand, Laos, and Cambodia, accepts only the writings of the Pali canon as authoritative, emphasizes the Four Noble Truths in attaining nirvana, and generally avoids metaphysical speculation. Each person is said to be responsible for attaining his or her own enlightenment (“self-effort”), which is restricted to the few who can master the required disciplines.

Mahayana Buddhism is today found in China, Korea, Vietnam, Japan, and the West and includes a wide variety of schools. It has developed its own sacred texts and doctrines. Whereas Theravada Buddhism emphasized self-effort in attaining nirvana, with Mahayana the goal became attaining enlightenment in this life, and a vast multitude of spiritual beings, such as bodhisattvas, were said to assist the quest for enlightenment.

Confucianism

Confucianism is a system of social, ethical, and religious teachings that has been influential in Chinese, Korean, and Japanese cultures. Confucius (552–479 B.C.) was born into a poor family in northwestern China. He became educated in the ancient Chinese classical writings and offered instruction in history, poetry, government, music, and moral conduct. Confucius was given various ministerial positions in the government, eventually becoming prime minister. Tradition maintains that his honesty and eagerness to implement changes in government led to his dismissal. After traveling widely, Confucius returned to his native area and continued teaching. After his death his disciples compiled the Lun Yu or Analects, a collection of Confucius's sayings that form the basic understanding of his teachings.

Confucius called for a return to the practice of ethical and social principles of an earlier era in order to produce order and harmony within the family, society, and the nation at large. Such order is patterned after the way of Heaven (Tian), which seems to be a cosmic principle or the ground of the moral order. The universe has a moral character, so that when one practices the moral law in social relationships, one reflects the moral will of Heaven.

Li ("propriety"), a central concept in Confucian thought, refers to a proper and appropriate way of being and doing things, including the proper way of conducting rites and ceremonies, proper interpersonal relationships, and the ideal standards of social and religious conduct. The ideal of li is reflected socially in the Five Relationships: father/son; elder brother/younger brother; husband/wife; elder/younger; ruler/subject. Each relationship is hierarchical, with distinctive roles for superiors and inferiors.

Confucius sought the cultivation of the "superior man" (jun-zi), who exemplifies moral virtues such as ren ("humaneness," "benevolence," or "love"). Ren is what makes humans uniquely human. On one occasion Confucius described ren by giving his statement of the Golden Rule: "Do not impose on others what you yourself do not desire" (Analects 12.2; compare 15.24).

Biblical Themes and Other Religions

Even this cursory survey indicates that there are some similarities between Christianity and other religions. Judaism and Christianity are, of course, uniquely similar, in that Christianity is the outgrowth of Judaism. Islam and Christianity both believe in an eternal Creator God and a judgment to come after death. Both Jesus and Confucius taught a version of the Golden Rule. Such similarities are not surprising and can be understood in light of the biblical teaching that all people, including adherents of other religions, have been created by God in his image (Gen. 1:26–27; 5:1–2) and that God has revealed himself in a general manner to all peoples through the created order (Ps. 19:1–4; Acts 14:15–17; 17:22–31; Rom. 1:18–32; 2:14–15).

But the differences between Christian faith and other religions are greater than the similarities.

1. God. The Bible teaches that there is one eternal Creator God who has created all else that exists (Genesis 1–2). Hinduism has theistic traditions, but it also includes polytheistic and atheistic traditions. Confucianism's views on the religious ultimate are unclear, and Buddhism explicitly denies the existence of an eternal Creator.

2. Death. Hinduism and Buddhism both accept the idea of multiple rebirths regulated by karma. The Bible, by contrast, teaches that there is only one life, after which all persons face judgment before God (Heb. 9:27; Rev. 20:11–15).

3. Sin. Many religions, particularly Hinduism and Buddhism, identify the root problem afflicting humankind as ignorance about the true nature of reality. But the Bible teaches that the problem is not ignorance but sin, that is, deliberate rejection of God and his ways (Isa. 59:2; Rom. 3:9–26). Moreover, contrary to Confucianism, the Bible teaches that as a result of the fall of Adam and Eve all humankind has been corrupted by sin infecting their moral nature, so that people are not inherently good but sinful (Genesis 3; Rom. 3:9–20; 5:12–14).

4. Soul. Buddhism teaches that there is no enduring, substantial soul that passes from one life to another. But the Bible teaches that there is an immaterial dimension of the person, created by God, which continues to exist after death (Matt. 10:28; Luke 12:20; 3 John 2).

5. Salvation. Although some forms of Hinduism and Buddhism do teach that the desired goal cannot be attained through human effort but rather is a gift from a deity or a buddha respectively, most religious traditions do regard human effort as central to attaining the goal. But the Bible clearly states that salvation is not something that human beings can achieve through their own efforts; it is the gift of God's grace, which is to be accepted by faith (Rom. 3:20, 28; Eph. 2:8–9).

6. Christ's incarnation. The Bible teaches that the second person of the Trinity, while remaining fully God, became a man (John 1:1–14; Rom. 1:3–4; Phil. 2:7–8; Col. 2:9). In a unique event, the Son of God became incarnate as the historical person Jesus of Nazareth. The Hindu notion of avatar, by contrast, concerns multiple manifestations of Vishnu as both humans and animals, but not as historical persons. No other world religion teaches that God became an actual man.

7. Christ's preeminence. Jesus is not just another great religious teacher. The truth of Jesus' teachings cannot be separated from its grounding in the person of Christ as the incarnate Word of God—the eternal, omnipotent Son of God who shares in all the attributes of God.

8. Christ's substitutionary work. The Bible teaches that salvation is based on the sinless life, substitutionary death, and triumphant resurrection of Jesus Christ, as he took upon himself the punishment for the sins of his people (Heb. 4:15; Rom. 3:25–26; 1 Pet. 3:18; 1 John 2:2). While this sacrificial death is anticipated in Judaism, there is nothing like it in Hinduism, Buddhism, or Confucianism, and it is explicitly denied in Islam.

9. Christ's resurrection. The Buddha, Confucius, Muhammad, and Jesus all died, but there is no reliable historical record of anyone apart from Jesus ever being raised bodily after death (Acts 2:24). The resurrected Christ is the "firstfruits" (1 Cor. 15:20), the first instance, of the one great harvest of resurrected bodies that will be given to all believers one day. It is because of the resurrection of Jesus Christ that Christians, too, can have victory over sin and death and anticipate their own resurrection to eternal life with God (Rom. 8:11; 1 Cor. 15:20–22, 54–58).

Biblical Ethics: An Introduction

Dieumeme Noelliste | Jamaica

Ethics is concerned with the way we ought to conduct our lives. Clearly, then, it is an integral part of biblical revelation. From Genesis to Revelation we find principles, precepts, commands, warnings, guidelines, and counsels that are intended to steer our lives toward that which is right, good, and God-honoring. The apostle Paul tells us that Scripture was given not only to reveal God's way of salvation but also to train us in righteousness and equip us for "every good work" (2 Tim. 3:14–17).

As the people of God blessed with the Word of God, we must receive God's ethical instruction in full submission and wisdom. As those who have been shown mercy in Christ, it is our great joy to "walk in a manner worthy of the calling" that is ours in him (Eph. 4:1). This essay seeks to encourage such ethical integrity by highlighting four aspects of the ethical teaching of the Bible: its importance, its purpose, its foundation, and some of its salient characteristics.

The Importance of Biblical Ethics

At the very outset of creation, God himself introduced ethics when he repeatedly declared his own work "good" (Genesis 1) and proceeded to give Adam and Eve responsibilities to fulfill (Gen. 2:19) and standards to live by (Gen. 2:15–17). Then, after rescuing Israel from bondage and choosing her as his special possession (Ex. 19:1–6), God began his relationship with the elect people by giving them an ethical charter to govern their behavior toward him and among themselves (Ex. 20:1–17). This basic code was expanded in the rest of the first five books of the Bible, the Torah (meaning "law" or "instruction").

Centuries later, when Jesus appeared on the scene to usher in the climactic phase of redemptive history, he too started out by issuing an ethical manifesto to provide guidance for the conduct of his disciples (Matthew 5–7). Called the Sermon on the Mount, this charter took ethics to a whole new dimension, while also reasserting the essence of what the Old Testament Torah had always intended. At the heart of Jesus' ethic is the call to love God and others (Mark 12:28–31), a call that resounds through the rest of the New Testament (1 Cor. 13:1–3; James 2:8; 1 Pet. 4:7–8; 1 John 4:8).

When we come to the final moment of salvation history, with the establishment of the new heaven and the new earth (Revelation 21–22), we hear the ethical note once again. But this time ethics has reached its highest peak with the triumph of good (1 Cor. 15:27; Rev. 21:1–8), the defeat of evil and suffering (Rev. 20:7–10; 21:4), and the restoration of humanity in the presence of God (Rev. 21:3, 22–27).

Along with this brief overview of ethics in the biblical story line, the importance of ethics is further highlighted by the high value God places on the ethical life. For the Old Testament prophets, for example, any act of worship that is not accompanied by acceptable ethical behavior is futile and offensive to God (Isa. 1:1–10; 58:5–10; Amos 5:21–26). Moreover, the Bible condemns those who subvert ethics by calling good evil and evil good (Isa. 5:20) and says that right belief must express itself in right action (James 2:14–26). Clearly, it matters immensely to God that we believe rightly and live rightly!

The Purpose of Biblical Ethics

Besides stressing its importance, Scripture underscores the practical purpose that ethics serves. In the preceding section we saw that one important payoff of the ethical life is the authenticity it imparts to worship. But the Bible adds three insights to this.

The first concerns the validation of our Christian identity. According to Jesus, when our lives exhibit the ethics of love, we demonstrate to the world that we belong to him (John 13:34–35) and we reinforce the claim that we are sons and daughters of God (Matt. 5:44–45).

The second is seen in Jesus' assertion that the ethical life glorifies God. Jesus teaches that when our light shines before people, they will see our good works and glorify our Father in heaven (Matt. 5:16). Moral integrity honors God.

The link that Jesus makes in this verse between ethics and witness supplies the third insight: ethics is a means of Christian witness and mission. We find this theme throughout the Bible. For instance, in Genesis 12:3, God chose Abraham to be a blessing to the nations. But later on God said that the fulfillment of that promise was linked with the Abrahamic family's willingness "to keep the way of the LORD by doing righteousness and justice" (Gen. 18:19). In Psalm 72, the psalmist prays that Israel's king would fulfill his ethical obligation so that the nation may prosper and realize her missionary calling (Ps. 72:1–17). Peter and Paul echo the same theme when they assert that the positive influence Christians can have on society depends upon the kind of ethical lives they live (Phil. 2:14–16; 1 Pet. 2:11–12).

The Foundation of Biblical Ethics

For Christians, an even greater incentive to explore biblical ethics is the fact that ethics finds its foundation in God himself. Biblically speaking, it is God, as Creator of a morally ordered universe, and as an absolutely perfect being, who is the author of morality (Gen. 2:17). It is God who endowed the creation with norms and standards and holds its inhabitants answerable to him (Gen. 3:17; Ps. 33:13–15). In biblical terms, then, ethics is not a human invention. It is rooted in God himself.

Moreover, according to the Bible, God supplies ethics with not only its source but also its anchor. This anchor is found in the worldview that emerges from the story of salvation that God tells in his Word. This worldview says that God created us in his own image (Gen. 1:27). We fell and profoundly disturbed the condition of well-being that existed under God's rule (Gen. 3:8). But we were redeemed by a gracious God (Gen. 3:15; Rom. 3:22–25). This view is crucial for ethics. For it is the image of God that provides the basis for the Bible's teaching on such issues as the sanctity of human life (Gen. 9:8–17), the equality of all humans before God (Job 31:15; Acts 17:25–26), and the intrinsic worth and dignity of all people. Similarly, one major reason the Bible insists on sexual purity is the doctrine of redemption, which says that the redeemed no longer belong to themselves but to God, who dwells in them by the Holy Spirit (1 Cor. 6:18–20).

Some Characteristics of Biblical Ethics

We close by highlighting six features of biblical ethics.

First, biblical ethics is covenantal or communal. It exists for the people of God. While all people are morally accountable to God, the Bible teaches that the ethical life portrayed in Scripture is intended especially for those who are in covenant relationship with God. The Sermon on the Mount, for example, reveals this (Matt. 5:1–2). Likewise, the love ethic, the cornerstone of the New Testament's moral teaching, is placed squarely on the shoulders of believers (John 13:34–35; 1 Pet. 4:8; Heb. 13:1).

Second, biblical ethics is grace-motivated. "We love because he first loved us" (1 John 4:19) is the consistent rhythm of the Bible. What God has done for us, supremely manifested in Christ, is the foundation for what we then do for God. God's acceptance of us as his children results in ethical living; ethical living does not result in God's acceptance of us. Throughout the Bible, upright living does not lie essentially in believers' exertion of willpower but in the spiritual and moral transformation brought about in them by the gospel (1 Cor. 6:9–11; see Rom. 1:16–17) and the ongoing work of the Spirit in their lives (Rom. 5:5; 2 Cor. 5:14; Gal. 2:14; 3:3).

Third, biblical ethics is transformational. The ethical life described in the Bible is one that is energized by something more profound than mere behavior conformity. Rather, biblical ethics stems from the inner life, what the Bible calls the heart. It is an ethic generated by a law written on the heart (Jer. 31:31–33) and the animating impulses of the indwelling and sanctifying Spirit (Rom. 5:5; Gal. 5:22–25). This is fundamentally an internal rather than external ethic (Matt. 5:27–28; 6:1; 15:18–20). It goes beyond mere conformity to a written code (Matt. 23:25–28; 2 Cor. 3:6).

Fourth, the ethics of the Bible is countercultural. It is "against the grain." Whereas the surrounding culture conducts its life largely in ways that result from the fall, those who are in a covenant relationship with God are called upon to conduct their lives according to the new identity that flows from that gracious relationship (Ex. 19:5; 1 Pet. 2:9–12). This does not mean rejection of existing cultural values but radical assessment and, if necessary, replacement of those values in light of the kingdom into which believers have been drawn by God's grace (Rom. 12:1–2). Jesus demonstrates this principle in his teaching on loving one's enemies (Matt. 5:43–44), on materialism (Matt. 6:19–24), and on non-retaliation (Matt. 5:38–42). Paul also follows this countercultural principle in his teaching on sexual purity (1 Cor. 6:12–20; Col. 3:5–6), the equality of people before God (Gal. 3:28–29; Col. 3:11), and concern for others (Phil. 2:1–3).

Fifth, biblical ethics has an integrative character. Reaching into every corner of human living, the system of ethics taught in the Bible touches belief and conduct (Rom. 12:1ff.; Eph. 4:17–24), private behavior and public morality (James 1:27), personal piety and communal justice (Jer. 7:1–11; Mic. 6:6–8). This characteristic is due to the saving framework in which believers now live—they have been given a wholly new identity (Romans 6; 1 Pet. 2:9–10). Their ethical life therefore cannot be set off from other aspects of living.

Finally, there is a sixth element of biblical ethics: its eschatological character. Biblically, ethics is shaped and motivated by what God has done in Christ and what he promises to do in the future. The new age longed for in the Old Testament has dawned in Jesus, but it has not yet been brought to full completion. Biblical ethics, then, is really an interim ethics: it is for those who live between the times (Titus 2:11–14; 2 Pet. 3:13–14). Followers of Christ pursue holiness by looking back and by looking forward. We look back to what God has done, sending his Son, uniting us to Christ, and placing his Spirit within us. And we look forward to what God will do, as Christ returns a second time to execute justice and finally redeem his people from all sin and suffering.

The Value and Dignity of Human Life

Chee-Chiew Lee | Singapore

Life is a gift from God. Adam became a living being by the breath of God (Gen. 2:7), and if God were to withdraw his breath from humans, they would perish (Job 34:14–15). Since life belongs to God, humans do not have absolute autonomy over their own lives but are stewards of the life given to them by God. The lives of all humans, both their own and others', are to be cherished and guarded.

Created in the Image of God

The value of human life is intrinsic, for it derives from God, who made human beings in his own image (Gen. 1:26–27). Consequently, the person who takes the life of another will be held accountable and punishable by God through his human representatives (Gen. 9:5–6; Rom. 13:1–7). The sixth commandment, "You shall not murder" (Ex. 20:13), and its explanation in Exodus 21:12–32 clearly teaches this. The Hebrew word for "murder" (ratsakh) in Exodus 20:13 not only refers to intentional killing (e.g., Jer. 7:9; compare Ex. 21:12, 14, 20) but also to human death caused by carelessness or negligence (e.g., Josh. 20:3–6; compare Ex. 21:13). It is important to note, however, that in the Old Testament, the prohibition against taking a person's life is to be understood as the taking of life outside of the boundaries set by God (such as capital punishment or war).

With this basic principle of the value of human life in place, we will consider a number of ethical issues concerning the beginning and the end of life such as abortion, euthanasia, and the treatment of children, the disabled, and the elderly.

The Beginning of Life

Abortion was a known practice in the ancient world. The Bible does not mention explicitly the practice of abortion. Yet when we listen carefully to the teaching of the Bible regarding what it means to be a human being and what it means to take the life of another, we find that the Bible speaks very clearly on the issue of abortion. Moreover, both Jews and Christians in ancient times explicitly condemned the practice of abortion.

The main issue concerning abortion revolves around when life and personhood begin. Various views have been proposed: (1) at conception; (2) at implantation; and (3) at birth. There is now widespread consensus within the medical field that human life begins at conception, when the egg and the sperm fuse together to form a human embryo. On top of established medical conviction, however, the Bible teaches that a fetus within a womb is a living human being bearing the image of God. In Psalm 139:13, David speaks of how God formed his “inward parts” while he was in his mother’s womb. This text clearly teaches that God forms a new person before birth, not during or after birth. Furthermore, David speaks of himself being conceived as a sinner (Ps. 51:5). Since only human beings can have moral responsibility, full personhood must, according to the Bible, begin at conception. We are compelled to conclude that destroying a fetus amounts to taking the life of a person, which the sixth commandment directly prohibits. The outrage God feels at the murder of the unborn is underscored in his forbidding the taking of innocent life (Ex. 23:7). He “hates . . . hands that shed innocent blood” (Prov. 6:16–17).

An abortion can be legitimately considered only in the event of an ectopic pregnancy, in which the pregnancy starts somewhere outside the uterus (usually in the fallopian tubes). The baby cannot survive such a pregnancy and, if allowed to develop, can endanger the mother’s life. The question here, then, is not one of murder but of the lesser of two evils—losing one life instead two.

Proponents of abortion also put forth other reasons for abortion, such as the choice of the mother, the case of rape, and the issue of quality of life. Yet surely a mother’s “choice” does not include choosing to end another person’s life any more than a murderer should be allowed to “choose” to end another’s life. And in the case of rape, a heinous crime (rape) should not be compounded by adding to it another heinous crime (abortion). Regarding quality of life, it is certainly tragic for a baby to be born into poverty, or with physical deformity. Such suffering is real and painful and must be tenderly addressed. Yet the answer to a difficult life for an infant is not to deny life itself to the infant, who is created in God’s image.

The End of Life

As a result of the fall, physical death is inevitable for all people (Rom. 5:12–14; 1 Cor. 15:21–22). The process of dying is frequently accompanied by illness, suffering, and pain. Euthanasia is one way people have sought to eliminate end-of-life suffering. Euthanasia occurs when a terminally ill person dies as a result of a deliberate act of commission (active euthanasia) or omission (passive euthanasia) by another person seeking to hasten the ill person's death in order to end his or her suffering. The person who is ill may have given informed consent (voluntary), may have withheld consent (involuntary), or may have been incompetent to give consent (non-voluntary).

Active euthanasia is clearly prohibited by the sixth commandment, regardless of the ill person's request. This moral principle is seen in the case of King Saul. Fatally injured, Saul commanded his armor-bearer to kill him so that he would not suffer humiliation from his enemies. His armor-bearer refused, however (1 Sam. 31:3–5). In contrast, when the Amalekite brought news of Saul's death to David, claiming that he had killed Saul at the king's own request in order to end his misery, David executed the Amalekite for taking Saul's life (2 Sam. 1:1–16).

Passive euthanasia involves withholding either natural life-sustaining means (e.g., food, water, air) or unnatural life-sustaining means (e.g., life-supporting machines) in order to cause death and thus end suffering. Many Christian ethicists believe that withholding natural means of life-sustenance from helpless patients is comparable to withholding the same means from an infant, as it will directly cause death. This act of negligence leading to death is thus also viewed as being prohibited by the sixth commandment. A somewhat different question is whether doctors are ethically able to withhold futile treatments that do not improve the prospect of recovery and only prolong the process of dying when death is imminent and inevitable. In such cases, according to some Christian ethicists, it is morally acceptable to allow such a person to die, though whenever there is a reasonable chance of recovery or improvement of the quality of life this should be pursued.

The Treatment of Children, the Disabled, and the Elderly

How, then, shall Christians respond to pain and suffering in those who are unable to care for themselves? In considering this question, we must remember that the value and dignity of human life is grounded in the fact the God is the giver of life. Human worth does not fluctuate with the level of perceived usefulness of a person to society or the degree of suffering they are experiencing, for human worth is grounded in the image of God. A child, disabled person, or elderly person is no less the image of God than anyone else.

As we look at the Bible's teaching, the prohibition of the physically disabled to serve as priests may seem at first glance to be a prejudice against them (Lev. 21:16–23). This requirement, however, has to do with symbolic wholeness in relation to God's holiness. It by no means devalues the disabled. On the contrary, Moses exhorts God's people to treat the disabled and the elderly with respect (Lev. 19:14, 32). The child, the disabled, and the elderly, even when they are dependent on others or are sick or dying, deserve the same respect granted to anyone else. Christians are to uphold the dignity of life, rooted as it is in the image of God.

How shall we handle such suffering? How can we help to improve the quality of life for those suffering from disability or terminal illness? Is there any meaning to suffering at all? Three comments are in order.

We first remember that Jesus had compassion not only for the sick (Matt. 14:14) but also for those with physical, emotional, and spiritual needs (e.g., Matt. 9:36; Mark 8:2; Luke 7:13). Likewise, Paul exhorts believers to "put on . . . compassionate hearts" (Col. 3:12). The disabled and the sick not only suffer from physical pain and discomfort, they are also often troubled emotionally and spiritually. It is therefore vital, and deeply Christian, to provide compassionate care, to both body and soul, to those who are suffering.

Second, although suffering in itself is not good but a result of living in a fallen world, suffering serves redemptive purposes in the life of the believer. Hardships of various kinds have the unique power to deepen our awareness of human frailty and mortality, to disengage our affection for the things of the world, and to lead us to depend more on God and to cherish more meaningfully the grace and mercy of God in Christ (see 2 Cor. 1:8–9; Heb. 2:14–18; 4:15–16).

Third, the Bible calls us to weep with those who weep (Rom. 12:15). As believers engage those who are suffering, trite answers, however true theologically, may prove counterproductive emotionally. We must exercise wisdom and care for the suffering with deep sympathy.

Conclusion

The value and dignity of human life is derived from God the Creator and is rooted in the fact that all humans have been created in God's image. As stewards of the life God has given, we are to uphold its sanctity from conception to the grave. Ending someone's life in order to relieve suffering or inconvenience is not only unjustifiable; it violates God's clearly defined moral order. Suffering should bring us not to end life prematurely but to entrust ourselves more completely to our faithful God no matter what befalls us or those whom we love (1 Pet. 4:19). We can find strength and ultimate hope in Christ, who has conquered death and can sympathize with human suffering (Heb. 2:14–18; 4:15). Based on God's love, Christians are to extend self-giving compassion and care to those who are suffering or vulnerable—unborn or born, young or old.

Marriage and Sexual Morality

Yusufu Turaki | Nigeria

Introduction

The union of one man and one woman in marriage is one of the most basic and also most profound aspects of being created in the image of God. Yet there is much confusion around the world today regarding what marriage is and what sexual morality ought to look like. The Bible has much to say about these things. It is crucial for Christians to continue to cultivate solid biblical foundations for marriage and sexual morality in the face of a cultural tide that elevates individual authority, human reason, and unrestrained pursuit of pleasure over what God has revealed in the Bible.

This essay will review the Bible's teaching on marriage and sexual morality. It also seeks to bring biblical teaching to bear on related global issues such as divorce and remarriage, polygamy, and homosexuality.

Biblical Foundations

The Christian concept of marriage and sexual morality is rooted in God's creation of the world in Genesis 1 and 2, and specifically God's creation of man and woman, in his image, as the pinnacle of his creative acts. In Genesis 1:26–28 we learn that God created both man and woman to bear his image, which included multiplying and spreading across the earth and having dominion over it. Genesis 2:18–25 elaborates on God's creation of man and woman, explaining that woman was created as a suitable helper and companion to man. God created woman out of the man's body, and in marriage the man and woman are reunited, as the text explains: "Therefore a man shall leave his father and his mother and hold fast to his wife, and they shall become one flesh" (Gen. 2:24). Jesus cites this text when the Pharisees ask him about divorce, and he concludes, "What therefore God has joined together, let not man separate" (Matt. 19:6).

Much brokenness exists today around the world when it comes to marriage and relationships between men and women. The account of creation in Genesis 1–2, however, indicates that God's original design was wonderfully good and beautiful. The misery and brokenness that infects so much of marriage today is not what God intended. When God created men and women, "it was very good" (Gen. 1:31).

With the fall into sin recorded in Genesis 3, humans declared their independence from God, and sin and death entered the world. This sin affects marriage and sexual morality no less than the rest of life. When God pronounces on Adam and Eve the tragic result of their sin, each receives a specific pronouncement, just as each had been created in their own unique way. Adam will no longer enjoy the easy abundance of food from the ground out of which he himself had been formed, but rather he will now have to work hard, in pain and futility, for his livelihood (3:17–19). Another implication of the cursing of the ground is the disruption that took place between man and nature (see Rom. 8:19–22). Eve, likewise, received an appropriate punishment in her role as childbearer, which will now include pain. She will also "desire" her husband—that is, desire to assert a perverse leadership over him (the same word for "desire" is used in Gen. 4:7 for sin's desire to rule over Cain). In short, God's mandate for Adam and Eve—to multiply and to have dominion—is deeply wounded.

A Whole-Bible Trajectory

Genesis 1–3 is not, however, the only word from the Bible on marriage and sexual morality. Rather, these first three chapters of the Bible set a trajectory that is carried through the entire Bible. Not only do we see various examples of healthy and unhealthy marriage and sexual integrity, but Scripture even gives us an entire book that is devoted to this topic—the Song of Solomon, which exults in the goodness of sexual relations when enjoyed as God intended, between one man and one woman.

Even more profound than the marital relationship that exists horizontally, between a man and a woman, is the relationship that exists vertically, between God and his people. The vertical relationship, too, is described in the Bible in terms of a marriage. Throughout the prophets, for example, the Lord speaks of Israel as his bride (Isa. 54:5; Jer. 2:1–2; 3:20; Hos. 2:16). And even more frequently, faithless Israel is referred to in terms of adultery (Jer. 3:6–8; Ezekiel 16; 23; 43:7–9; Hos. 1:2; Mal. 2:10–11). In the New Testament, Jesus refers to himself as "the bridegroom" (Matt. 9:15; John 3:29) and Paul refers to the church as the bride of Christ (Eph. 5:25, 32).

One day, when Jesus returns a second time, there will be a great wedding feast as Christ and his bride, the church, are openly united for good (Rev. 21:9).

Implications for Marriage and Sexual Morality

Several implications arise from the Bible's teaching on marriage:

1. Marriage and sexuality are good gifts from God.

The fall distorted what marriage should be, but the institution itself was already in place. Marriage is good.

2. Marriage is between one man and one woman.

The reason for this is rooted in the very creation of man and woman. God created man and woman to bear his image together, each uniquely and in a complementary way representing God here on earth.

3. Sexual relations are sacred and are designed to take place only within marriage.

Once more, this is rooted in the creation account. The man and the woman are to be utterly faithful to one another, because they have "become one flesh" (Gen. 2:24). To break this bond through adultery or other kinds of sexual immorality is therefore not only a breach of faith with one's spouse but also, more deeply, a breach of faith with one's Creator.

4. Marriage reflects Christ's relationship with the church.

Ephesians 5 makes it clear that Christ's love for the church is the pattern for a husband's love for his wife. Likewise, the church's glad submission to Christ is the pattern for the wife's glad submission to her husband. The husband as head of the wife gladly sanctifies her, loves her, and gives his life for her; the wife in turn gladly submits to and honors her husband.

Related Issues

These biblical principles for marriage raise some thorny ethical questions. Three of these are divorce and remarriage, polygamy, and homosexuality:

1. Divorce and remarriage.

God's good plan for marriage is a lifelong, sacred commitment between a man and a woman (Gen. 1:27; 2:24; Mal. 2:14; Matt. 19:3–6). In two situations, however, the Bible seems to allow for divorce.

One situation is when one spouse is sexually unfaithful. Jesus taught that while divorce is a grievous violation of a sacred, covenant relationship, it is permissible if one spouse is guilty of "sexual immorality" (Matt. 5:32; 19:9). Jesus is not recorded as mentioning the allowance of sexual immorality in his parallel teaching on divorce in Mark 10:11–12 and Luke 16:18; this is probably because both evangelists assumed that adultery was universally agreed already to be a legitimate cause for divorce, so the point could be taken for granted. The second situation in which divorce is apparently legitimized is if one spouse deserts the marriage. In such an instance, the non-deserting spouse is unable to fulfill his or her marital responsibilities (1 Cor. 7:12–15).

While divorce may be permissible in such tragic circumstances, it must always be viewed only as a last resort, on account of the sacred nature of marriage. All efforts at reconciliation must be exhausted before divorce is pursued. If such efforts are unfruitful, however, divorce is evidently permissible, and the one who has been betrayed, either sexually or by desertion, may freely remarry with God's approval. Some faithful Christians, however, do not see any warrant for remarriage in Scripture, and disagreement about this is likely to continue.

2. Polygamy.

God does not explicitly prohibit polygamy in the Old Testament. Yet it is clearly not God's ideal for marriage. Polygamy devalues women, who are equally created in the image of God (Gen. 1:27). When God placed Adam in Eden, moreover, Adam was given one wife, not many (Gen. 2:18, 22). In addition, while God appears to have allowed polygamy, there is a clearly discernible pattern of family strife that emerges from polygamous marriages in the Bible (e.g., Genesis 16; 29–31; 1 Samuel 1; 1 Kings 11). In the New Testament, Paul says that an elder must be a "husband of one wife" (1 Tim. 3:2).

In places around the world where polygamy is socially acceptable, it must still be understood that from the Bible's perspective, polygamy is not God's original design for marriage. Yet while a husband in a polygamous marriage should not be required to divorce any of his wives—who would then be left without protection and support—such a man should not be allowed to rule in the church as an elder.

3. Homosexuality.

As we have seen, God created man and woman to bear his image in a complementary way (Gen. 1:27). Thus the image of God itself is at stake in healthy heterosexuality. God instituted marriage as taking place between one man and one woman, who come together as “one flesh” (Gen. 2:24). Jesus clearly teaches that marriage is to be between one man and one woman (Matt. 19:4–6), and Paul explicitly prohibits homosexual behavior (Rom. 1:24–27; 1 Cor. 6:9). This is not to say that homosexual desires are uniquely sinful, though they do represent an aberration from the urges God has designed us to feel. But homosexual desires are disordered, and to be resisted in the same way that heterosexual desires, outside the context of monogamous marriage, are disordered, and to be resisted.

As with all sinful behavior, patterns, and desires, even those that are deeply embedded within us—such as in the realm of sexuality—are within the reach of God’s forgiveness in Christ as well as of God’s transforming power through the Holy Spirit. While the church must not condone homosexuality as legitimate, we are called to faithfully extend grace and love to those struggling with homosexuality, remembering how much we ourselves have been forgiven (Matt. 18:21–35).

Conclusion

Human sexuality is one of God’s greatest gifts to humanity. Its greatest and most beautiful expression, in marriage between one man and one woman, is a profound manifestation of what it means to be made in the image of God. Yet, as with every dimension of life in this fallen world, our sexuality has been marred by the fall. This is seen in such deviations from the biblical ideal as divorce, polygamy, and homosexuality. Yet these and every other manifestation of brokenness in human sexuality can be completely redeemed by our great God on account of the saving work of Christ, through the power of the Holy Spirit. In our sexuality, therefore, as in all of life, to God be the glory!

The Purpose and Role of Government

Michael Oh | Japan

God Instituted Government for the Good of All People

Every ruling authority that exists has been established by God (Rom. 13:1–2). Human government is a derived authority. Those in authority are described as "the servant[s] of God" (Rom. 13:4) and "ministers of God" (Rom. 13:6). Those who reject governmental authority reject God's authority (Rom. 13:2). It is also a limited authority. Those in power hold their power because of God (John 19:10–11) and can be removed by God (Ps. 75:7; Dan. 2:21). Such derived and limited authority is to be exercised for the good of all people (Rom. 13:4). Let us consider three specific ways in which government serves the common good.

Government provides earthly justice and protection.

Civil governments act as God's agents of justice. Romans 13:4 says, "For he [the magistrate, the government's representative] is the servant of God, an avenger who carries out God's wrath on the wrongdoer." Ultimate justice and vengeance belong to God alone (Deut. 32:35; Ps. 94:1; Rom. 12:19; 1 Thess. 4:6). Yet governments "bear the sword" (Rom. 13:4) and carry out earthly justice against wrong. Romans 13:5 says, moreover, that our subjection to political authorities is not merely "to avoid God's wrath but also for the sake of conscience"—that is, obeying the government grants peace not only to those in authority (over us) but also to our conscience (within us).

The largest-scale expression of the power of the sword (Rom. 13:4) is in the waging of war. The clearest Biblical justification for war is in defense of the citizenry from "those who do evil" (1 Pet. 2:14). Various principles can be applied from Scripture concerning the circumstances that justify war.

Governments are to act on behalf of the good of all people (Rom. 13:4).

This is not merely social justice based on secular human rights; it is essentially rooted in the purposeful and gracious creation of humanity by God in his own image (Gen. 1:26–27). It is right, therefore, for Christians to seek to influence governments to protect society's weakest members, including the poor (Ex. 23:6), foreigners (Ex. 22:21; Deut. 27:19; Zech. 7:10), and the helpless (Ps. 82:3–4). The life of unborn children, in particular, as image bearers of God and as the weakest members of society, ought to be protected. Psalm 139 celebrates the mystery of God's creative work of generating life in the womb, while other texts in the Bible condemn the harming of unborn human life (Ex. 21:22–23; 2 Kings 8:12; Amos 1:13).

Another realm of governmental protection and stewardship is the care of God's material creation. Humanity was given the responsibility as caretakers to "work" and "keep" the garden (Gen. 2:15). In recognition that God has created all things (Genesis 1; Ps. 24:1), humans are called to steward the rest of God's creation, and political leaders are to wisely direct and oversee the proper use of earthly resources.

Government creates social space for the display of good conduct.

God instituted government to establish ordered and peaceful social space where not only is judgment carried out, but good is recognized and encouraged (see 1 Pet. 2:14). Government leaders should not be "a terror to good conduct" (Rom. 13:3). Rather, as Paul states, "Would you have no fear of the one who is in authority? Then do what is good, and you will receive his approval, for he is God's servant for your good" (Rom. 13:3–4).

This is true for all people but especially for Christians. Ordered and just social spheres should be forums for obedience to the greatest commandment, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind" (Matt. 22:37). It is right to desire and seek religious freedom as Christians; however, civil governments should neither compel allegiance to nor forbid the practice of any particular religion, whether Christianity or any other faith. Jesus makes a clear distinction between spiritual and political authority (Matt. 22:21; John 18:36). To be sure, the early church benefited from the legalization of Christianity under Constantine by the Edict of Milan in 313. Arguably, however, the church also lost some of its vitality when the lines between spiritual and political responsibilities became blurred.

Well-ordered social space should also allow for obedience to the second great commandment, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself” (Matt. 22:39). By such love the light of the gospel shines forth through God’s people, and by God’s grace many will be turned “to righteousness” (Dan. 12:3; see Matt. 5:14–16; Eph. 5:8–9). Such neighbor-love, we must always remember, is sustainable only as it is founded in and empowered by God’s love for his people (1 John 4:19).

Government often serves to sanctify Christians.

Throughout world history various governments have been, to greater and lesser degrees, a challenge to Christians and the church. Often these situations have been used toward the sanctification and good of God’s people (see Rom. 8:28). Obedience and disobedience to civil government at their appropriate times are both challenges and opportunities for our blessing and God’s glory.

Christians are called to (1) respect and honor government leaders (Rom. 13:7); (2) be subject to government and obey its laws (Rom. 13:1–5; 1 Pet. 2:13–14); (3) pray for civil leaders (1 Tim. 2:1–2); and (4) pay taxes (Matt. 22:17–21; Rom. 13:6–7).

Our obedience is not in response to the worthiness of the leaders but in joyful submission to the One who is worthy and who calls us to be subject to civil authorities (Rom. 13:1; 1 Pet. 2:13–14). Obedience is not always easy but it can be used as a part of our sanctification.

At times, however, Christians must choose not to obey governments or laws, when such obedience would mean disobedience to God. Clear examples include Daniel’s disobeying the law forbidding prayer to any god or man other than King Darius (Daniel 6); the wise men disobeying Herod’s instructions to tell him of the Christ’s birthplace (Matt. 2:7–12); and Peter’s conviction that “we must obey God rather than men” (Acts 5:29) when commanded not to preach the gospel. Civil disobedience is justified when authority is exercised in ways contrary to God’s express purposes and commands for his people.

At different times and in various places governmental opposition has sought to crush the church. Such suffering is to be expected and is often a vital part of our sanctification (see Rom. 5:3–5; 2 Cor. 12:9–10). Indeed, many times persecution and martyrdom have actually fueled revival and great spiritual advance as part of God’s wise purposes (see Gen. 50:20; Prov. 19:21).

God Instituted Government for His Glory

All things exist under the sovereignty of God and serve not only the good of people but also God’s ultimate purpose to bring glory to his name (Ps. 115:1–2; Prov. 16:4; Isa. 42:8). Government, too, has been instituted by God not only for the good of humanity but also for the glory of his own name. We can see such glory in both the expression and the limitations of civil government in its universality, sovereignty, and temporality.

Global expression and limitation.

God created the world with incredible diversity and beauty (Genesis 1–2). Such variety in creation displays his power, creativity, and glory (Psalm 8; Rom. 1:20). Similar glory can be seen in the diversity of cultures, languages, and governments. Variety throughout the world in governmental style, form, and function can bring glory to God, as long as the particular government in question is operating within God’s defined purposes for government. The vast global scope of political authorities is astounding.

At the same time, the varied governments of the world have geographic, authoritative, and location-specific limitations. Every attempt at global unification under a single recognized authority has failed and will fail until the global diversity of the nations finds its ultimate purpose in worship of the King of kings and Lord of lords (Ps. 86:9; 1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 15:4; 19:16).

Sovereign expression and limitation.

The authority and sovereignty of civil government, which is real even if delegated and limited, instructs us about the kingdom, rule, and reign of God. The exercise of power, authority, and judgment, whether just or abusive, encourages a longing in humanity for God’s more perfect kingdom. In the limitations of what government can and cannot do, will and will not do, should and should not do, there is the opportunity for an increased awareness of humanity’s need for God and his Kingship. Where government is unable or unwilling to promote justice, the perfect justice of God remains holy and satisfying (see Ps. 9:7; 103:6; Isa. 16:5; 30:18; Matt. 12:20). Where government is unable or unwilling to exercise power and authority for the good and protection of all people, the omnipotence and mercy of God remain holy and unlike any other authority in the universe (see Job 42:2; Lam. 3:22; Matt. 19:26; 2 Cor. 1:3; Rev. 19:6).

“The nations rage,” “the people plot,” and “the kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the LORD and against his Anointed,” but “he who sits in the heavens laughs” (Ps. 2:1–2, 4). God’s kingdom and Christ’s kingdom rule stand in vivid contrast to the kingdoms and nations of the earth, to the glory of God (see Matt. 20:25–28). All earthly authorities will ultimately be superseded by the rule of Christ (see Dan. 2:44; Rev. 22:1–5).

Temporal expression and limitation.

God is sovereign over governments large and small, evil and good, long-lasting and short. “He makes nations great, and he destroys them; he enlarges nations, and leads them away” (Job 12:23; see Ps. 75:7). While every earthly government will one day come to an end, God’s kingdom alone shall never be destroyed and never end (see Dan. 2:44).

Until that day, we who are the people of God are to faithfully fulfill our responsibilities as citizens both of our respective governments and of heaven (Phil. 3:20). Our prayer must be the prayer of Psalm 72:11: “May all kings fall down before him, all nations serve him!” Our message is the gospel message of the kingdom that is to be proclaimed to all nations and until the end comes (Matt. 24:14). Whether our behavior is commended by governments (Rom. 13:3) or we are delivered up “to tribulation,” “hated by all nations,” and put “to death” (Matt. 24:9), we persevere with hope. And we eagerly await the Lord’s return, with passion for the global and eternal worship of Christ that we see mirrored in Revelation 7:9–10:

> After this I looked, and behold, a great multitude that no one could number, from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, with palm branches in their hands, and crying out with a loud voice, “Salvation belongs to our God who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb!”

Social Ethics

James H. O. Kombo | Kenya

Social Ethics and the Bible

God created mankind as a society—initially, as one man and one woman, and thereafter as an ever-increasing family. To be created as a human is therefore to be inherently social. Yet Adam and Eve sinned, and we have been sinning ever since. This sin introduces disharmony and strife into the social sphere. As God redeems and restores this world, then, there is need for a wise understanding of the ethics that go into living life as social creatures.

Social ethics thus has to do with the principles and guidelines that regulate corporate welfare within a society, specifically with regard to determining what is deemed right and just and noble. The Bible has much to say regarding social ethics. In its call to justice and righteousness in the Old Testament and in Jesus' ethical teaching in the New Testament, the Bible teaches how those created in his image are to live together in this world.

The Bible clearly views social ethics as crucial to the picture it portrays of what human life is meant to be. "Let justice roll down like waters, and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream" (Amos 5:24; compare Gen. 18:19; 1 Sam. 15:22–23). The Lord's desire for righteousness to be practiced by the world, and in particular by his own people, reflects his own character: "I am the LORD who practices steadfast love, justice, and righteousness in the earth. For in these things I delight" (Jer. 9:24). God is passionate for equity and harmony among people. Jesus' words in the Great Commandment bring a fitting New Testament summary, as he instructs his people to love God and to love others, declaring that such vertical and horizontal love sums up the entire Old Testament ethic (Matt. 22:37–40; see also Lev. 19:18; Deut. 6:5; Rom. 13:8–10).

Social ethics is important in another respect: it is portrayed in the Bible as that which pushes God's people to go beyond the letter of the law by genuinely considering the welfare of others to be just as important as their own welfare (Lev. 19:18; Matt. 19:19; 22:39; Rom. 13:9; Gal. 5:14; James 2:8). Indeed, Christians are called even to put the needs of others ahead of their own needs (Rom. 12:10; Phil. 2:3–4). The only sustaining motivation by which we can do this from the heart is the gospel of Jesus Christ, in which Jesus himself put our welfare ahead of his own (2 Cor. 8:9; Eph. 5:2; Phil. 2:5–8).

Some Contemporary Issues in Global Social Ethics

In considering the ethical dimension of corporate life in this fallen world, especially corporate life as the redeemed people of God, we will turn to consider a handful of pressing issues concerning social ethics. In what follows we will consider tribalism, hunger, slavery and human trafficking, and occultism. In considering each of these we are asking what the Bible has to say about such pressing global concerns. What can we learn from Scripture?

Tribalism.

Tribalism continues to be a serious problem across societies. Tribalism is a social sin that has to do with the exaltation of one ethnic group above others. It involves a strong in-group loyalty and ethnic identity that manifests itself not only in separation of one's own ethnic group from the rest but also in unfair elevation of individuals in an in-group. Tribalism in its current form is not just about tribal societies strictly speaking, but can be detected in societies all around the world—Western and non-Western, wealthy and poor, educated and uneducated.

While the Bible recognizes and ultimately rejoices in racial distinction (Rev. 5:9–10; 7:9–10), it also teaches the equality of all peoples regardless of race or ethnicity (Eph. 2:14–18). In Christ, there is only one people, one nation, one "tribe": "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is no male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. And if you are Christ's, then you are Abraham's offspring, heirs according to promise" (Gal. 3:28–29). The Bible teaches that Christ has torn down the wall of division and has brought Jew and Gentile into one body (Eph. 2:14; 3:6). We are taught, then, that identity in Christ supersedes all other identities. Moreover, all people are created in the image of God (Gen. 1:26–27; 9:6). And so, as we learn to resist the exaltation of ourselves or our ethnicity that our sin nature promotes, we can joyfully exult in the wonder of being included in the one nation that the Christian gospel produces—the "tribe" of Christ (Eph. 4:3–7).

World hunger.

World hunger is a massive problem today and is growing at an alarming rate. Today, one in seven people around the globe are suffering from an insufficient amount of food and nutrition. Four factors are widely agreed upon as the chief causes of world hunger: 1) poverty; 2) inadequate economic systems; 3) interpersonal and inter-ethnic conflict; 4) previously existing hunger, which is self-propagating.

World hunger is not only a social and a governmental problem but also an ethical problem. One reason for this is that hunger is often bound up with other ethical issues, such as poverty, political corruption, harmful economic systems, and international conflict. Human wickedness therefore often aggravates the problem of world hunger indirectly through sins such as exploitation, indifference, and greed. Thus while secular social theory can help to an extent, only the biblical gospel can get to the root cause (human sin and selfishness) of most of the situations around the world where hunger is a problem.

Another reason why it is valid to consider world hunger an ethical issue is that the Bible teaches that there is an ethical obligation on the part of God's people who have enough food to share with those who are in need (Lev. 19:18; 25:35; Deut. 15:7–8; 26:12–13; Prov. 19:17). Jesus even went so far as to say that when Christians provide food and drink to those who need them, they are providing food and drink to Jesus himself (Matt. 25:31–46). On the one hand, we must remember that the greatest need of every human being is to be forgiven and made an heir of eternal life through Jesus Christ. This is "of first importance" (1 Cor. 15:3). Thus concern for the poor and the hungry ought not to replace but rather to complement the preaching of the gospel. Yet we must also remember that to preach the gospel without "adorning" it with acts of love is to render such gospel proclamation hollow and harmful to the name of Jesus (Titus 2:7–8; compare 1 John 3:17–18). In all of this we are heartened by the Bible's teaching that God draws near to those who are suffering in hunger and in other ways, identifying with them in their affliction (Ps. 9:12; 82:3–4; 140:12; Isa. 57:15).

Slavery and human trafficking.

Slavery and human trafficking are closely related. Trafficking is perhaps the most pervasive form of slavery around the world today. Anytime a person is held captive by another against the captive's will, this is slavery. Trafficking involves the buying and selling of the enslaved. Whereas slavery is supposed to have stopped over a century ago, today there are over 29 million slaves worldwide (more than twice the number of slaves transported during the entire trans-Atlantic slave trade) in such forms as chattel slavery in southern Sudan and Mauritania, child "carpet slaves" in India, shackled laborers in Pakistan, cane cutters in the Dominican Republic, and those (especially girls) who are trafficked as sex slaves all around the world.

The Bible addresses the social problem of slavery in different ways while underscoring its abhorrence to God. First, foundationally, we remember the inherent value that God has invested in all human beings. All humans are created in God's image and therefore have intrinsic value. To enslave someone who bears God's image is therefore to assault the very character of God (Gen. 9:6). Second, God not only created all people in his image, but he also delights in all people (Gen. 1:26–31; John 3:16; 1 Tim. 2:1–4). Universal human sin does not mean that God is unable to rejoice in his good creation, however deeply marred through sin it may be. Third, God instructs his people to love others and especially those in need (Matt. 7:12; Luke 10:25–37; Rom. 13:8–10). Fourth, God hates slavery and human trafficking: "Whoever steals a man and sells him, and anyone found in possession of him, shall be put to death" (Ex. 21:16). The New Testament lists slave traders among "the ungodly and sinners" and puts them in the same category as practitioners of murder and other grievous sins (1 Tim. 1:8–10). Fifth, the biblical doctrine of salvation frequently depicts us as slaves who have been freed from the worst slavery of all—slavery to sin and death (Rom. 6:15–23; Gal. 4:3, 8; Titus 3:3–7; 2 Pet. 2:19). Consequently, anyone who has experienced God's gift of salvation and freedom must recognize that enslaving another human being goes against the very salvation that is theirs in Christ. Christians should therefore pray for and advocate on behalf of those caught up in slavery and human trafficking (Prov. 31:8–9; James 2:14–17; 5:16).

Occultism.

The occult has to do with secret and hidden contact with the supernatural forces of evil, whether disembodied, such as demons or Satan, or embodied, such as witches or mediums. Some of the practices associated with occultism include magic, divinatory practices (astrology, tarot, palmistry, numerology), mediumship, magic, and witchcraft. Other practices include prediction of the future, exploring past lives, casting spells, and psychokinesis (movement of physical objects without the use of physical means). Occultism is pervasive in many societies around the world.

The Bible denounces occultism not only on the basis that it is evil but also on the ground that it is a form of idolatry. God does not share his glory with false gods (Isa. 42:8; 48:11). God has designed humans to satisfy their longing for glory and the supernatural by communing with him, not with the forces of hell. Consequently, the Bible prohibits magic, spells, enchantments, charming, sorcery, wizardry, and witchcraft (Deut. 18:9–14; 2 Kings 21:6; Jer. 27:9–10; Rev. 9:20–21; 22:15). We are likewise to avoid divination, fortune-telling, mediums, spiritism, séances, and clairvoyance (1 Chron. 10:13–14; Isa. 44:24–25). These practices not only take people further from God, but those who engage in these activities are depicted as fools and failures, while the occult itself is described by Scripture as nonsense, lies, deception, and defilement (Lev. 19:31; 20:27; Jer. 14:14; Ezek. 13:8–9; Dan. 2:27).

Conclusion

Social ethics must be rooted in Scripture, for in social ethics as in all things, those who build their lives on the Bible are like a man who builds his house on the rock rather than on the sand (Matt. 7:24–27). God's people around the world are called to embody the ethical instruction of God's Word in their own lives and take that ethical instruction into the various spheres of social life, loving others and seeking to protect the weak and vulnerable.

Personal Ethics

Benyamin F. Intan | Indonesia

Personal ethics rests upon what the Bible describes in both the Old and New Testaments as wisdom. This wisdom finds its ultimate foundation in the triune God of Scripture. Properly formed ethical judgments must therefore be drawn deliberately from God's self-revelation in the Bible. A biblical ethic will thus gladly submit to the Bible's uniquely authoritative teaching. In this essay we will consider the basis, norm, and power for personal ethics, before turning to three specific case studies.

The Basis, Norm, and Power of Personal Ethics

We can consider personal ethics as taught in the Bible in terms of basis, norm, and power. The basis of personal ethics is God himself; the norm is God's law, ultimately fulfilled in Christ; and the power is God's Spirit.

The basis of personal ethics.

A Christian's moral life is grounded in the triune God. This means that our concept of moral rightness and goodness must be consciously set in relation to God himself, as he is revealed in Scripture. As the Creator and the ruler over all life, God is the final standard of good (Isa. 45:5–6, 18). Jesus indicates this when he says, "No one is good except God alone" (Luke 18:19; compare Ps. 34:8; 100:5; 106:1). Created in the image of a personal and relational God, man is likewise personal and relational (Gen. 1:26–27). The human race is created for covenantal relationship with the triune God as well as for relationship with one another (Gen. 2:15–18; Acts 17:26–27). This means that man's ethical life was designed to echo, or represent, God. As God rules in wise goodness over all, humans were created in his image to rule with wise goodness over the earth (Gen. 1:28).

The norm of personal ethics.

Besides being grounded in the triune God, personal ethics finds its ethical norm in the character of God as it is expressed in God's law, which is "holy and righteous and good” (Rom. 7:12). God’s law reflects God’s character and calls his people to be set apart from the world (1 Pet. 2:9–12). The law can only show us our sinfulness until we are born again and enabled to begin to respond to it in a healthy way (Rom. 5:20; Gal. 3:19). It then plays a positive role in salvation, though only as it is viewed within the framework of Christ as the fulfillment of the law (Rom. 10:4). Our righteousness—that is, our right relationship to God—comes from God’s gracious gift in Christ, not from human effort to obey (Phil. 3:9).

The power for personal ethics.

As fallen, our ability to carry out this mandate from God has been severely impaired. All humans are born in sin and therefore are turned in on themselves, resulting in a severe bent toward living unethically. Personal ethics therefore requires a power that comes from beyond anything that can be humanly generated. This power is God’s Spirit, who indwells all those who have been united to Christ (Rom. 8:9–11). The Spirit animates, guides, and renders effectual the believers’ efforts to please our heavenly Father (Eph. 3:16; 1 Thess. 1:5). The Spirit accomplishes, from the inside, what the law never could (Jer. 31:31–34; 2 Cor. 3:6), generating virtues that are aspects of our new creation in Christ (2 Cor. 5:17). While the law can and must guide believers, it cannot empower them. Paul insists on this in Romans 7–8. After driving home the impotence of the law to empower obedience (Rom. 7:7–11), the apostle goes on to say that “the law of the Spirit of life has set you free in Christ Jesus from the law of sin and death” (Rom. 8:2). Only through the Spirit can true Christ-like virtues be born (Gal. 5:22–23).

Personal Ethics: Case Studies

The implications of all this for wisdom in personal ethics are far-reaching. We will consider three concrete areas in which biblical ethics must be brought to bear on one’s personal life: racial discrimination, financial stewardship, and lying and truth telling.

Racial discrimination.

The Bible teaches that all humans are descended from Adam and Eve (Gen. 1:26–28; 3:20; Acts 17:26). While the human race has developed into various ethnicities and cultures, this is a diversity against a broader backdrop of unity. When interacting with people of different ethnicities, therefore, we are interacting with people who are fundamentally like, not unlike, ourselves. The foundational reason for this is the creation of every human being in the image of God (Gen. 1:26–27; 9:6).

To discriminate against another people group, then, is deeply sinful and contrary to the Bible's teaching. One result of our fallenness is the way we are naturally welcoming to those like us and hostile toward those unlike us. The answer to such ethnic bias is not to flatten out ethnic differences as if they did not exist (note Rev. 7:9; 21:24–26). Rather, the gospel ignites an impulse of love for those who are different from us. For in the gospel, God came to earth in his Son, Jesus, and loved those who were different from him—indeed, those who were hostile toward him (John 3:16; Rom. 5:8). This is a model for us.

In Christ, "there is neither Jew nor Greek" (Gal. 3:28). No ethnic group has any inherent advantage over another in receiving the blessings of the gospel (Eph. 2:13–19; 3:6–10). Yet this is not to obliterate all racial distinction—indeed, in the new earth, racial distinction will be celebrated and will bring glory to God (Rev. 5:9–10; 7:9–10)

Financial stewardship.

Stewardship is rooted in the creation account, in which man is told to "fill the earth and subdue it, and have dominion over" it (Gen. 1:28). The subduing and dominion mentioned here refer to humanity's wise governance such that the earth is a beautiful and profitable place in which to live. This ruling echoes God's own ruling of all things; it is part of what it means to be created in God's image.

Stewardship as a concept can be applied to many aspects of human life. Anything that God has entrusted to us to "own" is something which we are called to steward. We are to exercise wisdom in stewarding the environment, our families, our bodies, and our God-given gifts. Let us focus specifically, however, on stewardship of our financial resources. Eight truths emerge from the pages of the Bible concerning how we steward our money.

First, there is nothing inherently evil about money. While different economic strategies around the world may be more or less wise, money itself is not problematic (Matt. 22:17–21). It is the fallen human heart, as it engages with money, that creates the sin, strife, and anxiety often associated with money. Second, we are called not to worry about tomorrow, for God will provide all we need as we need it (Matt. 6:25–33). Third, it is easy for money to be viewed as providing the security that only God can give, but we should store up treasure in heaven, treasure that is thus invincible (Matt. 6:19–20; 1 Tim. 6:18–19). Fourth, it is impossible to love money and love God at the same time, for our hearts are wired to have one master to whom we bow, and one master only (Matt. 6:24). Fifth, an unhealthy love of money breeds other sins; greed begets more miseries beyond greed (1 Tim. 6:6–10). Sixth, our greatest treasure is neither money nor anything that money can buy, but God, who gives himself freely to us in Christ (Matt. 6:19–21; 1 Tim. 6:17). Seventh, we are called to give to others and to the poor (Prov. 14:21; 1 John 3:17), and to do so cheerfully (2 Cor. 9:6–7), generously (Mark 12:42–44; 2 Cor. 8:2–3), and regularly (1 Cor. 16:1–2). Eighth, generous giving is motivated, fundamentally, by God's radically generous giving of his Son for us (2 Cor. 8:9).

Lying and truth telling.

God is a God of truth (Isa. 65:16; John 14:6; Titus 1:2; Heb. 6:18). As people created in his image, we too are called to speak truthfully (Eph. 4:25; Col. 3:9). When we lie, we align ourselves with Satan rather than God; Satan is "a liar and the father of lies" (John 8:44). Truth telling, then, lies close to the heart of what it means to be a Christian (Eph. 4:15, 29; 2 John 4).

Things quickly become complicated, however, in spelling out whether lying is absolutely wrong and never ethically legitimate. If we define a lie as a statement that is meant to knowingly deceive another, is such a statement ever morally permissible? Indeed, are there any situations in which it would be morally wrong not to lie? In more than one place in the Bible, lying appears to be condoned implicitly. One is the case of the Hebrew midwives, who apparently lied to Pharaoh to save baby Hebrew boys (Ex. 1:15–22). The narrator's comments about the midwives' fearing God (vv. 17, 21) and God dealing well with the midwives (v. 20) seem to be a stamp of approval on their deception. A second example is Rahab, who lied to the men of Jericho about her knowledge of the location of the two spies from Joshua (Josh. 2:1–7). Yet Rahab is remembered for her great faith (Heb. 11:31).

Many Christian ethicists agree, then, that in a fallen world one may be confronted with a situation in which one must lie in order to avoid a worse tragedy. Consider, for example, the civilian who is hiding fellow civilians from corrupt soldiers who knock on the door with unambiguous intent to kill. What is the way of wisdom here? In such a dilemma, many Christian ethicists would argue that it is morally permissible for the person who answers the door to lie, saying that no one is inside; some ethicists would even say that it is morally incumbent on the civilian to lie in this way, according to the principle that when forced to choose between evils one should always choose the least. Still, it will be difficult at times to discern which of two options is "least" evil. And given the fallen bent of our hearts, we must be ever watchful that we do not lie merely to protect our own name while justifying such deception as necessary. Also, the occasions in which it is morally permissible to lie will be extremely rare.

There is much room for wisdom here. We must "[speak] the truth in love," neglecting neither "truth" nor "love" (Eph. 4:15). As we soak in God's Word and are transformed by the renewing of our minds, we may be confident that God will lead us in his own way to discern what is best in each situation of life (Rom. 12:1–2).

Conclusion

In a word, the Bible calls God's people to be wise in the area of personal ethics. Wisdom is skill in the art of godly living on a practical, day-by-day basis. As those who have been rescued by God in the gospel, united to Christ, and indwelt by the Spirit, believers are capable of living the wise life. There will be many occasions in which we act unwisely, for which we must ask forgiveness because of the work of Christ. The high call of Christians, however, is to conduct themselves with such integrity and uprightness in the area of personal ethics that a watching world looks on, wonders at our integrity (1 Pet. 3:15), and glorifies God (Matt. 5:16).

Glossary

A.D.

Abbreviation for Anno Domini ("in the year of our Lord"). Refers to the era of history following the birth of Jesus Christ, which immediately follows the era designated B.C. ("before Christ"). See also B.C.

ABOMINATION

Something that deeply offends. Often describes something that offends God and his standard of holiness. The Bible also mentions the "abomination of desolation" (or "abomination that makes desolate"), apparently referring to some profane act or object permitted in the temple (Dan. 11:31; 12:11; Matt. 24:15).

ABYSS, THE

Often translated "bottomless pit." The abode of the dead or of demonic forces. Throughout Scripture can refer to both places, although the Bible appears to regard them as distinctly separate (compare Luke 8:31; Rom. 10:7).

ADOPTION

Legal process by which a person gives the status of a son or daughter to another person who is not his or her child by birth. The NT uses the term to describe the act by which God makes believers his children through the atoning death and resurrection of his one and only true Son, Jesus (see Romans 8; Galatians 4).

ADVOCATE

One who acts on another person's behalf as mediator, intercessor, or encourager. In 1 John 2:1, Jesus is described as an advocate for believers before God the Father. The same Greek word (translated "Helper") is used to describe the Holy Spirit in John 14:16, 26.

ALLEGORY

A story that communicates truth through a symbolic understanding of its literal meaning. In allegory characters, objects, and actions specifically represent things from the parallel spiritual or moral context. An example is in Galatians 4, where Paul interpreted the true story of Hagar (Genesis 16–21) as an allegory to make a point about how the Sinai covenant differs from the new covenant in Christ.

ALPHA

First letter of the Greek alphabet (omega is the last letter). Three times in the book of Revelation, Jesus describes himself as “the Alpha and the Omega” (Rev. 1:8; 21:6; 22:13).

AMEN

Greek form of a Hebrew word meaning “to confirm.” In Scripture and in Christian life, when uttered after a prayer or statement, it means “let it be so.”

ANALOGY

A form of reasoning in which one thing is considered similar to another in a certain respect. An example is Jesus’ comparison of his approaching death and burial with Jonah’s time in the whale (Matt. 12:40).

ANGEL

A supernatural messenger of God, often sent to carry out his will or to assist human beings in carrying out his will. Though angels are more powerful than humans and often instill awe, they are not to be worshiped (Col. 2:18; Rev. 22:8–9). The Bible does, however, note various appearances of an “angel of the Lord,” apparently a physical manifestation of God himself.

ANNUNCIATION, THE

Announcement by an angel to the virgin Mary that she would conceive the Son of God, Jesus, by the power of the Holy Spirit (Luke 1:26–38).

ANOINT

In Scripture, to pour oil (usually olive oil) on someone or something to set the person or thing apart for a special purpose. Anointing was performed for the high priest, for tabernacle vessels, for kings, and for prophets. The Hebrew word Messiah and its Greek equivalent Christ both mean “anointed one.”

ANTICHRIST

This term, found only in the letters of John, describes anyone who denies that Jesus is the Christ, the unique Son of God (1 John 2:22). John and other NT writers may also have foreseen the appearance of one particular “antichrist” in the end times. The “man of lawlessness” (2 Thess. 2:3–4) may have been that person.

ANTINOMIANISM

The false belief that OT moral laws are no longer necessary or binding for those living under grace (see Rom. 6:1–2).

APOCALYPTIC

The distinctive literary form of the book of Revelation and of chs. 7–12 of Daniel. These parts of Scripture include revelation about the future, highly symbolic imagery, and the underlying belief that God himself will one day end the world in its present form and establish his kingdom on earth.

APOCRYPHA

A body of religious writings included in the Septuagint and in Roman Catholic Bibles but not in the Jewish or Protestant canons. See also canon.

APOSTASY

Abandonment or renunciation of faith.

APOSTLE

Means “one who is sent” and refers to one who is an official representative of another. In the NT, refers specifically to the those whom Jesus chose to represent him.

ARAMAIC

A language related to Hebrew, spoken throughout much of the ancient Near East. It was the everyday language of most Israelites after their exile to Babylon, and it continued to be spoken by many Jews (including Jesus) living in Palestine during the Roman era. Portions of the books of Ezra and Daniel were written in Aramaic.

ARCHANGEL

A title for the angel Michael in Jude 9, apparently indicating his chief rank among the angels. Paul also mentions that the Lord's return to earth will be accompanied by the voice of an archangel (1 Thess. 4:16). See also angel.

ARMAGEDDON

A place name mentioned in Rev. 16:16, where the kings of the earth gather to wage war against God in the last days. Likely means "mountain(s) of Megiddo," referring to a city in northern Israel.

ASCENSION

The departure of the resurrected Jesus to God the Father in heaven (Luke 24:50–51; Acts 1:1–12).

ASTROLOGY

The study of how the position of heavenly bodies supposedly influences earthly activity. Astrology often seeks to predict future events or to provide insight into advisable courses of action. Astrology is akin to other forms of divination condemned in Deut. 18:14. Jeremiah tells his hearers not to fear the signs of the heavens as other nations do (Jer. 10:2).

ATONEMENT

The reconciliation of a person with God, often associated with the offering of a sacrifice. Through his death and resurrection, Jesus Christ made atonement for the sins of believers. His death satisfied God's just wrath against sinful humanity, just as OT sacrifices symbolized substitutionary death as payment for sin. See also propitiation and reconciliation.

ATTRIBUTES OF GOD

The distinctive characteristics of God as he is described in the Bible. These include eternality, faithfulness, goodness, graciousness, holiness, immutability, infinitude, justice, love, mercy, omnipotence, omnipresence, omniscience, self-existence, self-sufficiency, sovereignty, and wisdom.

B.C.

Abbreviation for "before Christ" in calendars. It immediately precedes the era designated A.D. (Anno Domini, meaning "in the year of our Lord") and refers to the number of years before Jesus Christ was born. See also A.D.

BAPTIZE

Literally “to immerse” or “to wash.” Refers to the Christian practice of immersing a new believer in water as an outward sign of the inward reality of regeneration. This regeneration is the work of the Holy Spirit (see John 3:5, 8; Titus 3:5) and may be received only by grace through faith (see Eph. 2:8). Considerable disagreement exists as to method of baptism (e.g., sprinkling vs. immersion) and who may be baptized (e.g., believers only vs. believers and their infant children).

BEATITUDE

Derived from Latin for “blessedness,” refers to various verses in Scripture that declare a person “blessed” or “happy” under certain conditions. Beatitudes appear throughout the Bible but most famously in Matt. 5:1–11 and Luke 6:20–22.

BENEDICTION

A prayer for God’s blessing at the end of a letter or a worship service. Many NT letters include a benediction.

BETROTHAL

A formal stage in the marriage process of ancient Near Eastern cultures, in which a couple was pledged to each other but did not yet live together or enjoy physical union. A betrothal could be dissolved only through divorce.

BISHOP

Translation of Greek episkopos (“overseer”). A person who exercised authority and oversight within the church. See also elder.

BLASPHEMY

Any speech, writing, or action that slanders God. In the OT, the penalty for blasphemy was death (Lev. 24:16), and in the NT, Jesus states that the one who blasphemes against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven (Luke 12:10).

BLESS

To worship or praise another, especially God; to bestow goodness on another.

BONDSERVANT

See Preface.

BORN AGAIN

A phrase used by Jesus in John 3 to describe how a person enters the kingdom of heaven. Natural birth is not sufficient. Instead, through the work of the Holy Spirit and the grace of God, a person must experience a second, spiritual birth, in which he or she becomes a new person in Christ.

BUSYBODY

Someone who meddles in the affairs of others. Paul exhorted those who were busybodies to mind their own affairs and work hard at earning their own living (2 Thess. 3:11; 1 Tim. 5:13).

CANON

The list of writings recognized as Scripture, that is, regarded as inspired by God and authoritative in all areas of doctrine and practice. Criteria for canonical books include: (1) apostolic authority (was the book written by or associated with an apostle?); (2) universal acceptance by the church; and (3) unity of message (is the message of the book consistent with other books recognized as inspired?). See also Apocrypha.

CHRIST

Transliteration of the Greek for “anointed one” (equivalent to Hebrew Messiah). The term is used throughout the NT as a title for Jesus, indicating his role as Messiah and Savior.

CHRISTIAN

A follower of Jesus Christ (Acts 11:26).

CHURCH

From a Greek word meaning “assembly.” The body of believers in Jesus Christ, referring either to all believers everywhere or to a local gathering of believers.

CIRCUMCISION

The ritual practice of removing the foreskin of an individual, which was commanded for all male Israelites in OT times as a sign of participation in the covenant God established with Abraham (Gen. 17:9–14).

CLEAN/UNCLEAN

The ceremonial, spiritual, or moral state of a person or object, affected by a variety of factors. The terms are primarily related to the concept of holiness and have little to do with actual physical cleanliness. The Mosaic law declared certain foods and animals unclean, and a person became unclean if he or she came in contact with certain substances or objects, such as a dead body. Jesus declared all foods clean (Mark 7:19), and Peter's vision in Acts 10 shows that no person is ceremonially unclean simply because he or she is a Gentile.

COMMANDMENT

In the Bible, an instruction or order given by God. Commandments appear throughout Scripture, but most occur in the Law, the first five books of the Bible. Most famous are the Ten Commandments (Ex. 20:2–17; Deut. 5:6–21).

COMMUNION

The fellowship and unity all believers share as a result of the work of the Holy Spirit in their hearts. Such communion among believers can be expressed in various ways, including worshiping God together, sharing possessions and resources, and partaking of the Lord's Supper, which has also come to be referred to as Communion. See also Lord's Supper, the.

CONFESSION

Public acknowledgment of belief (2 Cor. 9:13; Heb. 4:14), or of sin (Ezra 10:1; James 5:16; 1 John 1:9).

CONSCIENCE

The ability to understand the rightness or wrongness of one's actions and motives. The conscience is not identical with the inner witness of the Holy Spirit, although the Holy Spirit often employs the conscience in guiding people and convicting them of sin (Rom. 2:15).

CONSUMMATION

In Christian theology, the final and full establishment of the kingdom of God, when the heavens and earth will be made new and God will rule over all things forever (2 Pet. 3:13; Revelation 11; 19–22).

CONVERSION

The result of turning away from sin, accepting the truth of the gospel of Jesus Christ, and submitting to him.

COVENANT

A binding agreement between two parties, typically involving a formal statement of their relationship, a list of stipulations and obligations for both parties, a list of witnesses to the agreement, and a list of curses for unfaithfulness and blessings for faithfulness to the agreement. The OT is more properly understood as the old covenant, meaning the agreement established between God and his people prior to the coming of Jesus Christ and the establishment of the new covenant (NT).

COVETOUSNESS

The desire to have something (or someone) that belongs to another. Covetousness is forbidden in the Ten Commandments (Ex. 20:17; Deut. 5:21).

CRUCIFIXION

A means of execution in which the person was fastened, by ropes or nails, to a crossbeam that was then raised and attached to a vertical beam, forming a cross (the root meaning of “crucifixion”). The process was designed to maximize pain and humiliation, and to serve as a deterrent for other potential offenders. Jesus suffered this form of execution (Matt. 27:32–56), not for any offense he had committed (Heb. 4:15) but as the atoning sacrifice for all who would believe in him (John 3:16).

DAMNATION

Condemnation by God that results in a person being consigned to suffer forever in hell. All people deserve damnation for sinning against God (Romans 1–3), but God offers redemption through Jesus Christ (Romans 5; Ephesians 2).

DAY OF ATONEMENT

The holiest day in the Israelite calendar, when atonement was made for all the sins of Israel from the past year (Leviticus 16). It occurred on the tenth day of the seventh month (September/October), and all Israel was to fast and do no work. Only on that day each year could someone—the high priest —enter the Most Holy Place of the tabernacle (later, the temple) and offer the necessary sacrifices. A "scapegoat" would also be sent into the wilderness as a sign of Israel's sins being carried away. See also atonement.

DEACON

From the Greek for "servant." An officer in the local church (1 Timothy 3) who assists the elders.

DECREE

An official ruling, equivalent to a law. In theology, it can refer to God's foreordained purpose or will regarding future events.

DEDICATION

The setting apart of a person or an object for special or sacred use.

DEITY

God's unique, essential nature as supreme and eternal. Jesus, the Son of God, possesses deity. He is fully God, as is the Holy Spirit.

DEMON

An evil spirit that can inhabit a human being and cause him or her to carry out its will. Demons were created by God and are always limited by God. Jesus and his followers cast out many demons, demonstrating Jesus' superiority over them. All demons will one day be destroyed along with Satan (Matt. 25:41; Rev. 20:10).

DEPRAVITY

The sinful condition of human nature apart from grace, whereby humans are inclined to serve their own will and desires and to reject God's rule.

DEVIL, THE

See Satan.

DIASPORA, THE

See Dispersion, the.

DISCERNMENT

DISCIPLE

Any person who submits to the teachings of another. In the NT, refers to those who submitted themselves to the teaching of Jesus, especially those who traveled with him during his earthly ministry.

DISPERSION, THE

From the Greek for "scattering," refers to the numerous relocations of large groups of Israelites/Jews throughout the world, including to Assyria and Media (722 B.C.), Babylon (586), Alexandria in Egypt (c. 300), Phrygia (c. 200), and Rome (c. 63). This dispersion resulted in greater exposure of the Jews to other peoples and also laid the groundwork for the worldwide spread of the gospel during the first century.

DIVINATION

The attempt to acquire special knowledge about the future or other naturally unknowable information by interpreting phenomena such as dreams, heavenly bodies, animal intestines, or the casting of lots. All divination is condemned in Deut. 18:14.

DOCTRINE

A body of beliefs or teachings, often in systematic form.

DOXOLOGY

Expression of praise to God. Often included at the end of NT letters. Modern church services often end with doxologies in the form of short hymns.

ECCLESIASTICAL

Having to do with the church (Greek ekklēsia). See church.

A recognized leader charged with oversight of a community or organized body. In the NT, an officer in the local church (Acts 14:23; 1 Tim. 3:1–7) charged primarily with spiritual oversight.

ELECTION

In theology, God’s sovereign choice of people for redemption and eternal life. Also referred to as “predestination.”

END TIMES

A time associated with events prophesied in Scripture to occur at the end of the world and the second coming of Christ—also known as “the last days.” Because the early church expected the return of Christ at any time, the end times can refer to the period from then until Christ returns.

EPICUREANISM

Philosophy based on the teachings of Epicurus (341–270 B.C.), who emphasized tranquility and the absence of pain as the most desirable goals in life.

EPISTLE

Essentially synonymous with “letter.” A literary form common in NT times. Epistles typically included: (1) statement of author and recipient; (2) brief greetings and expressions of thanks; (3) the body of the letter; (4) personal greetings and signature; and (5) a closing doxology or blessing. Twenty-one books of the NT are epistles.

ETERNAL LIFE

For believers, the new life that begins with trust in Jesus Christ alone for salvation, and that continues after physical death with an eternity in God’s presence in heaven. See also salvation.

ETERNAL SECURITY

See perseverance of the saints.

ETERNITY

An endless span of time. For humans, eternity has a beginning (the moment of birth) but no end. With God, however, eternity has neither beginning nor end, for he has always existed.

ETHICS

In Christian theology, the study of morality, justice, and virtue in light of the Bible's teachings.

EUCHARIST

From the Greek for "thanksgiving." Synonymous with "the Lord's Supper." See also Lord's Supper, the.

EVANGELISM

Proclamation of the gospel (Greek euangelion) of Jesus Christ.

EXCOMMUNICATION

In the NT, a form of church discipline that revoked a person's privileges as part of the community of believers. Typically imposed for unrepented sin or heresy, to preserve the community's purity and hopefully to bring the offender to repentance (Matt. 18:15–18; 1 Corinthians 5; 2 Cor. 2:5–11; 1 Tim. 1:18–20).

EXEGESIS

Examining a text to determine and explain its originally intended meaning. Biblical commentaries are examples of exegesis.

EXHORTATION

A message encouraging someone to follow a particular course of action or to submit to a different way of thinking.

EXILE, THE

Several relocations of large groups of Israelites/Jews have occurred throughout history (see Dispersion, the), but "the exile" typically refers to the Babylonian exile, that is, Nebuchadnezzar's relocation of residents of the southern kingdom of Judah to Babylon in 586 B.C. (Residents of the northern kingdom of Israel had been resettled by Assyria in 722 B.C.) After Babylon came under Persian rule, several waves of Jewish exiles returned and repopulated Judah.

EXODUS, THE

The departure of the people of Israel from Egypt and their journey to Mount Sinai under Moses' leadership (Exodus 1–19; Numbers 33). The exodus demonstrated God's power and providence for his people, who had been enslaved by the Egyptians. EXPIATION

The removal of sin and its consequences.

FABLE

A story intended to teach a moral or cultural lesson. Fables are usually relatively brief and portray animals or objects with human abilities such as speech.

FAITH

Trust in or reliance upon something or someone despite a lack of concrete proof. Salvation, which is purely a work of God's grace, can be received only through faith (Rom. 5:2; Eph. 2:8–9). The writer of Hebrews calls on believers to emulate those who lived godly lives by faith (Hebrews 11).

FALL, THE

Adam and Eve's disobedience of God by eating the fruit from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, resulting in their loss of innocence and favor with God and the introduction of sin and its effects into the world (Genesis 3; Rom. 5:12–21; 1 Cor. 15:21–22).

FASTING

Deliberate abstinence from some or all food for a sustained time.

FEAR

Has both godly and ungodly meanings in the Bible, depending on the context. Fear of the Lord is a godly, wise fear that demonstrates awe and reference for the all-powerful God (Prov. 1:7). Conversely, Jesus taught his disciples not to fear people or situations in a way that shows lack of trust in God’s protection (Matt. 10:26–31).

FIGURATIVE

Pertaining to language intended to communicate a meaning other than what is literally expressed. An example is Nahum’s description of the Lord’s awesome power: “His way is in the whirlwind and storm, and the clouds are the dust of his feet” (Nah. 1:3).

FLESH

Depending on the immediate context, either skin (Lev. 4:11), a living being (Gen. 6:13), or sinful human nature (Rom. 8:3).

FORGIVENESS

Release from guilt and the reestablishment of relationship. Forgiveness can be granted by God to human beings (Luke 24:47; 1 John 1:9) and by human beings to those who have wronged them (Matt. 18:21–22; Col. 3:13).

GLORIFICATION

The work of God in believers to bring them to the ultimate and perfect stage of salvation—Christlikeness—following his justification and sanctification of them (Rom. 8:29–30). Glorification includes believers receiving imperishable resurrection bodies at Christ’s return (1 Cor. 15:42–43). See also justification and sanctification.

GNOSTICISM

A system of thought prevalent during the second century that combined elements of various philosophies and religions, including Christianity. Some common Gnostic beliefs include (1) a dualistic view of matter and spirit, with matter generally being viewed as evil and spirit as good; (2) the complete transcendence of God, who therefore has nothing to do with the evil material world; (3) a view of salvation in which humans are freed from their physical existence and reunited with God; and (4) an emphasis on special knowledge (Greek gnosis) about spiritual realities as the key to salvation.

GOSPEL

A common translation for a Greek word meaning "good news," that is, the good news of Jesus Christ and the salvation he made possible by his crucifixion, burial, and resurrection. Gospel with an initial capital letter refers to each of the biblical accounts of Jesus' life on earth (Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John).

GRACE

Unmerited favor, especially the free gift of salvation that God gives to believers through faith in Jesus Christ.

GRECO-ROMAN

HELL

A place of eternal torment for those who rebel against God and refuse to repent.

HELLENISM

A modified form of Greek culture, philosophy, religion, politics, and language that was spread throughout the Mediterranean world by the exploits of Alexander the Great. Hellenism continued to have great influence throughout the time of the Roman Empire.

HERESY

Any teaching incompatible with Christian orthodoxy.

HIGH PLACES

Height may or may not have been a feature of these public sites where offerings were made to God or to false gods. Worshiping the Lord at a high place was legitimate before the time of the temple (1 Kings 3:2, 4). Later "high places," even those where the Lord was worshiped, were forbidden (2 Kings 23:15).

HISTORY OF SALVATION

God's unified plan for all of history, to accomplish the salvation of his people. He accomplished this salvation plan in the work of Jesus Christ on earth, by his life, crucifixion, burial, and resurrection (Eph. 1:10–12). The consummation of God's plan will take place when Jesus Christ comes again to establish the "new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells" (2 Pet. 3:13).

HOLINESS

A quality possessed by something or someone set apart for special use. When applied to God, it refers to his utter perfection and complete transcendence over creation. God's people are called to imitate his holiness (Lev. 19:2), which means being set apart from sin and reserved for his purposes.

HOLY SPIRIT

One of the persons of the Trinity, and thus fully God. The Bible mentions several roles of the Holy Spirit, including convicting people of sin, bringing them to conversion, indwelling them and empowering them to live in righteousness and faithfulness, supporting them in times of trial, and enabling them to understand the Scriptures. The Holy Spirit inspired the writers of Scripture, guiding them to record the very words of God. The Holy Spirit was especially active in Jesus’ life and ministry on earth (e.g., Luke 3:22).

HOMOSEXUALITY

Any sexual activity between members of the same sex. Explicitly condemned in both the OT (Lev. 18:22; 20:13) and the NT (Rom. 1:24–32; 1 Cor. 6:9–10).

HYPERBOLE

Rhetorical device for expressing ideas in intentionally exaggerated form for emphasis, where the exaggerated expressions are not intended to be taken literally. An example is Jesus’ condemnation of the scribes and Pharisees for straining out a gnat and swallowing a camel (Matt. 23:24).

HYPOCRISY

Falsely presenting oneself to others in order to gain positive regard or praise. Derived from Greek for “actor.” Jesus repeatedly condemned the hypocrisy of Jewish religious leaders.

IDIOM

An expression, often of several words that together have a figurative meaning different from the literal meanings of the words themselves. For example, the expression “take it with a grain of salt” means not to take something seriously.

IDOLATRY

In the Bible, usually refers to the worship of a physical object. Paul’s comments in Col. 3:5, however, suggest that idolatry can include covetousness, since it is essentially equivalent to worshiping material things.

ILLUMINATION

The process by which God, through the Holy Spirit, enables people to understand Scripture and put it into practice.

IMMANUEL

A Hebrew term meaning “God with us.” Mentioned in Isa. 7:14 and 8:8 and then referred to in Matt. 1:23 as another name for Jesus. In both contexts the use of the name was intended to assure the readers of God’s presence with them.

IMMORTALITY

Immunity from death. God alone possesses immortality as part of his very being (1 Tim. 6:16), and he will grant believers immortality at the return of Christ (1 Cor. 15:53–54).

IMMUTABILITY

Pertaining to the unchangeable character, will, and promises of God. One of his distinctive attributes (Mal. 3:6).

IMPUTE

To attribute something to someone or credit it to his or her account. Often refers to God’s crediting to every believer the righteousness of Jesus Christ.

INCARNATION

Literally “(becoming) in flesh,” it refers to God becoming a human being in the person of Jesus of Nazareth.

INDWELLING

In Scripture, refers to the presence of Christ and the Holy Spirit within believers (Rom. 8:9–11; Eph. 3:16–18). This presence enables Christians to love (1 John 4:8–12) and to overcome sin, which also indwells believers (Rom. 8:4–11).

INERRANCY

The doctrine of Biblical inerrancy expresses the Bible’s own teaching that it is true, reliable, and trustworthy—without error—in all the matters that it affirms and addresses (2 Tim. 3:16).

INIQUITY

See sin.

INSPIRATION

God’s work of empowering and directing the writers of Scripture to communicate his authoritative truth to his people (2 Tim. 3:16; 2 Pet. 1:20– 21). Belief in the inspiration of the Bible ensures that it represents the very words of God himself.

INTERCESSION

Appealing to one person on behalf of another. Often used with reference to prayer.

INTERMEDIARY

A mediator or messenger between two parties, especially between God and humanity.

INTERMEDIATE STATE

The state of existence believers experience immediately after death and before resurrection. Most Protestant theologians believe that, after death, the souls of believers immediately enter God's presence, although they remain in disembodied form as they await the final resurrection, when they will be reunited with their bodies.

INTERTESTAMENTAL

Pertaining to the time between the end of OT history and beginning of NT history. Roughly 430–5 B.C.

ISRAEL

Originally, another name given to Jacob (Gen. 32:28). Later applied to the nation formed by his descendants, then to the ten northern tribes of that nation, who rejected the anointed king and formed their own nation. In the NT, the name is applied to the church as the spiritual descendants of Abraham (Gal. 6:16).

JEW

A person belonging to one of the tribes of Israel. The term, derived from the word "Judah/Judean," came into being around the time of the Babylonian exile (c. 586 B.C.).

JUDAISM

The religion and culture of the Jewish people after their return from exile in Babylon (c. 538 B.C.), and continuing to modern times.

JUDAIZERS

Though this term is never actually used in the Bible, it refers to those in the early church who sought to compel Gentile believers to adhere to Jewish ceremonial requirements, such as circumcision, as a necessary part of salvation.

JUDGMENT

Any assessment of something or someone, especially moral assessment. The Bible also speaks of a final day of judgment when Christ returns, when all those who have refused to repent will be judged (Rev. 20:12–15).

JUSTIFICATION

The act of God's grace in bringing sinners into a new covenant relationship with himself and counting them as righteous before him through the forgiveness of sins (Rom. 3:20–26).

KINGDOM OF GOD/HEAVEN

The sovereign rule of God. At the present time, the fallen, sinful world does not belong to the kingdom of God, since it does not submit to God's rule. Instead, God's kingdom can be found in heaven and among his people (Matt. 6:9–10; Luke 17:20–21). After Christ returns, however, the kingdoms of the world will become the kingdom of God (Rev. 11:15). Then all people will, either willingly or regretfully, acknowledge his sovereignty (Phil. 2:9–11). Even the natural world will be transformed to operate in perfect harmony with God (Rom. 8:19–23).

KINSMAN-REDEEMER

In OT times, a relative in each extended family who had the responsibility to redeem—that is, to buy back—any relative's land in danger of being sold because of debt. In the book of Ruth, Boaz accepted this responsibility.

LAW

When spelled with an initial capital letter, "Law" refers to the first five books of the Bible (see also Pentateuch). The Law contains numerous commands of God to his people, including the Ten Commandments and instructions regarding worship, sacrifice, and life in Israel. The NT often uses "the law" (lower case) to refer to the entire body of precepts set forth in the books of the Law.

LAWYER

In the NT, denotes a religious teacher or scholar considered an authority on the interpretation of Jewish law. See also scribe.

LEGALISM

Requirements that go beyond the commands of Scripture; or, the unbiblical belief that works are the means of becoming right with God.

LEPROSY

In OT and NT, refers to several skin diseases. In the OT refers also to a condition affecting garments and houses. It is debated whether the term includes modern leprosy (Hansen's disease).

LESSER-TO-GREATER ARGUMENT

Rhetorical device that takes a recognized truth from one situation and applies it to another situation of greater scope. An example is Jesus' comment that his followers can be certain God will provide for their needs because he provides glorious adornment even for the grass of the field (Matt. 6:30).

LEVIRATE MARRIAGE

In OT times, the obligation for a brother to marry his deceased brother's widow and raise children in the brother's name if he died childless (Deut. 25:5–10). This requirement sought to ensure that no Israelite family line would die out and lose its inheritance in Israel. Derived from levir, the Latin word for "brother-in-law."

LEX TALIONIS

Latin for "law of retribution," refers to a system of justice that punishes an offender by inflicting on him the same harm that he inflicted on someone else. Referred to in the Bible as "an eye for an eye" (see Ex. 21:22–27).

LITERAL

A method of communication in which words are intended to be understood according to their normally defined meaning. This is in contrast to figurative, analogical, or symbolic methods of communication.

LITURGICAL

Pertaining to traditional, customary, public readings performed by a church or other religious group.

LOGOS

Greek term literally meaning “word” or “logical principle.” Equated with Jesus and God in John’s Gospel (John 1:1–18). John is likely drawing upon the rich reservoir of meaning for the term both in Hellenistic thought and in first-century Judaism.

LORD

Someone superior in authority or status to another, similar to “master.” It is a common translation for several different Hebrew titles for God in the OT, and in the NT refers to Jesus. When spelled in the OT with small capital letters (Lord) it translates Hebrew Yahweh (YHWH), the personal name of God. See also Yahweh.

LORD’S SUPPER, THE

A meal of remembrance instituted by Jesus on the night of his betrayal. Christians are to observe this meal, also called Communion, in remembrance of Jesus’ death. It consists of wine, symbolizing the new covenant in his blood, and bread, symbolizing his body, which was broken for his followers. See also Communion.

MACCABEES

A Jewish family who led a successful revolt against the rulers who controlled Israel during the second century B.C. Their story is told in the apocryphal books of 1 and 2 Maccabees.

MAGIC

In the Bible, refers to the attempt to control events or people through supernatural forces other than God. It is similar to divination and other practices that are condemned in Deut. 18:14. The NT likewise implicitly condemns the practice of magic in Acts 8 and 19. See also divination.

MATERIALISM

A sinful love of material things, such as money or possessions. Materialism is sinful in that it looks to material things to provide what only God can truly provide (Col. 3:5).

MEDIATOR

One who intercedes between parties to resolve a conflict or achieve a goal. Jesus is the mediator between God and rebellious humanity (1 Tim. 2:5; compare Heb. 9:15; 12:24).

MEDITATION

Contemplation on something, such as the attributes of God, with focused attention (see Ps. 1:2). Biblical meditation stands in contrast to many forms of Eastern meditation, which seek to empty the mind of rational thought.

MEEKNESS

Humble assurance founded on a deep trust in God's will and providence (Ps. 37:11). Such trust results in a peaceful and gentle disposition even in the face of persecution or difficulty. It frees a person from the temptations of self-reliance and pride.

MERCY

Compassion and kindness toward someone experiencing hardship, sometimes even when such suffering results from the person's own sin or foolishness. God displays mercy toward his people and they, in turn, are called to display mercy toward others (Luke 6:36).

MESSIAH

Transliteration of a Hebrew word meaning "anointed one," the equivalent of the Greek word Christ. Originally applied to anyone specially designated for a particular role, such as king or priest. Jesus himself affirmed that he was the Messiah sent from God (Matt. 16:16–17).

METAPHOR

A figure of speech that draws an analogy between two objects by equating them, even though they are not actually the same thing. An example is Ps. 119:105: "Your word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path." See also simile.

MIRACLE

A special act of God that goes beyond natural means, thus demonstrating God's power.

MONOTHEISM

The belief that there is only one true God. One of the distinguishing characteristics of the Israelites in the OT and of Christians, their spiritual heirs. See also polytheism.

MYTH

A religious story explaining how the world came to be in its present form and what spiritual entities lie behind the visible world. The NT uses the term exclusively in a negative way (1 Tim. 1:4; 4:7; 2 Tim. 4:4; Titus 1:14; 2 Pet. 1:16).

OATH

Humans were warned in the OT not to swear promises rashly or falsely (Lev. 5:4; 19:11–12). Sometimes oaths were made in God's name, as though to guarantee them, but Jesus told his disciples not to swear oaths at all. Rather, they should let their simple statement of "yes" mean yes and their "no" mean no (Matt. 5:33–37).

OCCULT

Describes any attempt to acquire secret knowledge about the future or other naturally unknowable information through sources other than God and observance of the natural world. Occult practices are similar to divination, which is condemned in Deut. 18:14.

OMEGA

Last letter of the Greek alphabet (alpha is the first letter). Three times in the book of Revelation Jesus describes himself as "the Alpha and the Omega" (Rev. 1:8; 21:6; 22:13).

OMNIPOTENCE

An attribute of God that describes his unlimited power to carry out his will.

OMNIPRESENCE

An attribute of God that describes his presence in all places at all times.

OMNISCIENCE

An attribute of God that describes his complete knowledge and understanding of all things at all times.

ORACLE
From Latin “to speak.” In the Bible, refers to a divine pronouncement delivered through a human agent.

ORDINATION
Official investment of religious authority upon a person. In the OT, priests were ordained. Most modern Christian denominations require some form of ordination for those in ministry.

ORIGINAL SIN
A condition of both guilt and a propensity to sin, inherited by all people because of their descent from Adam, who committed the first sin.

ORTHODOXY
Teaching and doctrine regarded as correct and in agreement with essential biblical teachings.

PAGANISM
Any belief system that does not acknowledge the God of the Bible as the one true God. Atheism, polytheism, pantheism, animism, and humanism, as well as numerous other religious systems, can all be classified as forms of paganism.

PALESTINE
A name often used to refer to the land occupied by the Israelites. Derived from Philistia, the stretch of land along the Mediterranean Sea that formed the southwest border of Israel’s territory.

PANTHEISM
The heretical belief that all things are part of the essence of God, thus making all things divine.

PAPYRUS
A plant abundant in Middle Eastern marshes. Used for many purposes in ancient times, including the production of writing material. Some of the earliest copies of the Bible were written on papyrus.

PARABLE

A story that uses everyday imagery and activities to communicate a spiritual truth. Jesus often taught in parables (e.g., Matthew 13).

PARADISE

The place of the righteous dead (Luke 23:43; 2 Cor. 12:3; Rev. 2:7), likely the same as heaven.

PARALLELISM

A poetic device, employed in virtually all Hebrew poetry, that places together two or three concepts that are matching, opposing, or progressive in meaning. Essentially it is a “rhyming” of concepts rather than sounds, with the first line being restated in a slightly different way in the second line. An example is Ps. 51:7: “Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.”

PARCHMENT

Writing material, sometimes called vellum, produced from animal skin. Some of the earliest known copies of the Bible were written on parchment.

PARDON

See forgiveness.

PASSOVER

An annual Israelite festival commemorating God’s final plague on the Egyptians, which led to the exodus. In this final plague, the Lord “passed over” the houses of those who spread the blood of a lamb on the doorposts of their homes (Exodus 12). Those who did not obey this command suffered the death of their firstborn.

PASTOR

A common translation of the Greek for “shepherd,” which came to be used of leaders of the church, who are to “shepherd” the “flock” of believers in Christ.

PATRIARCHS

The earliest ancestors of Israel, primarily Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

PEACE

In modern use, the absence of tension or conflict. In biblical use, a condition of well-being or wholeness that God grants his people, which also results in harmony with God and others.

PENITENCE

The condition of being repentant and sorrowful for wrongdoing.

PENTATEUCH

The first five books of the Bible.

PERSEVERANCE OF THE SAINTS

According to this doctrine, God enables all true believers to remain faithful to the end. Those who willfully continue in sin reveal that they were never truly believers. Others may for a time appear to abandon their faith though they have not in fact done so. This doctrine does not deny the reality that even true believers still sin, nor does it mean that those who have made a profession of faith are free to live sinful, godless lives.

PERSONIFICATION

Rhetorical device attributing human characteristics to non-human things, such as animals, plants, or objects. An example is Isa. 55:12: “The mountains and the hills before you shall break forth into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands.”

PETITION

A request made to someone in authority, such as a citizen to a judge or a person to God in prayer.

PHARISEE

A member of a popular religious/political party in NT times characterized by strict adherence to the law of Moses and also to extrabiblical Jewish traditions. The Pharisees were frequently criticized by Jesus for their legalistic and hypocritical practices. The apostle Paul was a zealous Pharisee prior to his conversion.

PHILOSOPHY

The study of the fundamental questions and principles of any subject or discipline. It is often specifically concerned with topics regarding existence, knowledge, values, and reason and is typically characterized by rational, systematic analysis of its subject of inquiry.

PIETY

Reverential fear of God, often demonstrated by practical deeds. In NT times, many Jews considered prayer, almsgiving, and fasting to be the three primary acts of piety.

POLYTHEISM

Belief in the existence of many gods.

POSTEXILIC

Pertaining to the period following the return from exile in Babylon (c. 538 B.C.). Postexilic life in Israel differed markedly from the time before the exile. There was a greater emphasis on observance of the Law of Moses, a near universal abhorrence of idolatry, and the development of the synagogue as a place for Jews to worship and study the Scriptures.

PREDESTINATION

God’s sovereign choice of people for redemption and eternal life. Also referred to as “election.”

PREEMINENCE

The quality of being first, foremost, or of highest significance. In the Bible, this quality is attributed supremely to Christ (Col. 1:18).

PRIEST

In OT Israel, the priest represented the people before God, and God before the people. Only those descended from Aaron could be priests. Their prescribed duties also included inspecting and receiving sacrifices from the people and overseeing the daily activities and maintenance of the tabernacle or temple.

PROPITIATION

The appeasement of wrath by the offering of a gift or sacrifice. Jesus made propitiation for the sins of humanity by his suffering and death (Rom. 3:25; Heb. 2:17; 1 John 2:2; 4:10).

PROSELYTE

A convert to a particular religion, as opposed to one who had grown up in that religion. The Law of Moses gave instructions for how Gentiles could become proselytes of the Israelite covenant community. This primarily involved the circumcision of males.

PROVERB

A brief saying that conveys a lesson about how to live wisely and well, usually drawn from observations about nature and life. The book of Proverbs contains the vast majority of biblical proverbs, but they occur in other books as well.

PROVIDENCE

God’s good, wise, and sovereign guidance and control of all things, by which he supplies all our needs and accomplishes his holy will.

RABBI

A teacher of Jewish religious law. The term, meaning “my master,” originally developed as an expression of respect and later became more formalized as a title. Jesus was often called “Rabbi” by his followers (e.g., Mark 9:5).

RANSOM

A price paid to redeem, or buy back, someone who had become enslaved or something that had been lost to someone else. Jesus described his ministry as serving others and giving his life as a ransom for many (Mark 10:45). See also redemption.

RECONCILIATION

The restoration of relationship and peace between alienated or opposing parties. Through his death and resurrection, Jesus has reconciled believers to God (2 Cor. 5:18–21).

REDEMPTION

In the context of the Bible, the act of buying back someone who had become enslaved or something that had been lost to someone else. Through his death and resurrection, Jesus purchased redemption for all believers (Col. 1:13–14). See also ransom.

REGENERATION

The Holy Spirit’s work of bringing spiritual life to a person, thus enabling him or her to love and follow God. Essentially equivalent to what is often referred to as being “born again” or “saved.”

REINCARNATION

The unbiblical belief that all living beings possess an immortal soul that, upon the death of the physical body, is reborn into another living being. Many also believe that each time this process is repeated the soul moves closer to or further away from some form of ultimate happiness. This belief stands in opposition to the biblical view of human existence and what awaits people after death.

REMNANT

In the Bible, a portion of people who remain after most others are destroyed by some catastrophe. The notion of a “remnant” can be found in various events recorded in Scripture, including the flood (Genesis 6–8) and the return of exiled Judah (Ezra 9).

REPENTANCE

A complete change of heart and mind regarding one’s overall attitude toward God or one’s individual actions. True regeneration and conversion is always accompanied by repentance.

REPROOF

Rebuke or criticism for wrong or sinful behavior. The book of Proverbs contains many verses commending those willing to listen to rebuke (Prov. 3:11) and condemning those who reject it (Prov. 9:8). Scripture is profitable, among other things, for reproof and correction (2 Tim. 3:16–17).

RESURRECTION

The impartation of new, eternal life to a dead person at the end of time (or in the case of Jesus, on the third day after his death). This new life is not a mere resuscitation of the body (as in the case of Lazarus; John 11:1–44) but a transformation of the body to an eternal state (1 Cor. 15:35–58). Both the righteous and the wicked will be resurrected, the former to eternal life and the latter to judgment (John 5:29).

REVIVAL

A renewed desire for spiritual things, brought about by the work of God.

RHETORIC

The use of language to communicate effectively.

RIGHTEOUSNESS

The quality of being morally right and without sin. One of God's distinctive attributes. God imputes righteousness to (justifies) those who trust in Jesus Christ. See also justification.

RITUAL

A symbolic action performed for religious purposes.

SABBATH

Saturday, the seventh day of the week, the Jewish day of worship and rest (Gen. 2:2–3; Ex. 31:13–17). Christians meet for worship on Sunday, the day of Christ's resurrection (Acts 20:7), and regard Sunday, rather than Saturday, as their weekly day of rest. And yet, believers look forward to an eternal Sabbath rest (Heb. 4:1–13).

SABBATICAL

A period of rest. See Sabbath.

SACRIFICE

An offering to God, often to signify forgiveness of sin. The Law of Moses gave detailed instructions regarding various kinds of sacrifices. By his death on the cross, Jesus gave himself as a sacrifice to atone for the sins of believers (Eph. 5:2; Heb. 10:12). Believers are to offer their bodies as living sacrifices to God (Rom. 12:1).

SADDUCEE

A member of a religious/political party during Jesus' time characterized by (1) rejection of any OT writings except the five books of Moses, (2) rejection of belief in the resurrection and in angels and demons, (3) an interest in Hellenistic beliefs and ways of life, and (4) affluence, as a result of their influential priestly positions. Jesus criticized the Sadducees for refusing to believe in the resurrection and for demanding a sign from heaven to confirm his authority.

SALVATION
Deliverance from the eternal consequences of sin. Jesus’ death and resurrection purchased eternal salvation for believers (Rom. 1:16).

SANCTIFICATION
The process of being conformed to the image of Jesus Christ through the work of the Holy Spirit. This process begins immediately after regeneration and continues throughout a Christian’s life.

SANCTUARY
In the Bible, a place set aside as holy because of God’s presence there. The inner sanctuary of the tabernacle (and later the temple) was called the Most Holy Place.

SANHEDRIN
Either a local Jewish tribunal (“council,” Matt. 5:22; “courts,” Matt. 10:17) or the supreme ecclesiastical court in Jerusalem (Matt. 26:59). These Jewish leaders included elders, chief priests, and scribes.

SATAN
A spiritual being whose name means “accuser.” As the leader of all the demonic forces, he opposes God’s rule and seeks to harm God’s people and accuse them of wrongdoing. His power, however, is confined to the bounds that God has set for him, and one day he will be destroyed along with all his demons (Matt. 25:41; Rev. 20:10).

SAVIOR
One who rescues another from destruction. Jesus is the Savior of all believers, rescuing them from sin and eternal punishment (Luke 2:11).

SCAPEGOAT
A goat that was to be sent away into the wilderness on the Day of Atonement as a symbol of Israel’s sins being sent away (Leviticus 16).

SCRIBE

Someone trained and authorized to transcribe, teach, and interpret the Scriptures. Jesus often criticized scribes for their pride, their legalistic approach to the Scriptures, and their refusal to believe in him.

SCRIPTURE

Writings regarded by Christians as inspired by God and authoritative in all areas of doctrine and practice.

SELF-RIGHTEOUSNESS

The belief that one is righteous because of moral uprightness or human effort, rather than depending on the grace of God. Self-righteousness is typically accompanied by pride and a judgmental attitude toward others.

SENSUALITY

A strong preference for what can be gained through the physical senses, often leading to indulgence in immoral behavior, such as sexual sin.

SEPTUAGINT

A Greek translation of the Hebrew OT by Jewish scholars in Alexandria, Egypt, around 200 B.C. Its name derives from the belief that 70 translators were involved in the project.

SHEOL

Commonly translated “the grave,” this OT term predominantly refers to the abode of the dead prior to the coming of Christ. It was associated with descriptions of a dark, prison-like place in the underworld, where the souls of the deceased resided. See also Hades and hell.

SIEGE WARFARE

A plan of attack in which an enemy would surround a fortified city and lie in wait until the city surrendered because of starvation or lack of water. A city under siege would likely fall eventually, apart from divine intervention, as occurred for Jerusalem during the reign of King Hezekiah (2 Kings 19:32–35).

SIMILE

A figure of speech, often seen in poetry, that compares two objects, often using “like” or “as,” even though they are not actually the same thing. A biblical example is in Ps. 1:3: “He is like a tree planted by streams of water.” See also metaphor.

SIN

Any violation of or failure to adhere to the commands of God, or the desire to do so.

SOJOURNER

One living as a non-citizen in a foreign land. In OT times, sojourners had few rights and were especially vulnerable to mistreatment. The Law of Moses protected sojourners and encouraged the Israelites to include them in community life (see Ex. 22:21; Num. 15:15).

SON OF MAN

The title Jesus uses more than any other to refer to himself (e.g., Matt. 8:20; 11:19). While labeling himself this way may underscore Jesus’ humanity, the phrase is most significant in relation to the figure in Daniel 7 who receives supreme authority and an everlasting kingdom from God (compare Dan. 7:13–14 and Matt. 26:64; Mark 14:62).

SORCERY

See magic.

SOUL

Biblically, there are at least two distinct aspects of a human being: the immaterial or spiritual (spirit/soul) and the material or physical (body). Some interpreters believe that the “soul” and the “spirit” are distinct, and that we are composed of three parts: body, soul, and spirit. Yet most interpreters today believe that “spirit” and “soul” are interchangeable terms for the immaterial aspect of our being. Scripture uses other terms for aspects of our immaterial nature as well, including heart and mind. See also spirit.

SOVEREIGNTY

Supreme and independent power and authority. Sovereignty over all things is a distinctive attribute of God (1 Tim. 6:15–16). He directs all things to carry out his purposes (Rom. 8:28–29).

SPIRIT

The innermost, immaterial part of a human being, which corresponds to God, who is Spirit. In the Bible, the term often translates the Hebrew word ruach or the Greek word pneuma, but these words can also be translated as "breath" or "wind" and can refer to the emotions (e.g., Ps. 34:18; Prov. 17:22) or simply the breath of life (e.g., Gen. 6:17; Job 12:10). See also soul.

SPIRITUAL GIFTS

Special abilities given by God to believers for building up the church (Romans 12; 1 Corinthians 12–14; Ephesians 4).

STOICISM

A Hellenistic philosophy that valued logic, asserted that emotions arose from false judgments, and held that the truly wise person would not be subject to such emotions. In modern times it has come to mean being unaffected by either pain or pleasure.

SUBSTITUTIONARY ATONEMENT

A way of understanding the purpose of Jesus' death on the cross: Jesus offered himself to die as a substitute for believers. He took upon himself the punishment they deserve and thereby reconciled them to God.

SUPERNATURAL

Pertaining to anything that is not confined to or explained by the laws of nature as humans understand them.

SUPERSTITION

The belief that an event has a pagan supernatural cause even though it can be explained by other means—either by natural laws or by God's power.

SUPPLICATION

Prayer that asks God to provide something.

SYMBOLISM

The use of natural objects and actions to represent something other than what they actually are. For example, Ps. 23:4: "your rod and your staff, they comfort me." See also metaphor.

SYNAGOGUE

In cities other than Jerusalem, the synagogue (meaning "assembly") was the center of Jewish worship during the time of Christ and remains so today. Synagogues were located in most of the leading towns of Israel. See also tabernacle and temple.

SYNCRETISM

The creation of a new religious system by blending together ideas and practices of various religions.

SYNOPTIC GOSPELS

The Gospels of Matthew, Mark, and Luke, which bear many similarities in their content and basic outline of events ("synoptic" means "same view"). The style and content of the Synoptic Gospels differ in many ways from the Gospel of John.

TABERNACLE

The tent where God dwelled on earth and communed with his people as Israel's divine king. Also referred to as the "tent of meeting" (Lev. 1:5). The temple in Jerusalem later replaced it. See also synagogue and temple.

TEMPLE

A place set aside as holy because of God's presence there. Solomon built the first temple of the Lord in Jerusalem, to replace the portable tabernacle. This temple was later destroyed by the Babylonians, rebuilt, and destroyed again by the Romans. See also synagogue and tabernacle.

THEOCRACY

A form of government in which God is recognized as the supreme ruler of a nation or people. Though the Bible never uses the term, it is the form of government that characterized Israel before the time of the kings (see 1 Sam. 10:19).

THEOLOGY

The study of God and religious beliefs.

THEOPHANY

An appearance of God to a human being.

TITHE

The giving of a tenth of one's income to God, typically by giving to those who perform religious services and duties. In the OT, a tithe was required of all Israelites to support the work of the priests and other Levites. The NT neither requires nor repeals the OT tithe, but believers are called on to give generously, with the confidence that God will supply their needs (2 Corinthians 9).

TORAH

The first five books of the Bible, also called the Law. See also Pentateuch.

TRANSCENDENCE

A distinctive attribute of God that describes his complete independence from and superiority over creation.

TRANSFIGURATION, THE

An event in the life of Jesus Christ in which his physical appearance was transfigured, or changed to reflect his heavenly glory as the Son of God (Matt. 17:1–13).

TRANSGRESSION

A violation of a command or law.

TRESPASS

To violate a command or boundary—of another human, or of God. See sin.

TRINITY, THE

The Godhead as it exists in three distinct Persons: Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. There is one God, yet he is three Persons; there are not three Gods, nor do the three Persons merely represent different aspects or modes of a single God. While the term Trinity is not found in the Bible, the concept is repeatedly assumed and affirmed by the writers of Scripture (e.g., Matt. 28:19; Luke 1:35; 3:22; Gal. 4:6; 2 Thess. 2:13–14; Heb. 10:29).

TRIUNE

See Trinity, the.

TYPOLOGY

A method of interpretation in which a real, historical object, place, or person is recognized as a pattern or foreshadowing (a "type") of some later object, place, or person. For example, the Bible presents Adam as a "type" of Christ (Rom. 5:14).

UNIVERSALISM

The unbiblical belief that all people will be saved from eternal damnation, regardless of whether or not they come to faith in Christ.

VASSAL

A subservient power who has accepted the terms of a covenant treaty with a superior power. Such treaties usually required the vassal to pledge loyalty to the superior power and to present a monetary tribute.

VICARIOUS ATONEMENT

See substitutionary atonement.

VINDICATION

Being cleared of accusation or blame.

WITNESS

In the NT, refers especially to proclaiming the truth of the gospel (Acts 1:8).

WORD, THE

When spelled with an initial capital letter, can refer either to the written Word of God or to Jesus Christ (John 1:1–18). Regarding the latter meaning, see Logos.

WORKS

Actions and attitudes, either good or bad. True faith in Christ will inevitably produce good works that are pleasing to God. Good works can never be the basis or means of salvation, which is by grace through faith alone. See faith and grace.

WORLD

In Scripture, the context determines the meaning of this term. The physical world is God's creation of the earth and everything in it. It can refer to all of humanity (John 3:16) or to the unbelieving, godless world system (John 1:10), often as an adjective, “worldly” (1 Cor. 1:26).

YAHWEH

The likely English form of the name represented by the Hebrew letters YHWH. The Lord revealed this unique name for himself to Moses at the burning bush and told him to instruct the Israelites to call on him by this name (Exodus 3). English translations of the Bible usually render this term as “Lord,” with small capital letters. (YHWH can also be translated God, in small capitals.)

Concordance

As an essentially literal translation, the ESV Bible is ideally suited for use with a concordance, as the ESV seeks to use the same English word, as far as possible and where appropriate to the meaning in each context, to translate important recurring words in the original languages. However, with a total of more than 757,000 words appearing in the ESV Bible, a shorter concordance such as this must be selective in the words it includes.

In choosing which words to list, the guiding principles were importance, familiarity, and breadth of coverage. Since the ESV is within the stream of English Bible translations that began with the King James Version of 1611, there was a special effort to include references to as many familiar Bible passages as possible. As to breadth of coverage, the goal has been to list key references for many different words rather than more lengthy listings for fewer words.

Passages appearing in more than one of the Synoptic Gospels usually have only one reference, most often to the book of Matthew.

Readers will find the functionality of this concordance greatly increased if, after locating a Bible passage, the cross-reference system is then utilized for further research.

Those desiring a more complete concordance for the ESV Bible should consult The Crossway Comprehensive Concordance, which has more than 300,000 verse listings for nearly 14,000 different words. Readers with internet access will find optimal word-search capability with the search engine at the ESV website, www.esv.org.
